SERGEANT BATTEN PRESENTED WITH A LONG SERVICE MEDAL

Presentation Made by Col. Geo. T. Denison to Officer of 24th Field Battery at Canadian Club Dinner Last Evening---Twenty Years With Battery.

The Canadian Club dinner last evening was honoured by the presence of a number of military men in uniform, and preceding the address a long-service medal was presented by Col. Denison to Sergt. Batten of the 14th Field Battery, who has been identified with the above organization for twenty years. In presenting the medal, Col. Denison said that it gave him great pleasure to do so. 'May you long live to wear it" the Colonel added, as he pinned it on Sgt. Batten. Among the military men in uniform were Major Young and Major Medd, of the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons, Capt. Ackerman of the 14th Field Battery, and Capt. Eastwood, of the 57th Regiment.

A Mothers' Prayer Was Answered Speedily

DETROIT, MICH., NOV. 10.—With the words "Oh, merciful Saviour, please take me with my angel daughter," on her lips, Mrs. Mary Leibzeit collapsed in the arms of friends after looking at the face of her 18-year-old daughter, Alma, who died this morning in the hospital at Port Huron, of typhoid fever. In less than an hour the mother, too, was dead.

The girl had worked to help support the family, but two weeks ago was taken down with fever, and the entire community felt her loss. She was a most beautiful girl.

When the undertaker removed her remains to the tiny home the neighbours gathered about the coffin with the mother, whose grief was pitiful, in the endeavour to console her. But she prayed that she might go with her daughter, and her petition was answered.

Fourteen years ago the father left home, and since that time has not been seen. Mother and daughter will be buried in one grave to-morrow.

License Law For Barbers Is To Be Introduced

The barbers of Peterborough and the general public as well, will be interested in learning that the proposed new license law will be brought before the Ontario Legislature. The Act has, as its objects, to regulate the occupation of barbering, to create a Board on such practise, to insure the better education of such practitioners, to provide rules regulating the proper sanitation of barber shops, schools and colleges, preventing the spreading of contagious and infectious diseases, thereby giving the general public cleaner and better service.

Terrible State of Affairs In Some Homes In Neighbouring Counties

NAPANEE, NOV. 10—(Special.)—In an interesting address last night on social conditions in Ontario, Mr. J. J. Kelso, of Toronto, spoke of the degenerate type of settlers to be found in the isolated regions of North Hastings, Haliburton, Lennox and Addington, etc. It was not their fault, as much as their misfortune, and something should be done to improve their condition. Missionaries could do as much good in these regions as in China or India. There were no schools or churches, and large families of children were without shoes or stockings through the long winter, and rarely saw a human being. Stereopticon views were thrown on the canvas clearly demonstrating the wretched ness and degeneracy that prevailed in some districts. Some of these tracts should be closed to settlement, the speaker thought, and assistance should be given the people to remove to more favourable farming land in other sections of the province.

The occasion was the annual meeting of the Children's Aid Society and several townspeople, who know the country north of here, testified to the truth of what had been said Mr. C. B. Scantlbury, of Belleville described the efforts that were being made to remedy the condition of neglected children in Hastings and praised the county council for its cooperation.

New Officers Of The Canadian Club---Some Speakers Coming

The report of the nominating committee of the Canadian Club was read last evening at the meeting by the retiring president, Mr. H. R. H. Kenner. It was adopted as read and is as follows:

President—Dr. D. Stewart Cameron.
1st Vice Pres.—Mr. E. L. Goodwill.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Mr. T. F. Matthews.
Sec-Treas.—Mr. W. R. Morris.

The next meeting of the Club will be held on December 15th, when Principal Falconer, of Toronto University, will be the speaker. In January Dr. Herbert Symonds, of Montreal, will address the Club, and in February, Hon. Sir Clifford Sifton will be the speaker. The speaker for March has not yet been definitely decided upon.

THE TROUBLE IN MEXICO

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, D.C., NOV. 10.—The fact that the Mexican government has imposed vigorous censorship on all despatches out of Mexico City and the district corroborates the belief that the situation there, following the uprising against United States citizens, is more serious than previously reported. Uncle Sam has demanded an explanation through the ambassador there, and it is realized that he himself has something to account for in the lynching of Michigan Rodriguez in Texas.

MUST BE ABLE TO FIGHT TO HOLD RICHES AND POWER OF A COUNTRY

Able Address by Col. Geo. T. Denison, of Toronto, on "Canada and Her Future," Before the Canadian Club Last Evening—Gentleman From Japan Also Spoke.

A LARGE ATTENDANCE

The first of the fall and winter series of the meetings of the Canadian Club was held last evening at the Hotel National and was marked by a splendid attendance and an interesting address by Col. George T. Denison, of Toronto, on "Canada and Her Future". The occasion was also marked by the presence of a distinguished visitor from Japan, in the person of Mr. Masejima, who is Col. Denison's guest in Toronto, and who is in Canada with a view to learning something of the administration of justice in this country, he being, by profession, a lawyer. He spoke briefly to the gathering last evening and was greeted with applause. One of the objects of a Canadian Club, namely, to inculcate into every Canadian, a true spirit of patriotism, must have made a lasting impression on those assembled, after hearing Col. Denison's address last evening. He pointed out that the best way to hold the riches and power of Canada was to be able to fight for them, when necessary. Speaking of reciprocity with the United States he strongly opposed it, stating that it would be a most serious thing for the Dominion.

The first Canadian Club dinner and address was attended by one of the largest gatherings that have ever met in the beautiful dining hall of the Hotel National. Fully one hundred men must have been present, evidencing a growing interest in the Club, and in what it stands for. The spacious dining room was prettily decorated with flags and Canadian emblems, and the menu cards were especially emblematic of Canada. The dinner was as usual up to the high standard of excellence provided by Mine Host Denison, and was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone. After those present had partaken of the many good things provided on the menu, Mr. H. R. H. Kenner, the retiring president, announced the report of the nominating committee, which will be found in another column. Dr. Cameron, the new president, then took the chair, and in a few well-chosen remarks, stated that he felt it a great honour to be elected president of the Canadian Club, and he hoped that the club would continue to be as successful as it had been in the past. He spoke of the Club's objects, and of the great possibilities of Canada. He hoped that everyone cherished a most optimistic picture of the future of Canada. Dr. Cameron, stated that it was not very often the Club was honoured with a visit from a distinguished gentleman of Japan. He assured Mr. Masejima of the pleasure his presence gave them.

Col. Denison, the speaker of the evening, was then introduced.

Col. Denison's Address

In commencing, the speaker of the evening remarked that he had often been asked by this club to address them, but he had always felt that there was no need for him to go out of his way to speak to Canadians when there was no particular change in affairs. He was, he said, a descendant of that first party of Canadians, whose motto was: "Canada first". His motto was: "Canada first and all the time". In the last few years, he stated, very striking incidents had occurred, which had an important influence on the future of the Dominion. The speaker had been as far as Victoria during the past summer, and was impressed by the marvellous beauty of the country, its great resources, etc., but in comparison to all the great stretches of land, he was struck by the small numbers of people. "This is a matter," Col. Denison remarked, "that we should take to heart." We have as much as any country that has made a name for itself in the past, but no country can hold its riches and its power, unless it is prepared to fight for them. We should have peace to preserve our blessings. We have had several times to fight to hold our own. Have you ever thought of how we can go on with these great resources and so few people?" In the battleships of the British navy stood the security of the British Empire. If that was wiped away, the Empire would go, too. A year and a half ago England became alarmed at the great growth of the German navy. It was increasing in an enormous degree. So many Dreadnoughts were to be built each year, so that in 1913 there would be a strong navy. "What is all this for?" the speaker asked. "It was certainly not against France, nor Austria, nor Russia. Emperor William would like to get the mastery of the seas. Was it any wonder England is getting frightened?"

The Effect on Canada.

"What did England do in the

YOUNG MAN ADMITS HE IS GUILTY OF THEFT

Albert Hutt, Charged in Police Court With Stealing a Gold Watch and $8 Pleads Guilty

To run a board bill of $30, be sent to market with $5.00 to buy produce, take a watch and run amuck in the police court, is the experience of Albert Hutt. Hutt was asked by the Magistrate whether he would be tried by a jury or by His Worship Magistrate Dumble in the police court. He elected the latter, so the case was proceeded with.

"You are charged with theft," said His Worship, "are you guilt yor not guilty?" "Guilty," answered the prisoner.

"Who can give me the circumstances of the case?"

The facts were furnished as follows: Hutt had been boarding with a Mr. Richard O'Rourke, and had run in board bill of $30. He was asked one day to pay the bill, and left taking a valuable gold watch with him. He sold the watch for $7.00 and did not go back to his boarding house. The watch was discovered in the possession of its purchaser and the police got hold of the facts, which led up to the arrest of Hutt yesterday.

Hutt was given a chance to speak and told his story as follows: "I acknowledge I owe the board bill, also that I took the watch, but the circumstances are as follows: "Mr. O-Rourke gave me $5.00 to buy some stuff at the market, and as I was going out I saw the watch on the table and thought I would put it in my pocked until I came back, just to have it to say I had a watch with me. I hited with another man at the market and went with him, not returning to Mr. O'Rourke's. Soon after I left my new employer and went to Toronto because I was getting higher pay. I met Mr. O'Rourke there one day and he asked me to return with him, which I did. I sold the watch, but afterwards tried to buy it back again, as the circumstances bothered me very much."

Hutt also stated that he had been in Canada about four years, coming here from England, and that he was never in trouble before. He stated also that he had worked at the fire hall and while there got along without any trouble.

However, the present offence was considered serious enough so he was remanded for a week for sentence.

BRINTON CARPET WORKS WILL REMAIN IN CITY

The Examiner has learned upon reliable authority and is pleased to be able to make the announcement that the recent purchase of the Brinton Carpet Company of Canada by a Montreal firm, will make no change as far as Peterborough is concerned. The works will remain here, there will be no change in the staff and the transfer will make no difference locally.

WAS STRUCK WITH A RULER AND BADLY HURT

As the result of a drunken spree, the Examiner is informed that a man named Frank Kelly, lies at the point of death at Colbourne, Ont. It is said that Kelly and a number of apple pickers gathered at the Bristol Hotel on Friday evening last and were playing cards and having a jollification in general. Some vexation was caused in the game over something, and the proprietor of the Bristol, Mr. Teasel, it is stated, jumped up and hit Kelly over the head with a lumberman's rule. Kelly was taken to the hospital and on Monday morning little hope was entertained for his recovery. Chief Ruse, of Cobourg, went to Colbourne and arrested Teasel, who is now in the Cobourg gaol.

TAG DAY.

The "probs" states that it will be "colder with snow flurries on Saturday." But that wont count much the "probs" are that the Childrens Aid Society Tag Girls will make it hot enough to compensate. This should remind the citizens that tomorrow an organized effort will be made to procure funds, to replenish the treasury of the Children's Aid Society. The appeal will be made in such a way that everybody will be given a chance; it is hoped that nobody in the city, or that may be in the city from the country, will be slighted or overlooked.

There is no necessity to argue the claims of the society; it is worthy of the strongest and most general support. Will everybody see that it gets it? It is not expected that everybody will give large sums to tag-day girls, but there is no limit to which may be given. It is, however, expected that everybody will give something. The smallest coin, if none other is available, will be thankfully accepted.

Little children, worse than orphans rescued from homes of squalor, povrtl-trained, in ill-starred conditions, are being cared for in the shelter warmed, clothed and fed, and money is needed to meet the demands of a long winter, and there are other children living in neglected, ill-treated ill-trained, in ill-stunted conditions who should be rescued, and would rescued, if facilities existed in the way of funds for their maintenance. Everybody is called upon to do his or her share. Remember that to-morrow is Children's Aid Tag Day, and be sure and give the fair solicitors, 150 strong, a warm practical welcome.

GOOD ROADS.

A subject of perennial and surpassing interest to the whole community is "good roads." It is a subject, however, that is more ignored in practice, more neglected by the bodies and interests concerned, than any other subject. Can we honestly say that village, town, city, township and county councils have any particular interest in good roads? Not so. They pretend to have an interest in roads, public highways, but not in "good" roads. Any roads of any kind, bad as they may be, any streets of any kind, bad as they may be, are, as a rule, an expression of the height of their interest. They take no interest in "good roads," and their practice is sadly out of joint. All that appears to be aimed at is roads of some kind, streets of some kind; if they hapen to be fairly good, so much the better. If they happen — not happen — but are made, to be bad, that seems to be all right. Duty is supposed to be fulfilled by the expenditure of so much money, no matter how it is wasted. No matter with what disregard of the recognized principles of road or street making, the work is regarded with complacency. Utter indifference is shown to the fact that in this province alone there are wasted millions of dollars to provide highways that in their make-shift, slop-work style of construction, only represent a loss of money and effort. Our civic road and street builders seem to be as hard to get out of the rut of bad road making as the vehicles buried in the ruts of wretched roads and streets they make.

It is no surprise, therefore that public spirited men have banded together, to carry on an educative campaign in the matter of rousing public opinion in regard to the tremendous national importance and benefit of good roads. The "Good Roads Publicity Association of Toronto, 193 Bay street, is an organization that should have a populous membership. Its object, broadly stated, is to disseminate information, that will rouse the public conscience and bring the public to sanity in regard to the subject of "Good Roads." The membership in this association is open to Boards of Trade and other persons interested in the promotion of the existence of good roads in Ontario.

Here is a chance for our own local Board of Trade to show a real interest in something that constitutes a real need, a real grievance to be remedied in our city. Our Board of Trade should be able consistently, to advance the city's interest by making an effort to so educate the city, council and public opinion to the end that the waste of money, as it is now expended, should cease, and the citizens get value for the taxes they pay so liberally, if sometimes reluctantly. There needs to be information thrust upon the authorities, which from year to year ignore in practice the first principles of road making — good drainage.

On Ullmour street this morning was to be seen a coal dray in front of a residence; and a man was standing ankle deep in mud alongside the boulevard and, from this solugh of mud, going into the house with his bag of coal and carrying a plentiful supply of mud into a residence, spick and span from autumn house cleaning operations, just finished. This residence pays its taxes, but is punished by having provided by the city a mud hole in front of the door. This is a deliberate injury; for it is the result of deliberate neglect. This mud hole has existed after every rain in front of this residence, for fifteen or twenty years, in spite of the fact that ten minutes' work with the road grader or half an hour's work with a pick or spade, would give a clear flow of water westward, where there is a fall of four or five feet to a large drain. Along both sides of this street during the late rain there were on each side of the street for four or five hundred feet, pools of water in the gutter from three to six feet wide, an outrage on decent citizens. A dollar's expenditure would remedy a nuisance which has been a source of annoyance for years. At considerable additional expense, gratings have been placed in crossings to permit of cleaning the waterways. These, except in a few places, are choked with leaves all over the city, and during the recent rains, prevented the off-flow of water.

Under such conditions, which are but a type of others prevailing all over the city, and all over the province, the need of good a Good Roads Publicity Association is apparent. It is to be hoped that the Board of Trade the City Council and mayor and aldermen alike, will join it and take private lessons in good road making, and try to catch the spirit which, in practice, is entirely lacking.

MAKING USE OF THE SCHOOLS.

(Ottawa Journal)

As a usual thing the school houses of a city are in use about twenty-five hours a week out of a total of 168 hours, and for this only about three-quarters of the year. Thus it may be figured out that an educational plant at a national cost of hundreds of millions is in use but eleven per cent. of the time, whereas the average commercial plant is in use forty per cent. of the time—some, indeed, for almost a hundred per cent. of the time.

Cleveland, Ohio, which city Tom C. Johnson taught many things, has discovered a way to make her schools useful outside of the hours sacred to education. It has there become the practice to throw open schools at night, in order that free entertainments may be held. Musical programmes are given with short addresses, and they are said to be very successful. A review of this plan in a Cleveland paper states that last winter school audiences amounted to over 30,000 people in all.

If any such demand arose here or elsewhere for the use of schools out of hours for free educational or entertainment purposes, it might be worth the while of the School Board to consider the plan Cleveland has adopted with such success. It would seem as if a plant as expensive as the city's schools could be made of use for more than eleven per cent. of the total time.

THE FUTURE OF ONTARIO.

(London Advertiser)

The bulk of the immigration into Canada is finding its way to the North West. All other parts of Canada are passed by. Is this in the best interest of the immigrants or the country? It is admitted that the farmers from the western prairie states carry with them experience gained in a prairie country, and readily adapt themselves to the conditions they find in our Northwest. Let as many of them come as will. They will become the best of Canadian citizens. It is claimed, however, that the English farmer would do better if he settled in Ontario. There are said to be many sad cases of failure by Englishmen in the Northwest, not because they are not deserving, but because the country and the life they must lead are entirely new to them. The style of farming there is foreign to their experience.

Ontario offers a better opportunity to the Englishman. It is more like England. Many old countrymen would succeed here who would fail in the Northwest. Ontario has immense areas unsettled, and immense areas also only partly settled. Many Englishmen could locate in either Old or New Ontario to their advantage, and that of the country. In Old Ontario they would find a climate and soil capable of growing the best of fruit and everything in abundance necessary for the most healthy and satisfactory life. The country can be made to yield far more than it does. Canadian Governments should direct that class of immigration to the part of Canada it is most suitable for. In New Ontario is opening up a large region which is capable of supporting millions. The land is said to be very similar to that of Western Ontario. Between the cheap lands to be had in Western Ontario and the free lands and cheaper lands to be had in the newer parts of the province, there should be no difficulty in offering to new settlers, with money, very desirable locations, and to new settlers, without money, land equally as good that in time will be surrounded by all the desirable conditions of life existing in Western Ontario.

Here in Ontario is the land of opportunity for the poor man and his family. Here is a bracing, but not too rigorous climate, an abundance of land, facilities for transportation, churches of all denominations, schools, colleges, and universities, and as yet a population living on terms of equality, few very rich and none very poor, as poverty is known in the old land. The picture drawn by Lloyd George in his recent speech has no counterpart in Canada, but Canada could help, could do its part, to remedy the sad state of affairs undoubtedly existing in all old countries. Let the best means be taken to settle the incoming citizens in that part of Canada, for which they are best suited, and the result will be good for them and us as well. To direct English-speaking immigrants to Ontario should be the aim of public policy.

THE SILVER JUBILEE YEAR OF A GREAT CANADIAN RAILWAY

(Ottawa Free Press.)

Twenty-five years ago, Nov. 7, 1910, the last spike was driven in the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's transcontinental line, which was thereforth to bind together eastern Canad with the great, unpeopled west.

An historic and epoch-making ceremony was that, when Lord Strathcona, then plain Donold Smith, with the well directed blows of the man who is not unaccustomed to manual toil, drove home the spike that completed this, the greatest girder of steel that the world has yet seen.

Among those present at the ceremony were Lord Mount Stephen, then Mr. George Stephen, president of the company; Sir William Van Horne, vice-president and general manager; Sir Sanford Fleming, chief engineer; Mr. Arthur Piers, now manager of the C.P.R. steamship line, then secretary to Sir William Van Horne; Mr. J. Egan, general manager of the western lines; and Mr. Harry Abbott, general superintendent of the Pacific Coast division.

The driving of the last spike marked the close of a period of grave anxiety on the part of the directors. Many a time it looked as if the whole great project would collapse through lack of capital.

Mr. Stephen and Mr. Smith had pledged their private fortunes. At once directors' meeting Mr. Smith rose and said, "We cannot raise the money among ourselves. Let us come back to-morrow and report progress." On the morrow he reported that he had succeeded in raising another million.

But what a change those 25 years have wrought! To-day the C. P. R. is the greatest and wealthiest railroad in the world. To-day the C. P. R. owns and operates 10,000 miles of railway, and its mighty fleet of 82 steamships spans the seas and robs distance of its meaning. The courage of those doughty pioneers of the C.P.R. directorate has indeed been abundantly vindicated.

There are those who say that the Canadian Pacific company's remarkable progress of the past decade has been due mainly to its vast resources in the form of grats-given lands. But when one reviews the history of the road itself, exclusive altogether of the western lands factor, when one reflects that these vast land resources are comparatively untouched as yet, it is seen that the present standing of this greatest of all railroad corporations is due in no small measure to the foresight of those who hazarded in it their fortunes, and to the best of railroad management during the past quarter of a century.

Almost coincidently with its silver jubilee, the company's stock mounted to the highest point in its history. During this past year C.P.R. had advanced 25 points in the fact of the great bear market which carried all other leading stocks down from 40 to 50 points. Today C. P. R., an eight per cent. stock, is selling at 200. Union Pacific, a ten per cent. stock, the stock of the greatest railroad in the United States, is selling 25 points ower. Could there be more eloquent tributes to the intrinsically high estate of Canadian Pacific?

The Grand Trunk Pacific, another great transcontinental road, is now nearing completion. And the Canadian Northern, like a mystic spectre of the night, has come into being out of nothing.

The rising up of other great lines is but the natural course of events. The C.P.R. could not have hoped to long retain a monopoly of the transportation business of Western Canada.

But the growth of Western Canada is outrunning its railroad expansion, rapid though its railroad expansion is. Of railroad business there will, ere long, be enough and to spare in Canada not only for the Canadian Pacific and Grand Trunk and Canadian Northern, but for other lines yet unborn, the ponderous rolling sound of whose trains can be heard in the distance now.

RAISING BATS TO WIPE OUT MOSQUITO SCOURGE

SAN ANTONIO, TEX., NOV. 5.—Grow bats and kill off the mosquitoes is the advice given the citizens of San Antonio and the country at large as the result of experiments and a long study of the bat conducted at the United States Experimental Farm on the outskirts of San Antonio.

Dr. Charles A. P. Campbell has given the world what he believes is the solution of the mosquito problem in a paper, the first of its kind dealing with that subject that has ever been presented to the public. Its title is, "The Eradication of Mosquitoes by the Cultivation of Bats, Their Natural Enemy."

The paper, presented before the medical society of this county, has started a movement that bids fair to sweep through the South, attracting the attention of boards for health and city administrations, for Dr. Campbell proves from his study of years and observation of the habits of the velvety-winged birds of night that better than oil or any other preventive measures is the turning loose of the bat to prey upon the disease-bearing and painfully active mosquito.

The experiments have been kept secret for the scientists at the Government experiment station feared possible ridicule, until they had established beyond cavil their theory. Much curiosity has been aroused by a pyramid-like structure of timber about 100 feet in height built upon piles. It occupies a central position at the Government farm, and at twilight the air is darkened be great clouds of bats winging their way out of what is called "the battery."

It is built of slats, permitting the winged inhabitants to enter at will and remain in the darkness within until the time for the mosquito-hunting peregrinations. To populate the battery "want ads" were inserted in the daily papers addressed to the small boys of the city asking them to bring the bats to Dr. Campbell. A quarter for a pair of bats was the price, and in a few days nearly a thousand bats were introduced to their new habitation.

Dr. Campbell states it as a fact that the great number of bats inhabiting these caves is one, if not the principal, cause of keeping San Antonio comparatively free of mosquitoes. Summer visitors here express surprise at the absence of the mosquito pest. The doctor has discovered that the bat scents the mosquito and pounces upon it like a hawk on a chicken. It possesses a voracious appetite for the singing, stinging insect, and it will keep eating them all night. "Every householder his own mosquito destroyer" is the doctor's slogan. In other words, he says, there will be no mosquitoes if the householder will build his own "battery," placing a small structure of slats in his back yard, and tenanting it with a family of bats.

Lindsay GEORGE STREET

"THE BETRAYAL"

(By E. Phillips Oppenheim.)

"Can you tell me," I asked, "what passengers there were from London by the newspaper train this morning?"

"None at all, sir," the man answered readily.

"Are you quite sure?" I asked.

The man smiled.

"I'm more than sure, sir," the man answered, "because she never stopped. She only sets down by signal now, and we had the message 'no passengers' from Wells. She went through here at forty miles an hour."

"I was expecting Colonel Ray by that train," I remarked, "the gentleman who lectured on the war, you know, at the Village Hall."

The man looked at me curiously.

"Why, he came down last night, same train as you, sir. I know, because he only got out just as the train was going on, and he stepped into the station master's house to light his pipe."

"Thank you," I said, giving the man a shilling. "I must have just missed him, then."

I left the station and walked home. Now, indeed, all my convictions were upset. Colonel Ray had left me outside his clubhouse last night, twenty minutes before the train started, without a word of coming to Brasted. Yet he travelled down by the same train, avoided me, lied to Lady Angela and myself this morning, and had exactly the sort of wounds which I had inflicted upon that unknown assailant who attacked me in the darkness. If circumstantial evidence went for anything, Ray himself had been my aggressor.

I avoided the turn by Brasted Grange and went straight on to the village. Coming out of the post office I found myself face to face with Blanche Moyat. She held out her hand eagerly.

"Were you coming in?" she asked. "Well, not to-day," I answered. "I am on my way to Rowchester, and I am late already."

She kept by my side.

"Come in for a few moments," she begged, in a low tone. "I want to talk to you."

"Not the old subject, I hope, I remarked.

She looked around with an air of mystery.

"Do you know that some one is making inquiries about—that man?"

"I always thought it possible," I answered, "that his friends might turn up some time or other."

We were opposite the front of the Moyats' house. She opened the door and beckoned me to follow. I hesitated, but eventually did so. She led the way into the drawing-room, and carefully closed the door after us.

"Mr Ducaine," she said, "I mean it, really. There is some one in the village making inquiries—about—the man who was found dead."

"Well," I said, "that is not very surprising, is it? His friends were almost certain to turn up sooner or later."

"His friends! But do you know who it is?" she asked.

I sank resignedly into one of Mrs. Moyat's wool-worked covered chairs. An absurd little canary was singing itself hoarse almost over my head. I half closed my eyes. How many more problems was I to be confronted with during these long-drawn-out days of mystery?

"Oh, I do not know," I declared. "I am sure I do not care. I am sorry that I ever asked you for one moment to keep your counsel about the fellow. I never saw him. And I don't want to, Miss Moyat. He may have been prince or pedlar for anything I care."

"I have heard that there is such a person," I answered wearily.

"She's been making inquiries right and left—everywhere. There's a notice in yesterday's Wells Gazette, and a reward of fifty pounds for any one who can give any information about him sufficient to lead to identification."

"If you think," I said, "that you can earn the pounds, pray do not let me stand in your way."

She looked at me with a fixed intentness which I found peculiarly irritating.

"You don't think that I care about the fifty pounds," she said, coming over and standing by my chair.

"Then why take any notice of the matter at all?" I said. "All that you can disclose is that he came from the land and not from the sea, and that he asked where I lived. Why trouble yourself or me about the matter at all? There really isn't any necessity. Some one else probably saw him besides you, and they will soon find their way to this woman."

"It was only to me," she answered, "that he spoke of you."

"Do you believe," I asked, 'that I murdered him?"

She shuddered.

'No, of course I don't," she declared.

"Then why all this nervousness and mystery?" I asked. "I have no fear of anything which might happen. Why should you be afraid?"

"I am not afraid," she said, slowly but that there is something about it which I do not understand. Ever since that morning you have avoided me."

"Nonsense!" I exclaimed.

"It is not nonsense" she answered "It is the truth. You used to come sometimes to see father—and now you never come near the place. It is —too bad of you," she went on, with a little sob. "I thought that after that morning and my promising to do what you asked, that we should be greater friends than ever. Instead of that you have never been near us since. And I don't care who knows it. I am miserable."

She was leaning against the arm of my chair. It was clearly my duty to administer the consolation which the situation demanded. I realised, however, that the occasion was critical, and I ignored her proximity.

"Miss Moyat," I said, "I am sorry if asking you to tell that harmless little fib has made you miserable. I simply desired——"

"It isn't altogether that," she interrupted. "You know it isn't."

"You give me credit for greater powers of divination than I possess," I answered calmly. "Your father was always very kind to me, and I can assure you that I have not forgotten it. But I have work to do now, and I have scarcely an hour to spare. Mr. Moyat would understand it, I am sure."

The door was suddenly opened. Mrs. Moyat, fat and comely, came in She surveyed us both with a friendly and meaning smile, which somehow made my cheeks burn. It was no fault of mine that Blanche had been hanging over my chair.

"Come," she said, "I'm sure I'm very glad to see you once more, Mr. Ducaine Such a stranger as you are, too! But you don't mean to sit in here without a fire all the afternoon. I suppose, Blanche. Tea is just ready in the dining-room. Bring Mr Ducaine along, Blanche."

I held out my hand.

"I am sorry that I cannot stop, Mrs. Moyat," I said. "Good-afternoon, Miss Moyat."

She looked me in the eyes.

"You are not going," she murmured.

"I am afraid," I answered, "that it is imperative. I ought to have been at Rowchester long ago. We are too near neighbours, though, not to see something of one another again before long."

"Well, I'm sure there's no need to hurry so," Mrs. Moyat declared, backing out of the room. "Blanche, you see if you can't persuade Mr. Ducaine. Father'll be home early this evening, too."

"I think," Blanche said, "that Mr. Ducaine has made up his mind."

She walked with me to the hall door, but she declined to shake hands with me. Her appearance was little short of tragic. I think that at another time I might have been amused, for never in my life had I spoken more than a few courteous words to the girl. But my nerves were all on edge; I took her seriously. I walked down the street, leaving her standing in the threshold with the door open, as though anxious to give me a chance to return if I would. I looked back at the corner, and waved my hand. There was something almost threatening in the grim irresponsive figure, standing watching me, and making no pretence at returning my farewell—watching me with steady eyes and close-drawn brows.

CHAPTER XXIII.

MOSTYN RAY EXPLAINS ...

I walked straight to the House, and locked up my papers in the great safe. I had hoped to escape without seeing either Ray or Lady Angela, but as I crossed the hall they issued from the billiard room, Lady Angela turned towards me eagerly.

"Mr. Ducaine," she exclaimed, "have you seen anything of Lord Blenavon to-day?"

I shook my head.

Ray said something to her which I could not hear. She nodded and left us together.

"It seems," he said, "that this amiable young gentleman is more or less in the clutches of our siren friend at Brasted Grange. I think that you and I had better go and dig him out."

"Thank you," I answered, "but I had all I wanted of Brasted Grange last night."

"Pooh!" he answered lightly, "you are not even scratched. They are clumsy conspirators there. I think that you and I are a match for them. Come along."

"You must excuse me, Colonel Ray I said, but I have no desire to visit Brasted Grange, even with you."

Lady Angela, whose crossing the hall had been noiseless, suddenly interposed.

"You are quite right, Mr. Ducaine," she said; "but this is no visit of courtesy, is it? I am sure that my brother would never stay there voluntarily. Something must have happened to him."

"We will go and see," Ray declared. "Come along, Ducaine."

I hesitated, but a glance from Lady Angela settled the matter. For another such I would have walked into hell. Ray and I started off together, and I was not long before I spoke of the things which were in my mind.

"Colonel Ray," I said, "when I saw you this morning you made two statements, both of which were false."

Ray brought out his pipe and began to fill it in leisurely fashion.

"Go on," he said. "What were they?"

"The first was that you had come down from London by the newspaper train this morning, and the second was that you had received your injuries in a hansom cab accident."

His pipe was started, and he puffed out dense volumes of smoke with an air of keen enjoyment.

"Worst of having a woman for your hostess," he remarked, "one can't smoke except a sickly cigarette or two. You should take to a pipe, Ducaine."

"Will you be good enough to explain those two mis-statements, Colonel Ray?"

"Lies, both of them!" he answered, with grim cheerfulness. "Rotten lies, and I hate telling them. The hansom cab accident must have sounded a bit thin."

"It did," I replied him.

He removed his pipe from his teeth, and pushed down the tobacco with the end of his finger.

"I came down from town by the same train that you did," he said, "and as for my broken head and smashed arm, you did it yourself."

"I imagined so" I answered. "Perhaps you will admit that you owe me some explanation."

He laughed, a deep bass laugh, and looked down at me with a gleam of humour in his black eyes.

"Come," he said. "I think that the boot is on the other leg. My head is exceedingly painful and my leg is very stiff. For a young man of your build you have a most surprising muscle."

"I am to understand, then, that it was you who committed an unprovoked assault upon me—who planned to have me waylaid in that dastardly fashion?"

"Do you think," Ray asked, "that I wanted to start a cathird pool?"

"What am I to think, then, what am I to believe?" I asked, with a sudden anger. "You found me starving, and you gave me employment, but ever since I started my work life has become a huge ugly riddle. Are you my friend or my enemy? I do not know. There is a drama being played out before my very eyes. The figures in it move about me continually, yet I alone am blindfolded. I am trusted to almost an incredible extent. Great issues are confided to me. I have been given such a post as a man might work for a lifetime to secure. Yet where a little confidence would give me zest for my work—would take away this horrible sense of moving always in the darkness—it is withheld from me."

"Well," he said, "I am not sure that you are altogether unreasonable. But, on the other hand, you must not forget that there is method, and a good deal of it, in the very things of which you complain. There are certain positions in which a man may find himself where a measure of ignorance is a blessed thing. Believe me, that if you understood, your difficulties would increase instead of diminish."

Fraternal Prescription For Nervous Wrecks

(From "Medical Reports.")

Thousands of men, nervous wrecks, have found the following "fraternal prescription" a blessing and a boon. Such men lack aggressiveness, they are timid, nervous, easily discouraged, lacking in self esteem and confidence. They suffer from cold extremities, thin watery blood, nervousness, sleeplessness, frightful dreams, trembling hands and limbs, unsteady gait and an absolute inability to perform the ordinary natural and rational acts or duties such as any healthy normal man can.

A vigorous man works, plays, eats and sleeps always with the keenest enjoyment. The greater his exertions are, the stronger become his appetite and slumbers.

The nervous man, seems always tired and worn out. Retiring brings no relief. Sleep brings no refreshment, all because of an abnormal condition of the nervous system, brought about by—well, no matter what — the desire is for relief, and freedom with rich, red blood, surging through the body supplying the sensitive nerves with all the power of sensation, so that sleep is refreshing, food is delicious work is play and play is pleasure.

This treatment is thorough, simple and correct. The ingredients are used in filling various prescriptions and can be obtained of any well stocked druggists and mixed at home without embarrassment or questions.

Obtain three ounces of syrup sarsaparilla compound in a six ounce bottle. To this, add one ounce of compound fluid balmwort and let stand two hours, Then add one ounce of tincture cadomene compound (not cardamom), and one ounce of compound essence cardiol. Mix, shake well and take a teaspoonful after each meal and one when retiring until a vigorous, brandnig new-health takes hold of the tired, exhausted nerves. Only a few weeks treatment will astonish, and rejuvenate, because the treatment is the right thing at the right time, and contains no deceptive opiates.

BOTTLE THROWN INTO SEA STARTS ROMANCE

Examiner Special.

CHICAGO, NOV. 5.—Cupid used strange tools in forging the chains of love which will shortly make Miss Winnie Bradbury, a beautiful society girl, of Birmingham, England, the bride of Dr. Carl A. Johnson, No. 5,900 Halsted Street.

A corked bottle.
A professional card.
A wide and stormy ocean.
A strip of sandy beach in North Wales.

Nine years ago Dr. Johnson dropped the bottle overboard in mid-Atlantic. The storms of six years carried it to the North Wales beach. Miss Bradbury's keen eyes picked it out of the seaweed and returned it to the dentist. Then came the exchange of letters and photographs, which will result in an early marriage at the young woman's home, "Lynwood," on Alcester Road, King's Heath, a fashionable suburb of England's great iron and steel centre.

In June, 1901, shortly after graduating from the University of Michigan, Dr. Johnson started for a European trip on the steamer Commonwealth. He was developing some photographs in his stateroom one afternoon when he emptied a bottle of chemicals. He put one of his professional cards in the bottle, after noting the date, June 13, and added a request to return. He consigned it to the tender mercies of the Atlantic through a porthole.

It was April, 1908, however, before he got an answer and a snapshot of the Birmingham girl. Her letter read:

"I was so very pleased to hear from you. I really never expected to after such a long time. I must apologize for not answering your letter before, but I have had no photograph to send."

The young people learned all about each other through numerous letters and have decided to marry, although they have never met. Miss Bradbury is the daughter of a wealthy Birmingham steel manufacturer and the ceremony will be performed at her home.

The young people will first go to North Wales and together visit the spot where the bottle was found. Then they will tour the Continent for several months and on their return establish a home in Chicago.

MOTHER SAVED HER DAUGHTER FROM BEING KILLED BY BIG PANTHER

Special to the Examiner.

LITTLE ROCK, ARK., NOV. 10. —Wildcats and panthers so ferocious they pay nightly visits to the outskirts of towns are roaming the woods in this State. At Eureka Springs a big hunt is being organized to exterminate one panther in particular which has varied its pastime of killing stock by chasing children. A reward of $25 has been offered for the pelt of this animal.

The Eureka Springs panther has been creating havoc in that vicinity for several weeks, and all efforts to find its lair have failed. The panther becomes more bold daily and the farmers of Carrol County will not let their children go to school without guard and none are allowed to go nutting.

Recently two small children were sent after the cows on the Wash Hopkins farm, three miles from Eureka Springs, and at the edge of the woods a panther charged them. The children ran home, screaming at the top of their voices. Their mother, seeing the danger, attacked the animal with a club as it was about to spring upon the smaller child. The larger child, a boy, had remained at the side of the little girl and kept the animal at bay by throwing dust in its face.

In the vicinity of Tahrhana several head of cattle have been killed recently and residents have heard the roar of an animal, something like that of a lion, in the woods at night. An organized hunt will be held there also.

HEALING POWER A MARVEL

So remarkable is the healing power of Dr. Chase's Ointment that the results of a single application are often a marvel to persons who witness them for the first time. Mrs. C. Hopkins, St. George, Ont. tells how her son was raised all blood poisoning which got started in a wound received at a threshing. Doctor was promptly and cure effected by three boxes.

DIED OF LOCKJAW

Valuable Horse Gets Nail in Foot With Fatal Results

Mr. J. Nelson Rusaw, 920 Elm St., sustained a heavy loss last night, when one of his horses, valued at $200 died, as a result of lockjaw. Mr. Rusaw was employed with his team, by the Canadian General Electric Co., and about ten days ago, while driving in their yards, the horse got a rusty nail in its foot, in fact, the nail ran right through the hoof. Mr. Nelson worked the horse steadily since the accident happened and drove it to Lakefield on Monday, but it showed signs of being sick. Dr. Johnson, V.S., was called, but nothing could be successfully done for the animal, and it died last night.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

IN a cemetery through which I had occasion to pass the other day, I saw, standing out unique among the conventionally mournful shafts of marble and granite, a huge grey boulder, primeval and unhewn.

I inquired about its presence there and was told this:

The young man, whose grave it marked, was passionately fond of a certain rugged spot on the coast where he spent his summers. This boulder had marked a prominence where he used to love to sit and watch the ocean at sunset, and when he died a few months after his marriage, just as he was about to fulfil his dream of bringing his bride to the spot he had so often described to her, she chose to bring that boulder, rather than some conventionally expensive shaft of granite or marble, to mark his grave.

Don't you think that was a beautiful thought?

It seemed so to me.

I know another case where a man who believed in cremation left instructions that his ashes should be carried out to the farm which was his boyhood home, and scattered in springtime over the ploughed fields.

And just recently I heard of a woman who requested that she be cremated and her ashes carried out "as close to the horizon as you can get," and given to rest in the heart of the sea she had loved so intensely all her life.

As it happened, those whom she left behind greatly objected to cremation, and after consulting a lawyer and making sure that their act would not invalidate her will, they calmly refused her last request. She lies to-day in the centre of a crowded cemetery two hundred miles from her beloved ocean, respectably interred under the most conventional of marble shafts upon which is fulsomely chiseled her family's respect and grief for the woman whose last request they saw fit to deny.

You think this is a decidedly mournful talk? You don't like to be reminded about things like that? You make mem think of Falstaff's famous landlady. Remember how "'a cried out God, God, God, three or four times; now I, to comfort him, bid him 'a should not think of God; I hoped there was no need to trouble himself with any such thought yet."

But truly, I didnt mean it to be lugubrious. I just wanted to tell you of some people I admired for being able to rob death of a little of its horribly conventional ceremony.

SPLENDID LECTURE BY MR. ERNEST THOMPSON SETON

Distinguished Author and Naturalist Spoke at Grand Opera House Under the Auspices of the Boy Scouts Last Night.

Mr. Ernest Thompson-Seton, the famous naturalist and author, from whose pen have come such delightful and well known delineations of animal life as "Wild Animals I Have Known" "Lives of the Hunted," etc., gave a most entertaining and instructive lecture in the Grand Opera House last night under the auspices of the Boy Scouts of Peterborough. There was a large audience present and they followed the lecture with every indication of hearty interest. The Boy Scouts in uniform occupied the front rows of the house and Mr. Thompson-Seton had no more interested and attentive auditors than the youngsters who drank in every word with avidity.

Mr. Thompson-Seton is an eloquent and fluent speaker with the power of drawing word-pictures that bring what he is describing vividly before the minds of his hearers and a gift of humour that he uses to full advantage. These qualities, combined with his deep knowledge of the subject upon which he speaks, make his lecture one of the greatest interest and the end came all too soon for the audience last night. Illustrated by many splendid photographs and sketches from life thrown on the screen by a stereopticon lantern, Mr. Thompson-Seton brought before the audience some of the experiences he has had and the observations he has made during his life study as a naturalist.

In commencing his lecture, the distinguished speaker gave a short explanation of his methods in preparing his stories of animal life. He explained that the stories of the animals he had written were not the life story of one particular animal, but were composed of incidents in the lives of many such animals, incidents he had observed himself, had been informed of by others or had learned of through observation. His lecture bristled with interesting information presented in a most entertaining manner. He pointed out the strong maternal instinct among animals and gave instances of how the mothers fought for their young. He showed too how Nature had made wise provision for the protection of the young and how obedient the latter were to the instructions received from their mothers. The speaker repudiated the idea that the strongest and biggest male in the herd was always the leader; on the contrary he had found that this position was generally occupied by an elderly female. In this connection some interesting photographs of deer were shown and in nearly every case the biggest stag was in the rear of the procession.

He gave a most fascinating description of the migration of birds to the south in the autumn and illustrated his picture by most realistic imitations of the calls of the lark, the wild duck, the white crane and other birds, as he had heard them along the banks of the Red River. He illustrated too, the manner in which the bull moose is called in order to be brought within shooting range.

A more enjoyable lecture has seldom been heard in Peterborough, and the Boy Scouts deserve credit for bringing Mr. Thompson-Seton to Peterborough.

Y. M. C. A. DEBATING SOCIETY ORGANIZED LAST NIGHT

A very enthusiastic meeting of the Y.M.C.A. Debating Society was held last night in the parlour of the Association. It is two years since the Association has had a debating society and the prospects are now bright for a good season of literary work and debates of a high order.

After the temporary organization was completed the chairman called for nominations for the office of President, and when the vote was taken it was found that Mr. F. E. Ellis had ben elected to the office. This will be popular among the members. Mr. Ellis has been in the city only a short time, but he has become extremely popular among the men who have formed his acquaintance. He is a graduate of the O. A. C. at Guelph, and holds the responsible post of sub-Editor of Farm and Dairy. He will make a capable presiding officer.

Mr. W. O. Taylor was elected Vice-President. Mr. Taylor has the reputation of being a debater of more than ordinary ability.

Mr. Wilfred Shiner was elected Secretary and will perform his duties in his cutomary, capable manner. Mr. Shiner was one of the leaders in the old Society, which, during its life, was one of the best the City has ever had.

On motion, it was decided that the Executive should consist of the President, Vice-President, Secretary, and Messrs. J. A. Johnston and W. A. Logan.

This committee was instructed to draw up a constitution and by-laws and to submit them to the Society at its next meeting, which will be held on Tuesday evening, Nov. 22nd.

The same committee will also arrange a debate for that evening.

The singing will be one of the main attractions at the Men's Meeting in the Crystal Theatre on Sunday afternoon. There will be an Orchestra of six pieces and Mr. Schneider will preside at the piano. With two hundred men singing the good old Gospel songs it will be an inspiring meeting.

Dr. Brown's subject will be "The Strength of Men," and judging by what other Associations have to say about him, the address will be one that no man should miss.

The song service, led by a chorus of twenty picked voices, will begin at long 3 o'clock, sharp.

MARRIED.

BURNHAM—MANSON.—On the 10th of November, at St. Andrew's church, Grimsby, by the Rev. J. Allan Ballard, Harold Bostwick Burnham, of Edmonton, to Florence Mary Manson, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Manson, Lake Lawn, Grimsby.

HARRY ADAMS

MUST BE ABLE TO FIGHT TO HOLD RICHES AND POWER

past?" he asked. "At the time of the Spanish Armada, every seaport was called upon to make ready, to make ships. "There is one thing we must remember. We have much at stake. Supposing the British fleet was defeated by Germany and forced to give up every naval station: how would that effect us? Germany would want Canada. The Munro doctrine would not be heard of then in the United States, and I venture to say, if it was considered, it would only be on the condition that Canada be annexed to the United States. If there was any choice, I think I would prefer Germany. We haven't a full idea of the safety of our future. We have to do something for the naval power of our country. I would prefer Canada doubling her national debt, if it was to build her a navy to save the Empire."

Col. Denison believed that it was of the utmost importance that the Empire should be confederated in trade and strength. All nations have become great through trade. Trade should be carried on for the prosperity of the people, and this could be more effectively done in a combined Empire. A system of preferential tariffs would be of great benefit and in the interests of Canada every effort should be put forth to secure it.

Reciprocity With United States.

Another question the speaker dealt with was reciprocity with the United States. If one studied the history of the past hundred years, he would find that there has been an intense desire to secure Canada. It would be a fine thing for them, but not for the people of this country. "We are now a great country," he stated, "and we are going to be a much greater one." They have talked of annexation for many years, but the Canadians have always stood secure. A commercial union has also been suggested. He believed that this movement of reciprocity would be a serious one for Canada. He illustrated this by pointing out that the real cause of the French revolution was the folly of making reciprocity with England. If Canadians have any sense and any insight into the future they would be foolish to enter into an arrangement that they could not get out of, without a war.

In conclusion, Col. Denison spoke of the spirit of the people, and urged the building of a true national spirit. The mere paltry thing of making money was not everything. He referred to the loyal, fearless spirit in which the Japanese soldiers threw away their lives for their country at the time of the Russo-Japanese war. Canadians had shown the same spirit and he proved it by speaking of several instances of bravery in the Boer war. "If we can produce men like those Canadians who fought so nobly then, nothing under the sun can interfere with the future of Canada."

Mr. Masejima

Mr. Masejima, of Japan, on being called upon to speak, was greeted with prolonged applause. He spoke briefly, thanking the Club for the invitation to be present and the hearty reception he had received. Japan, he said, was an allied country of Great Britain, but he felt that they should understand each other better, and work more together.

A vote of thanks was then tendered Col. Denison, it being eloquently moved by Mr. J. H. Burnham and ably seconded by Mr. L. M. Hayes, K. C.

The singing of the National Anthem concluded the evening.

GIRL BOOKKEEPER HELD UP

Examiner Special.

FITCHBURG, MASS., NOV. 10.—A daring attempt at highway robbery in the business district of this city to-day was followed by the arrest of the alleged offender within an hour after the occurrence.

Miss Jennie Hackett, bookkeeper for the D. M. Dillon Steam Boiler Company, while walking from the bank to the company's office with the company's pay-roll of about $1,500, was seized from behind by a man, who pressed a revolver to her head and threatened her with death if she did not turn the money over to him. Several men, attracted by Miss Hackett's screams, rushed to her assistance and the robber fled.

Within an hour Laboria Crapinza, who claims New York city as his home, was arrested and identified by Miss Hackett as her assailant.

ADVENT OF LITTLE BROTHER CAUSED TWO CHILDREN TO LEAVE THEIR HOME

Special to The Examiner.

BELLEFONTAINE, O., NOV. 10.—Two children, a boy and a girl, were found asleep in a box in the rear of a building in the business section of the city a few nights ago. They were Maggie, aged nine, and Walter, aged six, children of Moffatt Brown, a street laborer of this city. He was searching for the children when the police found them in the bed they had improvised in a wooden packing case.

The advent of a baby into the Brown household was displeasing to the children. When they started for school, as usual, they decided to seek a home elsewhere, because they did not care for the bald little babe the stork had brought to their home.

Walter and Maggie struck out across the country, six miles, to the village of Cherokee, where lives their grandfather, John Legge.

It was late at night when they arrived there and they were kept over night and started home the next morning. Arriving in Bellefontaine, they decided they would not go home and behind a business block they found a big box partly filled with excelsior. This seemed to be a comfortable bed and they crawled into it, Walter taking off his shoes and stockings before falling asleep.

Their long walk made them sleep soundly, and when they were awakened by a policeman they were frightened and cried when they told the story of their two days' absence. The father took them home and introduced them to their new brother.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

The first game in the Intermediat Basketball League was played last night between A. Fitzgerald's 'Row dies" and A. Darling's "Shamrocks. Notwithstanding their name, the Row dies played a clean, fast game, th score being no indication of the play Score, Rowdies 24, Shamrocks 5. Re feree, D. Loomis.

In the Business Boys League, th Victors and Indians failed to score the game ending a tie. The Giants defeated the Dreadnoughts 4 to 2 in a good game. The Giants look real big, and have not yet lost a game.

Did you hear about last week's paper chase? If you failed to take in the fun of last week, get in the game tomorrow. Never mind the weather, you will enjoy it all the more if the weather is cold. A hearty invitation is extended to the runners of any other club in the city to come along and enjoy the run and a good bath and swim after. Leaving the building at 3 p.m.

Saturday afternoon, Boy Scouts outing; also Century Hikers' Club.

Saturday night, 8 p.m., game tournament, Business Boys vs. Intermediates.

Saturday morning, 10 o'clock, School Boys and Business Boys' Bible class, taught by boys' secretary.

In spite of weather conditions, the Scouts lined up at the Armories last night about one hundred strong and marched to the Thompson-Seton lecture. The boys were well repaid for braving the weather, by the many interesting and instructive stories that were told and illustrated. And there is not much doubt but what some of the tracking tactics will be tried out Saturday by them. The Scouts wish to thank the public who so generously supported them by the purchasing of tickets from them. The lecture was under the auspices of the Boy Scouts.

"WHEN ALL HAS BEEN SAID"

There is a play coming to the Grand on Wednesday, Nov. 16, that is bound to strike a new and welcome note. It is called "When All Has Been Said". It is the work of a comparatively new man, Bayard Veiller, but its producers, its interpreters, and its stager are known to theatregoers the country over for the commendable work they have always done in the past. The author, Mr. Veiller, is a newspaper man of repute, in private life the husband of Margaret Wycherly, who appeared with much success in the New Theatre in Maeterlinck's "The Blue Bird". His play is founded upon "That Which Never Dies", a truly novel piece of work by Jackson D. Haag. Working upon a strong dramatic idea, Mr. Viller has called into the play a remarkable faculty of touching the human emotions, doubtless acquired in his early reportorial days. "When All Has Been Said" is said to have a human appeal that will fasten it at once upon the popular fancy.

There are several external features about "When All Has Been Said" that make it an unusual play. There is only one woman in it and this lone woman shares claim to the leadership of the cast with the part of a seven-year-old boy. And this boy, a manly, independent little fellow, as likeable as any "kid" that ever took a fascinated interest in dead frogs, gives momentum to the drama that surges up about him, and himself strikes the critical note in the climacteric scene.

This boy, Wm. Gordon, will be played by Thomas Tobin. The part of his mother, a dramatic role such as rarely falls to the lot of an actress, is in the hands of Emily Stevens, the talented cousin of Mrs. Fiske. The young woman's big success as leading woman for George Arliss in "Septimus" last season, fully justifies her elevation to the head of a company of metropolitan favourites. Charles Balsar, Eugene Ormonde, George Woodward and Joseph Sparkes are conspicuous in the strong cast.

The play is one of the many strong attractions under Liebler and Company control. Hugh Ford, general stage director for that firm, staged the play.

GENUINE "HITS"

Successes that are genuine "hits" in dramatic wiles have been exceptionally few, considering the large number of offerings that have been thrust before the public during the last three seasons by known and unknown authors.

One of the most successful has been the young author Avery Hopwood, who has made two immense successes in the comedy "Seven Days", now running in New York and a drama "This Woman and The Man" which met with remarkable success in New York at the Maxine Elliott Theatre the play in which Miss Minnie Victorson, America's popular comedy and emotional actress supported by a metropolitan cast will appear in this city on Monday, Nov. 14

Examiner Special.

NEW ORLEANS, NOV 10 The same undertaker twice prepared the body of Mrs. Rosa Roth Frick for burial. The first time was fifteen years ago when, as a girl, she was thought to have died of typhoid malaria. The death certificate had been signed; the coffin was in the house, and friends of the family were offering condolences when the undertaker drove them from the house and recalled the doctor.

Miss Roth recovered health and was married. As Mrs. Rosa Frick she was killed by a street car and the undertaker was called again. There was no chance for suspended animation at the time of his second visit.

IS SENTENCED

He Gets Six Months For Assault on Thomas Horder.

Toronto, Nov. 11.—A sentence of six months in the Central Prison was imposed by Justice Britton in the jury assizes yesterday on Charles Hardy, charged with assault on the late Thos. Horder in the Saranac Hotel, of which Horder was proprietor. Horder died a short time after the assault. Hardy was originally charged with murder. Medical evidence showed that erysipelas had developed in the wound Hardy had inflicted.

Hardy had been singing in the bar. Horder objected and threw a piece of ice at him, and later someone squirted some seltzer from a syphon on him. At 11 o'clock Hardy was ejected, and struck Horder. He was arrested at Fort Frances, Ont.

T. C. Robinette, K.C., counsel for Hardy, criticized Inspector Duncan for having questioned Hardy in his office, with a stenographer present. "If I said anything improper the notes will show it. There was no sweat box about it," said Mr. Duncan.

Dr. Ball said that Horder had been predisposed to the disease of erysipelas and he might have died of erysipelas had he received no wound.

"Whether you intended to hurt Horder or not, the law holds you responsible for the result of your act," said Mr. Justice Britton. "I personally acquit you of all intent to do him injury, but the jury could not do otherwise than find you guilty."

Thomas Mack, aged 23, was sentenced to three years for having entered the home of Mrs. Ida Berman, 91 Duchess street, in pretence of looking at a room and attempting an assault.

Walter Bell and John Jones, convicted of burglary, were sentenced to 18 months. They will be taken to Brampton to face trial as the alleged murderers of a Chinaman at Streetsville.

Alberta Legislature Opens.

Edmonton, Nov. 11.—The second session of the second Legislature of Alberta was opened yesterday afternoon by Lieut.-Governor Bulyea. A good deal of popular interest attaches to the work of the assembly this year on account of the stirring events which marked last session, and also on account of the change in the Premiership.

In the speech from the throne the Lieutenant-Governor dealt with the crop situation in the province, pointing out that wherever proper farming methods had been employed, good results had been obtained. Marked success, he added, had attended the efforts to secure an influx of approved immigrants.

Changes in administration were enumerated and reference was made to report of the royal commission on the Alberta and Great Waterways investigation. After the address from the throne, the report was laid on the table. The House then adjourned until Monday.

Anxious To Get In.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Nov. 11.—Canadian immigration officials say that John Dec and Stefan Rozck, Russian Poles, yesterday afternoon braved the dangers of the river above the falls in a rowboat to gain entrance to Canada. Both were arrested by immigration officials shortly after landing on Canadian soil and will to-day answer to a charge of entering the country illegally. Dec and Rozck were on Wednesday refused admission to Canada at the upper bridge.

Where the men are alleged to have crossed the river it is very dangerous. The current is swift and treacherous for those not acquainted thoroughly with its moods. That they were not swept down and carried over the falls appears miraculous.

Up In the Air.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 11.—Aviation enthusiasts flocked yesterday to the field where the Baltimore aviation meet is being held. There were bomb throwing and target shooting contests and aerial gymnastics, and several prominent Government officials made trips. Postmaster-General F. Hitchcock went up with Count Jacques de Lesseps, and was so pleased with the experience that he asked Arch. Hoxsey for a flight in the Wright bi-plane. Hoxsey, however, said the upper air was too gusty to make passenger altogether safe, and asked the Postmaster-General to wait until to-day. Gen. James Allen, chief of the signal corps, also went aloft with Count de Lesseps.

A Labor Ticket.

Fort William, Nov. 11.—At a meeting Wednesday night, the Fort William Trades and Labor Council decided to break into the municipal election game, and with the exception of a candidate for mayor, a full labor ticket was chosen. Mayor L. L. Peltier's name was brought up in connection with the labor nomination for the office next year, but he was turned down.

Anxiety For Steamers.

Winnipeg, Nov. 11.—A good deal of anxiety is being shown in some quarters over the non-arrival at Selkirk of boats long overdue there. The early freeze-up on Lake Winnipeg has probably held up steamers, but news of the safe arrival of the steamer Wolverine, two weeks overdue, would be welcomed. She has about 30 passengers on board, in addition to a crew of fourteen.

MEMBERS OF PEACE COMMITTEE ARE UNABLE TO COME TO TERMS

Premier Asquith Announces That Members of the Peace Committee Are Unable to Come to Terms.

FIGHT TO START AGAIN

London, Nov. 11.—The conference which was organized shortly after the death of King Edward, in an endeavor to secure a settlement of the acute controversy over the question of the veto power of the House of Lords with reference to measures passed by the House of Commons — a controversy aggravated by the refusal of the Upper House to pass the budget—has dissolved without reaching an agreement.

Announcement of the failure of the leaders of the two great political parties to find a solution of the dispute, which has kept British politics in a turmoil for more than a year, was made by Premier Asquith last night, after a meeting of the Cabinet, which followed the earlier gathering of the conference. The official statement does not disclose the cause of the disagreement. It simply says: —

"The conference which has been sitting to consider a constitutional question has come to an end without arriving at an agreement."

The statement adds that the members of the conference had decided not to disclose the course of the negotiations or the causes which led to its termination.

It is understood, however, that the rock on which the conference split was the question of the composition of the joint committee of both Houses that should adjust the differences arising in the future. The Liberals insisted that the proportion of peers on this committee should be such that the will of the House of Commons would have a fair chance of prevailing. The Conservative members could not agree to the Government's proposals, and their alternative proved unacceptable to the Liberals.

Walter Hume-Long announced last night, on the authority of Mr. Balfour, leader of the Opposition, that neither home rule, imperial federation, nor devolution formed any part of the discussion, which confirmed previous reports that the conference had confined itself to the constitutional question.

The political situation now reverts to the position it was in before the truce. The conference secured a respite in the controversy over the most acute issue of the day during the period of national mourning, which gives hope that some means will be found to avoid political complications until after the coronation.

How this is to be accomplished remains a matter of conjecture, and politicians are preparing to resume the fight. Advanced Liberals, long tired of inactivity, are urging the Government to press forward the original proposals limiting the power of the House of Lords by immediately introducing in the Upper House the resolutions passed in the House of Commons last April. These the House of Lords would reject, and, in the crisis then arising, Mr. Asquith is pledged to advise the use of the royal prerogative for the appointment of a sufficient number of peers to ensure the passage of a measure making the will of the Commons supreme.

If this course were followed there would probably be a general election in January or soon after. The opinion prevails, however, that the Government will force an immediate dissolution and get the elections over before Christmas. The result of recent bye-elections encourage the Liberals to make an immediate appeal to the people. Besides, they are thoroughly organized, and in a far better position for a contest than they were last January.

CANDIDATE FOR SPEAKERSHIP SAYS TARIFF WILL BE CUT

Democratic Majority in House of Representatives Will Reach Sixty, Say Latest Reports.

A REVENUE BASIS

Bowling Green, Mo., Nov. 11—Downward revison of the tariff at once is the pledge made for the new Democratic House of Representatives by Champ Clark, Congressman from the ninth district, who is a candidate for the Speakership.

"This landslide is in line with my prediction of months ago," said Congressman Clark at his home. "The people are tired of the present Administration and are provoked to just the extent that the returns indicate, with the tariff deception.

"The first and greatest proposition the Democrats should stand for is a reduction in the tariff to a revenue basis. I would reduce it scientifically and gradually and put into it a sliding scale much like there was in the tariff bill of 1833.

"There is no question but that the Democrats will be on their good behavior in the next Congress and the future will depend largely on our conduct. Democrats now have a golden opportunity for constructive statesmanship and should seize it and demonstrate once more their fitness for legislating wisely and patriotically."

Four Women Members.

Denver, Nov. 11.—Four women will sit in the eighteenth general assembly of Colorado as a result of the elections. They are Almi Lafferty, Louise U. Jones, and Louise M. Kerwin, all elected to the House of Representatives from Denver district on the Democratic ticket, and Agnes Riddell, Republican representative for Adams, Arraphoe and Elbert Counties. In the last general assembly Mrs. Lafferty, who was re-elected, was the only woman representative. There are no women Senators.

Taft Off For Panama.

Charleston, S.C., Nov. 11.—President Taft sailed yesterday for the Isthmus of Panama to get in personal touch with conditions along the big canal. Taft sailed on the armored cruiser Tennessee, with the cruiser Montana as convoy.

Socialist Gains.

New York, Nov. 11.—Marked gains in the Socialist vote throughout the state are shown in the election returns. Figures indicate a total vote for Charles Edward Russell, nominee for governor, of 65,000, which is nearly double the vote of 1908. In New York, Russell received 27,230.

Up-state, sixty-five cities that gave a vote of 7,950 two years ago, show 21,000 this year. Districts which formerly showed less than ten votes, this year report from 100 to 500. Among the large cities that show substantial Socialist gains are: Buffalo, Schenectady, Syracuse and Rochester. In some instances the increases are as high as 500 per cent.

Standing of the Parties.

Washington, Nov. 11.—Revised figures indicate that the Democratic majority in the next House will be sixty. The latest totals are 225 Democrats and 165 Republicans, with one Socialist.

Strike Settled.

New York, Nov. 11.—After backing for five hours, an executive session of the striking drivers and helpers of the five trans-continental express companies decided tentatively yesterday morning to return to work Monday, under the terms of the agreement signed Thursday afternoon.

If the Jersey City strikers also approve the agreement, the men will go back; if the Jersey City men reject the agreement, the New York men will stay out.

Drivers and chauffeurs on strike not employed by the express companies are not affected and may settle their differences as they chose.

Wolverine Safe.

Selkirk, Man., Nov. 11.—All anxiety regarding the steamship Wolverine, which went out to assist the steamer Mekado on shore on Smoky Island, and not heard of for two weeks, has been removed by information to the effect that she is ice bound within short distance of the wreck, but in no danger.

Clever Accident Faker.

New York, Nov. 11.—Mrs. Anna A. Strula confessed in court yesterday that she had obtained her livelihood by her ability to fake accidents on railroad property, and then compromise her suits for damages.

Mrs. Strula faked her accident by taking a tumble on a banana peel, ejected from a grip she carried, and then led physicians to believe that she was internally hurt.

Avoided a Deadlock.

Winnipeg, Nov. 11.—Late yesterday afternoon Mayor Peltier of Fort William, arbitrator for the employes, and Capt. Robinson, arbitrator for the Street Railway Co., agreed on W. J. Christie of Winnipeg as chairman, thus averting a deadlock in the arbitration proceedings.

Death List Increases.

Delagua, Col., Nov. 11.—Nine more charred and mangled bodies were found in No. 3 mine of the Victor American Fuel Co. early yesterday, bringing the list of dead to 46. It is now thought the list may reach 75 or 80.

Fell Fifty Feet.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Nov. 11.—Leo French fell fifty feet on to the rocks at the Ontario Power Co.'s power house on the lower river bank yesterday. He sustained severe injuries about the head and body. He was working on the high wall of an addition to the plant, when he lost his balance and fell to the rocks below.

Two Tunnels for Montreal.

Montreal, Nov. 11.—Traffic congestion here has become a live question, and two tunnels are suggested. The first, a four-track subway under St. James street, from Gosford to Victoria Square, and the second, which will cost a million, to be built under Cote de Neiges Hill.

Four Children Cremated.

Bowling Green, Ky., Nov. 11.—Four children were burned to death when the home of Craig Harpool was destroyed by fire yesterday during the parents' absence.

NOTHING DEFINITE

Result of Elections In U.S. Is Believed to Be Responsible For Sudden Termination of Discussion of Reciprocity — Official Statement Says Nothing Conclusive Was Done, But Prospects Are Good.

Ottawa, Nov. 11.—The conference between the representatives of the United States and Canada on the subject of improved trade relations concluded yesterday afternoon. It has not been regarded here seriously, and indeed the commissioners during four sittings have not spent more than five hours in discussion of the trade situation.

It is understood that the proceedings terminated abruptly, as the result of the elections in the United States. The conference began on Saturday, and was continued on Monday, Tuesday and yesterday, but it has never been considered here that anything of moment would result.

The official report says: "The whole discussion was of the most frank and friendly nature. While no conclusion was reached, the ground was cleared for a further conference, which will be held in Washington, probably early in January. The members of the conference, Messrs. Hoyt, Pepper and Foster, representing the United States, and Messrs. Fielding and Paterson, representing Canada, separated with the strong hope that on the resumption of the conference at Washington an arrangement can be reached that will prove acceptable to people on both sides of the boundary line."

Returned to Toronto.

Chicago, Nov. 11.—Several clothing cutters, who arrived in Chicago from Toronto, were interviewed yesterday by S. L. Landers, Canadian Garment Workers' organizer, and they decided to quit work and return to Toronto. The strikers are still firm in their demands for a closed shop. Meetings were held in all parts of the city. Fifty-five thousand is now the approximate number out on strike. Though last week, in their excitement, strikers denounced the members of the Garment Workers' executive board, as having sold the strike, this week they are passing votes of confidence and regret at their previous action. Sympathy strikes are being called in Cleveland, Rochester, Indianapolis, Milwaukee and St. Louis.

Case Collapsed.

Whitby, Nov. 11.—The Corbett will case, which has been before the courts for the past year, was disposed of at the Assizes before Justice Riddell. The late James Corbett was a very rich bachelor, who lived to be over 80 years old. His property was valued at about $90,000. He left the entire estate to two maiden ladies who lived with him, one his niece, the other his housekeeper. A large number of sisters, nephews and nieces, who were not mentioned in the will, sought the aid of the courts to upset his will.

On being put on oath none of the plaintiffs could substantiate the allegations made, and the case collapsed before the trial.

The National Debt.

Ottawa, Nov. 11.—According to the Public Accounts volume, published yesterday, the funded debt of Canada payable in London was £52,000,902 at the end of the last fiscal year. The net debt of the Dominion was $336,208,546, an increase of $12,338,267. The accounts show consolidated fund receipts of $101,503,710, and expenditure $79,411,474, leaving a surplus on this account of $22,091,963. In addition to this, however, there was a total capital or special expenditure of $35,971,911, of which $19,968,064 was on the national transcontinental railway and $2,414,171 on bounties.

Would Cancel Exemption.

Winnipeg, Nov. 11.—Complications with the Midland Railway may result in representations to have the exemption from taxation clause struck from the company's charter, until such time as work is started in evidence of good faith. The Midland Company, which is Manitoba's name for James J. Hill's Great Northern, is reported to be tied up by monetary conditions in the United States, and not one cent had been passed for the proposed terminus at Winnipeg.

Will Fall Into Line.

Mitchell, Nov. 11.—Mitchell votes next Tuesday on the electric power by-law. Last evening a mass meeting was held in the opera hall to discuss the pros and cons of the question. Mayor Campbell spoke strongly in favor of the scheme, and was followed by the Hon. Adam Beck, who went minutely into details, and, as was evident from the applause, convinced nearly all present that Niagara power was going to revolutionise things in the Province of Ontario, and that it would be to the interests of Mitchell to fall into line with other progressive towns and cities in the province.

Charged With Forgery.

Ottawa, Nov. 11.—On a charge of forging a check for $25, Claude Hurdman, son of Lt.-Col. Hurdman, inspector of carriages and militia stores, who was arrested on information laid by the local manager of the Traders' Bank, was arraigned in the Police Court yesterday and remanded till Tuesday.

Not Guilty of Attempt to Kill.

Campbellford, Nov. 11.—Nicolo Berrill, who was arrested two weeks ago on a charge of attempted murder of Joseph Corvino, appeared before Magistrate Payne here yesterday and was acquitted. W. F. Kerr of Cobourg represented the crown and A. B. Caiville, Campbellford, defended the prisoner.

The Rebels Concentrate.

Lima, Peru, Nov. 11.—The rebels, who, it is said, do not number more than one hundred, have concentrated in the northwestern coast, where the rising occurred. The Government is pushing its military campaign against the disturbers.

Geo. Rowntree, who bought 1630 cattle for the Harris Abattoir Co. this week, quoted prices as follows: Butchers, steers and heifers, $4.70 to $5.75; cows, $2.35 to $5.25; bulls, $3.40 to $5; feeders, 950 to 1100 lbs., at $5 to $5.40.

Milkers and Springers.

The receipts of milkers and springers were not as large as the demand, and all of good to choice quality were readily taken at $60 to $80, and in a few instances $85, $100, and once or twice, $105 was paid.

Veal Calves.

Receipts are growing smaller. The bulk sold at $8.50 to $7.50 per cwt. A few choice new milk fed veal calves sold at 9c per cwt.

Double Murder In Boston.

Boston, Nov. 11.—Two men were shot and killed yesterday in the district attorneys office here. The victims were Police Sergeant Frederick Schlehuber and Frank A. Rees, Dorchester.

The assassin is Walter G. Fall, a young man of 26 years, who was employed in the office of the sealer of weights and measures in the State House.

Fall was arrested on a charge of assaulting Esther Fogg, a step-daughter of Rees. The case was to come up soon and Fall, accompanied by his attorney, Benj. F. Haines, went to the court house to ask about the case. At the district attorney's office were Rees and the police sergeant, who were witnesses against Fall. Shortly after Fall entered he pulled a revolver and began shooting.

Threw Gasoline on Flames.

Stonington, Maine, Nov. 11.—Mistaking gasoline in a pan for water, Mrs. Edward Wood, wife of a lobster fisherman, dashed the liquid over a small blaze in the kitchen of her home yesterday, and in the explosion which followed her six-year-old son and four-year-old daughter perished. Mrs. Wood was so seriously burned that recovery is doubtful.

A Gang of Smugglers.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Nov. 11.—It is learned that the Canadian and American immigration authorities are on the lookout for an organized gang of smugglers, dealing in immigrants, whisky and other articles. The gang operates, it is said, on an extensive scale on both sides of the river.

Have You Made It Certain?

You have every intention of stating those little tots, you are so fond of, with a good education. You believe you will be able when they have grown to give them a good start in life,—better than you yourself got. You look to see the older years of that good woman, your wife, made a little more comfortable than many in the past have been. You are making money, laying some by, and getting ready for these things. — But, what if you should die? What will they do then?

A FAIRY TALE FROM BELLEVILLE TO-DAY ABOUT THE NEW PROFESSIONAL LEAGUE

As Far as Peterborough is Concerned the Organization is a Myth—There Will be no Professional Hockey in the City This Year.

A BEAUTIFUL DREAM

The despatch given below appears in to-day's Toronto papers and has caused considerable amusement among the hockey authorities in Peterborough. Either our old friend, "Buck" Irving is the possessor of a beautifully fertile imagination, or else some one in Peterborough has been "kidding" him. At any event Peterborough has not the slightest intention of embarking on the stormy and treacherous sea of professional hockey. On the other hand the officers of the Peterborough Hockey Club say that they look forward to one of the most successful and active seasons in amateur hockey in this city that we have had in years. There was no representative from Peterborough at last night's meeting, and as far as this city is concerned the new professional league is a rank outsider. Don't read this despatch if you have a cracked lip:

Belleville, Nov. 10.—A meeting of the representatives of the proposed Eastern Ontario Professional Hockey League was held here to-night. Mr. Irving, the promoter of the League, was present, as were also representatives from Belleville, Trenton, Peterborough and Port Hope. The delegate from Cobourg was unable to be present, but wired his concurrence.

An organization was effected, with these officers: President, Dr. Yeomans, Belleville; First Vice-President, J. Menary, Peterborough; Second Vice President, George Nolan, Trenton; Secretary, N. E. Irving; Treasurer, Captain Colwill, Port Hope. Executive Committee—Messrs. Brown of Port Hope, Burrows of Belleville, Hawley of Trenton, Morgan of Peterborough, Purser, of Cobourg. The referees suggested are: Messrs. Stacey of Kingston, Burrows and Connolly of Belleville, Lou Marsh of Toronto, James Fraser of Galt, Chas. Boney of Port Hope, Rolly Glover of Peterborough.

The games are to be played in three periods of twenty minutes each. The schedule of games will be arranged at a meeting of the Executive at Port Hope on Friday next.

JEFFRIES HEARD FROM FOR FIRST TIME SINCE HIS DEFEAT AT RENO---SAYS HE WAS DOPED

LOS ANGELES, CAL., NOV. 10.—For the first time since his fight with Jack Johnson on July 4, James Jeffries came out to-day with the direct charge that he had been "doped" before the battle in which he lost the world's champion-hip. He also had a few words to say about the stories hinted recently that the Reno fight with Johnson was "fixed."

A few weeks ago, Abe Attell in Kansas city, was credited with a statement to the effect that the coloured champion had agreed to "lay down," but that he had given Jeffries the "double cross. Next came John L. Sullivan with a talk made in Denver in which he asserts that the July 4 engagement was to have been a crooked deal, but that Johnson experienced a change of heart during the last 24 hours preceding the froy on the desert.

Jeffries to-day branded the Kansas City and Denver stories as lies. "Never from the moment that I signed articles in New York till I went into the ring at Reno was there understanding between Johnson and myself other than that the fight was to be decided strictly on its merits. Any man who speaks to the contrary tells a lie, and I hereby publicly challenge John L. Sullivan to prove his statements," said Jeffries.

"I trained the best I knew and I fought the best I could. I was beaten and I have kept pretty quiet ever since. A great deal has been said about my being doped. You may say for me that I am positive that I was doped, sometime during the last few days that I spent at Mouna Springs. This is not the talk of a squealer. I have spent a lot of money and am willing to spend a lot more to land the guilty party. Whoever he or they are, the tracks were covered up so thoroughly that it is next to impossible to prove anything."

Argos Lose Their Protest The Tigers Are Champions

OTTAWA, NOV. 10.—By a majority of four to two the Argonauts' protest was defeated to-night by the Interprovincial Union, the two Argonaut men voting that it be carried and last Saturday's match against the Ottawas be replayed, while Ottawa, Hamilton and Montreal delegates voted against it.

The result leaves the Tigers indisputable champions of the Big Four for 1910, regardless of the outcome of Saturday's match at Rosedale. The Oarsmen put up a big fight to get back into the championship running, but at no time during the meeting were they in danger of winning, although their ground for protesting looked reasonable.

The Argos had filed with Secretary Finn a big batch of affidavits as to the incompetency of the officials, the questionable time-keeping and the decisions of McMaster and Britton, as to the manner in which Ottawa scored the final touchdown, which raised their total from 18 to 28, and gave them the victory by three points. When it came to a showdown, however, the Argus' delegates practically dropped all their other points and made their claims on the ground that the match had started more than fifteen minutes later than the advertised time. Joe Wright and W. Grant declared that it was so dark in fact, when the game finished that it was impossible to see the ball, declaring that Dissette was the only Argo player to clap his eyes on the pigskin after Kennedy had kicked. They produced several affidavits to prove that the game was late in starting, and asked the union to order the match replayed.

MEETING TO-MORROW NIGHT TO DISCUSS JUNIOR TANGLE

There will be a meeting of representatives of the West Ends and T. A. S. Athletic Clubs together with the executive of the Peterborough Hockey Club at the Examiner office to-morrow, Saturday night at eight o'clock for the purpose of trying to settle some policy in connection with junior hockey in Peterborough. The two clubs affected are asked to each send a representative, while every number of the executive of the Peterborough Club is urged to be on hand as the business is of the greatest importance. An effort was made to have the meeting called to-night, but this was not found possible, so to-morrow night was decided upon.

SHRUBB AND LONGBOAT

In Boston on American Thanksgiving night, November 24, the noted rivals, Alfred Shrubb and Tom Longboat, will meet at 15 miles and battle for the middle-distance championship of the world. In getting the Harvard cross-country team into shape the little Englishman has also raced himself into condition, and it would not surprise me if Alfred shows the best form he has yet displayed since his arrival in America, writes Lou Marsh. He took the rest when he needed it most, and with lots of outdoor exercise has got himself as hard as nails, and with the result that he is making lightning trials right along and says that he will take Longboat's measure sure. Now, maybe he will and maybe he will not; for the other gentleman concerned, has been giving a number of exhibitions at fall fairs throughout the country, meeting the best local talent in relay races—no one being barred, and has defeated all competitors without exception. The famous redskin is now in the best condition in which he has been since first unearthed in the Herald road race in 1906, and has been cutting considerable time off the best performances he has heretofore made. If Shrubb beats the Indian he will have to do better than he has ever yet shown himself to be. The Indian can beat any of his own prior performances. If anything phenomenal is torn off at Boston on the 24th watch out that it isn't the same boy that hung up a record in the bean town about 2 1-2 years ago, which is the fastest in the history of the world, 2 hours, 24 minutes and 24 seconds.

"COLLINS BEST BALL PLAYER" SAYS EVAN

Examiner Special.

"I've seen them all in the National League, and I've seen the best of the American League on parade. I've played against Cobb and I've seen Lajoie. In the National, of course, I have been up against Hans Wagner almost innumerable times. I've had the chance to pass judgment on them all and I consider Eddie Collins the best ball player that I ever saw."

Thus did Johnny Evers, greatest of second basemen, praise Eddie Collins, the Athletics' star, after watching him play in the world's series. As Evers is rated one of the brainiest men in baseball, what he says carries much weight.

"This Collins seems to have no fault and no weakness," continued Evers. "He is a great batsman, with perfect judgment as to what he ought to hit and when he should make his swing, while he knows how to lay them down for bunts or how to punch them hard.

"On bases, he seems to me to be, if anything, superior to Cobb. When it comes to getting a long lead on the pitcher he is a bird; he goes the route to the next base at a tremendous clip and his slide is both timed perfectly and so turned that it is hard to place the ball upon him.

"FIELDING SKILL MAKES HIT"

"The fielding skill of Collins—his way of playing second base—made an awful hit with me. He played both according to the batsman and the particular ball his pitcher might be intending to deliver. Again and again I saw him shift his position according to the pitch, going to one location if a curve was to be thrown or finding a different spot if a straight ball was the proper hurl. And he kept getting his men, too, being right on the job again and again.

"This Collins boy is the most finished ball player I ever saw in action, and it is quite evident also that he does that sort of work all the time, and was not outspeeding himself in this one special series. There are a few men in the business, perhaps, who can hit the ball for a higher yearly average than Collins, although their number is anything but large at that.

"EVEN BETTER THAN LAJOIE"

"There are a few players who can make the fielding plays as neatly and as prettily as he does, but where will you find any one else who combines all of his qualities, both of batting and of fielding, and with the intelligence he shows at every turn? Lajoie is the only man who can show the all-round value of Collins as second baseman and batter—and look how much faster Collins is upon the base!

"A wonderful ball player and one of the finest little gentlemen in the business, that's what this Collins is, and he surely deserves all the good things that are said about him.

"Take Collins out of the Athletics and they would fall apart in a hurry. He is the life and backbone of their play."

ENGLISH AND CANADIAN LACROSSE

The London Times has an interesting letter on the relative merits of English and Canadian lacrosse. It points out the enormous strides that the games has taken in popular favour in England, and prophesies that in ten years it will be a national pastime. It devotes some space to a criticism of the two styles of play, and while it grants that in most respects the Canadian game is superior, some few points are noticed in which our game might be improved.

For instance, the correspondent believes that it would be worth while to imitate the swift straightforward onslaughts which are a feature of the English style, but at the same time he notes that it is owing to just this style of play that the teams of Western Canada have shown such a marked superiority over those of the East. In regard to the English game he points out that although it is full of individual brilliancy, it has yet to be purged of tactical selfishness, that it is inferior to the Canadian game in midfield play and in the art of shooting, and that the Canadian players are always on the alert for any unexpected developments, whereas the English players are apt to relax when the ball is not in their territory.

The writer, after a tribute to the clean and sports-manlike methods of English players, goes on to deplore the damaging effect that professionalism has had on the game in this country. He says, "In Canada the brutality and foul tactics of many—but by no means all—of the hired players have driven away the better-class spectators from the chief matches; very few ladies now attend these spectacles, and the popularity there of the 'smart Larries' has been lately deplored by pulpit moralists, who go so far as to say that the influence of professional lacrosse is as debasing as that of the American prize-ring. As the rule now stands, the player who strikes an opponent with his lacrosse or trips him from behind deliberately is merely 'sent to the fence' for five or ten minutes."

The correspondent suggests that if the player "could be dismissed for the rest of the game, and if his offence deserved an additional penalty, suspension for a part or the whole of the season, the worst abuses would be eliminated." He adds that "sooner or later some such change in the Canadian code must come if lacrosse in its native land is not to sink to the level of American baseball—and more than one Canadian authority on the game would be glad to see body-checking made illegal—an alteration which would practically abolish the tactical differences between Canadian and English lacrosse." There is, however, no reason to despair of lacrosse in Canada. Such evils as have developed may easily be eliminated. It still has a generous support and it is going to far to say that it is seriously neglected by what The Times 'writer calls "the better class spectators."

CY YOUNG'S FIRST GAME

"I do not know," said Eddie McKean, the old-time shortstop, "just how gold old Cy Young stands on the Sunday baseball proposition nowadays. In fact, I think the old boy wouldn't hesitate to pitch if he were asked, no matter whether the day were Sunday, Tuesday, or a week from Friday.

"Long ago, though, when Cy was stil young in age, as well as name and spirits, he was very much opposed to Sunday ball. Said it was an invention of the devil and that he wouldn't remain on a team that played Sunday ball at all if it wasn't that he needed the money. As for himself he remarked that Mr. Tebeau hadn't better ask him to do any Sunday pitching—that there would be a battle, and, as he was much larger than his manager, he could forecast what would happen.

Cy was the real stuff as a pitcher and worked three times a week, if asked, so Tebeau made no complaint about his Sunday views. Mathewson you know, won't work on Sunday, and McGraw never says a word. Paul Radford was one of the last of the outfielders who wouldn't play Sunday ball, and to-day I think Mathewson is the sole survivor of the religious players. But to return to Cy—he got along very nicely, and as long as he was willing to work Monday, Wednesday and Friday Tebeau had no kick coming.

"Well, it was the fag-end of the season—the finish of the 1892 campaign, when we won the championship of the second half, and afterwards played it off with Boston winner of the first half—the first, last and only time that the National League ever split up its season. We were at St. Louis and had run short of pitchers. When Cuppy pitched the Saturday game Sunday found us in an awful situation. Nig Cuppy, of course, was all in after that game, and there wasn't an available man at hand excepting two of the young sters.

"If I could only get Cy Young to work to-morrow,' said Tebeau, 'we could pull it out easy and just about clinch the flag.'

"'That's a certainty,' said Burkett, 'but you know what would happen if you asked Cy to pitch—you'd get a wallop in the chin.'

"'I know it,' wailed Tebeau. 'Well I gues we're stuck all right—these kids can never hold the Browns.'

"So we went out the next afternoon, a pretty blue gang, praying for rain. When we began to practice we were astounded to see a huge man, in our uniform, striding up the field. He began to work out with the Chief Zimmer and we could hardly make our eyes believe that Cyrus Young would indulge in practice on a Sunday.

"The gong rang while Cy was tossing them and what was our astonishment as oYung stalked majestically into the box—it was a box then, and no slab. And Cy proceeded to pitch one of his noblest, nobbiest games. The Browns swung like gates and fell all over themselves trying to hit his speed.

"After it was all over we rushed upon Cy to thank him and congratulate him—also how on earth he happened to break his flinty, iron-bound Sunday rules.

"'Well, boys,' said Cy, 'I'll tell you exactly how it was. I was reading the Bible last night and I ran across this paragraph: "If thy neighbor's ass shal fall into a pit upon the Sabbath day, ye shall help him out and it shall be no sin." Well, boys, I'll be derned if I know any bigger ass than Tebeau anywhere, and he was certainly in an awful hole. So I helped him out, and that's the whole story.'"

BASEBALL

Frank Baker, the third baseman of the world' schampion Athletics, went all the way from his Pennsylvania home to see the American League games in Philadelphia a few years ago. He had no money and beat his way to Slowtown on a freight. Then he stood outside the ball park, waiting for a foul ball to come over, so that he could gain admittance to the grounds.

This year Baker shared in the big end of the world's series receipts. It's a small world, after all.

Stephen Rheim hit into a double play, although he did not know it for several days, when his safe bingle won a game for the West Chicago High School baseball team over the Wheaton nine last June. In the grand stand was Miss Catherine Smith, also of West Chicago, and a loyal fan. "If he makes a hit I'll marry him," she cried, as Rheim came to bat at a critical point in the game. After Rheim's hit had won the game friends told him of Miss Smith's remark and introduced him to the blushing young woman

300 SOLDIERS ARE KILLED

Special to The Examiner.

CONSTANTINOPLE, NOV. 11.—Reactionaries in Tripoli have made a concerted attack on the French garrisons, and nearly three hundred French soldiers have been slain. It is said that the agitation was caused by a branch of the same international organization as the Nationalist working in Soudan and India.

THE PAYMENT OF MILK

From Farm and Dairy.

Some equitable basis for the payment of milk should be adopted by each and every factory. The pooling system, or paying for milk by weight, regardless of its quality, must forever stand without one sound argument to support it. There is nothing just about the system. It is grossly unfair. It places temptation in the way of the producer, which, as records show, is irresistible on the part of many. Under the pooling system no encouragement is given patrons to produce milk of quality; cheese manufactured is of poorer quality and year by year reports of the dairy instructors have shown that more pounds of milk are being required to make a pound of cheese.

There are three methods other than that of the pooling system any one of which is greatly to be preferred to the pooling system. These are to pay according to the "straight percentage of fat," the "fat plus the estimated casein," and the "fat plus the actual casein," as determined by the Hart casein test.

Dairy authorities have never agreed as to which is the more correct method of the two most commonly known, the straight fat and the plus two method. And on that account, the general adoption of a system of paying for milk according to quality, has been sadly delayed. A mere handful only of the factories make any pretense at dividing proceeds on a basis other than that of the pooling system.

Casein is known to have definite value in cheese making. It is right that it should be considered. Actual work with the Hart casein test shows that in general the casein content of the milk increases as the reading of fat increases. Hence paying for milk according to its fat content is to a great extent taking account of its casein content.

Until some system is devolved whereby official testers will be appointed to do all the work of testing, it is not at all probable that the casein test will be adopted in cheese factories generally. The Hart test is comparatively a delicate one and it requires more time and knowledge than the average maker for some years to come will be able to devote to it. Payment on the straight fat basis is the simplest method that can be recommended. It is decidedly progressive, and has been extremely helpful to the dairy interests where it is in vogue, and until the day dawns when official testers will become a part of the scheme of our great cheese industry, payment according to this basis should be adopted.

The question of dividing proceeds is one of vital concern to patrons. It is their problem, and largely theirs alone. At the forthcoming annual factory meetings, progressive patrons will serve their own interests and the best interests of the industry if they agitate and carry through to a successful conclusion the adoption of payment for milk according to its fat content.

ENJOYABLE EVENING

A most enjoyable time was spent last night at the T.A.S. rooms, in the nature of a social evening, under the auspices of the T. A. S. Athletic Society. Progressive euchre was played in the early part of the evening, and the gentleman's prize was won by Mr. Angelesey. Miss Minnie Walsh was the winner of the lady's prize.

After the euchre contest was over, refreshments were served, after which dancing was indulged in. A large number was present an dthe evening was one of the most enjoyable ones spent by the Society, probably since they entered their new rooms.

GAS, HEARTBURN AND DYSPEPSIA VANISH

Makes Your Out-of-Order Stomach Feel Fine in Five Minutes

You can eat anything your stomach craves without fear of Indigestion or Dyspepsia, or that your food will ferment or sour on your stomach, if you will take a little Diapepsin occasionally.

Your meals will taste good, and any thing you eat will be digested; nothing can ferment or turn into acid or poison or stomach gas, which causes Belching, Dizziness, a feeling of fullness after eating, Nausea, Indigestion (like a lump of lead in the stomach), Biliousness, Heartburn, Water brash, Pain in the stomach and intestines or other symptoms.

Headaches from the stomach are absolutely unknown where this effective remedy is used. Diapepsin really does all the work of a healthy stomach. It digests your meals when your stomach can't. A single dose will digest all the food you eat and leave nothing to ferment or sour and upset the stomach.

Get a large 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from your druggist, and start taking now, and in a little while you will actually brag about your healthy, strong Stomach, for you then can eat anything and everything you want without the slightest discomfort or misery, and every particle of impurity and Gas that is in your stomach and intestines is going to be carried away without the use of laxatives or any other assistance.

Should you at this moment be suffering from Indigestion or any stomach disorder, you can get relief within five minutes.

MISSING GIRL OF 16 IS THOUGHT TO HAVE BEEN KIDNAPPED

Special to the Examiner.

NEW YORK, NOV. 10.—The parents of pretty sixteen-year-old Margaret Zummo of No. 556 Liberty Avenue, East New York, convinced that she is being held a captive for a high ransom, have hired a staff of private detectives to aid the police in an effort to find some trace of her. The girl, who is the daughter of Vincent Zummo, a wealthy contractor, disappeared last Thursday afternoon. Her mother had sent her to a nearby grocery store, and when she did not return in an hour or so went out in search of her. She inquired at the store and was told that the girl had not arrived there.

Mrs. Zummo at her home yesterday said:

"Since she was a little girl we had Margaret in a convent and she had few friends outside of those living in the neighborhood. My husband and I will give everything we possess to get her back. Our other two children, Vincent and Joseph, ten and eight years respectively, were praying constantly for her return."

Joseph Zummo, an uncle of the missing girl, who is in the contracting business in Richmond Hill, has also taken a hand in the search.

Capt. Owen Rooney of the Millar Avenue station was told by neighbors that a few days before the girl disappeared a young Italian, a stranger in the neighborhood, was seen near the Zummo residence. On the morning of the day the girl disappeared, he was there with another Italian, well dressed.

The girl is described as being five and when last seen wore a dark blue suit, black lace shoes and stockings feet four inches, weighing 100 pounds, dark complexion and hair, and no hat.

THE DEER HUNT

BY THE LATE WILLIAM PITTMAN LETT

(From Rod and Gun)

The voice of the brave "Venus" was heard on the trail,
And the fierce howl of "Driver" came close at her tail,
The sharp yell of "Patch" told the story of game,
As down the "Swamp Runway" the grand chorus came!
The fear-stricken quarry in proud antler'd pride
Fled before them with snow-flakes of foam on his side;
On, onward he sped over brake and o'er briar,
Each bound to his doom brought him nigher and nigher.
And louder behind him swelled full on the breeze
That matchless refrain through the old cedar trees;
'Twas clear as the notes of the bugle which thrill
The spirit of Echo o'er valley and hill.
Tell me not of the music which instruments make,
Though harmony trembles in every shake—
Tell me not of the sound of a lute in the grove,
Though that lute be attuned to the thrillings of love—
Tell me not of the chorus that swells o'er the bowl
When wine sparkles brightly and wit thrills the soul,
No melody rivals the magical sound
Of the deep-toned and heart-stirring voice of the hound,
When fierce on the track with proud fire in his eye,
He follows each wind of the scent in full cry!
But close came the music to where Ranald stood
With nostrils expanded, impatient for blood;
His old double-barrel, that oft had been tried,
Was ready, his eye glanced on every side;
The breaking of twigs gives him warning, when high,
With a bound o'er the bushes, the buck meets his eye:
Full sixty yards off did he burst on his view,
When up went his gun, long-tried, trusty and true,
Out rang the report on the cool evening air,
We looked for the quarry, in death he lay there!
The bullet had pierced him direct 'twixt the eyes,
'Twas gallantly done; a magnificent prize,
Was that stately old deer, as he drew his last breath
Full length on the runway; then in at the death
With a grand sweeping chorus the noble dogs came,
And rushed, with a blood-thirsty roar, at the game.
'Twas worthy the sportsman and worthy the gun,
The fall of that noble old buck on the run!
The sound of that gun ever true to its aim,
Brought each man from his stand for a view of the game,
The pipes were drawn forth, and then over the slain,
The run and the shot were enacted again.
The balmy fall evening was curtained with haze,
The tree-tops were tinged with the sun's sinking rays,
The leaves of the forest were silent and still,
The mighty old hemlock that stood on the hill
Moved not from its roots to its branches on high,
Which towered in majestic relief 'gainst the sky.
'Twas a beautiful scene, but the shadows of night
From eve's dark'ning sky were commencing their flight;
The quarry was shouldered, and glad was the tramp,
As we carried our trophy away to the camp.
O! give me the startling sound of the gun—
The thrilling refrain of the dogs in full run;
O! give me the sight of the deer in full bound,
Over briar and brush as he spurns the ground—
O! give me the blaze of the camp fire at night,
When day and its glories have vanished from sight—
When friends and companions are seated around
With the sky for a roof, for a bed but the ground.
The steam of the tea-kettle curling aloft
Through the evening's cool atmosphere, balmy and soft—
The potato-pot boiling and snorting with ire,
The frying-pan hissing away on the fire,
And an appetite keen, from the glorious run,
Awaiting the moment that "supper is done."
Compared with such charms, a palace would be
Though gilded and gorgeous, a prison to me!

$4,635 A YEAR FOR DOG'S BOARD AND CARE—"NO MONEY, NO DOG"

Special to The Examiner.

NEW YORK, NOV. 10.—Mrs. James Tobin, of Flatbush, put in a bil lfor $62.50 yesterday for feeding and giving surgical attendance to Prince, a bulldog, for about five days. This is at the rate of $4,635.00 a year. The hospitable and humane Mrs. Tobin was in the Flatbush Court on a summons obtained by William Huxton, No. 182 West Fifty-fourth Street, Manhattan.

Huxton told Magistrate Geismar that he motored to Belmont Park Monday to see the flying and took Prince along. Huxton went into an aviator's hut—call it a hangar, if you fly. When he emerged Prince had vanished. Huxton traced the dog to Mrs. Tobin's home.

INJURED DOG APPEALED TO HER

She took up the story from that point. In his master's absence one of Prince's legs got broken. The sagacious bulldog picked out Mrs. Tobin, and, on three legs, wobbled up to her and looked at her appealingly. The tender-hearted woman placed Prince in her auto and took him to her home. She called in her own physician, then a veterinary. The latter man placed the broken leg in a plaster cast.

Mrs. Tobin was almost tearful as she testified. It was plain she had taken a great liking for Prince. Her story finished, she produced a piece of paper and with a dramatic flourish laid it on the Magistrate's desk.

"When this man pays this little bill he can take his dog," she said, with a that-settles-it air.

DIDN'T MISS ANY CHANCES

Magistrate Geismar read the bill:

Reward for finding dog	$10.00
Plaster cast for broken left leg.	10.00
Doctor's calls	18.00
Medicines	2.50
Repairing rugs	12.00
Meat	3.00
Dog house	5.00
Incidentals	2.00
	$62.50

"Good gracious, madam!" gasped the Magistrate, "you surely do not expect to receive that amount? Why, when one of my children is ill I pay only $10 or $15 for the attendance of a most successful physician. Return this dog to this man. Sue him in a civil court, if you wish."

"This is a matter of principle with me," answered Mrs. Tobin, looking longingly at Prince as he was returned to Huxton. "I shall appeal the case to every court in the land."

"Home, John," she said.

WELL BRED HORSES

From Farm and Dairy.

A tapering shape of the head—that is, tapering towards the muzzle—is a most attractive feature and characterises all well-bred horses, says an English Exchange. It is particularly pronounced in thoroughbreds and in horses nearly so, as well as in the Arab. The profile of horses' heads varies considerably, and the way in which it is shaped, perhaps, more than any other point, imparts individuality to them. The line of the face, from forehead to muzzle, may be straight, or more or less so, or it may be dished somewhat: or there may be a curve in the other direction, imparting convexity to it: and when this last is at all marked we get the so-called Roman nosed head.

In some horses, further, the forehead is found to be prominent, it, so to speak, bulging out at the eyes and above them. That decidedly detracts from the appearance of the head, giving a heavy look and spoiling its gracefulness of contour. Although a straight profile undoubtedly looks the best, a slight dishing of the nose is by no means objectionable as it does not in the least impair the good shape of the head or its looks. Such a slightly dished face is to be seen in plenty of thoroughbreds.

A Roman nose, or any tendency thereto, on the other hand, is not liked; at any rate, not in horses of light breed, because it does not look particularly well in them. It certainly imparts an unduly pronounced cast of feature, and a head of this kind seems to lack in refinement as compared with a straight or slightly concave profile. But, unpleasing though this feature is usually considered, it is widely held among horsemen that the fact of a horse being Roman-nosed is an indication that the animal is of a tough, strong constitutional and good wearing sort. So far as regards English-bred horses there may be some truth in this theory, but it does not apply to the horses of foreign extraction which are imported in this country. These frequently have a Roman nose, yet such are, nevertheless, not found to be an exception to the rule that foreign-bred horses generally prove themselves more or less soft; at least, in regard to Continental breeds,

THE OLD HOTEL IS FAST PASSING AWAY

It is reported in Kirkfield that Mrs. Wm. Mackenzie will purchase the Campbell House in that village and will renovate it and convert it into an up-to-date inn after the English fashion.

The Campbell House, which for many years, and up until quite recently, was run by Mr. Hector Campbell, is one of the oldest and best known village hotels in this part of Ontario. The genial proprietor is known to many, and his removal from Kirkfield will be regretted by travellers and others who had occasion to visit the village, which has become prominent by reason of its being the home of Wm. Mackenzie, Canada's railroad king.

If Mrs. Mackenzie decides to renovate the old hotel and open a new house there is every reason to believe that she will do so in a most complete manner. The Mackenzies do not do things by halves at Kirkfield, their country seat. The several substantial churches in the village, the gifts of the Mackenzie family, show this to be a fact. The village club shows this as well, for there the young men of the neighborhood find comfortable quarters in which to spend the long winter evenings Mrs Mackenzie takes a personal interest in this institution, which she herself established and maintains.

In any event it is to be hoped that the old Campbell House will not close its doors to the public. There are too few of these old time places throughout the country, and it is too bad that the old hotel is so scarce in a way, for there is much comfort and peace to be derived by being around one of them. In your old hotel, Mr. Traveller may turn completely around without having to pay 5 cents. He can put on his hat without giving up a nickel. If he does drop his umbrella he does not have to part with a dime to have it recovered. He may scrub his hands in the washroom of the old hotel without having somebody buzzing in his ears asking if the water is satisfactory, and recollecting money to hand him the towel, which is on the shelf in front of him. He may part his hair, if he has any, without paying demurrage. He may smoke, write a letter, go where he pleases, and be glad that life is not all marble slabs and gilt bellboys. It is such a fine thing to have an old hotel.

NORTH HASTINGS MINE RECENTLY CHANGED HANDS

A considerable amount of development of the mineral wealth of Hastings, Peterborough and Haliburton counties is taking place in a quiet way at the present time, and a few claims have recently changed hands at handsome prices. It is said that Mr. Longriecker, a German, who has been prospecting in North Hastings for iron ore, and testing his discoveries with a diamond drill, has struck a very large deposit of hematite about a mile north of Madoc village. Tests show from three to four millions of tons in the location, which has not yet been fully explored. Transportation from the mine will be easy as the Grand Trunk Railway line from Madoc to Eldorado, which has not been used for several years, runs close to the property. Development on a large scale will take place in the spring, when a large number of men will be employed, and boarding houses and suitable machinery will be erected.

The property was purchased from Mr. A. W. Coe, of Madoc, for $10,000.

WILL CANADIAN NORTHERN SOON REACH PETERBORO'?

That this district is about to enter on an era of extensive railroad construction is becoming more evident each day. Scarcely a week passes that some announcement is not made, setting forth the proposals of either the G.T.R., the C.P.R., or th C.N.R. with respect of railroad construction, in the counties of Ontario, Victoria, Peterboro, Northumberland and Durham. One of the latest announcements in this connection is a proposed new line to be built by the Canadian Northern people from Midland to Trenton, where the Company's main line will be tapped. Recently a strong deputation from Lindsay visited Toronto, and interviewed Messrs. Wm. Mackenzie, President; General Manager Hanna, and Chief Counsel, F. H. Phippen, of the Canadian Northern, with a view to having the proposed line touch that town. It is announced that the deputation was given pretty encouraging assurances, that work on the line will be started at an early date.

The proposed grain route is an excellent one and almost a direct route from Midland to Trenton. Starting at Midland, the grain route would pass through the County of Simcoe, which at the present time is inadequately served with railways, to the town of Orillia, crossing by bridge between Lake Simcoe and Lake Couchiching at Atherley. Thence on through Uptergrove in the Township of Mara, through the Township of Carden into Eldon, to the Village of Kirkfield. From Kirkfield the proposed line takes a southeasterly direction by Glenarm, through the Township of Fenelon to Cambray, crossing McLaren's creek and on to Lindsay. From Lindsay the route continues through the Township of Ops, Manvers and Cavan in the vicinity of Bethany, which is a strategic point owing to the various hills, thence through a part of South Monaghan crossing Rice Lake into Northumberland County, a county which at the present time is very poorly served by railways. In Northumberland County the proposed route passes through or near Plainville, Centreton, Carmel, Castleton, Hilton, Trenton Jct., and tapping the waterway and the line already in operation at the Town of Trenton.

In order to connect with the City of Peterborough the route will probably branch off at Bethany passing through or near Cavan, Kendry, Springville to Peterborough and then southerly through South Monaghan to the line crossing at Rice Lake.

It is understood that the suggested line from Lindsay to Toronto is only 62 miles, some 8 miles shorter than either of the present roads.

The proposed tourist route will be a very important one in that it is intended to serve the entire north country, making it possible for the hundreds of tourists to reach the various pretty villages, lakes and rivers in the Haliburton County. It is proposed to cater to the tourist traffic and open up the northern country, which is one of the best districts in the Dominion for the summer tourist.

BIG HAWKE LAKE AND ITS LONELY GRAVE

There is none prettier among the many beautiful lakes of Haliburton County than Big Hawke. With its beautiful timbered shores, its high projecting rocks, and its islands of various shapes and sizes, it affords a most delightful spot for one to spend a week or two in the fall of the year, when the mountain trout are game, and the drum of the partridge and the merry shout of the lumberjack breaks the monotony that one might otherwise experience. The Gull River Lumber Company, whose mills are at Coboconk, is operating on the shores of Big Hawke Lake. In fact, this company has been for some few years past taking out what pine and hemlock still remain in those parts, and though Big Hawke Lake appears to be a long way from the nearest settlement, its shores have heard the echo of the bushwhacker's axe for many years, and it has played its little part in the lumbering days of early Canada. There are many little side trips you can take from Big Hawke Lake. You can paddle across to Little Hawke, or you can portage across to Clear Lake; you can paddle up to Crab Lake, or you can portage over to Trout, and from there continue north to the Muskoka waters, entering them at the Lake of Bays.

Hawke Lake and most of the countless other lakes that are to be found in Haliburton County flow into the Gull River, which comes down through the quaint little village of Minden, and empties into Balsam Lake at Coboconk. But it is Big Hawke itself that appears to have its interesting bit of history. There on its shores at "Birchie Point" lie the bones of Jack McLean. As to who Jack McLean was, where he came from, and all the rest of the story can be learned only from one or two "early inhabitants," who reside at Hall's Lake. This is the nearest point of settlement to the spot where Jack McLean found his last resting place.

When my guide, one of the few old-timers of the district, was paddling me up Crab Creek, which empties into Big Hawke Lake, he showed me the little mound of earth that marks a lonely grave, and told me the sad story of how Jack McLean met his death. Jack was a rivet driver, and was employed on one of Mooney's drives away back in the year 1871. They were driving out of Crab Creek and at a point known as Crab Rapids, an exceedingly dangerous spot, especially during the early summer, the unfortunate McLean was swept from his raft and found a watery grave. His body was recovered by his fellow lumberjacks, a grave was dug on Birchie Point, in which his remains were buried, a crude inscription was made on a little birch tree that stood at the head of the dead man, and Mooney's drive passed on.

For upwards of 40 years the body of Jack McLean has rested beneath the little tree at Birchie Point on Hawke Lake. It was at one time a pretty spot, but the damming of the water of the lake has played havoc with the birch grove, and the life of the trees has departed, just as the life of McLean departed long ago. The once sturdy little birch on which was carefully carved the words "Jack McLean, died 1871," has fallen to decay, and nothing of it save a stump about five feet high, remains. The inscription will soon be entirely obliterated, but my guide declares that he is going to have a headstone of some sort erected to replace the little birch which for so long a time has carried these few words. It is the one historic spot on Hawke Lake, and the guide takes rather a pride in pointing it out. The once rugged McLean rests amongst the wilds; the sound of the bushwhacker's axe disturbs not his sleep, the cold, raw blasts that sweep down the channel at Crab Creek chill not his bones; the roar of the sportsman's rifle vibrates not in his ears, for his young life long ago passed to other lands.

There appears to come over the guide's face a rather solemn expression as he paddles by Birchie's Point and when he relates the story of the death and burial of McLean he does so in rather a tender voice, and concludes by adding, "Yes, I must fix up a headstone for him." And knowing the interest that my guide takes in Hawke Lake and its surroundings, I am quite satisfied that Jack McLean will have a new headstone.

With and Without

In the matter of Education, those who have had the privileges of a liberal education would not be without its advantages. Many who have not a liberal education, like many who need glasses, do not realize their lack of ability to earn a livelihood, the lack of enjoyments, etc. We frequently have persons remark: "Oh, if I had but known that such comfort and clear vision were possible, I would have had these glasses long ago. I would not be without them for many times their price."

HE WAS PARALYZED

Mr. William J. Brennan, Western Hill, St. Catharines, Ont., tells what it feels like to be paralyzed. He lost power of speech, face was drawn out of shape, lost flesh, could not sleep. Five doctors failed to help him. Electricity proved ineffective. He used Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food until his former good health was restored. Face was restored to shape, power of speech returned and he gained in weight. Says he would not return to former condition for all the gold in the country.

"THE BETRAYAL"

(By E. Phillips Oppenheim.)

I shrugged my shoulders.

"But between you and me at least, Colonel Ray," I said, "there is a plain issue. You can explain the events of last night to me."

"I will do that," he answered. "since you have asked it. Briefly, then, I parted from you on the steps of my club at a few minutes past nine last night."

"Yes"

"I saw from the moment we appeared that you were being watched. I saw the man who was loitering on the pavement lean over to hear the address you gave to the cabman, and you were scarcely away before he was following you. But it was only just as he drove by, leaning a little forward in his hansom, that I saw his face. I recognized him for one of that woman's most dangerous confederates, and I knew then that some villainy was on foot. To cut a long story short, I came down unobserved in your train, followed you to Brasier Grange, and was only a yard or two behind when this fellow, who acts as the woman's chauffeur, sprang out upon you. I was unfortunately a little too quick to the rescue, and received a smash on the head from your stick. Then you bolted, and I found myself engaged with a pair of them. On the whole I think that they got the worst of it."

"The other one—was Lord Blenavon!" I exclaimed.

"It was."

"Then he is concerned in the plots which are going on against us," I continued. "I felt certain of it. What a blackguard!"

"For his sister's sake," Colonel Ray said softly, "I want to keep him out of it if I can. Therefore I hit him a little harder than was necessary. He should be hors de combat for some time."

"But why didn't you cry out to me?" I said. "I should not have run if I had known that I had an ally there."

"To run was exactly what I wanted you to do," Ray answered. "You had the dispatch-box, and I wanted to see you safe away."

I glanced at his bandaged head and arm.

"I suppose that I ought to apologize to you," I said.

"Under the circumstances," he declared, "we will cry quits."

Then as we walked together in the glittering spring sunshine, this big silent man and I, there came upon me a swift, poignant impulse, the keener, perhaps, because of the loneliness of my days, to implore him to unravel all the things which lay between us. I wanted the story of that night, my concern in it, stripped bare. Already my lips were opened, when round the corner of the rough lane by which Brasier Grange was approached on this side came a doctor's gig. Ray shaded his eyes and gazed at its occupant.

"Is this Bourriggs, Ducaine?" he asked, "the man who shot with us?"

"It is Dr Bourriggs," I answered.

Ray stopped the gig and exchanged greetings with the big, sandy-haired man, who held a rein in each hand, as though he were driving a market waggon. They chatted for a moment or two, idly enough, as it seemed to me.

The doctor looked at him curiously.

"I have just come from there," he answered. "There is nothing very seriously wrong."

"Can you tell me if Lord Blenavon is there?" Ray asked.

The doctor hesitated.

"It was hinted to me, Colonel Ray" he said, "that my visit to the Grange was not to be spoken of. You will understand, of course, that the etiquette of our profession—"

"Quite right," Ray interrupted. "The fact is, Lady Angela is very anxious about her brother, who did not return to Rowchester last night, and she has sent us out as a search party. Of course, if you were able to help us she would be very gratified."

The doctor hesitated.

"The Duke and, in fact, all the family have always been exceedingly kind to me," he remarked, looking straight between his horse's ears. "Under the circumstances you mention, if you were to assert that Lord Blenavon was at Brasier Grange I do not think that I should contradict you."

Ray smiled.

"Thank you, doctor," he said. "Good morning."

The doctor drove on, and we pursued our way.

"It was a very dark night," Ray said, half to himself, "but if Blenavon was the man I hit he ought to have a cracked skull."

After all, our interrogation of the doctor was quite unnecessary. We were admitted at once to the Grange by a neatly-dressed parlour-maid. Mrs. Smith-Lessing was at home, and the girl did not for a moment seem to doubt her mistress' willingness to receive us. As she busied herself poking the fire and opening wider the thick curtains, Ray asked her another question.

"Do you know if Lord Blenavon is here?"

"Yes, sir," the girl answered promptly. "He was brought in last night rather badly hurt, but he is much better this morning. I will let Mrs. Smith-Lessing know that you are here, sir."

She hurried out, with the rustle of stiff starch and the quick light-footedness of the well-trained servant. Ray and I exchanged glances.

"After all, this is not such a home of mystery as we expected," I remarked.

Then Mrs. Smith-Lessing came in.

CHAPTER XXIV.

LORD BLENAVON'S SURRENDER

She came in very quietly, a little pale and wan in this cold evening light. She held out her hand to me with a subdued but charming smile of welcome.

"I am so glad that you have come to see me," she said softly. "You can help me, too, about this unfortunate young man who has been thrown upon my hands. I——"

Then she saw Ray, and the words seemed to die away upon her lips. I had to steel my heart against her to shut out the pity which I could scarcely help feeling. She was white to the lips. She stood as one turned to stone, with her distended eyes fixed upon him. It was like a trapped bird, watching its impending fate. She faltered a little on her feet, and —I could not help it—I hurried to her side with a chair. As she sank into it she thanked me with a very plaintive smile.

"Thank you," she said, simply. "I am not very strong, and I did not know that man was with you."

Ray broke in. His voice sounded harsh, his manner, I thought, was unnecessarily brutal.

"I can understand," he said, "that you find my presence a little unwelcome. I need scarcely say that this is not a visit of courtesy. You know very well that willingly I would never spend a moment under the same roof as you. I am here to speak a few plain words, to which you will do well to listen."

She raised her eyes to his. Her courage seemed to be returning at the note of battle in his tone. Her small, well-shaped head was thrown back. The hands which grasped the sides of her chair ceased to tremble.

"Go on," she said.

"We will not play at cheap diplomacy," he said, sneeringly. "I know you by a dozen names, which you alter and adopt to suit the occasion. You are a creature of the French police, one of those parasitical creatures who live by sucking the honesty out of simpler persons. You are here because the more private meetings of the English Council of Defence are being held at Rowchester. It is your object by bribery, or theft, or robbery, or the seductive use of those wonderful charms of yours to gain possession of copies of any particulars whatever about the English autumn manoeuvres, which, curiously enough, have been arranged as a sort of addendum to those on your side of the Channel. You have an ally. I regret to say, in the Duke's son, you are seeking to gain for yourself a far more valuable one in the person of this boy. You say to yourself, no doubt, like father, like son. You ruined and disgraced the one. You think, perhaps, the other will be as easy."

"Stop!" she cried.

He looked at her curiously. Her face was drawn with pain. In her eyes was the look of a being stricken to death.

"It is terrible!" she murmured. "that men so coarse and brutal as you should have the gift of speech. I do not wish to ask for any mercy from you, but if I am to stay here and listen you will speak only of facts."

He shrugged his shoulders contemptuously.

"You should be hardened by this time," he said, "but I forgot that we had an audience. "It is always worth while to play a little to the gallery, isn't it? Well, facts then. The boy is warned against you, and from to-day this house is watched by picked detectives. Blenavon can avail you nothing, for he knows nothing. Such clumsy schemes as last night's are foredoomed to failure, and will only get you into trouble. You will waste your time here. Take my advice and go!"

She rose to her feet. Smaller and frailer than ever she seemed, as she stood before Ray, dark and massive.

"Your story is plausible," she said coldly. "It may even be true. But, apart from that, I had another and a greater reason for coming to England, for coming to Brasier. I came to seek my husband—the father of this boy. I am even now in search of him."

I held my breath and gazed at Ray. For the moment it seemed as though the tables were turned. No signs of emotion were present in his face, but he seemed to have no words. He simply looked at her.

"He left me in January," she continued, "determined at least to have speech with his son. He heard then for the first time of the absconding trustee. He came to England, if not to implore his son's forgiveness, at least to place him above want. And in this country he has never been heard of. He has disappeared. I am here to find him. Perhaps," she added, leaning a little over towards Ray, and in a slightly altered tone, "perhaps you can help me?"

Again it seemed to me that Ray was troubled by a certain speechlessness. When at last he found words, they and his tone were alike harsh, almost violent.

"Do you think," he said, "that I would stretch out the little finger of my hand to help you or him? You know very well that I would not. The pair of you, in my opinion, were long since outside the pale of consideration from any living being. If he is lost, so much the better. If he is dead, so much the better still."

"It is because I know how you feel towards him," she said, slowly, "that I wondered—yes, I wondered!"

"Well?"

"Whether you could not, if you chose, solve for me the mystery of his disappearance."

There was as much as a dozen seconds or so of intense silence between them. She never once flinched. The cold question of her eyes seemed to burn its way into the man's composure. A fierce exclamation broke from his lips.

"If he were dead," he said, "and if it were my hand which had removed him, I should count it among the best actions of my life."

She looked at him curiously—as one might regard a wild beast.

"You can speak like this before his son?"

"I veil my words at no time and for no man" he answered. "The truth is always the best."

Then the door opened, and Blenavon entered. His arm and head were bandaged, and he walked with a limp. He was deathly pale, and apparently very nervous. He attempted a casual greeting with Ray, but it was a poor pretence. Ray, for his part, had evidently no mind to beat about the bush.

"Lord Blenavon," he said, "this house is no fit place for your father's son. I have warned you before, but the time for advice is past. Your hostess here is a creature of the French police, and her business here is to suborn you and others whom she can buy or cajole into a treasonable breach of confidence. It is very possible that you know all this, and more. But I appeal to you as an Englishman and the representative of a great English family. Are you willing to leave at once with us and to depart altogether from this part of the country, or will you face the consequences?"

Blenavon was a coward. He shook and stammered. He was not even master of his voice.

"I do not understand you," he faltered. "You have no right to speak to me like this."

"Right or no right, I do," Ray answered. "If you refuse I shall not spare you. Last night was only one incident of many. I break my faith as a soldier by giving you this opportunity. Will you come?"

"I am waiting now for a carriage," Blenavon answered. "I have sent to the house for one."

"You will not return to the house," Ray said, shortly. "You will leave here for the station, the station for London, and London for the Continent. You do this, and I hold my peace. You refuse, and I see Lord Chelsford and your father to-night."

From the first I knew that he would yield, but he did it with an ill grace.

"I don't see why I should go," he said, sulkily.

"Either you and I together, or I alone, are going to catch the six o'clock train to London," Ray said. "If I go alone you will be an exile from England for the rest of your life, your name will be removed from every club to which you belong, and you will have brought irreparable disgrace upon your family. The choice is yours."

Blenavon turned towards the woman as though for aid. But she stood with her back to him, pale and with a thin scornful smile upon her lips.

"The choice," Ray repeated, glancing at his watch, "is yours, but the time is short."

"I will go," Blenavon said. "I was off in a day or two, anyway. Of what you suspect me I don't know, and I don't care. But I will go."

Ray put his watch into his pocket. He turned to Mrs. Smith-Lessing.

"Better come, too," he said quietly. "You have no more chance here. Every one knows now who and what you are."

She looked at him with white expressionless face.

"It does not suit me to leave the neighbourhood at present," she said calmly.

If she had been a man Ray would have struck her. I could see his white teeth clenched fiercely together.

"It does not suit me," he said, in a low tone vibrate with suppressed passion, "to have you here. You are a plague spot upon the place. You have been a plague spot all your life. Whatever you touch you corrupt."

She shrank away for a moment. After all, she was a woman, and I hated Ray for his brutality.

"What a butcher you are!" she said, looking at him curiously. "If ever you should marry—God help the woman."

"There are women and women," he answered roughly. "As for you, you do not count in the sex at all."

She turned away from him with a little shudder, and for the first time during the interview she hid her face in her hands. It was all I could do to avoid speech.

"Come," he said, "do you agree? Will you leave this place? I promise you that your schemes here at any rate are at an end."

She turned to me. Perhaps something in my face had spoken the sympathy which I could not wholly suppress.

About Zutoo Tablets

"I have been a sufferer from headache since childhood and have used all, or nearly all, of the so-called "cures" on the market. Some months since my attention was called to your Zutoo Tablets and I have been using them ever since with the most gratifying results. I find they cure a "sick" or "nervous" headache in a few minutes and leave no bad effect. My family use them whenever needed with equally good results. I have frequently given them to friends who were suffering from headache and they never failed to give quick relief. I find them a good remedy for "sour" stomach as well as headache. I always carry them in my grip on the road and would not be without them at any cost."

MRS. COSTA'S BRACELET

A SHORT STORY

By C. J. CUTCLIFFE HYNE

(Author of "The Adventures of Captain Kettle," "Thompson's Progress," &c.).

I was quite aware that Mrs. Costa was a somewhat disreputable old lady, but there was no getting over the fact that she was my best paying patient. In fact I may say she was the most substantial legacy my father left me, and he, by the way, took her over from his father when he came into the practice.

How old Mrs. Costa was when she came under my hands, I hadn't a notion. She had lived in Bradford as far back as any one could remember, but it was quite evident from her talk that she had been in a lot of places before that. When she was in the vein, to hear her was like listening to a reading of history. She knew Crimea times intimately; she had seen the fetes at Queen Victoria's accession; one could swear that she had been at the Duchess of Richmond's ball in Brussels the night before Waterloo, and at the same time she seemed equally familiar with the menage of Frederic the Great.

She did not tell us about these things as though she had crammed them up from books or gathered them from mere hearsay. She chatted over them as though they were plain every-day topics which everybody knew about; and she showed surprising little bits of internal knowledge, which were quite natural, but which as a rule were rather improper, and as a consequence omitted from the printed histories.

She was a little too fond of dry champagne—which she confessed to having taken to instead of port during the last forty years—and it was when the wine was in that these quaint reminiscences came out. Otherwise she was rather a cautious old person.

Mrs. Costa lived, when I attended her, in a biggish house on the Oak Estate, with stables and a billiard-room. She kept a French cook and entertained a lot more than was good for her health. Somehow the fun at her house always seemed to verge on the furious; she owned frankly to a love for high spirits.

She had periodical attacks of illness of one kind and another—she was rather a frail old lady—and on these occasions I used to try and drum into her the fact that she was not immortal, and that by the use of a little more care she would probably lengthen her days. I didn't do this bluntly, of course, but administered the dose wrapped up with the medical man's stereotyped bedside sugar, upon which she would grin at me with her false teeth, and flash an oeillade with her wicked old eyes, and tell me sweetly not to preach.

"Put me well again this time, you nice little doctor boy; give me a couple of hours' warning if ever you know afor a fact that I'm going to die, and that's all I ax of you." That was always her requirement.

It was curious to hear her talk about death. One could not altogether think she had a horror of it. She somehow gave one the impression that she looked upon death as a business appointment which would require all her shrewdness to deal with successfully.

Mrs. Costa was, as I have said, locally considered a somewhat disreputable old lady, a fact that she was quite aware of, and I fancy rather gloried in. She said herself she was too racy for the neighborhood, but Bradford suited her, and therefore she stayed there. Her own contemporaries, those of them who remained alive, she had very little to do with, except for a nod and a laugh when she passed any of them in her carriage. She said they were so wrapped up in their souls, and their ailments, and their banking accounts, that they had not any leisure left to be in the least amusing. She liked young people and lots of them; but the supply was somewhat limited, and was mostly confined to males.

Men of the dancing age can usually go out and about to what entertainments they like; but maidens have parents or guardians who can impose a veto. Moreover, when Mrs. Costa's young men married they usually dropped away from her parties after the first year or so. We are not a strait-laced lot in Bradford, but there seemed to be a vague indefinite feeling about (when for a moment one grew serious) that it was somehow or other irreverent for this old person of indefinite age to go in for so much boisterous gaiety. I heard one recently made Benedict put this distaste in words. "Hang it you know," said he, "the old girl may topple dead some day when she's helping herself to an entree, and that would be ghastly. No, the Missis and I are not dining there to-morrow night. Yes, I know we did accept at first, but we sent back word."

For myself, well, I was her medical attendant, and she was my best paying patient, and here was excuse enough for anyone who hinted to me that I was at Mrs. Costa's house too often. A medical man has to take care who he offends, and I was glib enough with my reason when it was wanted. I dislike a romping good dinner and rare fine wines as little as most men; and moreover, there was Sylvia.

Naturally, you want to know "Who was Sylvia?" You guess a paid companion, a girl friend, a relation? No, none of these. A cat or a poodle? Most decidedly not. No, Sylvia was a portrait, or rather a series of portraits, and the name was my own christening.

The original Sylvia hung in the dining-room, and took my notice when first I began to attend Mrs. Costa after my father's death. She was a deliciously pretty little lady in smoe quaint old-world garb, and somehow or other she fascinated me. Whenever I was in the dining-room, my eyes always went over to her, and Mrs. Costa used to notice it, and rally me on my liking. "I believe you could fall in love with the girl in that picture," she would say. Upon which I would retort that I was in love with her already to the tips of my fingers, and would marry her blithely if I could meet her in the flesh.

I believe I am no more bashful than most usually are, and if Mrs. Costa had chosen to chaff me about this queer liking before an audience, I should have considered it a legitimate subject for jest, and listened without a qualm or a blush; but it was her fad never to mention Sylvia unless we were alone, and all our little comments about the picture were strictly entre quatre yeux.

As I said, my liking for Sylvia began with my first coming to the house, and the "series" of portraits which I spoke about began almost from that time. Sylvia, the first, disappeared for awhile, and when I questioned anxiously about her welfare, Mrs. Costa only laughed, and said "wait, and you'll see." I did wait, and I did see—another Sylvia, with the same heavenly face and the same lovely form as her predecessor, but with coiffure and clothing quite after the fashion of the day.

Mrs. Costa took me into the dining-room alone for my first view. "There," she said, "there you are. Now how do you like her? Tell me quick. I'm terribly anxious for your verdict. Do the new clothes and that frizzy hair spoil her?"

"She's divine," I said. "She's ten times more divine than before, and ten times more marriagable. For Sylvia's sake I could remain a bachelor all my days."

"Then don't go flirting about so much with these other girls," said Mrs. Costa sharply. "You're dangling after first one, and then the other till you're sure to get hooked one of these days."

"Possibly," I said. "It's a duty I owe to my profession. Women have a dread of unmarried doctors."

"Silly kind nonsense," said she. "Do I ever make any bones about it? Let the other fools say what they choose. You stick to Sylvia. She's by far the coolest person to admire."

Well, in point of fact, I did come across no girl who took my fancy—Sylvia perhaps gave me a high standard—and so single I remained and Mrs. Costa subscribed about half my professional income. I told her frankly that most of my visits were useless; but she insisted on seeing me once a day, and receiving my personal guarantee that she would live on for the succeeding twenty-four hours. She was terribly afraid of being caught by death unawares. She enjoyed life to the brim but for this one thing, indeed all the world over it would have been hard to have found a more perfectly happy old woman. But she had lived hard all her days, and naturally she carried the marks of it. Her eye shad deep pouches under them, her cheeks were baggy, her figure had run to seed, and her fingers were wrinkled and knotty. Mark you, I frequently saw her at her worst, before, in fact, she had got out of bed to be decked for the day. Downstairs, whatever a good maid and clever shopkeepers could do was done to perfection, and she was always very presentable.

It used to be a strange thing to me at the time the "Sylvia Cult," as we named it, never grew to bore Mrs. Costa. She was a great person for fresh ideas, indeed for fresh everything; and though the picture of Sylvia still continued to charm me, I used often to marvel that she never found our whimsical, tet-a-tete fooling about a trifle stale and wearisome. But on the contrary she seemed to warm to it more and more as it went on, and indeed more and more to foster it. Once the new garb had been tried with success, she repeated it continually. We would be alone at lunch one day, and she would look up and catch my eye feasting on the portrait, and she would say: "I must send Sylvia to be repainted; she needs a new frock badly, poor dear. Those narrow sleeves are as contrarious as her hair. Yes, we must certainly bring her up-to-date." And a couple of months later, the new Sylvia would arrive, rigged out in all the elated efforts of the fashion, and I took to real and an earnestly lovable that I would be more enraptured with her than ever, and Mrs. Costa's wrinkled old face would beam out with satisfaction. In fact seven times was the portrait repainted before the end came.

To end was bound to come sooner or later, and really my efforts did little to put it off. I used repeatedly to tell her that I was merely called in to guarantee life for another twenty-four hours and to execute temporary repairs; and for the rest, as the world out, Nature used to do as she pleased in spite of all I could say, she was shortening her life unnecessarily. But her talent was always the same; the only way she chose to live was at top pressure and in a constant whirl of activity; and when the time for death came, she was ready for it although she had a few hours' warning.

Mrs. Costa was not a trusting old woman, having a shrewd judgment of her own about most worldly matters, and preferring to rely on it, but on this subject of death she did seem to confide most entirely on my judgment. And in the end I nearly failed her. I take no professional blame to myself for the matter; a sudden heart weakness came on which nobody could have predicted; and at times when I think back at what happened afterwards, I almost wish she had died without my seeing her again.

As it was I was called away from the club by telephone and went up to Manningham as fast as a hansom could take me. I had looked in that afternoon, and had tea with her, and she was looking as sound as ever and good for another three years at least. She wanted me to stay and dine, but I couldn't as I had promised to go and play pikker, but she made me promise to look her up again on my way home. Late hours were nothing to Mrs. Costa. She was positively delighted if she could get anyone to sit up with her to see in the dawn.

You may guess that I drove up to Manningham in a pretty tolerable scare, for let alone that here seemed a chance of losing my best paying patient, I liked the old lady for herself, and I liked her still more as being the proprietress—or proprietor, if you will—of Sylvia.

I had my own latch key, and was into the house with a bound. The old butler met me in the hall. "The mistress is terribly ill, sir," he said, "but she will not have anybody with her. She hoped she would last till you came. She—"

I was upstairs by this time, and into the bedroom. Yes, there she was, still in her dinner dress, lying on the silken counterpane of the bed, almost like a dead woman laid out in state. She was scarcely breathing.

Let us buy a 50-cent bottle of Psychine (pronounced Si-keen) from your druggist and give it to you (free) to prove its great value.

Psychine is the greatest vitality builder of the age.

For thirty years Psychine has been curing almost every disease that is due to run-down vitality.

Hundreds of thousands have used Psychine with wonderful beneficial results.

We have received thousands of unsolicited testimonials from people whom Psychine has cured, of in many cases, hopeless ailments.

There are still thousands of people suffering from disease, however, whom Psychine can benefit.

There are still thousands who are trying to cure themselves by wrong methods, who are using dangerous and hurtful medicines.

There are still thousands who are gradually losing their vitality—from whose body the necessary resisting power to disease is slowly but surely slipping away.

There are still those who soon will hear the dread "call in the night" if they do not take prompt action.

To these we have the above message, viz.:

"Let us buy a 50-cent bottle of Psychine from your druggist and give it to you, free, to prove its great value."

That 50-cent bottle of Psychine will tell you more powerfully than mere words can how tremendously beneficial Psychine will be for you.

It will give you an unmistakable indication of its wonderful power to renew the bodily vitality, to strengthen the phagocytes (the white corpuscles), the policemen or scavengers of the body.

The Surgical Department of the Japanese Army, in the Japo-Russian war, first drew the attention of the scientific world to the function of the white corpuscles of the blood or phagocytes.

Foreign medical men were astounded to see Japanese soldiers with wounds that had not been cleansed or dressed for days, that were apparently dirty, ill-kept, and altogether unsanitary.

Yet these dirty wounds healed marvellously; no army the world had ever known had such a wonderful record for the recovery of their wounded as the Japanese army.

There are two kinds of corpuscles in your blood, you know, red and white.

The red carry nutrition, the white are the policemen or scavengers of the body.

Whenever a disease germ enters the body, these white corpuscles attack and literally eat it.

A wound that attracts disease germs from the air is cleansed and healed by billions of phagocytes, or white corpuscles, devouring these unwelcome disease germs.

Any disease can be cured by these white corpuscles if they be in sufficient number or strong enough to attack and devour the germs that cause the disease.

If they are not in sufficient numbers or strength, then the disease germs eat them and disease claims the body.

That's the cause of every disease to which humanity is heir.

It is only within recent times that we have come to know how these herbs act.

Now scientists tell us they increase the strength and numbers of the white corpuscles or phagocytes.

In Psychine we have some of the most healing and beneficial herbs in the world, herbs that increase and strengthen the white corpuscles.

From Arabia comes one herb, from South America another, China and Japan produce a third, while the jungle of India yields a fourth.

All these herbs are recognized by the medical profession as being the most beneficial to health that they know.

That's why Psychine, in the third of a century it has been made, has cured hundreds of thousands of people who suffered from the following diseases:

La Grippe	Bronchial Troubles
Bronchitis	Weak Lungs
Hemorrhages	Weak Voice
Sore Throat	Chronic Weakness
Asthma	Early Decline
Chronic Weakness	Catarrhal Troubles
Influenza	Catarrh of Stomach
Poor Appetite	Night Sweats
Chills and Fevers	Obstinate Coughs
Sleeplessness and	Laryngitis and
Nervous Troubles	Dyspepsia
After effects of Pleurisy, Pneumonia and La Grippe.

That's why we believe it will be beneficial to you.

Now we don't ask you to take our word for the tremendously beneficial effect of Psychine. Fill out the coupon below, mail it to us, and we'll give you an order on your druggist (for which we pay him the regular retail price) for a 50-cent bottle of Psychine to be given you free of cost.

We will undoubtedly buy and distribute in this manner, hundreds of thousands of these 50-cent bottles of Psychine.

And we do that to show our entire confidence in this wonderful preparation.

A confidence that has been based on our 30 years' experience with this splendid preparation with a full knowledge of the hundreds of thousands of cures it has made.

MR. SEYMOUR HICKS WRITES 'MEMOIRS'

Book Is Mainly a Collection of Anecdotes About Stage Celebrities.

WANTS ADVERTISEMENT

That and a Desire to Talk About Others Impelled Him to Write, Actor Admits.

(Special Dispatch.)
London, Saturday.

MR. SEYMOUR HICKS has just issued a book which is supposed to be a history of his twenty-four years' experience on the stage. It is mainly a collection of anecdotes. Several of them have not been printed before. The volume is characteristic of the author. He begins by stating that he publishes the book for two reasons—first for the advertisement it will give him and second that in writing a little about himself he has a chance to write a lot about other people. Under his dedication he prints this couplet:—

"Early to bed and early to rise,

The book is causing considerable sharp criticism in theatrical circles, as in it Mr. Hicks says some very scathing things about schools for acting, amateur actors, and the annual theatrical garden party in Regent's Park. They are all abominations to him, but he does write some glowing words in praise of the Little Neck clams he ate in New York.

NEW PARKER COMEDY.

Mr. Louis N. Parker has finished his new comedy, "Pomander Walk," according to a statement in the Telegraph. It is to be first presented in New York on December 8.

Mr. Harry Pelissier is getting ready to "put" that highly successful comic opera "The Chocolate Soldier." This production, by the way, is nearing its fiftieth performance here, and there has not been a vacant seat at any one of those fifty performances. There has been but one change in the cast, due to the resignation of Miss Rosie Spain, who left to join Mr. George Edwardes' new musical company, "The Quaker Girl," in which Miss Gertie Millar and "Joe" Coyne will be the stars.

Mr. Gerald du Maurier, Mr. Lawrence Grossmith and Mr. Marsh Allen were in a motor-car accident recently, says the Stage. They were driving in a closed car to Watford, and when passing through Cricklewood Green something went wrong with the steering gear. The car smashed a lamp post and pitched up against a telegraph pole. Mr. Allen was thrown through the front window and badly cut, while the others escaped with bruises.

GRATEFUL TO CENSOR.

In the course of a speech at the meeting of the O. P. Club recently Mr. Laurence Housman announced himself as the author of "Lysistrata," now being played at the Little Theatre. It was Mr. Housman's play, "Pains and Penalties," which the censor refused to pass on account of its reference to George IV. There was quite a stir about it at the time. The great public was deeply offended and intimated that it did not want to see "Pains and Penalties." Perhaps, though, now that we have seen Mr. Housman's version of "Lysistrata" we feel differently and are not so disappointed. After all the censor is a useful person—in a way he doesn't know of.

At the annual meeting of the shareholders of the Theatre Royal Drury Lane it was shown that last year was the most successful that the theatre has ever experienced. Not only was a dividend of ten per cent add a bonus dividend of five per cent in addition declared, but £100,000 out of last year's profits was transferred to the reserve fund. Three years ago the "Lane" was in financial troubles, but now they have all disappeared. Credit for this belongs almost entirely to Mr. Arthur Collins, whose skilful management has brought victory out of something close to disaster.

NEW MODERN COMEDY.

Mr. Rudolph Bester, says the Pelican, has been collaborating with Mr. H. G. Wells on a dramatisation of the latter's story "Kipps." Mr. Bester has also just finished a comedy of modern life, which is to be produced in due time at the Hay-Market.

In an interview in the Express Mr. Lionel Monckton says he likes best to write music amid the low hum of traffic. "When I'm composing," he says, "I like unsyncopated, quiet sounds. A piano organ, a complicated tune, distracts me. I want little fugitive noises."

"Unsyncopated" and "fugitive noises" at once do show the inspiration of Mr. Monckton's music and also trace it to its source.

Young Mr. Phillip Desborough, who had been playing leads with Miss Marie Tempest in America, is to have the leading part in "Behind the Veil" when it is produced at the Coronet Theatre next month. It is a great opportunity for Mr. Desborough, as the part is a very trying one, that of a man in trouble with his soul.

The Times thinks that a safe performance by the walking dogs and artistes of England will be part of the exhibition arrangements next spring. Mr. Hardiker Pain and Edward Lee Robinson are at the disposal of all concerning their business, in addition to Professor Sir Charles Wyndham, Mr. Bransby Williams, Mr. Cyril Maude, Mr. Arthur Bourchier, Mr. Fred Terry, Mr. Lewis Waller, Mr. Martin Harvey, Mr. Tree, Mr. Alexander, Mr. Forbes Robertson, Mr. Hawtrey, Mr. Frohman, Mr. Gerald du Maurier, Mr. Hicks, Mr. Cyril Keightley, Mr. Dion Boucicault, Mr. Lewis Casson, Mr. Ben Greet, Mr. Lyn Harding, Mr. Norman McKinnel, Mr. Nigel Playfair, Mr. Sydney Valentine, Mr. Weedon Grossmith, Mr. Owen Nares, Mr. Hayden Coffin, Mr. Basil Hallam, Mr. Ernest Thesiger, Mr. Ernest Shannon, Mr. Ernest Lawford, Mr. Ernest Hendrie, Mr. Ernest Leicester, Mr. Ernest Hastings but knew what was the matter; remedies were at hand in her medicine cupboard.

Desperately I fought to warm up the dim spark of life which remained: for five mortal hours I wrestled in that gorgeous bed-chamber to drag back life into what at times I feared was nothing but a corpse; and in the end a flickering gleam of consciousnes came back. But I knew it could not be for long. The shock of the attack had been too heavy; she was worn out, and she must pay the penalty. She looked up and recognized me. I saw the daily repeated question in her eyes, and with sadness I shook my head. I knew quite well that a medical man should never encourage a patient to give up hope, but I had never willingly lied to Mrs. Costa before, and I could not lie then.

"I am afraid," I said, "your time is short, very short. Is there anything I can do?"

A shiver seized her that was like to have blown out the little spark of life that remained. And then she tried to speak. Again and again she tried, and it was horrible to look upon her impotence. I did my best to suggest what she wanted. Was it a parson? Was it a second medical opinion? Was it her worldly affairs she wished to settle?

"No! No! No!" Her fading eyes blinked a negative to every question. Finally, with one supreme effort, she made herself speak. I had to put my ears against her shrivelled lips to catch the words.

"The bracelet—on my wrist. Pills inside. Give me—one."

Yes, there was a bracelet on her wrist, a curious bauble made (I think) of iron which she always carried night and day. It was unobtrusive enough of itself, but on her it was conspicuous, in being the only out-of-date thing she was ever known to wear.

I lifted her effortless arm and tried to find the clasp. There was no clasp or hinge. The bracelet was one unbroken ring of metal. I looked back at her and shook my head. I supposed h ermind was wandering.

Again her lips moved, and still that look of terrible anxiety was in her dull eyes. I bent down my ear again. The whisper was almost too faint to hear this time, but I made out the words "Squeeze it—break it." And so I did as I was bidden. It was quite an easy task. The bracelet had both hinge and clasp, and these were lightly soldered over. At the pressure of my hands, the solder shelled away, and the bracelet flew open. It was made of hollow tube, and from the inside rolled out on to the bed-quilt four tiny pellets of the brightest emerald green.

I gathered them into my hand. At first I though they were jewels—some keepsake, probably—and then it dawned upon me that they were some sort of a drug. They gave out a faint ethereal odour, and were spongy to the touch. Was this some quack medicine she kept by her as a last resort?

I looked down at the haggard old face on the bed. Again she was whispering, and again I stooped to hear.

"Give me one—quick—almost too late."

I put my arm round her shoulders and raised her up. Her toothless jaw dropped of itself, and it seemed useless to persist further; but she had willed it, so I put one of the green pills at the back of her tongue and washed it down with some drink that stood by the bedside.

Could she swallow? The power seemed hardly left to her. But slowly she managed it, and the green pill went with the drink. Then I laid her head back on the pillow again, and stood aside to wait for the end.

But the end did not come. I had seen death before, and knew the scheme of it. The fire had died out—I had found no time to feed it—and the room was full of raw chill. It was just the hour for such a death as this. But death did not come. The slow faint breathing deepened, and the breast began to heave and fall perceptibly. I had wiped the lips and the wan cheeks clear of the paint, and I could swear that color was coming back to them. Nay more, the loose skin of the face seemed to tighten and recurve, and the lips to plim out again and grow carmine as though some unseen maid had tinted them.

I lifted a clammy hand to a clammy brow and told myself that I was overtired and was seeing illusions. Something seemed to make me shudder. I went across to the window, drew back the curtain and the blind, threw open the sashes, and stepped out into the cold of the open dawn. My head was throbbing, and I felt limp and dejected, and thoroughly run down. I think for a minute or two I got a bit out of hand and went light-headed.

But then I pulled myself together again with a jerk. Either my patient was alive, or she wasn't: in either case I had my work to do, so I took another gulp of the morning air, and went back into the room.

My God, there was no doubt about it this time. Where was the worn-out old woman I had left in the bed? Gone. And in her dinner dress, in her diamonds, in her very red-heeled shoes and gold clocked stockings, lay what? A girl, certainly, a young girl of twenty, pink, fresh, beautifully curved, deliciously lovely. She was just in the act of wakening. My God! It was Sylvia! Sylvia in the flesh.

She sat up on the quilt, nodded to me, and blushed.

I felt my scalp ripple.

"Dick," she said, "I did not intend you to know. But you gave me so little time. I was very nearly caught." A look of terror came into her lovely eyes. "Dick, I knew all the time what was going on, and I didn't think I could have swallowed it, and then I should have died."

"Are you—are you Mrs. Costa?" I asked huskily.

"No," she said, "I am just Sylvia at present, till I can think of a new surname. Perhaps you can help me to one?"

I wrung my hands. "This is horrible," I said.

She frowned. "These clothes are," she said. "They hang round me like sacks. But the jewels are pretty: we'll take those."

"I'm very stupid," I said, "but I don't seem quite myself. What do you mean?"

"Well, I can't very well stay on in Bradford after this."

"I suppose not."

"Of course not. One couldn't explain. We must go away, Dick, and start afresh. I always do."

I was pulling myself together now. "Oh, you've done this before then?" I asked.

"A dozen times. You can do it with me afterwards."

"By the help of those green pills?" She nodded.

"What are they? Elixir vitae?"

"If you like. I don't know any better name. But, Dick, we are wasting time. We must get out of this before people are astir, or there will be questions. Come, go out on the balcony whilst I change my dress."

Mechanically I did as I was bidden, and the cold air of the morning tightened round my temples whilst I kept asking myself whether I was a sane man. I did not think the matter out: I was past rational thought: it was only that question of sanity which in a dull way puzzled me. And I remembered what pretty, small, white teeth she had. I had never seen Sylvia's teeth before in that picture.

She called me, and I came into the room again.

She waved her pretty fingers down her dress. "Like Sylvia's last portrait, Dick. I had it specially made to please you. How lucky you brought your big coat up here. Now slip it on over your evening clothes, and then we must go."

"But," I said, heavily, "I cannot go. There's my practice."

"Pah, your wretched practice! What does that matter?"

"It's my living, anyway."

"But my good Dick, can't you see I've been preparing for this for years? I've money stored away so that we can get it easily. We shall be rich, we shall be free, we can start entirely fresh, we shall be so happy as the day is long."

I shook my head.

She leaned her fingers on my arm and put her lovely lips close to my cheek. "What does this mean?" she pleaded. "You love me, don't you? I have heard you say a thousand times you loved me when you stood before the pictures."

"I did love that Sylvia!"

"But not this?"

"Let me go now. I must have time to think."

"No," she said, "it must be now or never. If you have doubts, it must be forever. Oh, Dick, Dick, and I thought, I believed, you loved me!"

"I do not know," I said weakly. "How could I guess you were Mrs. Costa? Your past dazes me."

"But there is all the future before us, Dick."

"Yes, but do I want a future? I don't know. I have lived with my love in the past, and now I meet her in the flesh—"

"You are disappointed."

"I could not say that. But she is strange to me."

She stood away from me, and pressed a hand against her breast. My God, how beautiful she was. The slow boom of the Town Hall clock as it struck five of the morning came to us through the open window.

She stepped to me again, drew my head down and kissed me hotly on the lips. "That's for good-bye, Dick. I shall try and forget you, and if I don't, I shall come back. Ah, but it is good to be young again, with all the world, the good, bright world, ready and willing to lunch with one."

She put a hat on her head and pushed a couple of pins through the crown into the masses of her hair. She took up some long, slim gloves, and a photograph of me own that I had once given to Mrs. Costa. Heaven, how these trivial details came back to me! And then—she stepped out into the balcony and stood at the head of thegarden steps — "Good-bye, Dick, I don't think you'll see me again."

I had not got a word of answer.

She tripped down the steps out of sight, and for a minute or so I stood staring after her blankly. The household was beginning to stir in the rooms beyond. Presently a maid would come and find Mrs. Costa gone. What sort of explanation could I give of her absence?

The thought frogs me. Anyhow I must not be found in that room. I clapped on hat and coat. I would go with Sylvia. That would save me from all questioning. No. I would go because I loved her still in flesh, as I loved her on the canvas. Loved her? Yes, loved her with a madness I was only just beginning to realize.

I went out into the garden. She was not there. I went into the road below; she had vanished from there also. Heavens, I had lost her! I went on with my search, but she was hidden from view. That is twenty years ago now, and I am searching still when I can get away from the practice. Sometimes I fear I shall never find her now.

"Consumption"

Three Doctors Attended Him. Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup Cured Him.

It has long been known that the balsamic odor of the newly cut pine tree heals and invigorates the lungs and consumptives improve and revive amid the perfume of the pines. Since but few can command the luxury of a visit to the pineries, it will be good news to many to know that the essential healing principle of the pine has been separated, and refined, and combined with other absorbent, expectorant and soothing medicines of recognized worth in the manufacture of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

Mrs. Charles McDermott, Bathurst, N.B., writes: "I thought I would write and let you know the benefit I have received through the use of your Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. Three years ago I had Consumption and had three doctors attending me, and they were very much alarmed about my condition. I was so weak and miserable I could not do my housework. While looking through your B.B.B. almanac I saw that Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup was good for weak lungs so I got a bottle and after taking ten bottles I was completely cured. At that time I weighed 135 pounds and now weigh 172, a gain of 37 pounds in three years. I now keep it in the house all the time and would not be without it for anything as I owe my life to it."

JED DORKUM---GOOD FOR NOTHING

It was with a feeling of relief compounded with shame that Dorkum saw the lights of eBntville Corner twinkling only a short distance ahead of him. He was relieved, because he could stop there a short while and get a bite of something to eat before he finished the rest of his journey, and he was ashamed because he had come back to his native town poorer than when he went away. He had been so sure of succeeding, but he ha dfailed in everything he had undertaken, and now only a few cents remained in his pocket. He well knew that his roving disposition had prevented him from being a successful man, but he had never been able to overcome it. He had always been called a god-for-nothing, and no one was better aware than he that the title was deserved. He recalled now as he had recalled many times before what his wife had said to him when he had told her that he was going West to seek a fortune for her and the little one. "It would be better if you should stay her and work on our little farm," she had said. "We could live in comfort—we don't need a fortune." But his onging for the Western States had been so intense that he had not listened to her words, and one morning he started out, promising to remain in one place and work hard until he had earned something worth while to bring back to her and little Ruth. But he was within three miles of home now, and he had returned empty handed. It was not that he had not tried in his way, but he had not stuck to one thing the had moved from one place to another, and this was the result. He was sorry now; he was always sory when it was too late, he told himself. But what could you expect of a good-for-nothing? He wished, however, that he could have done just one little thing for Sally and the child, but it was of no good to wish now, at this late hour. He remembered with shame the little money he had sent home to his wife the first year, and how, after that he had sent none at all nor written to her. He had moved to another town and put all his savings into a new scheme, and when it had fallen through he had been ashamed to write Sally. As that was only the beginning of many failures there had been a silence between them for six years. He had returned because he had an unquenchable desire to see Sally and little Ruth again, and the old home. He had no idea of making himself known. If he should only see them at a distance he would be thankful for that, and then he would go away. There was no definite plan in his mind as to where he should go after that, but it did not matter, he said to himself.

oDrkum had reached the village now, and he made his way to the grocery store near the railway station. He would stop to buy something to eat, for he had not tasted food for many hours. As he entered a feeling of dread took possession of him. What if he should be recognised? But there was small danger of that, for the man with the heavy beard and bronzed face, wearing such shabby clothes, looked in no way like the young, clean-shaven, rather pale chap who had left the village seven years ago. Several men loitered around the store; some were sitting on th ecounter and others had improvised seats of boxes and kegs. They were deply engaged in conversation and paid no particular attention to the stranger. The storekeeper himself left the group to see what the newcomer wanted. Dorkum ordered a few cents' worth of crackers and cheese, and while the man was wrapping them up for him he could not help overhearing what the conversation was about.

"Yes," said one of them—he recognized the speaker as Sim Jones—"she's goin' to get a good man this time. The other one wan't worth a pack of bad portaters——"

"That's so," broke in another man. "And 'twas better for all concerned when Jed give up the ghost. He never wrote home for six years, so Lute Page, the postmaster, says. Sally never told a word, and she stuck by Jed nobly. Just think of it; a slender slip of a girl like her havin' to take in washin's to support herself and child."

"And s henever took no notice of Dick Holmes until a year after she heard the news f Jed's death," contributed another of the loiterers. "I expect, folks, there ll 'be a weddin' to-morrow that'll beat anythin' we've ever seen here. They say Holmes has got money. He's a good man, but Sally deserves him."

Dorkum was dazed, and as the storekeeper handed him the package his hand shook so he could scarcely hold it. He almost staggered from the store. The proprietor nodded significantly as he joined the men. "Been taking a little, too much, I guess," he said.

Dorkum stumbled along the country road. He was only conscious of two things. One was that he was supposed to be dead, and the other that Sally was to be married on the morrow. He tried to think, to form some plan, but his brain refused to help him. But he kept on and on.

He had nearly reached Benton, his old home, when a number of men pased him running, and he was aroused from his apathy by their shouts of "Fire! fire!" He quickened his own steps. When he reached the village there was the wildest excitement everywhere. He followed the crowd, and his heart almost stood still when they stopped before his own house. The only fire department that the place boasted was there, but the fire had apparently got beyond their control.

Suddenly a woman's voice pierced the night. "My little girl is there! Won't someone save her?" She would have rushed into the house, but someone pulled her back. None of the villagers offered to try and save the child. It was too great a risk. But a man, a stranger, darted into the burning building. There was only one chance in a thousand that he could save her, the crowd agreed, but after a few minutes, which seemed an eternity to those who waited—the mother especially—the man appeared at the upper window with the little girl in his arms.

There was a net ready, and it was only a few moments before the child was with her mother, safe and sound.

Before the men had a chance to spread the net again, the man in the window jumped, and it was not an instant too soon; for as someone dragged him away from the house, the roof fe lin with a crash.

The stranger was taken to the neighboring house unconscious. The terrible strain had been too much for him. He regained consciousness just long enough to hear some villager say: "Well, Jed made good at last," and to say a few words to Sally and little Ruth, who were bending over him with wet eyes.

There was a smile on his face as he murmured: "I'm glad I could do a little something for you—after all."—Boston Post.

SERMON FROM SHAKESPEARE

(Copr. 1909, by Bradley-Garretson Co., Ltd.).

And of all my lands

Warwick, in the battle of Barnet, had received his death wound. He was the wealthiest nobleman in England and the most powerful. He had been the "Proud setter-up and puller-down of kings. In his dying moments what a weak thing he was, how powerless was his wealth to save him. He realized that his years of energetic action, his ambitions and successful schemes and plots had left him absolute owner of just as much land as would hold his body's length. A solemn thought that! The greedy hoarder, the landgrabber should take it to heart. Man's chief end is evidently not to hoard and possess. He must have a higher destiny or else life is a failure and not worth the living.

It was natural that Shakespeare should make Warwick speak of his wealth in terms of land. England in the fifteenth century was an agricultural country. The ideal life for every Englishman was one spent, save when he was engaged in war, on his broad estates. He was a king in little; his retainers and his tenants were his subjects. He was proud of his broad fields, his parks with oak and chestnut shady. It was the ideal of the nation. Even an actor and playwright like Shakespeare found his highest satisfaction in returning to his early home in Warwickshire and taking up the life of a country gentleman.

Land hunger is as strong in the twentieth century as it was in the fifteenth. Let a block of land be opened up for settlement in Montana or Saskatchewan and there is a mad stampede for possession. It is something to own a portion of this earth; to that extent are men kings. They have their sheep and their cattle, their men-servants and their maid-servants, they command and are obeyed.

Despite the fact that Shakespeare was himself a landowner, he, in a way, despised wealth. It was so much "dirt" to him. He "prized not quantity of dirty lands" for itself it was to him a means to an end. The wealth and leisure it brought him enabled him to develop his higher nature.

Nations are as fond of the possession of territory as individuals. Tyre and Sidon, Palestine, Carthage, ancient Greece and Rome, were notorious land-grabbers, ever broadening their territory. Where are they? Their greatness is buried in the soil on which they stood. They possess just so much land as holds their ruins. Yet some of these have immortality. Palestine, Greece and Rome are alive and at work among the nations. Their gigantic possessions, their glorious battles by sea and by land, have left but little influence behind; but the spiritual conquests they made, the spiritual efforts they put forth can never perish. That great library of Jewish literature, the Bible, is still the main factor in the moral development of the human race; the poetry and philosophy of Greece and Rome still have a refining and uplifting influence.

It is easy to kill the body and bury it deep out of sight. Spirit it is impossible to kill. The nations, which, while over-anxious about their earthly possessions, at the same time developed their soul's life, have immortality. Ponder this well! A man might own a whole state or province; he might possess factories by hundreds and control armies of workmen; he might be a Croesus in wealth, yet when his death hour arrives he might be forced to cry out, as did Warwick: "Why, what is pomp, rule, reign, but earth and dust?" If he cultivate his lands to give work and food to earth's millions; if he set the wheels of his factories in motion with a creator's instinct for the good of humanity—he could leave this fair earth with no regrets.

"Naked came I out of my mother's womb, and naked shall I return thither," said Job. He was speaking merely of the flesh. His material possessions he could not carry beyond the grave. Wordsworth's words are nearer the mark regarding the spirit:

"Trailing clouds of glory do we come
From God, who is our home."

Every child is born into the world with infinite spiritual possibilities for good or evil. There is a potentially perfect being in every cradle.

When the man who has lived a righteous life faces the grim conquetor death he can do so realizing that, in so far as he wrought to bring about the brotherhood of man, in so far as he has cultivated a lofty spiritual life, he can never die. Dust unto dust was never spoken of the soul. There are many graves in the world; millions upon millions of mounds that tell that they who lie beneath had to leave their broad fields and hoarded wealth. Their names are lost. But there are a few shrines; the grave of Shakespeare, the son of an illiterate glover, and the grave of Lincoln, the son of a more illiterate backwoodsman, attract the feet of many pilgrims. Their spirits still preach to humanity. Every man has in him immortal possibilities. He may possess, when he passes away, but six feet of land, or he may be a part of the Infinite, his words and deeds still at work for the uplifting of mankind.

reported that "the preparation fulfills ALL the requirements and presents ALL the conditions of a very satisfactory emulsion. In appearance and consistency it is not unlike cream and under the microscope the fat globules are seen to be of perfectly regular size and uniformly distributed. So well has the oil been emulsified that even when shaken with water the fat is slow to separate. The taste is decidely unobjectionable and the Emulsion should prove an excellent food as well as a tonic."

We believe no other preparation of Cod Liver Oil has received such weighty commendation and if the same high authorities were to examine it now they would find it even finer, more digestable, more palatable and more satisfactory in every way; in fact, SCOTT'S EMULSION has so long been the one satisfactory and perfect Emulsion that it is accepted as the standard by medical practitioners all over the world, by the public and by hundreds of imitators, for it is the first and only Emulsion imitated.

The imitations are in name only for no other preparation of Cod Liver Oil is so pure, so perfect and so beneficial.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

has become the world's Standard Body-Builder because of the perfect purity of its ingredients, its absolute freedom from ALCOHOL or any other harmful substance and because the results from it are uniform and far greater than from any other preparation.

Verses 37-41.—How did the people act when Noah was building the ark?

In anticipating the coming of Christ how should we act at the present time?

Take two devout men, one who believes that the second coming of Christ may be any day and the other that it will not be in his life time and state what, if any, different effect it will have upon the righteousness of their lives?

At what stage does eating and drinking degenerate into gluttony and drunkenness?

Compare the evils of a lack of food and overeating, and state their respective results.

What are the evils of drinking strong drink?

Is it ever wrong for a well-to-do healthy man to marry, or to abstain from marrying? Give your reasons.

Verse 42—In how many ways may we look for the coming of the Lord?

What do you understand the command, to watch, to mean?

Verses 43-47—Do these instructions and warnings refer exclusively to the final coming of Christ, and, if so, how do you account for it that he speaks as though they may expect that event in the near future?

What is it to be ready?

Is that person ready who is engaged in wrong doing, or who has a grudge against anybody? Why?

Verses 48-51—Why is not a harsh and cruel man fit for heaven?

Why will drinking men and their associates be shut out of God's kingdom? (This question must be answered in writing by members of the class.)

What will become of those who are not ready when the Lord comes?

Peerless Peninsular

has a Sliding Damper that regulates the temperature of the oven to any degree

You know the old-fashioned flop-over damper. It has only two positions—shut tight, which throws all the heat around the oven—and wide open, which throws all the heat up the chimney.

With such a damper, the usual course to secure a moderate oven is to open the oven door. Many a pan of bread and cake has been spoiled because the oven was cooled off this way.

The "Peninsular" Sliding Damper gives you absolute control of the heat. You can set it for direct draft, or for quick or slow baking—wide open, a little shut, one-fourth shut, half open, or the tiniest draft possible.

Simply slide the damper along the groove, and the "Peerless Peninsular" oven responds, giving you the desired temperature for any kind of baking you wish.

There are many other features of the "Peerless Peninsular" that appeal to every woman who takes pride in her home and wants a range that will do justice to her culinary skill.

"Adanac Peninsular" is plain in design with swing door for those who prefer it.

"Harmony Peninsular" is similar in essentials but more elaborately decorated.

is invaluable in its capacity of quickly giving heat. It will burn nine hours with one filling. It is safe, smokeless and odorless; has a cool handle and a damper top.

An indicator shows the amount of oil in the font. The filler-cap is put in like a cork in a bottle, and is attached to the font by a chain. It has an automatic-locking flame spreader, which prevents the wick from being turned high enough to smoke, and is easy to remove and drop back so the wick can be quickly cleaned.

The burner body or gallery cannot become wedged, and can be unscrewed in an instant for rewicking. Finished in japan or nickel, strong, durable, well made, built for service, and yet light and ornamental.

ONLY A PIN

Chance at the Trade of Pin-Making —Complex Machinery Used

A very long bridge of years, indeed, spans the time since a lady's "pin money" was really used for the object its name suggests. And there is an equally wide difference between the pins used by "my lady" of those days and the almost invaluable little article we should find it so hard to do without to-day.

At one period in our history the importation of pins into this country was forbidden by law, although so august a personage as Queen Catherine received hers from France, where, at that time most of the pins were made. They were expensive articles, and "pin money" was a consideration, and one with which no lady of any pretentions to fashion could afford to dispense.

Another law with regard to pins was passed in 1543, and it enacted that the sale of pins should be prohibited unless "double-headed," or with "heads that soldered to the shank." As, unless it be provided with a firm head, a pin is practically useless to us. This law will be read with considerable amusement by ladies of to-day.

When, in 1626, the pin-making trade was introduced into Great Britain by one Tilsby, the manufacture of the article was for some time confined to Stroud, but it quickly spread to London, Bristol, and Birmingham; and it is at the great metropolis of the Midlands that most of our pins come from nowadays, although some are still made in Warrington and Dublin.

Most complex is the machinery used now in pin-making. It is a wonderful thing where all the pins go to, and how scarce they are when they are wanted. And the wonder becomes all the greater when we remember that a large factory will turn out many millions of pins in a day and that there are many factories keeping up this output.

In older pattern machines there used to be eighteen processes, but these have superseded, and now the wonderful mechanisms not only make the pins complete, but stick them in the familiar pale blue papers that everyone knows so well.

Black pins and ladies' hairpins are given their hue by being placed in a revolving chamber, so that they are kept on the move all the while the enamelling process is going on. By this means the enamel settles quite evenly, and a smooth black lustre on the pins is the result.

"It's only a pin," is a remark sometimes heard. Yes, it's only a pin, but it represents, nevertheless, the outcome of one of the greatest triumphs man's inventive genius has ever won, and an article, humble though it be, that few would care to be without.

A DANGEROUS HANDFUL

Alligator Hunting Not a Suitable Occupation for Timid

That one-half of the world does not know how the other half lives is a good deal truer than some people imagine. There are dozens of strange ways of earning a living which those following the more common-place occupations never dream of. Among these surely alligator catching is one of the strangest.

The commercial value of these strange reptiles is, of course, their skins, and for this reason quite a small army of men hunt them regularly in the tropical regions among the rivers and swamps of the Nile and Ganges. They live to a great age—some are known to be 800 years old, and by the tremendous strength which they can exert when occasion calls for it, one would imagine that the older they live the stronger they grow.

Besides an unusual amount of pluck and resource in handling the alligator, one needs to have a keen eye and a sharp hand. For holding shut the jaws of an alligator one and a half times your own length is life with the joy left in; trying to hold those same jaws open is experience gained too late to be of use. And the alligator in its native land is not as it appears to be at the Zoo, a sleepy and slow-moving creature, but very quick and lively in all its movements.

NOT A HENRY VIII.

A Good Story in Which Bonar Law Figured

As his name indicates, Mr. Andrew Bonar Law, M.P., who has completed his fifty-second year, is a Scot. However, he can also claim to be a Canadian, for he first saw the light in the Dominion, his father being the Rev. James Law, M.A., of New Brunswick. Mr. Bonar Law first entered Parliament in 1900. At a demonstration in Glasgow he referred to Mr. Balfour's attitude on the fiscal question. He pointed out that "the English people love a compromise," and instanced the course taken by Henry VIII. at the time of the Reformation, whereupon the following question was handed up to be answered: "Is the candidate aware that Mr. Balfour is a bachelor, and that Henry VIII. was much the reverse?" "Yes," replied the candidate, "but possibly Mr. Balfour might not be a bachelor if he could be sure of getting rid of his wives as easily as Henry VIII."

HOW A LION SAVED A LICKING

Daniel Webster was frequently punished when a boy for appearing at school with dirty hands. On one occasion it occurred to him as he was nearing the school that his hands were hardly likely to pass master, and having no other means of cleaning them, proceeded to lick one of them as clean as he could. On reaching school he was interrogated as to the condition of his hands, both of which were carefully concealed behind him, whereupon he produced the cleaner of the two for the inspection of the master.

"Daniel," said the master sternly, "if you can find a dirtier hand than that in all the school, I'll let you off."

The answer was immediate.

"Here it is, sir," said Daniel, and with the exclamation he produced the other hand from behind his back.

SMALLEST TREE

The smallest tree that grows in Great Britain may be seen on the very top of Ben Lomond. It is the dwarf willow, which at maturity reaches a height of only two inches.

Wainwright

THE BUFFALO TOWN OF THE GOLDEN WEST

A Second Saskatoon

From the Wainwright Star, Sept. 22, 1910.

On the 14th of August last, the order-in-council incorporating Wainwright as a town took effect, and another milestone in the brief but remarkable history of the place was reached.

The next stage will be incorporation as a city, and if the citizens work together in a spirit of unity and keep pushing for settlement, and reaching out after industries, it will not be many years before this step can be taken. Wainwright is situated in the heart of a very fertile district, and is a railway centre of importance. On the east there is no city nearer than Saskatoon, and on the west Edmonton is the nearest centre of importance. Why should Wainwright not become a second Saskatoon? A branch line is to be built from here, which will mean the concentration of more train crews here, and will make this a distributing centre for the villages that will spring up along the line. Already quite a few big concerns have made this a distributing point for a considerable territory.

From Saskatoon to Edmonton is 325 miles. In all this distance Wainwright leads to-day in population, and there is no reason why it should not continue to lead. In fact, there is no reason why Wainwright should not be a second Saskatoon in population and business.

Think what this should mean to those who buy property now in Wainwright. Saskatoon in 1906 had a population of 3,011. Now it has 12,000. In 1906 Saskatoon was about six years old. Wainwright is only two years old, and has a population of 1,000, which is more than Saskatoon had at the end of its second year.

It is not unreasonable to expect that Wainwright, with practically every advantage that Saskatoon enjoys, and some that it does not, should in a few years have a population as large as Saskatoon has now.

A few years ago lots could be bought in Saskatoon as cheaply as they can be bought in Wainwright to-day. These same lots in Saskatoon have multiplied in value several times. If Wainwright should become a second Saskatoon, those who buy lots there now, will make a profit of from 100 to 1,000 per cent. on their investment in a few years.

Big Yields In Wainwright District

Eighty-five bushels of oats to the acre—37 to 37 bushels of wheat to the acre—these are some of the yields in the Wainwright District this year. J. H. Mills, who homesteaded the Southwest ¼ sec. 34, Tp. 44, R. 6, recently threshed a field of oats which averaged 86 bushels to the acre. A farmer named Adamson, near Wainwright, had 80 acres that averaged 37 bushels of wheat to the acre. In view of the fact that in many sections of Western Canada the grain crops were exceptionally light this year, these yields prove the superiority of the Wainwright District. More breaking is being done in this district this year than ever before, and next year's acreage of grains will be the largest in the history of the district. This means a big increase in Wainwright's trade. It is announced that work will begin soon on the highway bridge over the Battle River near Wainwright. This will bring to Wainwright the trade of a large and prosperous farming community which is now cut off from the town a good part of the year by the river. Minnesota parties are now negotiating for the purchase of 10,000 acres in the Wainwright district to be settled with farmers from the States in the early spring. If the land is secured it will all be broken up at once.

Why These Lots Are Offered For Sale

The Townsite of Wainwright was laid out about two years ago by the Grand Trunk Parific and lots were offered for sale. The railroad had selected Wainwright as one of its Divisional Headquarters, and located there extensive improvements, including 14 miles of sidetrack, a 12-stall cement roundhouse, repair shops, and office buildings for division officials. The town was not extensively advertised, and the lots were sold for the most part to those who through a personal visit or through friends became convinced of the town's future. The G. T. P. retained a considerable amount of land adjoining the original townsite on three sides, in order to provide for the town's future growth. It has now for the first time platted a portion of this land—the portion immediately adjoining the original townsite on the northeast and just across the street from the new $15,000 public school. The lots in this sub-division are being offered at low prices, the object being to promote the growth of the town rather than to get the largest amount of money possible for the lots. What the Grand Trunk Pacific desires most to accomplish by putting these lots on the market is to make room for the natural growth of the town in the direction in which it will logically grow, attract people to Wainwright and thus increase the freight and passenger traffic into and out of the town. It has been the policy of the G. T. P. to sell its townsite property at a low price, and give the people who buy it and improve it the benefit of the advance in value. This policy is being carried out in Wainwright, and the people who buy these lots now will share in the growth of the town and the advance in realty values, as the purchasers of lots two years ago when the townsite was first laid out have shared in its growth up to this time. By purchasing lots from the Grand Trunk Pacific, you take no risk whatever. It is different from buying from irresponsible parties.

What Home Folks Think of Wainwright

Of the 80 odd employes of the Grand Trunk Pacific who make Wainwright their headquarters, one half are owners of Wainwright real estate. Eight of them including the station agent, one engineer, two firemen, a postal clerk and a foreman, have bought lots within the past few days, and expect to build on them next year.

Seventy per cent of the citizens of Wainwright own their own homes. During 1910 upwards of 100 new buildings were erected at a total cost of upwards of $150,000, an average of $1,500 each. They included a number of residences costing from $2,500 to $3,500 each.

When home folks do not hesitate to invest their money in real estate and improvements, it is pretty safe for non-residents to make investments in that town. A live, growing town like Waiwright is the town in which to invest for big, quick profits.

Wainwright Lots Selling Rapidly

The demand for Wainwright lots has far exceeded our expectations. During the first week after Wainwright Department was opened, without a single advertisement having been published, and as the result of only a few hundred circulars having been sent out, we closed orders for lots in the GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC TOWNSITE aggregating $15,000. A week ago advertisments were inserted in 50 of the Leading Daily News papers of the Dominion, and as a result hundreds of inquiries are being received for information regarding Wainwright. This advertisement will appear to-day in upwards of 50 of the leading papers of Canada, from Halifax to Vancouver. Those who wish to secure good lots should not wait to ask for information, but wire at our expense instructions to reserve one or more lots, stating price. We will immediately confirm the order by wire giving numbers of best lots available at the price. Remittance of at least one-tenth the purchase price should be forwarded immediately on receiving our confirmation of the purchase in order to insure that the lots will be reserved for you. This is a rare opportunity to buy at a low price property that will increase rapidly in value as the town grows. It is an opportunity that will not wait. Take advantage of it by wiring your reservation of lots TO-DAY.

Building For The Future

Confident that the population of the town will increase rapidly in the future as it has in the past, the people of Wainwright are building for the future, rather than for the present. The Town Council, in planning public improvements, keeps the future growth of the town constantly in view. Wainwright was the first town on the G. T. P. between Saskatoon and Edmonton to put down cement sidewalks. It now has half a mile of cement sidewalk in the business section. It is now just completing one of the finest and most expensive public school buildings in any of the new towns between Winnipeg and Edmonton—a two story, basement and attic brick building containg four class rooms, two music and chemical rooms, a teachers' room, and two large indoor playrooms for the pupils, the whole costing $18,000. The school grounds occupy one entire block, 300 by 600 feet.

A sidewalk has just been completed from the business section to the school at a cost of $1,500. The Town Council recently appropriated $2,000 for the construction of four fire cisterns each 10 feet square and 30 feet deep, to be filled with water for fire protection. The Council is now planning to build a Town Hall and Fire Headquarters to cost $15,000 to $20,000. It is also planned to build a large rink for indoor ice skating and for hockey and curling matches.

Wainwright doesn't do anything by halves. The citizens believe in the town's future and in making provision for it. Certainly the town's growth in the past and the influences back of it justify their faith in it.

Recent additions to the herd of buffalo in the National Buffalo Park at Wainwright have brought the total number in the herd up to upwards of 900. Of these 150 are calves born in 1910. There are still about 50 head on the Pablo Ranch in Montana, remnant of the herd purchased by the Dominion Government. They include 35 "outlaw" bulls which it has been impossible so fat to round up. Another roundup will be made in the near future, and as many of the remnant of the herd as possible will be captured and shipped to Wainwright. The rest will be run down and killed for their heads and hides. A buffalo head, mounted, is valued at $600, and a good buffalo robe is valued at $150. A number of sportsmen, including Mayor Pawling and L. Forster of Wainwright, will go to Montana to participate in this last buffalo hunt on the continent. Each of the hunters will pay $250 for the privilege of assisting in running down the "outlaws."

Howard Douglas, Government Commissioner of Parks, who superintended the removal of the Buffalo from Montana to Wainwright, recently predicted that Wainwright would continue to grow rapidly in population. The Dominion Government, he said, would advertise the town through its National Buffalo Park, which would attract many people to Wainwright.

How Money is Made in Town Lots

A couple of weeks ago we sold three lots in Wainwright to a Winnipeg barber for $200 each—one-tenth cash and the remainder in nine monthly payments without interest. Since then the Town Council has planned to build a $15,000 to $20,000 Town Hall on the same street and within a block of these lots. The building of this Town Hall will add at least 50 per cent. to the value of the three lots. It is safe to say that the owner will be able to realize a profit of 50 to 100 per cent. on these lots before he has completed his payments on them. As he does not pay any interest on the deferred payments, and will not have to pay any taxes on the lots until 1912, it is easy to figure that he has made an exceptionally good investment. But if he had waited a few weeks he would have lost this opportunity for big profit, because if we had those lots for sale now we would not sell them at $200.

Every day counts in these growing Western Canada towns. New industries are being established, public improvements are being planned and something is happening every day that adds to the value of real estate. The time to buy is NOW—TO-DAY. To-morrow the lot which you can buy to-day for $100 to $150 may be worth 50 to 100 per cent. more. You cannot make a mistake by investing in Grand Trunk Pacific lots in Wainwright. They are in the section of the town which, because of its location will be most popular. They are high and level, overlooking the business section and the railroad yards, and convenient to school and churches, and within a few minutes walk of the business centre. Sidewalks have been constructed and streets graded right up to the sub-division. Wainwright is one of the leading Divisional Points on the main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific; has National Buffalo Park; has immediately tributary to it one of the richest farming districts in the Dominion; and is already a wholesale distributing centre of importance. It is bound to continue to be the leading town between Saskatoon and Edmonton. As it grows in population real estate values will advance. Now is the time, and Wainwright is the place to invest for big, quick profits.

GIRL SWINGS A CAN OF DEADLY NITRO-GLYCERINE

Scares Workmen Who Were So Unnerved That They Had to Quit Work for the Day—Catastrophe is Averted by Coolness of Her Father.

Examiner Special.

WASHINGTON, PA., NOV. 10.—Thinking she was carrying water, a little child tripped along a path on the Cameron farm, in Washington county, this morning, burdened with enough nitro-glycerine to demolish a city block, while a gang of seasoned well-shooters quaked with fear. So unnerved were the latter that they refused to work any longer.

The men had gone to the Cameron farm from Steubenville, O., to shoot a well, which had been drilled by oil prospectors. It was so told this morning that the nitro-glycerine, which had been taken to the farm in two-quart cans frose, and it was necessary to thaw it out before it could be used.

A barrel of hot water was placed near the farmhouse, and after opening the tins carefully the shooters placed them in the water, several cans at a time, and then carried the explosive to the container at the well, two cans at a time.

Mildred Anderson, aged 11, had gone to the farm to watch her father, John Anderson, who is interested in the well, and she thought the men were carrying water. "I'll help you carry it," she called, as she noticed the workmen lagging and thought they were tired.

Snatching up two cans, or four quarts, of the deadly liquid, she skipped toward the well, carelessly swinging the nitro-glycerine. The half dozen men in the gang stood transfixed 100 yards away, fearing to move or shout lest they frighten the child and make her drop the cans.

The path was rough, covered by stones, and a heavy frost lay on the ground. The lips of some of the men were white, when John Anderson called softly:

"Just set the cans down, Mildred. Be careful, don't spill any of the water."

The little girl carefully set the cans on the ground and then went over to inspect the well where she had played while the drillers were at work. The nitro-glycerine was taken to a place of safety while the men tried to recover their nerve.

Had the child stumbled, slipped or dropped the cans from her frosted fingers the death of every person at the well would have inevitably resulted.

"Aren't you going to carry any mor ewater?" asked Mildred when she noticed that none of the men made a movement to resume operations.

A big shooter, who had travelled through every oil field in the East, grimly responded, "No, I think we've done enough work to-day. We'll lay off now. How about that, boys?"

Despite the assurance of Anderson that he would take his daughter away from the well and would guard her himself while it was being shot, the nerve-wrecked men refused to go to work and left the nitro-glycerine at the farm, saying they might return on Wednesday to finish the work. They said it would be foolhardy to attempt to finish the job, because not a man in the gang felt sure that he could carry nitro-glycerine even a few feet, their nerves were so unstrung by the incident.

OPPORTUNITIES FOR THE BOY SCOUTS IN THE CITY AS WELL AS IN THE COUNTRY

Should Obey the Scout Law and Do a Kind Act Each Day—How They May Develop Their Powers of Observation.

SOME GOOD ADVICE

(By C. L. Gilman.)

Scouting isn't something just for Saturdays and other holidays when you can get out into the open. You can be a scout, and a good one, even if you can't get out of town at all.

It's in town that you will get the most chances to live up to the scout law which says you must do a good turn every day. This is a mighty important part of scouting. Scouting is worth while, you know, because it makes a chap a better fellow all around.

In olden times, when laws were poorly enforced and the strong were free to abuse and rob the weak about as they pleased—and they pleased a whole lot—they had a kind of scouts called "knights errant." These knights were bound by the laws of chivalry, which weren't much different from those you have promised to keep as a boy scout.

They were prepared to redress the wrongs of the weak people who appealed to them for help. Their specialty was fighting, and they were dandies at it. To-day there is not so much need of fighting, but there are lots of things which the knights errant never dreamed of to take its place.

Doing "good turns" is just a form of knight errantry. Every boy scout should tie a knot in his necktie every morning and keep it there as a reminder until he has done somebody a "good turn." If when night comes you find you still have a knot in your tie, it's up to you to put in two knots the next morning and hustle out to do the two good turns they call for.

There is nothing in the rules of scouting to keep you from doing any number of good turns in a day, but you mustn't do less than one.

A good turn is just a simple act of kindness, such as giving up your seat on a street car to a tired woman or an old man, directing a stranger on his way, or any one of hundreds of little kind and decent things you will find waiting for you to do if you will look for them, just as the knights errant looked for fights to be fought for the oppressed and wronged.

Besides this doing of good turns, the town offers you dozens of chances to practise observation.

Look into a shop window for one minute and turn away and see how many articles displayed there you can remember and name.

The practice you gain doing this will stand you well in country scouting also. The oftener you try it the more articles you will be able to remember.

Notice people—notice how much of this scout game consists of noticing things—and learn to distinguish men of different trades by the tools they carry and the clothes they wear.

Painters, plasterers and carpenters are easy to spot. They are named to call your attention to how you should go about identifying people.

I might go on and give you a lot of rules for identifying men of different trades and professions. You might learn from them how to tell a doctor from an army officer and a preacher from a newspaper man, but you wouldn't have learned to use your eyes, which is the most important thing to learn.

Bear in mind that a scout, above everything else, is a fellow who sees things, and that you have fallen down pretty hard if some outsider with you notices anything before you do.

Scouts are also expected to know how to find their way about, whether in the town or in the open. It's up to you to learn the location of all the important points in your city and the quickest way to reach them, the names of the main streets and their location, and the general system of street and house numbers. Then you will be in shape to render many good services by directing others.

Learn where and how to call a policeman—an ambulance—the fire department. This will enable you to be useful in some of the sudden emergencies which are always springing up. It is well also to have the nearest doctors and drug stores spotted, for you may some day want to summon a doctor or secure medicine quickly.

The whole rule for this is to observe and remember. Never let a day pass without setting down at least one new fact about the town in which you live, in your memory.

Don't always travel by the same routes or hang around the same neighborhoods. Start out with a companion to explore your own town. It's pretty certain that you won't get five blocks from home without discovering something interesting or important that you never noticed before.

In this town scouting you will find the most chances to work out these three scout laws: A scout's duty is to be useful and to help others; a scout is a friend to all; a scout is courteous.

Just run over the scout law.

Not a thing in it telling you not to do anything, is there?

All about doing something, isn't it?

Very well, then, scouts, get busy!

A GREAT FIGHTER

An Incident in the Career of General Hills-Johnes

General Sir James Hills-Johnes had only been in the Bengal Artillery four years when he won the coveted V.C. in the Indian Mutiny, in 1857, at the age of twenty-four. He was in charge of a cavalry picket outside Delhi when a large body of Sowars suddenly dashed from the city. To save his guns, Lieutenant Hills actually charged the enemy alone, thinking that the diversion he would cause would give his gunners time to load. For the next few minutes he had a very lively time indeed, for he was pursued like a pack of hare-and-hound fiends from the end of the station to the old crumbling days. Two men did the young officer put out of action one after the other, but no matter was he rid of these opponents than he was charged by two more, and he and his horse were cut down. However, he kept on dodging till he could get treated out of his head and then he pounced with his first, being overjoyed to escape from certain death by the [illegible] Hills-Johnes [illegible] of V.C.s on that memorable day.

Germany is Believed to be Making Elaborate Plans for Her Welfare in Case of War

European diplomats are busily discussing the German Emperor's recent visit to Brussels. It is the concensus of opinion among the old world statesmen that this trip of the Kaiser's is nothing but a part and parcel of an astute diplomatic measure to bring about closer relations with Germany, and, further, that this plan is part of a larger scheme to form a ring of countries closely allied with the Kaiser's government. Expressed in business terms, the Kaiser is out to form a big International Trust, of which he shall be the president and Germany the most important member. German foreign policy in Europe is based on this underlying idea of creating a German hegemony. This development of German ambitions is the cause of the tension which has sprung up in recent years between Great Britain and Germany, and which has sometimes threatened to produce grave consequences.

German statesmen believe that Great Britain has long been trying to create an iron ring of allies and friendships whereby the Kaiser shall be enclosed within an iron grip which will hold him so tightly that he will be at the mercy of the predominant British. Great Britain's entente with France, the supplementary Anglo-Russian agreement, the alliance existing between England on the one side and Spain and Portugal on the other side, are all regarded in Berlin as so many links in the chain which Britain is endeavoring to forge for the purpose of paralysing the movements of her German rival.

Great Britain's alleged repeated attempts to split up the Triple Alliance, consisting of Germany, Austria and Italy, in order to detach Austria and Italy from Germany, and to add them to the growing number of England's own friends and allies, are considered by German politicians to be additional "proofs" of the whole trend of British policy. Germany, on her side, is first of all trying to prevent Britain from carrying out this programme of isolating herself, and, secondly, is trying to create an anti-British combination of powers. Germany hopes to turn the tables on England, to split up the Anglo-Russian entente to sow discord between Great Britain and Russia, and to become herself the centre of a Continental syndicate of countries.

Belgium would play an extremely important part in any conflict between Germany on the one side and Great Britain and France on the other side. Supposing there were war between Great Britain and Germany, the Kaiser's troops would immediately invade France for the purpose of striking a deadly blow at England's nearest friend. But an invasion of France would not be carried out by a frontal attack, because the border line dividing France from Germany is very strongly fortified, but by a turning movement in the course of which the German army would march through Belgian territory and invade France by way of her northern frontiers, which are far less efficiently fortified.

It is obvious that the utilisation of Belgium for the purpose of war against England and France would be greatly facilitated if it took place with the assent of the Belgian Government and with the support of the Belgian people. Belgium has only a small army, but if this were mobilised to defend Leopold's neutrality, even against so powerful a foe as Germany, it could hamper and interrupt the free progress of the Kaiser's legions. The German army's lines of communication would be exposed to dangers, and difficulties would be experienced in supplying such vast numbers of men with the necessary provisions.

All these difficulties would disappear at one stroke if Belgium were Germany's ally, and if the Belgian people regarded the march of German troops through their country with sympathy instead of with hostility.

This is the ultimate aim which Germany has in view in seeking to forge a new chain of friendship with Belgium. There is no intention whatever on the part of Germany to annex Belgium or to conquer with Belgian independence, but merely to gain a small but valuable assistant for the possible future conflict with Great Britain. In the same way and for similar purposes Germany will seek alliances [illegible] and Roumania, both of which [illegible] as valuable [illegible] allied in the final struggle for supremacy between Germany and Great Britain, which many robust German patriots unhappily believe to be inevitable.

THE MONGOLS PASSING

A correspondent of the great Russian newspaper, Novoe Vremya, writing from Kharbin, calls attention to the rapid development of Chinese colonisation in Mongolia. A great wave of colonisation, he says, has moved up from Southern and Central China to the thinly-populated regions of North-Eastern Mongolia, covering the best land in the principalities of Bovan, Darkhanvan, Southern Gorlos, Jasektu, Tushegum, and Jaffait—an immense region—and has begun to spread out over the principalities of Tushetuvan, Durbet and Northern Gorlos.

EMULATES WELLMAN

Herr Joseph Brucker, a German journalist, is busily fitting out an expedition at Munich for a westbound airship "dash" across the Atlantic. He declares that his preparations are well under way, and that he expects to sally forth in his craft, christened "Suchard," during the full-moon week of February, 1911. The start will be made from Cape Verde.

EARL OF LEITRIM

He Offers Every Encouragement to His Tenants

The Earl of Leitrim has always taken a deep personal interest in the management and improvement of his estate in Donegal, which covers 52,000 acres. He offers every encouragement to his tenants to avail themselves of the Land Purchase Acts, and to become owners of the land they till. Lord Leitrim, who is one of the largest landowners in the North of Ireland, is great-nephew to the third Earl, whose murder on his own estate caused so profound a sensation about thirty years ago. He succeeded to the title when a boy of thirteen. The Earl fought in South Africa with the Irish Yeomanry, and celebrated his majority in the Boer prison at Nootgedacht.

You Can See How it Heals

No Question or Doubt as to the healing power of

Dr. Chase's Ointment

To people who have used internal treatment in an effort to cure eczema it is almost beyond belief what benefit can be obtained by a few applications of this soothing, healing ointment.

It is seldom that the cause of eczema can be determined, but one thing is certain, the itching must be stoped and the sores healed up.

These results are secured by the use of Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment. The itching is relieved almost instantly, and you will be surprised at the healing which will take place overnight.

A little patience and persistent treatment with Dr. Chase's Ointment will give you the most practical and definite results than a whole box of doctor's internal medicines. You can see how the Ointment heals. The other is guesswork.

Mr. Geo. Peterson, South Bay, Ont., writes: "I wish to communicate to you the great benefit I received from using Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment. For years I suffered with a great skin disease on my head, a sort of eczema. I tried four doctors, giving each a fair trial; but got no better. In fact, the disease spread to my left arm.

"I saw Dr. Chase's Ointment advertised and began using it. Persistent use of this treatment has entirely cured me, and I give you a statement of my case with pleasure, as I hope thereby to induce some other sufferer to try the same Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Because this ointment has made its world-wide reputation by curing the most severe and long-standing cases of eczema and piles is no reason why you should overlook its scores of cures in the relief of itching and irritation of the skin.

PETERBOROUGH SATURDAY NOVEMBER 12 1910

PETERBOROUGH HAS FAILED TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF HER POWER POSSIBILITIES

Good Opportunities in the Past Have Been Allowed to Escape—Correspondent Shows Where Mistakes Have Been Made and Points Out the Need of Action at Once if the Errors are to be Remedied.

A TIMELY COMMUNICATION

Dear Sir,—By far the greatest problem confronting the people of Peterborough to-day is that of electric power. New railways may be run through the city, the Trent Canal may be built, the city may be beautified, but if Peterborough has not a supply of electrical power to offer manufacturers, at reasonable rates, as well as to supply the demand for domestic uses, it will find itself confronted with difficulties that will prove to be a severe handicap in its general progress and development.

This is a matter that must be faced fairly and squarely. Action must be taken without delay; otherwise the city will lose its few remaining chances at securing for itself and its people, power that will be the most important factor in its development, and will be at the mercy of one of two private concerns, that are to-day developing, and are preparing to further develop electrical energy along the route of the Trent Canal.

That the city of Peterborough has been in the past shockingly slow, and stupidly timid in respect of securing water power privileges along the Trent Canal, is apparent to anyone who has given the matter the slightest degree of thought. That the average business man, manufacturer, or citizen generally, of Peterborough desires that this happy-go-easy, trust-to-Providence policy shall continue any longer is inconceivable.

There was not, as a matter of fact, a city, town or village, from Balsam Lake to Trenton, that was in a better position than Peterborough to secure for itself water power for electrical development. We were located at a point on the system, where we were in close touch, or had we desired could have been in close touch, with everything that was going on; in a position that, had we taken advantage of it, we could have secured more information than most towns as to the value of various powers, their probable cost of development, and the best methods and opportunities of securing them. But we took no advantage of these opportunities, and made no effort to secure for ourselves a proportion of the immense wealth that has for years been lying undeveloped so near our doors.

At various times during the past ten years exceedingly attractive propositions have been made to the city, by owners of water powers on the Trent Canal, whereby the city might have secured for itself electrical energy to supply the requirements of Peterborough for many years to come, as well as be in a position to offer power for sale to other municipalities. Nothing was done in the matter. These propositions were glanced over in a most perfunctory manner, or treated with supercilious indifference, and turned down with the declaration that the price was too high.

This line of policy, this deplorable negligence, and lack of business enterprise, on the part of Peterborough, has become alarming, and a few, at least, of the citizens are now realising that the city is fast getting into a serious position.

To-day the great majority of the dams on the Trent Canal are owned by private persons, or persons represented by certain joint stock companies. Practically all the power between Hastings and Trenton, including the magnificent power at Healey's Falls, is controlled by the Seymour Power Company. This company also owns, as is well known, the Auburn Power at Peterborough, which could have been secured by this city at a much lower figure by many thousands than it is reported the Seymour Power Company paid for it. It is, therefore, quite apparent that these private companies are securing every dam that is of any value that may be on the market.

If the Auburn dam was worth $130,000 to the Seymour Power Company, why should it not have looked doubly attractive to the city of Peterborough at $75,000? This is but a sample of the stupidity that the people of Peterborough have shown in their power policy. It is a simple fact that the Auburn power was offered to the city for $75,000 and turned down, only to be at once taken up by a private company at $130,000. And, as is well known, this is not the only occasion that the town has turned down a good sound business proposition. A short time ago—some one or two years ago—the city was offered the Burleigh Falls dam at $120,000, or less. Did the city make any reasonable effort to secure it? They did not. It was too high in price, the city thought. Is the price likely to be much cheaper? Other instances could be cited to illustrate the city's timidity and lack of backbone in dealing with

TAG DAY CAMPAIGN TO-DAY LOOKS LIKE BIG SUCCESS---GIRLS DOING WORK THOROUGHLY

Few People Had a Chance to Escape the Canvassers and a Substantial Sum for the Children's Aid Society Will be Realized.

WEATHER WAS PERFECT

That the tag day campaign of the Children's Aid Society will be a gigantic success is as certain as the fact that the sun was shining this morning. The weather man seemed to favour the project and handed out a bright, sunshiny day, with a sparkle in the air that made one feel good and in a giving mood. Had the campaign been conducted on a day like Thursday, even the most charitable man would have been too gloomy to open his pocket book.

The organization of the hundred and fifty tag girls had been carefully planned and the system worked splendidly this morning. All of the main thoroughfares leading down to the business section were systematically patrolled by eager girls and a few got away from the fair "taggers." It speaks well for the efficiency of the system when it is stated that not one of the Examiner staff got down to the office without being tagged.

Even one tag did not save you.

"Buy a tag, won't you?" one of the girls would plead.

"Oh, you're too late, I have one already,' the "tagee' would answer.

"Well you're big enough to wear two,' the reply came back, and sometimes the argument was successful and the man would go away with tag No. 2.

The girls were everywhere in the business section this morning and there was no chance to escape. Every man, woman or child that came along was halted and very few went on without exchanging some coin of the realm for a tag. Even the horses did not escape. The girls held up every rig that came along and the drivers were made to purchase rosettes for their faithful steeds.

Down at the corner of Charlotte and George street at 9.30 this morning a coterie of girls were carrying on an aggressive campaign when an Examiner man happened along. Every street car man was forced to buy a rosette for his car and if they were not in evidence on the next trip the girls boarded the car and insisted upon seeing the rosette or selling another "How do things look?" the newspaper man found time to ask one of the girls."

"Oh, we are doing splendidly,' was the reply. "Hardly any one refuses to buy and I have got several dollar bills already. We caught some of the men in the hotels at breakfast and they gave freely. Excuse me. Here's a man that's got to buy a rosette," and she darted out into the road and stopped a passing vehicle while she explained her mission to the man behind the reins.

Headquarters had been arranged in different sections of the city, where the ladies in charge heard reports and gave instructions to the girls.

Every train was met by the tag girls and the travellers had hardly time to get both feet upon the station platform before they were besieged. Most of them responded to the appeal as soon as the object of the campaign was explained.

THE NEW WHOLESALE HARDWARE

The above is a reproduction of the handsome new wholesale house of the Peterborough Hardware Company, recently erected to the south of the T. Kinnear wholesale grocery on George street. The building has been finished with an attractive front, and is a great improvement to this part of the main thoroughfare. It is three storeys in height and immediately to the rear of it, is situated the iron building. Peterborough is fast becoming a centre for wholesale houses, and the widening and growth of the business of this enterprising firm has warranted the extension, in the way of this large and spacious building. The wholesale end of the business will be done entirely from the new quarters, the up-town store being devoted entirely to the retail. The company expect to be occupying their new premises by the first of the month, and this increase in accommodation will mean the employment of several more men.

The Peterborough Hardware Company was incorporated as a wholesale and retail hardware firm in 1893, with the late R. B. McKee as president. The late Mr. McKee was succeeded by Mr. Vincent Eastwood, now manager of the Royal Bank., and the latter was followed by Mr. Harry Morgan, who at present holds that office. The wholesale end of the business is carried on, within a radius of fifty miles of Peterborough, and two travellers are being put on the road, in the interests of the company.

Millionaire Takes a Relapse and His Death is Hourly Expected---Wife Who is Supposed to Have Been Implicated in His Death Was a Former Domestic.

Special Wire to The Examiner.

WHEELING, WEST VA., NOV. 12.—John Schenk, the millionaire pork manufacturer, for whose poisoning his wife is in the police cells, took a relapse to-day, and his death is hourly expected. Mrs. Schenk's name is coupled with those of prominent physicians and a packing house clerk in town gossip. Twelve years ago she was a domestic in Schenk's kitchen. Since her marriage she aspired to high society, but old Virginian exclusiveness kept her down, and her husband's wealth could not make people forget she was "Poor white trash." Mrs. Schenk's cell at the jail is beautifully furnished, just like her own rooms at home. She sleeps and eats well, and whiles away the time playing solitaire.

SAYS BRITISH LIBERALS ARE AIDED BY AMERICAN GOLD

Special Wire to the Examiner.

LONDON, ENG., NOV. 12.—In a powerful editorial to-day the Daily Mail hints that if the Liberals are strong enough to control the situation in Great Britain they do it with the assistance of American gold, namely the financial backing collected recently by John Redmond in the United States and Canada. "England should realize," says the Mail, "the humiliating truth that America bids her change her constitution. If the House of Lords is abolished, abolition will be bought by foreign gold." This indicates that the Conservatives anticipate the Liberals to precipitate another campaign by resigning as soon as Parliament reassembles, and appealing to the people on the direct issue of the abolition of the House of Lords, or of curtailing their veto powers.

PLAINTIFF GOT ONLY THIRD OF DAMAGES CLAIMED

In the report published in the Examiner several days ago concerning the recent Division Court case of Moore vs. Lane, there were several errors which are apt to leave to leave a wrong impression. The report stated that the plaintiff, Mr. Moore, had received the damages asked for, while as a matter of fact he was awarded not quite a third of the sum claimed. It was also stated that Mr. Lane was a tenant of Mr. Moore's, which was incorrect, as Mr. Lane had owned the property in question for eight years.

Change in the Orders Said to Have Been Responsible For Accident —Men in the Mix-up Jumped but Two Were Hurt—Lindsay Men Were Injured—It Might Have Been a Great Deal More Serious.

CARS WERE DAMAGED

Lindsay, Nov. 11.—What might have been a most serious accident occurred at Victoria Harbour Station last night, when engines Nos. 270 and 2016 collided head on with engine No. 2227.

The double header, loaded with 23 cars of grain was bound for Orillia in charge of Conductor Steele of Allandale, and Engineer W. Fee, of Lindsay, with Fireman W. O'Brien, on the first engine and Engineer B. McNeish, with Fireman A. Wood on the second engine. The single train was the Allandale way freight bound for Midland in charge of Conductor Dudley, of Allandale, and Engineer Moiron.

The way freight was standing at the station when the grain train came around the curve. Engineer Fee applied the brakes and both the engine crews jumped.

Brakeman Lockard, who was riding on the second engine, had three ribs broken and a scalp wound.

Engineer B. McNeish received a sprained knee and had his back hurt. Mr. Lockard was taken to a boarding house at Victoria Harbour, and McNeish came home.

The three engines and first car of the double header were all that were broken of the two trains. The double header arrived in Lindsay this morning.

The cause of the accident was in the changing of orders. It is understood that the two trains were to cross at Waubaushene, but the way freight received new orders to cross at Victoria Harbor. These were not received by the double-header crew and consequently they were not expecting to meet the train at the station.

CHARITY BEGINS AT HOME.

Mr. J. J. Kelso, head of the Department of Neglected and Dependent Children — Children's Aid Society — speaking at Napanee, laid his finger on a very sore spot in our provincial life. He referred to the neglected and wretched condition, both physical and moral, of men, women and children, in the back townships of Ontario, all along the line from east to west. We know from the records of our courts that conditions in the back country are deplorable, the nameless things, indicative of moral degeneracy, come from the back townships. Why? Simply because they are neglected by those who have responsibility. With Christianity regarded as a civilizing influence, they are deprived of its rites. They live isolated lives, a law unto themselves, not exposed to any good influences, no churches, no church service nor religious conditions conducive to moral culture. Yet we have in this blessed city sixteen or seventeen churches, and a demand is levied upon them for thousands of dollars for "foreign missions." We know one church, and that not the largest, that is called upon to raise $1,000 for foreign missions. Is there any sense, is there, even, any morality, in such a policy? A man would be considered, and would be, a sorry rogue who would avoid payment of his just debts in order to have money to devote to the most righteous cause. It is the impudence of inconsistency for us to assume that we are better than the heathens, when we neglect the heathens at home, when we practically encourage the begetting of other heathens, by neglecting the home mission field. Many of the neglected and heathenised children which the Children's Aid Society — a splendid missionary movement — works to rescue, come from the church-neglected places in city and country. We should not need to have the hurly-burly of a Children's Aid tag day if the churches did their duty in regard to home mission work; there would be fewer, neglected, ill-trained, half starved children to rescue. Foreign missions are not to be disparaged; but their foundation should be laid in the home field. Christianize the home land through and through, and there will be found men galore, and also money galore, to promote that is thine own eye, and then shalt thou see clearly to pull out the beam that is in thy brother's eye.

THE PETERBOROUGH POLICY.

In the issue of Saturday, November 5, the Examiner devoted its front page to a series of suggestions, which, in our opinion, if carried into effect, would result in great benefit to the city. So far as is heard there has not been, except in matters of detail, any adverse criticism of them; a fact that goes far to show that the suggestions made commend themselves to civic patriotism, to pride of citizenship, and the spirit of progress that should animate a progressive community.

Peterborough is at the parting of the ways—one way pointing forward and the other backward. If we stand still we practically go backward; if not absolutely then relatively, backward. We are surrounded in the province by civic communities that are forging ahead, and in that sense if we do not also go ahead we go backward.

Some time ago calls were made for a slogan competition. The one adopted was, "Peterborough presents possibilities unparalleled." Is that so? No, emphatically, unless we undertake something, inaugurate some policy that will make, or tend to make, our possibilities, probabilities. We have great possibilities in some directions. We have a surrounding area of country tributary to the city the best in the province; we have splendid transportation facilities, by rail and shall soon have the benefits of water transportation through the completed Trent Valley Canal. What will that mean? It will mean nothing unless we take steps to make it mean something. We all know that the magnet that attracts manufacturing industries is cheap power. How cheap power have we to offer and how much? A city or town that has not cheap power to offer is disqualified in the industrial race, no matter what other advantages can be offered.

What has the city done to secure it? It has simply let the chances, like sunbeams, pass us by. In another column is found a letter upon the question of power for Peterborough. It is far truer than we wish it were. Why have we let these chances escape; why have we permitted power privilege after power privilege to pass into private hands or, at any rate, beyond the city's reach?

Simply, it seems, because for years council after council has contented itself with doing work that any of the city officials might have done as well. Almost the entire efforts of successive councils has been devoted to collecting so much money in the form of taxes, and spending it—too often to mighty poor advantage. There has been no creative policy; only a hand to mouth sort of civic existence. Has any one ever reflected how few of the things of which we have reason to boast, we owe to the energy and initiative, public spirit and business ability of our successive councils?

Peterborough has the finest system of parks of, perhaps, any city of similar size on the continent. Practically every one of them was given to the city. We had a splendid hospital given to us. Our splendid armouries were built for us, and our Public Library is not all built with Peterborough money. While other towns have saddled themselves from cromp to withers, with railway bonus, Peterborough got her railways that radiate in six different directions without a cent of bonus. We got our splendid waterfront for practically nothing, and we didn't pay $50 a foot for our fine property in the market square. About the only thing worth while we paid for was the water works system. In view of how much can to us by way of gift, what have we been doing for ourselves? What are we proposing to do? We should have some high headland of achievement to steer for; some worth-while policy to carry out. All our governments have had some great ideal achievement to work for, to work up to, and work out. The Government of old Canada worked for Confederation and founded a nation. Sir John Macdonald conceived and built the Canadian Pacific Railway. Sir Wilfrid Laurier set his heart upon building the second transcontinental railway—the Grand Trunk Pacific. The Ross Government launched a policy of development that opened up a new province and tapped the wealthy wilds of New Ontario with the first provincial built railway in America, and the Whitney Government has found an outlet for advance administration in its Hydro-Electric policy.

Meanwhile, how far have our city councils strayed from the beaten path of routine administration—collecting money and spending it, except helping secure a few important industries? What new line have they hewed out, what new trail have they blazed? To what extent have they looked ahead? We have some of the essentials of a great manufacturing and commercial centre. But our capacity for supplying the great attraction—cheap power—is pretty well exhausted. And nothing has been done to fill the gap. One has only to read the letter of "Power," in another column of this issue, to see how remiss Peterborough has been in this regard. It is to be hoped there is some chance of redeeming the situation.

The Examiner feels that Peterborough is destined for something better than sitting down and crying over spilt milk. As no one else took the initiative, the Examiner, last Saturday, advanced a dozen or so suggestions of what could and should be done to build up and improve Peterborough. So far as is learned no one has recorded any objection to the principle of the suggestions only in detail; while many of our best citizens heartily endorse them. As mentioned a week ago to-day all these things are not expected to be done in a day; but the principle of them should be adopted, as embodying a Peterborough policy, something to be worked up to and worked out. And they are all sufficiently co-related as to dovetail one into another, in such a way that the accomplishment of one stands to help the accomplishment of another. And every distinct step will be an upward step in making Peterborough, as it can be made, the ideal city, the ideal of a commercial and industrial centre, and the ideal of a place of residence. But this can not be accomplished without a policy, without a plan, any more than a great building or a great bridge can be erected without a plan. If we do not adopt some definite policy, select some point to aim at, we shall be expending our forces in purposeless and profitless endeavour. We must get together, we must work together, and we shall succeed together.

NEW ONTARIO, ITS EXTENT, ITS RESOURCES, POSSIBILITIES

Very interesting to most people will be found the booklet "New Ontario," which has just been issued under the auspices of the Provincial Department of Agriculture. It presents recent facts relative to that part of the province which are deserving of widespread circulation.

A few figures are given regarding the dimension- of New Ontario which will stand repetition. Be it known, then, that it covers an area of 140,000 square miles, or 20,000 square miles larger than the British Isles, and is divided into six great districts —Nipissing, Sudbury, Algoma, Thunder Bay, Rainy River and Kenora.

This territory is largely covered with valuable forests, is rich in minerals, especially silver, nickel, copper and iron; is abundantly watered with lakes and rivers, and has great spaces of fertile soil including the well-known "clay belt." The trees are principally spruce, tamarac, cedar, pine, poplar, birch and balm-of-Gilead, with undergrowth of hemlock, maple, ash and alder. There are great lumbering districts, rich mines of iron, silver and nickel, and the land is easier to clear than that of old Ontario. Grains grow as well and in as great variety as in the older part of the province; wheat has been produced of as good quality as "Manitoba No. 1 Hard," and game and fish are plentiful. The summers are hot and the winters cold, but the dryness of the atmosphere makes the cold less felt.

Railway construction is making rapid progress. The Canadian Pacific Railway, crossing the continent, practically skirts the southern border of this vast territory from east to west, a distance of 1295 miles. The Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway, near the eastern border, runs from North Bay on the C. P. R., northward, through a considerable section of cultivated farming land of fine quality, to Cochrane, a distance of 252 miles. At this point it joins, at right angles, the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway (now in process of construction), which passes westward through the "clay belt," and onward to the Pacific Ocean. The Canadian Northern Railway runs northward through Parry Sound to Gowganda Junction, and west from Port Arthur through the districts of Thunder Bay and Rainy River. A branch line of the C. P. R. runs southwest from Sudbury through the districts of Sudbury and Algoma, a distance of 180 miles, to the town of Sault Ste Marie, whence the Algoma Central runs northward toward the C. P. R., while a branch of the G. T. P. passes through Port Arthur northwestward through the districts of Thunder Bay and Kenora to the main line running west to the Pacific Ocean. There are nearly 1,000 miles of railway in the Thunder Bay and Rainy River districts. The above means of access is something which ought to make New Ontario attractive to the people of older Ontario. It takes but a comparatively short time to travel from Southern Ontario northward into the District of Nipissing, past Cobalt, New Liskeard, and Englehart, on through Matheson to Cochrane in the fertile clay belt. The distance from Toronto to Cochrane, where the Ontario Government Railroad joins the Grand Trunk Pacific, is less than 500 miles, and it will scarcely be believed by those who ignorantly contrast the prairie with Northern Ontario that the Grand Trunk Pacific line at that northern point is on the same parallel of latitude as the southern boundary of Manitoba. The beginning of a strong settlement has been made at Cochrane, and with the influx of a large population for railway construction a good market for farm produce is assured. That region westward, along the line of the G. T. P. for 400 or 500 miles, will probably be one of the best agricultural sections of Ontario.

So recently as six years ago there were but 2,000 people in Temiskaming, while now there are between 50,000 and 60,000. Englehart, a divisional point of the T. and N. O. Railway, is 25 miles north of New Liskeard; only four years old, it has a population of about 800, and is a promising agricultural centre. Westward, at the terminus of the branch line of the T. and N. O. from Englehart, is Charlton, a thriving village at the foot of Long Lake. New Liskeard, on the T. and N. O. at the head of Lake Temiskaming, is 113 miles north of North Bay, and 340 miles north of Toronto; its population is 3,000, it has several important industries, and is in the midst of a large, well-settled agricultural district. Haileybury, five miles to the south, is an attractive residential town, with a population of 4,000. Cobalt, four or five miles farther south, has world-wide fame for its deposits of silver being one of the most important mineral deposits discovered in the last 40 years. Population 5500. And so the story goes on, similar reports being received from every section of New Ontario. The common expressions are "Pleased with Prospects," "Well satisfied", "Well pleased with country," "Well satisfied with prospects," and so on.

So well settled and prosperous are some of the townships now that they resemble portions of older Ontario. Perhaps in no part of the province can the farmer find a quicker or more profitable market for his produce; lumbering operations, mining development, and the uprise of towns making an immediate outlet for everything and a demand that cannot always be supplied. For an intending settler, with little or no capital, it is a weighty consideration that he can have plenty of work at remunerative wages enabling him to live while clearing and preparing his land.

Regarding a trip north through the District of Nipissing as far as Cochrane, the junction of the T. and N. O. Railway with the G.T.P., the following eulogy by Mr. J. W. Johnson, M.P.P., need by no means be strictly confined to that part of Ned Ontario:

I conversed with settlers and with business men at the various points at which the party stopped. Every man with whom I spoke was as enthusiastic about the future of New Ontario, and as optimistic about his own and his children's success as any man that I had ever heard speak of the possibilities of the West.

Ontario has still many millions of acres of excellent crown land to spare. Much of it is free, much of it can be had for 50 cents per acre, and improved farms can be bought on reasonable terms.

WELL PLEASED

The crowds that were at the Grand Opera House last night were delighted with the performance. The Mahlman sisters, in their character song and dance act, are very fine indeed, and London Blume, gymnast, late of the Ringling Bros' circus, is a wonder, and the moving pictures are the best ever seen in Peterborough. Then the Grand Orchestra is a treat to listen to. Be sure and go to the Grand tonight, Saturday, as this is the last night for these acts. Monday night, "This Woman and This Man" Co., one of the latest New York successes, is at the Grand Opera house.

WHY IS GRAMMAR?

Why is grammar? Ain't it awful?
Do or don't it do us good?
Is or isn't it just as lawful
To say Johnnie sawed the wood?
Don't it make it plain what Johnnie
Done? What else could be desired?
Grammar as the schools have teached it,
Always made us pretty tired.

Why is grammar? No one knowed it
When we used to went to school?
Is or ain't our conversation
Best unhampered by a rule?
What's the harm in saying, Willie
Brung the wood in? Ain't it plain,
Willie done it? Whats the good of Being round about and vain?
Why is grammar? Jimmy seen it?
Did he now, or did he not?
What's the use of saying saw it?
Beating all around the lot?
Is the one or is the other
Any better understood?
Put her there, professor. Never.
Did think it was any good.
—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Take a Warning.

"Take warning!" is a motto that should be pasted in large letters on every bottle and can of gasoline that is kept in the house.

This cleaning fluid is as useful as it is dangerous under careless handling. Here are a few precautions which observed will reduce danger to a minimum:

Keep it outdoors when not in use, as in many cases fire insurance is lost if it can be proved that gasoline was on the premises.

Be careful how you clean gloves on the arm. Dreadful accidents have happened in this way.

Never keep the gasoline can near the coal oil can. They look too much alike.

A woman went to light a lamp and discovered that it flamed in a curious way—indeed, shot up almost to the ceiling. It was discovered after that the maid had filled the lamp with oil until one can was exhausted, then had taken the gasoline can which looked exactly like it. A slightly smaller proportion of the oil and great would have been the tragedy.

Do not close a house for the summer with gasoline or coal oil in it, though you may think it is securely put away.

Betray One's Character.

The pictures that hang on the walls of our rooms speak eloquently of us. They are also silent factors in the molding of that part of our characters that is intangible, but necessary to happiness the esthetic side.

When selecting pictures a very important thing to be considered is the framing.

A poorly chosen picture, or a good one unwisely framed and hung will cause more discord than an inharmonious colour. Fortunate indeed is she who starts with nothing worse than bare walls, or a troublesome present or two from some friends who recognise the claims of art, but whose sense of appreciation is limited to colour, likeness and a handsome frame.

SOME RECIPES.
Potatoes and Codfish.

One pint sliced cold potatoes, one-half cup of pickled codfish, one-half cup of cracker crumbs, one-half level teaspoonful of salt, one-eighth level teaspoonful of pepper, one level tablespoonful of flour, one rounded tablespoonful of butter, one and one-half cups of milk. Take a piece of dried codfish and pick small pieces from it until you have enough. Put them into a small basin, cover with cold water and put on the stove. As soon as the water heats throw it away and add fresh water. Do this until the fish is fresh enough. Melt the butter and then add to it the salt, pepper and flour, and blend together until there are no lumps. Scald the milk and then add to the butter and flour. Cook all these ingredients together until smooth and creamy.

Put the codfish in the bottom of a buttered baking tin, then the potatoes and the cream. Sprinkle the cracker crumbs over the top and bake in a quick oven for about fifteen minutes.

Corn in Tomato Cups.

Remove the pulp from a half dozen ears tender corn. Season with salt, pepper, and add one beaten egg and one tablespoonful cream to each cupful. Cut a slice from the stem end of a half dozen tomatoes, scoop out some of the pulp with a teaspoon, dust with pepper and salt and fill with the corn mixture. Cover with bread crumbs, dot with bits of butter, lay in a baking tin and bake in a hot oven until the tomato is soft and lightly browned. Serve on rounds of buttered toast.

Asparagus Loaf.

Cut the crust from the top of a stale loaf of bread and remove the crumbs, leaving only the side and the bottom crusts of the loaf. Set the hollowed loaf in the oven until quite dry. Cut stewed asparagus into inch lengths, season to taste, mix with a good white sauce and fill the hollowed crust and set in the oven until hot.

Grape Juice Sherbet.

Soak two envelopes of gelatine in half a cupful of water. Meanwhile dissolve three cupfuls of sugar in a quart of water. Add grated rind of two oranges and boil seven or eight minutes. Remove from fire. Add soaked gelatine and the juice of three lemons, three oranges and a pint of grape juice; strain; let mixture cool; then freeze and serve in small glasses set on grape leaves.

Banana Ice Cream.

Remove skins from four bananas and scrape, then force through a sieve. To banana pulp add one and one-half tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, a few grains of salt and one quart of thin cream. Freeze, using three parts of finely crushed ice to one part of rock salt, which insures a smooth, fine grained consistency. Serve in glasses and garnish with sections of banana slices and candied cherries.

Practical Ideas For the House.

To keep fruit cakes and plum puddings for months at a time, place them in a granite kettle, baste them well with thick strawberry syrup and then paste two thicknesses of brown paper over the top of the kettle. The syrup imparts a delicious flavour and keeps them moist.

A tempting and original manner of serving the time-honoured pumpkin pie is to bake in individual cases. Just before serving place a ring of currant jelly around the outer surface of the pie next the crust, and a spoonful of whipped cream in the centre. The combination is delicious and very effective in appearance.

A great deal of rust can be prevented by leaving the oven door open after baking until all the moisture has evaporated. When the door is closed immediately after the removal of food steam is confined in the chamber and it turns to moisture that helps to rust out the oven very rapidly.

It is a great mistake to allow oysters to freeze in order to keep them, for by doing so their delicate flavour is injured. Place them in a glass or a stone jar and stand inside the refrigerator, if it contains ice. If not, cover with a cloth and stand in a cool place where they will keep cool without freezing. If they are to be served fried, it will not harm them to put small pieces of ice in the jar with them, but do not do so till ready to bring in if to be served au nature.

MOTHER'S LITTLE TREASURE

What mother does not look upon her baby as a little treasure. What mother would not rather suffer herself than see her precious little one suffer. The well child brings joy to the home—the sick child brings misery, despair and care. But, mothers, there is no need for your baby to be cross and ailing; even during the much dreaded teething time. What baby needs to keep him well is an occasional dose of Baby's Own Tablets. These tablets cure all stomach and bowel troubles; destroy worms and make teething easy. Mrs. Pierre M. Cormier, New Richmond Centre, Que., writes: — "Baby's Own Tablets have been of great benefit to my little one and now he sleeps well and eats well and is happy all the time." The Tablets are sold by all medicine dealers at 25 cents a box, or direct from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

HOME CIRCLE COLUMN

Domestic Life.

We are afraid that our domestic life in this country will not bear looking into. We fear that our houses will not be found to have unity, and to express the best thought. The household, the calling, the friendships of the citizen are not homogeneous. His house ought to show us his honest opinion of what his well-beginning consists in when he rests among his kindred, and forgets all affection, all compliance, and even all exertion of will. He brings home thither, whatever commodities and ornaments have for years allured his pursuit, and his character must soon be in them. But what idea predominates in our houses? Thrift first, then convenience and pleasure. Take off the roofs from street to street, and we shall seldom find the temple of any higher god than Prudence. The progress of domestic living has been in cleanliness, in ventilation, in health, in decorum, in countless means and arts of comfort, in the concentration of all the nullities of every clime in each house. They are arranged for low benefits. The houses of the rich are confectioners' shops, where we get sweetmeats and wine; the houses of the poor are imitations of these to the extent of their ability. With these ends, house-keeping is not beautiful; it cheers and raises neither the husband, the wife nor the child; neither the host, nor the guest; it oppresses women. A house kept to the end of prudence is laborious without joy; a house kept to the end of display is impossible to all but a few women and their success is dearly bought.

Our Mission.

The true mission of this paper in general and this department in particular, in this wonderful age of progress, is to be magnanimous, "with charity toward all, and malice towards none." It speaks the truth boldly for the truth's sake, and cherishes justice as the apple of its eye. It seeks by the prosperity of right principles and right thoughts, to be useful as well as popular, to build up truth and tear down error — in short, to improve and ennoble, as well as to please and entertain mankind.

Unhappy Marriages.

The universal expectation of married people is that their married lives will always be happy ones. Deluded dreamers! They imagine that they are different from other people, and that when they enter the portal of matrimony, love, peace and prosperity will ever be their attendants. Such ones had better by far consider themselves the same as others, but form iron resolutions that will keep them from the dangerous coasts upon which so many have been wrecked and ruined. Unhappy marriages depend upon many causes. Previous to marriage, many try to appear more intellectual, more amiable, or more accommodating than they really are. Depend upon it, that love brought into existence by a moonlight stroll strengthened by deceit and fashionable displays and finally consummated through the influence of intriguing friends, will fade in after life almost as fast as the flowers which compose the bridal wreath.

Some children are more prone to show temper than others, and sometimes on account of qualities which are valuable in themselves. For instance, a child of active temperment, sensitive feeling and eager purpose is more likely to meet with constant jars and ribs than a dull, passive child; and if he is of an open nature, his inward irritation is immediately shown in bursts of passion. If you repress these ebullitions by scolding and punishment you only increase the evil by changing passion into sullkiness. A cheerful ,good-tempered tone of your own, a sympathy with the trouble, whenever the trouble has arisen from no ill-conduct, are the best antidotes; but it would be better still to prevent beforehand, as much as possible all sources of annoyance. Never fear spoiling children by making them happy.

Influence of Lady Friends.

It is better for any man to pass an evening, once or twice a week, in a lady's drawing room, even though the conversation is slow, and you know the daughter's song by heart, than in a club, hotel, or pit of a theatre. All amusements of youth to which virtuous women are not admitted, rely on it, are deleterious in their nature. All men who avoid female society have dull perceptions, and are stupid, or have gross tastes and revolt against what is pure. Your club swaggerers, who are sucking billiard cues all night call female society insipid. Poetry is uninspiring to a yokel; beauty has no charms for a blind man; music does not please a poor beast who does not know one tune from another; but as a true epicure is hardly ever tired of water, sauce and brown bread and butter, we protest we can sit for a long evening talking to a kindly woman about her girl Jane or her boy Frank and enjoy the evening's entertainment. One of the great benefits a man may derive from woman's society is that he is bound to be respectful to her. The habit is of great good, depend upon it. Our education makes us the most eminently selfish men in the world. We fight for ourselves, we yawn for ourselves, we light our pipe and say we won't go out—we prefer ourselves and our ease; and the greatest benefit that comes to a man from a woman's society is, that he has to think of somebody to whom he is bound to be constantly attentive and respectful.

A muddy stream, flowing into one clear and sparkling, for a time rolls along by itself. A little further down they unite, and the whole is impure. So youth, untouched by sin, may for a short time keep its purity in foul company, but a little later and they mingle.

NORMAL SCHOOL PUPILS WERE GUESTS OF TEACHERS

Very Enjoyable At Home Was Held Last Evening—Splendid Crowd Was Present and Affair Was Great Success.

A most enjoyable event in the history of the Normal School took place last night, when the teachers held an At Home for the pupils. Everything which tends to make an evening that nature enjoyable, was there. The only lamentable feature was the scarcity of young men. The boys scored a triumph for once, they had a great chances to choose. A very high-class programme was given, after which slides were shown in the lecture room by Mr. Keys. They were of old country scenery and were much appreciated. After this, refreshments were served and games were played.

Mr. Walker, the principal, presided at the entertainment, and opened the programme by making a neat speech, in which he said that the At Home they were holding was for the purpose of getting the pupils acquainted and not have their acquaintances limited to their own class rooms. He said that they were to join in having a good sociable time, to be like brothers and sisters, but he added that the brother' side of the house was rather small.

The first item was a very pleasing selection by Halpany's orchestra. This was greatly applauded and received an encore.

Following this was a piano solo by Miss McCaw, which was also much appreciated. Mr. Walker, then recited a very amusing selection which caused great laughter and applause from the audience.

A violin solo was very artistically rendered by Dr. Park, and received an encore.

Mr. Downie sang a very appropriate and pleasing solo: "We're British to the Core", and was greeted with loud applause.

The orchestra then played another very pleasing selection, which was followed by a vocal solo: "If I had the World to Give You", by Mr. Harry Quinlan. This number was greatly applauded by the enthusiastic audience.

A reading by Mrs. Pettit was the next item on the programme and was worthy of great applause, which it duly received.

Miss Davies then rendered a vocal solo which was very pleasing and received great applause and an encore.

Following this most excellent programme were the picture slides and the serving of the refreshments.

During the time the refreshments were being served, Halpany's Orchestra supplied excellent music for promenading. After refreshments many games were played, such as "Dusty Old Miller", "Pussy Wants a Corner", and so forth. This was when the social part of the evening came in and a more enjoyable time could not be wished for.

Much credit is due the teachers for the excellent programme they arranged and for the pleasant evening in general, of which they were the instigators. Special mention might also be made of the splendid decorations which added to the brightness of the occasion. The refreshment tables were appropriately decorated as was also the face. On the whole the evening was a most enjoyable one from beginning to end and too much praise cannot be given to those who originated it

By Ruth Cameron

LETTERS FROM A SUCCESSFUL BUSINESS WOMAN TO HER NIECE.
No. 8.

DEAR NIECE JOAN: I have been wondering for the past month just when that letter would come.

So you happened to go down in the elevator together and got to talking, and he said you had better come along to lunch with him and finish the subject, and you made up a little fib about having an errand to do up town, and declined.

And now you are wondering if you were silly and prudish.

No, little girl, you were just as wise and fine and good-commonsensible as I knew my little Joan would be when that phase of a business woman's life presented itself to her.

I suspect St Peter chuckled when he heard that fib, and made haste to jot it down on the credit side of the ledger right under your staying at home last summer so your mother could take that trip.

Dear child, it isn't just from doing a thing like that once that harm comes. It's from doing it the second and third and twentieth time. And the very best way I know to make sure that you won't do a thing the second and third time and so-on times is not to do it the first time.

The going to lunch once in itself wouldn't necessarily be wrong at all. It would be foolish, however, because it might give evil-minded people a chance to suspect harsh things. But it would only be wrong if it became a link in a chain of intimacy and mutual necessity for each other's company that bound you two together.

Can't anyone who is married have any friends of the opposite sex, you say? Yes, but not necessarily friends. The moment anyone of the opposite sex whom you cannot marry becomes necessary for your happiness you are headed straight for a terrible Scylla and Charybdis, with unhappiness on one side and disgrace on the other.

Of course you haven't the faintest idea there would ever be a chain of necessity between you and this man.

I haven't either. I have too much faith in your common sense.

But kindly listen to this extract from one of your letters.

"There is such an interesting man in the department next to ours. He does not have to dictate to me very often, but he is very fond of music and reads the same books that I do and occasionally he comes in to talk things over. He is really much superior to any man I ever met at a dance."

And again:

"Mr. R——, the man I spoke of before, brought me in the last Century, as there was a very interesting article he wanted me to read."

My dear, if you had told me that this man was uncongenial and uninteresting I wouldn't have had any objection to your going to lunch with him.

But these very tastes that attract you to each other, are what should warn you to keep apart.

Now maybe you think I'm foolish, niece, with all this talk about a chain of necessity, but Joan, I've been a business woman fifteen years now, and I've seen a good many cases where that chain weighed heavily enough to drag some pretty strong men and women down into the mire of failure and disgrace.

Believe me dear, the best way to be sure you'll never chafe under such a chain is never to forge the first link.

As ever,
Your fussy, but well-meaning Old Aunt.

BETWEEN $400 AND $500 IS STILL NEEDED FOR CHIMES

During the past week a few more contributions have been handed in, and many old subscriptions paid. The committee strongly desire to place the order at once for unless this be done the chimes cannot be delivered until about the middle of next summer, a full six months being required. All will wish to have the bells installed for coronation or Dominion Day, if at all possible.

If any reasonable encouragement were received during the next few days warranting such action it will be promptly taken out. There is lacking $400 and $500 if the large scheme proposed is to be carried out.

In the interests of this public enterprise it is hoped that citizens who have been holding off will now come forward. Contributions are more valuable now than at any previous time as hoping to hasten the fulfilment of this widely looked for event.

BRIDGENORTH HUNTERS HAVE BEEN SUCCESSFUL

BRIDGENORTH, NOV. 11. The W. B. Kelly Lumber Company expect to commence operations next week in the township of Harvey.

Mr. Charles White is enlarging his dwelling-house and putting in a cement foundation.

Mr. R. & W. Hurd has purchased a cedar swamp on the 2nd line of Emily and expects to commence cutting in a few days.

Mr. Adam McWilliams had quite a few of his hens stolen one night. The hen house was locked but the pilferers succeeded in breaking the window and satisfied their desires. There are also other reports of a similar nature, in which large quantities have been taken. It seems some persons are making a business of it, and that a horse and rig are used to take them away.

Two of the hunting parties have returned to the village. One of the parties did not have very good luck. But the Albert Nichols party got their one deer a-piece. Albert brought home one of the largest bucks that was ever taken out of the back country. The Grant and Jopling party is expected home next week. It is rumoured that they have five fine deer.

WEDDING BELLS

DAWSON—FISHER.

The social event of the season took place on Wednesday, October 19th 1910, at "Lakeview," South Monaghan, the home of the bride's parents, when Mr. Edmund C. L. Dawson, only son of Mr George Dawson, of Bailieboro, was united in marriage to Julia Pearl Fisher, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fisher, of Bensfort.

The Rev. F. White, of Frazerville, performed the marriage ceremony at 12 o'clock, in the beautifully decorated drawing-room.

The bride, who was given away be her father, looked very beautiful in a Princess robe of ivory duchess satin, with train, and tulle veil. The orange blossoms worn were those worn by the bride's mother on her wedding day. The bride carried a lovely shower bouquet of white roses, lily of the valley, and maiden hair fern. The young couple were unattended. Little Lillian Finnie, acting as flower girl, looked very pretty in pink silk, and carried a lovely basket of roses and carnations.

Lohengrin's "Wedding March" was played by Miss Mamie Fisher, of Frazerville, a cousin of the bride, and while the register was being signed Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" was rendered very sweetly.

After congratulations and best wishes, about one hundred guests adjourned to the dining-room, which was beautifully decorated with roses, chrysanthemums and smilax, and partook of a sumptuous wedding repast, served by Coleman Bros., caterers, of Peterboro.

The happy couple drove to Peterboro, where they took the 4.38 C. P. R. train for Winnipeg. They will spend two months touring the West, visiting at Sourie, Banff, Calgary, and other Western cities.

The groom's present to the bride was a beautiful sunburst of pearls, to the flower girl a pearl ring, and to the pianist a gold brooch set with pearls.

The beautiful presents which the young couple receive were very costly and useful. The bride's father gave her one hundred dollars in gold, and her mother's present was a beautiful set of sable furs. Guests were present from Toronto, Peterboro, St. Mary's, Nestleton, Port Hope, Millbrook, Belleville and Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Dawson will be at home to their friends after the New Year.

The bride and groom were two of the best known young people in the community, the bride being for years an active member in the Bensfort Methodist choir and church, and their many friends unite in wishing them a very happy married life.

DON'T STAY FAT

This is fashion's decree as well as the general verdict of humanity in general. Fatness is despised by everyone—fat people most of all. You must be thin to be popular, attractive, comfortable or contented. How to accomplish this much desired end without danger to health or resulting wrinkles or flabbiness was an unanswered question until the discovery of the famous Marmola Prescription. Now that this method has proved to be absolutely harmless, and the same formula is put up in the form of Marmola Prescription Tablets, thousands of men and women are reducing to natural symmetry at the rate of a pound or more a day, and are in better health and spirits from the change. This method of reduction is no hardship on the smallest purse, as all druggists sell a large case of Marmola Prescription Tablets for 75c, or the Marmola Prescription Tablets, Detroit, Mich., will mail a full case for the same amount.

LITERARY SOCIETY

A very successful meeting of the Literary Society was held in the Assembly Hall of the Normal School on Friday, November 4th.

After the minutes of the preceding meeting had been read and adopted and some business about a school picture had been transacted the following enjoyable programme was given by the members of the staff and society.

Piano Solo—Miss Ida Graham.
Speech — "Experiences while deer hunting near Denby", Mr Wagar.
Violin Solo—"Blumelied"—Miss Flavelle.
Address — "Impressions of an Inspector"—Mr. Chisholm.
Vocal Solo—Mr. Rickaby.
Essay—"Woodland Tragedy" — Miss Hinman.
Recitation—"Whispering Bill"—Miss Leary.
Closing remarks—Mr. Walker.

Mr. Chisholm's address was much appreciated and it was of a great practical value. After showing that the Inspector is a friend and sympathizer of the teacher when school he visits and not a visitor to be avoided, he gave some hints towards raising the moral tone of the school and overcoming faults that leave a bad impression on the visitor. Children should be taught to show more reverence in the devotional exercises; more respect for their teachers and for the property of the school; more courtesy to strangers passing the school. The teacher should guard against neglecting the dull pupils as these very often become the bright men and women of the future.

Women's disorders always yield from the very beginning of the treatment to the mild, but effective, action of Orange Lilly. Within two or three days after commencing its use the improvement becomes noticeable, and this improvement continues until the patient is completely cured. Orange Lily is an applied or local treatment, and acts directly on the womanly organs, removing the congestion, toning and strengthening the nerves, and restoring perfect circulation in the diseased parts. In order to convince all suffering women of the value of this remedy, I will send a 75-cent box, enough for ten days' treatment, absolutely FREE to each lady sending me her address. MRS. FRANCES E. KILLS HIS COMRADE

Second Shooting at MacAulay Point Point Fort, Near Victoria, B.C., Occurs When Corporal John Bowlan Is Slain—Affair Arose Out of an Incident at the "Rainbow" Banquet on Thursday Last.

Victoria, B.C., Nov. 12.—Corporal John Bowlan was shot dead at MacAulay Point Fort yesterday morning by Gunner Charles Ratcliffe, who then committed suicide.

The affair is supposed to have arisen out of an incident at the cruiser "Rainbow" banquet on Thursday night, when Bowlan reprimanded Ratcliffe for being boisterous.

Ratcliffe, after killing Bowlan, terrorized other men in the fort with his rifle, and fired upon soldiers and police who attempted to advance over the exposed ground around the fort. When he saw that capture was certain, he put a bullet into his right eye and died immediately.

Other soldiers who were in the fort are now under guard, and a military enquiry will be held. It is a second shooting at the barracks in a few months.

HAIR NATURALLY ABUNDANT.

When It Is Free of Dandruff, It Grows Luxuriantly.

Hair preparations and dandruff cures, as a rule, are sticky or irritating affairs that do no earthly good. Hair, when not diseased, grows naturally, luxuriantly. Dandruff is the cause of nine-tenths of all hair trouble, and dandruff is caused by a germ. The only way to cure dandruff is to kill the germ; and, so far, the only hair preparation that will positively destroy the germ is Newbro's Herpicide — absolutely harmless, free from grease, sediment, dye matter or dangerous drugs. It allays the itching instantly; makes hair glossy and soft as silk. "Destroy the cause, you remove the effect." Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

For sale by McDermid and Jury, druggists; also Payne's drug store. $1 bottle guaranteed.

Widow Defeats Democrat.

Lufkin, Tex., Nov. 12.—Full returns from the election of Tuesday, just received, show that Mrs. Britt Trevathan has defeated W. J. Ivy, the Democratic nominee for county clerk of Angelina County. Her majority is about 200. Mrs. Trevathan's husband held the place and was the party nominee for re-election, but died. His widow was appointed to the position, but the county committee declined to nominate her for the vacancy, naming Ivy. Mrs. Trevathan then waged a vigorous fight as an independent. This is the first time a Democrat nominee was ever defeated in this section.

"SLEEPLESSNESS."

Thousands of people all over this land toss night after night on a sleepless pillow. The eyes do not close in the refreshing slumber that comes to those whose heart and nerves are right.

Some are troubled with weak and smothering spells; others palpitation of the heart; others have their nerves unhinged; but whatever the cause—it comes entirely from a derangement of either the heart or nerves, or both. Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills effect the blessing of sound, refreshing slumber. They do this by their invigorating effect on the heart and nerves and will tone up the whole system to perfect condition.

Mr. H. Jewel, Keswick, Ont., writes: "I am glad to have the pleasure of telling you what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills did for me. I would have weak spells, seemed to lose my breath, and would have to get up in the night as I could not sleep. I tried many medicines but found nothing good until I used Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I took three boxes and it is three years ago since I did so, and I haven't been troubled since."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

WOMAN FOUND DEAD

Companion of Umbrella Mender Dies After Debauch.

Kingston, Nov. 12.—Collins' Bay Village, seven miles west of Kingston on the G.T.R., was thrown into a state of excitement yesterday morning on the finding of the dead body of a woman, identified as that of Mrs. Mary Emma McAlpine of Ottawa. The body was found in a kneeling position near the railway track with a gash in her head. The Kingston police suspected foul play, and Coroner Ross ordered an inquest.

Deceased has been traveling around the country with Samuel Slattery, also of Ottawa, an umbrella mender. The couple were in Kingston on Thursday and walked out to Collin's Bay. It was pouring rain, and they took shelter in the woods, built a fire, and had something to eat in gypsy fashion. Slattery claims that after they had their meal, a man came on the scene who had a bottle of whisky, and that the three drank. He remembered no more, as he went to sleep, and at daylight, when he awoke, he found his companion dead and the stranger gone.

George Simmons is alleged to have given the whisky, and he was arrested in Kingston.

According to Slattery the woman has been going around the country with him for some time. He thought her husband was dead, and the two were to be married, but while out west they heard McAlpine was alive and the wedding was called off. She has two children in Port Arthur or Fort William, two brothers, one sister in Ottawa and one sister in Pembroke. She was about 45 years of age, and Slattery is 50.

At the inquest last night, Prof. W. T. Connell reported that the death of the woman McAlpine, found dead at Collin's Bay, had been due to suffocation from drowning in water in a ditch. A wound on the head had been received some time before, and had no direct bearing on her death. She had evidently been under the influences of liquor.

Geo. Simons, held by the police, admitted giving the woman whisky on Thursday night, but stoutly denied having laid hand on her. Samuel Slattery, who was traveling with her, could not throw any light on the cause of her death. He denied having abused her.

The jury returned a verdict in accordance with the facts, and Simons and Slattery were released.

Canada Favors It.

London, Nov. 12.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—T. P. O'Connor, interviewed, declared that Canada is entirely in favor of home rule for Ireland. The meetings were the largest ever held in Canada for the cause, and the sum collected the largest ever received except during Parnell's palmiest days.

He referred to the fact that statesmen of the Dominion figured in the meetings, and emphatically endorsed the home rule proposals.

Joseph Chamberlain has suggested a tariff commission to ascertain on what lines interimperial trade can best be developed by a system of mutual preference. He thinks the report produced would be of great value to the next Imperial Conference if the commission immediately proceeds to carry out the suggestion.

When Mercy Tempers Justice.

Toronto, Nov. 12.—Joseph McCormick, charged with using abusive language to his sister, was allowed to go on his own recognizance for $500 by Judge Winchester by signing the pledge and promising to support his sister.

Judge Winchester, because of prisoner's family circumstances, cut one year off the three-year sentence of George Flay, found guilty of assault on a woman.

Justice Britton also reduced Charles Hardy's sentence from six months to five months, so that he will be released in time to get employment as a bricklayer in the spring.

Cured Awful Ringworm

"Well over four years ago my two little girls were taken with a dreadful scalp trouble that the doctors called ringworm. They attended the —— Hospital as out-patients for a year. I had to apply their ointment with a brush, giving the children frightful pain. I also had to have their heads shaved every two weeks, but they got no better under the treatment. They used to cry with the tormenting itching, and their heads were covered with a thick scurf and dandruff.

"About a year ago I determined to try the Cuticura Remedies. I used plenty of Cuticura Soap and applied the Cuticura Ointment. I used only about three cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment and they were cured. Their hair is growing long and nice again. They had become so ill after their three years of suffering that I had to send one away to a convalescents' home as soon as she was cured, but now she is home, well and strong. My younger girl was away from school nine months with the disease. I am very grateful to Cuticura and for their children's sake I hope other mothers will try it. The Cuticura Soap I will always use for it makes the hair so lovely."

CAMPAIGN HAS BEGUN

It Is Declared Inevitable Since the Liberals Are So Anxious to Get the Polling Over — Speeches Are Beginning All Over the Country—Will Require Guarantees From King Before Going Ahead.

London, Nov. 12.—An early general election being assured, the only question now agitating the country is whether it will take place in December or January.

Premier Asquith, who must decide this question, thus far has kept his own counsel. He left town quietly yesterday afternoon and not even the members of his Cabinet knew his destination until the newspapers announced his arrival at Sandringham, where King George is in residence.

The object of the visit is to acquaint His Majesty, who, like his father, often confers with the Cabinet Minister, of the failure of the constitutional conference and to advise him of the course the Government intends to pursue.

The campaign practically began last night with speeches in all parts of the country. Organization of all kinds are getting on their war paint. Not the least of these are the suffragettes, whose cry will be "Down with the veto and the Prime Minister."

The Unionists will fight their campaign on the home rule issue. This is clearly indicated by the newspapers, one of which devotes practically the whole of its issue to the return of John Redmond, using such headlines as, "The Dictator With Dollars"; "American Gold."

Another newspapers advises candidates to rub into their constituents that Redmond with $200,000, is about to reappear in this country for the work of tearing down the British constitution with American money.

It is believed the Cabinet has decided not to carry on any further work with the present Parliament without such guarantees as would ensure success to the Government's policy. Ordinarily the veto resolutions on the veto power of the House of Lords which passed the House of Commons at the last session, would be discussed in the upper chamber, and the Government would await their rejection before taking action. The refusal of the constitutional conference to accept the Government's compromise, however, makes discussion of the veto resolution useless, in the view of the Radicals, and the opinion prevails that the Government either must resign or advise the dissolution of Parliament.

It is significant that the trend of feeling in Liberal circles indicates it vors an immediate election, and it is generally considered that this would be a wise course for the Liberals to take, as they stand a splendid chance of securing an increased majority in the House of Commons.

Attacks on the social and other legislation favored by the Government have lost much of their force since January, while the improvement in trade has helped to popularize the free trade party.

On the other hand, the Conservatives are suffering from lack of cohesion, and an influential section of the party is openly hostile to Mr. Balfour's leadership, his policy being not aggressive enough for them.

The stock market was weak as a consequence of the conference failure. Consols for money sold off half a point to 78 3-4, the previous low record, on the failure of the conference. Home securities were also week.

Thinks She's Belle Elmore.

Alix, Alta., Nov. 12.—Great excitement has been caused here by a report that a woman who arrived in town on Wednesday is none other than Belle Elmore.

The report started from the fact that the woman fainted when Crippen's name was mentioned in her presence, and again fainted when she read in a newspaper that Crippen was sentenced to hang.

She answers in some degree to the portraits of the missing woman. It is stated here that the police are watching her movements.

Bet a Jail Term.

New York, Nov. 12.—"Mike Doe," as he was put down in the court records, a brawny Irishman who boasted of being "the only Irish Republican longshoreman in the city, tried in vain to get himself committed to six months on Blackwell's Island yesterday to pay an election bet he had lost on Stimson. Another longshoreman bet him $3 against six months in the workhouse that Dix would win.

Held Three Responsible.

Montreal, Nov. 12.—After several sessions of the coroner's jury, a decision was reached last evening to the effect that Pernult, Chevrier and Derome are criminally responsible for the death of the Michaud girl, whose body was found in a bush in Westmount.

The trio will be sent to the King's Bench.

Cheap Won Honor.

Albany, N.Y., Nov. 12.—Thomas Carmody of Penn Yan was elected attorney-general for a term of two years at an annual salary of $10,000, without contributing or expending a penny in aid of his candidacy.

GOOD HEALTH FOR YOUNG GIRLS

What Is Needed Is the Rich, Red Blood Dr. Williams Pink Pills Actually Make

Perhaps you have already noticed that your daughter in her "teens" has developed a fitful temper, is restless and excitable. In that case remember that the march of years is leading her on to womanhood, and at this time a great responsibility rests upon you as parents. If your daughter is pale, complains of weakness and depression, feels "all tired out" after a little exertion; if she tells of headaches, or backaches, or pain in the side, do not disregard these warnings. Your daughter needs help for she is most probably anaemic—that is, bloodless.

Should you notice any of these signs, lose no time, but procure Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, for her unhealthy girlhood is bound to lead to unhealthy womanhood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills enrich impoverished blood and by doing so they repair waste and prevent disease. They give to sickly, drooping girls, health, brightness and charm, with colour in the cheeks, bright eyes, a lightness of step and high spirits. A case typical of thousands cured through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is that of Miss Grace Cunningham, Winnipeg, Man., who says: "I really cannot say enough in praise of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, as they have made me feel like a new girl. I was pale and almost bloodless and think that on an average I missed at least three school sessions a week, because I felt like a broken down person, and too weak to do anything. The doctor's medicine I took did little more than keep me in hope; it certainly did not cure me. Then I was advised to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and they soon made me feel like a new person. Day by day I gained in strength and colour, and I have your medicine to thank for it."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or may be had by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

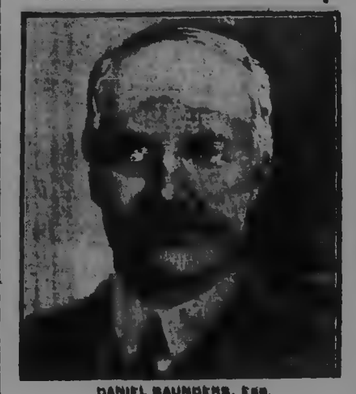
SUFFERED FOR YEARS WITH STOMACH TROUBLE

"Fruit-a-tives" Promptly Cured Him



DANIEL SAUNDERS, Esq.

Mr. Daniel Saunders, of Shoal Lake, Manitoba, is one of the best known gentlemen in Canada's great wheat country. He lived for years in the West—made a success of his farming—and has now retired from active business life to enjoy the fruits of his work.

When a man of such financial and social standing voluntarily testifies to the great benefits he has received from taking "Fruit-a-tives" there can be no doubt but that "Fruit-a-tives" deserves the confidence of every reader of this paper.

SHOAL LAKE, MAN., JUNE 11th, 1910.

"For years, I was bothered with persistent Dyspepsia and Indigestion, having severe pains after meal time. I tried everything that I could get but the pain in my stomach became no better.

Last summer, Mr. Oatway, a druggist of my town, recommended "Fruit-a-tives" to me. While taking "Fruit-a-tives", I in no way gave up any foods that I was in the habit of eating, neither did I stop smoking. Yet in spite of all, "Fruit-a-tives" has done wonders for me and I strongly advise all my friends to use it."

DANIEL SAUNDERS.

"Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine in the world made of pure fruit juices, and will always cure Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Sour Stomach, Biliousness, Constipation and any other disease that comes from disordered Stomach, Bowels, Kidneys or Skin. 50c. a box. 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Life Insurance

Many a father is going to mortgage the house in town or the farm in the country this Fall that the son may go to college. Possibly that "rainy day" fund is going to be drawn upon for this purpose. I have enough faith in Canadian youth to believe in such investments. The son intends to pay back to his father every cent just as soon as he gets into business for himself. With but an exception now and then, he will—If He Lives. It is the latter point I want to emphasize. Life is not a certainty. A glance at any college catalogue will show the asterisk in the list of students and the word "deceased" at the bottom of the page. Frequently there is added to the loss of the son, the Loss of the Cost of His Education. The latter may mean the loss of the home. One of the legitimate uses of life insurance, it seems to me, is to take care of just such cases. The cost of life insurance for the son is very slight, because he is young and a good risk. It adds but little to the financial burden. In return it gives full protection to the parent, and in later years—after college debts are paid—it safeguards the home which the son sets up for himself. No son who can get insurance has the right to mortgage his father's or his mother's future happiness when there is such a good way to avoid it. One word more, young man. Be sure that your insurance is in a well established, responsible company.

Same one has said, "The true value of a life assurance policy must be gauged by the security of the protection given; if it proves to be a good investment, all the better; when both are shown, there is nothing on earth to equal it."

The security of the protection afforded by the SUN LIFE OF CANADA needs no comment, and the profits paid—let the actual results tell their own forceful story.

FISHERMEN DROWN

Storms In English Channel Result In Fatalities.

Calais, France, Nov. 12.—The storm which raged in the English Channel and the Straits of Dover yesterday caught the Calais fishing fleet unawares. Several vessels were sunk and 30 fishermen were drowned.

Floods In Paris.

Paris, Nov. 12.—All parts of France were suffering the effects of floods yesterday. The quays in the southeastern part of this city were being inundated, and workmen made a desperate effort to save the merchandise that had accumulated there. The openings of the tunnels of the Orleans Railroad were closed to avoid the flooding of the underground passages.

It is estimated that the gauge at Port Royal will show the water to have reached a height of 5.70 metres by Sunday. This will be 3.23 metres above the normal. As the gauge stood at 2.50 metres during the height of the flood last January, the danger to the city at the present time is not considered serious. Nevertheless, the Government is adopting measures to avoid a repetition of the disaster of last winter.

Stormy In Germany.

Berlin, Nov. 12.—A heavy snowstorm yesterday, ushered in winter through northern Germany. Telephone and telegraph wires are still down in the north and also those communicating with Brussels. Direct telegraphic connection with England is interrupted, and the Bourse yesterday was able to communicate with London only by means of telephone by way of France.

Rhine Is Rising.

Cologne, Germany, Nov. 12.—The River Rhine here is 17 feet above its mean low level, and is still rising. Mannheim reports the river at 16 feet and at Moselle it has reached 23 3-4 feet. At Metz the river is the highest that it has been for years. The lower parts of that city are flooded, as also are those of a number of towns below Metz.

Up-stream the Rhine is reported to be falling.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

THE PRIZE FIGHTING GAME

That he had discovered the greatest one, when the fight was stopped, the "comer" in the lightweight class is the belief to-day of Sam Fitzpatrick, who has taken up the management of Anton Lagrave and will get the youngster into a number of battles in New York. Lagrave's showing in his recent fight with Rat Nelson proved that he was a iron-hearted fighter, well handled and capable. He "made a holy show" of the Battler, according to well-informed fight fans who witnessed the scrap. Fitzpatrick intends to match Lagave against the best of the lightweights in the East, and then, if his showing warrants it, issue a challenge to Ad Wolgast.

Sam Langford, the Boston Tar Baby, has determined that he is as good as ever, and is looking for all the easy money he can pick up to-day. In what was scheduled as a ten round bout at Joplin on Thursday night Langford hammered Jeff Clark a Joplin aspirant to ring fame, into insensibility in a little less than two rounds. Langford knocked Clark down three times in the first round and had him making round trips on the mat in the second, when the fight was stopped, the referee being out on another call.

Joe Jeanette is to-day one round nearer his cherished desire — to meet Jack Johnson. Jeanette Thursday night disposed of Black Bill, a giant negro, in the fifth round of a scheduled ten-round fight at the Longace A. C. in New York. Jeanette was never extended and when the fifth round came he walked to the middle of the ring and notified his opponent to prepare to go asleep. He then put the black to the mat for the count.

There is considerable dispute to-day in New York as to the correctness of the decision which Thursday night gave "Knockout" Brown nothing better than a draw in his fight with Harlem Tommy Murphy at the Olympic A. C. During all the ten rounds Brown kept up a wild rush, carrying the fight all the time to the Harlemite. It was only Murphy's defensive tactics, ring experience and agile footwork that saved him from a decisive beating. Had Brown been less wild and better able to judge distance and "time," it is believed that he would have put over a deep-producer without trouble.

To-night's Junior Hockey Meeting Is Important

Every member of the executive of the Peterborough Hockey Club is expected to be at to-night's meeting at the Examiner office when the tangle in the junior situation will be discussed. A representative from each of the other two clubs, the West Ends and T.A.S., is expected to be present.

EDWARDS IS DISQUALIFIED LEAHY GETS FIRST PLACE

Willie Edwards, of Keene, who was first to cross the line in the Examiner junior race on Thanksgiving day has been disqualified on account of his failure to produce proof that he was under eighteen years of age and hence eligible for a prize. Edwards has been given plenty of time to prove that he was under age and has failed to do so and the three judges, Messrs. R. M. Roy, Jos. Picard and A. C. Yokome had no other course than to disqualify him and moved the others up a position. This gives first prize to Frank Leahy of Douro, second prize to G. Holmbeck of Cobourg, third prize to Cecil Armstrong of Peterborough, and fourth prize to J. B. Mann, of Bridgenorth. These prize winners can receive their prizes at the Examiner office.

Shiloh's Cure

PETERBOROUGH HAS FAILED TO TAKE ADVANTAGE

One striking feature about this question, and the city's method of dealing with it, is that they have never seemed to realize the true value of water powers. If a power were offered to them at $50,000, they took the view that they could finally get it for half that amount. If they were offered a power at $100,000, they felt that they would finally get it for $50,000. Another way in which they viewed the question was that a certain power some years ago was bought at a certain price, and why should we pay so much additional for it. They never asked themselves the question, "Will someone else pay the price the owners ask for this power, and if it is worth that much to them, why should it not be worth the same amount to us?"

It is just this method of dealing with Peterborough's power problem that has enabled power companies to snatch up valuable privileges under our noses.

Let every citizen of Peterborough ask himself the question, "How long must this policy continue?" — Yours

A RELAPSE IN VERSE

Peterborough, Nov. 10, 1910.

In grateful remembrance of treatment received in Nicholls Hospital Peterborough.

Jack Frost has come, the victory won
And this is his command,
That cold shall go zero below
And snow shall hide the land.

I yet can mind nurses, were kind
In Nicholls Hospital,
The watch are free, of frost none be
With comfort for them all.

With nurses there, none can compare
No matter where you go
So high they stand in this, our land
And high class duty know

No doubt in me I wish to be Respected to them all,
Their work is grand, best in the land
To those who need their call.

AN APPLICATION

An application will be made to the City Council by Mr. J. H. Burnham of Ruddy and Burnham, on behalf of the Sons of England, the Knights of Pythias, the Orangemen and the Foresters, for exemption. The application states that the above societies have heretofore been of the opinion that exemption should be curtailed or abolished and for that reason have not applied for it. If, however, the Council intends to exempt societies, the above hope to also come under the law to that effect.

TEA CUP INVADES THE OFFICE

(Special From Toronto, Nov. 11.)

A reporter called yesterday afternoon shortly before four o'clock on a department manager of one of Toronto's large industrial concerns and promptly at four o'clock a young lady brought in two cups of tea. The reporter was invited to partake of what proved a most delicious and refreshing beverage, and business being laid aside for a moment, the manager explained that a few months before he had been in England, where he had found the 4 o'clock tea custom practically universal among business houses. He had enjoyed it so much and it had seemed to fit in so well, that after coming home he had adopted it in his own office. He said he always used Red Rose Tea because it had the fine flavour and smooth richness of some of the choicer kinds he had got in the old country.

Upon enquiry at the office of the Red Rose Tea Co. it was found that the practice had been begun there only a few days ago, and that with their usual ambition to be a little ahead of the procession they served a cup of delicious tea not only to every member of the office and warehouse staffs, but to every stranger who happened to be within the gates at the appointed hour. The tea is served to every one at his or her desk, the drinking occupies only a minute or two and the tea is so deliciously refreshing and stimulating that the working efficiency of the staff is increased for the rest of the day.

The remarkable success of Red Rose Tea and the high esteem in which the firm is held by the trade throughout Canada is a striking tribute to the forceful and progressive business methods steadily pursued by Mr. T. H. Estabrooks of St. John, N.B., the proprietor of Red Rose Tea. This success has made Mr. Estabrooks a national figure in the tea business.

GENERALLY SPEAKING

A League of Protection.

The Examiner has always been in the forefront fighting for the beautifying and improving of the parks and streets of the city. An article a short time since, dealt with the necessity of the authorities doing something to stop the destruction of the turf at Central Park owing to the encroachments of the public. But there is really hardly any place of note that does not possess a fair number of vandals and iconoclasts who have no more regard for the beautiful than the dog that scampers carelessly, with muddy feet, through the house or rolls unconcernedly over a bed of splendid tulips.

It would be a grand thing if the feeling could be wrought into people's minds that it is easy to keep things looking orderly and nice, once they are made so—the only factor wanted is their own hearty cooperation. In the great English parks, vandalism is scarcely known. Noblemen throw their magnificent properties open to the public, with the simple proviso that flower beds shall not be disturbed nor any wanton damage done. It is on record that a poor city dweller, enjoying a day's holiday walking through a nobleman's paradise, saw a very shabby gentleman walk across the grass and deliberately pluck some flowers from one of the beds. It was too much for the tourist. "Look here," he shouted out, "it's people like you that cause these places to be closed to us; you ought to be ashamed of yourself." The depredator happened to be the owner of the property, but he was quite pleased at the outburst of virtuous indignation from the tourist. It would be a good thing if we had a league of some sort in Peterborough banded together for the preservation of such beauty spots as it possesses.

Machine That "Thinks."

A machine which thinks, or at any rate discriminates, is being installed by the Post Office in London, England, and one has a vision of the crowds who will flock to it, when duly attached to the corner lamp-post, for the purchase of forgotten postage-stamps on Sunday evenings.

Affixing postage stamps by the natural process has never been rather a pleasant or a wholesome practice; here is a machine which not only delivers a stamp for a penny, but chivalrously sticks the stamp on the envelope for the purchaser.

Fraudulent lead discs it flings contemptuously into its interior; foreign coins it returns with the courteous assumption that the depositor has made a pardonable mistake.

With fair treatment the automaton is ready to do the one thing by the purchaser, and to do it at the terrific rate of 4,000 stamped envelopes per hour. It will stamp newspaper wrappers, and at the same time register the number of stamps used, and it will stamp your letters up to 50,000 at a time. All you have to do is to put 50,000 pennies in a slot and press a knob 50,000 times.

Napoleon the Great.

Biography is always attractive, and it was with great interest that I read a few days ago of how Field Marshal Lord Grenfell's father was impressed by the sight of the great Napoleon. In 1814 he happened to be at Lyons, and there saw the Emperor who was returning from Elba. The English boy in after years, wrote some stirring stanzas on the scene. The following is one of them:

It was a thrilling sight.
As first of a brilliant train
That warrior chief passed by in his might
So unadorned and plain.
I shall never forget till the day I die
The light that shot from his clear, dark eye,
Or the smile that over his features played
As one swift glance that scene surveyed—
I could read his thoughts as he looked on his men,
That all he had lost was his own again.

Tag Day.

Tag Day has brought its funny incidents. This morning a bright young girl accosted a stern looking middle aged female from the country and said mildly, "Will you please buy a tag?" "What do I want a tag for?" asked the woman. "Well, it's for the Children's Aid, you know," replied the girl. The middle aged woman gave a sniff, tossed her head in the air and remarked as she passed on: "What's the use of them tags to me; I ain't married. I ain't got no children?"

LIVING AT HIGH TENSION

To overdo in order to keep up with the parade is the tendency of the age. Living at such a high tension, is it any wonder that our nerve sanitariums and rest cures are filled with nervous, overworked, broken-down men and women.

When one begins to get into this condition, there is only one cure—a complete rest, together with a wholesome diet and a good blood-making tonic and strength creator. There is nothing in this line that can possibly excel the medicinal elements of the cod's liver combined with tonic iron. This simple combination is found in Vinol. It contains no oil or grease and agrees with everyone.

A well known college professor states that he considers Vinol a truly wonderful tonic and strength creator. He was himself overworked and run-down to a critical point. A friend asked him to try Vinol. He did so, and is now enjoying perfect health, and its curative powers cannot be too strongly extolled.

We recommend Vinol to build up and strengthen the run-down and overworked, weak women, old people, delicate children and convalescents. In case anyone is not satisfied after taking one bottle, we always refund their money. This does not happen often, however, because Vinol's percentage of cures is very high. Masonry and Church.

Montreal, Nov. 12.—The members of the Emancipation Masonic Lodge are running for cover. Inspector Grand-Champ of the Montreal police force, has quite recently made his peace with the Archbishop of Montreal, while it is announced that Dr. Gaston Maillet, the head of a dentistry establishment on St. Denis street, whose income is $10,000 a year, has also written to the archbishop repudiating Masonry in all its forms, and expressing the desire to live and die in the church of his fathers. Dr. Maillet has been one of the most prominent members of the Emancipation Lodge for years past.

Yesterday Judge Demers decided that the Catholic school commissioners had no right to dismiss the five teachers in connection with Masonry without cause, so they will have to be reinstated.

The judge stated that as the teachers had been dismissed without cause, and the defendants had further voted to pay the teachers their salaries up to the end of their contracts, the said payers may intervene under the common law.

Laws of Marriage Explained.

Ottawa, Nov. 12.—The laws of Christian marriage was the subject of an address given by Travers Lewis, K.C., at the annual session of the Anglican deanery of Ottawa. He compared the marriage laws of Ontario and Quebec, and answered a number of questions.

It is understood that the action of Mgr. Bruchesi, Archbishop of Montreal, in annulling marriages contracted between Protestants and Catholics in Ontario, was discussed but no statement was given out as to any action taken.

Switchman's Horrid Death.

Cobourg, Nov. 12.—W. McMonigal of this town has received intelligence that his son, Harry Monigal, 28 years of age, was killed at Pittsburg, where he was employed as switchman on the Lehigh Valley road. He had just finished setting the switch when an engine struck him. He only spoke once and that was to give the address of his wife, whom he left in Cobourg.

Smallpox in Michigan.

Lansing, Mich., Nov. 12.—With smallpox reported in thirty localities in fourteen counties of Michigan and state troops ordered to act as quarantine guards at the state home for the feeble-minded at Lapeer, health officials in every part of the lower peninsula are engaged in a desperate fight to prevent the further spread of the scourge.

Condition at the Lapeer home are pathetic in the extreme, most of the inmates being children of defective mentality. Twenty-five cases of the disease have been reported at this institution and six deaths. One inmate of the Lapeer home escaped yesterday.

Saginaw has been the largest city in the state to be seriously affected by the epidemic. Nearly two score deaths were reported there within a month, and schools and churches were closed.

Five Shot In Saloon Hold-Up.

Chicago, Nov. 12.—Five persons were shot, two of them probably fatally, in an attempt early yesterday to rob the saloon of Louis Belmont, in the town of Cicero, near here. Three bandits made an attempt at robbery, and when the saloonkeeper fired at them, a revolver fight began.

Exploding Boiler Kills Four.

Canton, O., Nov. 12.—Four workmen were instantly killed here yesterday by the explosion of a boiler at a sawmill. They had gathered about the boilers to get warm.

Fourteen cases of cholera and six deaths have been reported from the infected districts in Italy in the last twenty-four hours.

There was a conference on lower cable rates in London yesterday between postoffice officials and representatives of the cable companies.

There is a report at Port Arthur that three men were killed on the N.T.R. construction north of Nipigon. They would be employes of the Pembroke Construction Co.

The Board of Health of Niagara Falls, Ont., last night decided to report to the City Council in favor of establishing a civic milk depot to improve the milk supply.

A constable who tried to get to Monetteville to arrest Isaac Larocque on a charge of murdering Joseph Larocque had to turn back. The boatman lost his way in a blinding snowstorm.

Henry R. Anthony, a boy burglar, who confessed to robbing seventeen residences in New Jersey towns, was yesterday sentenced at Passaic, N.J., to 21 years in the reformatory. He is 19 years old.

Thomas Glazier of Toronto, before Judge Deroche, found guilty of burglarizing Jonas Barnum's store, Belleville, and stealing jewelry worth $500. A sentence of three years in the penitentiary was imposed.

The constitutional convention of Arizona, by a vote of 15 to 28, yesterday defeated a clause instructing the first State Legislature at its first session to submit the question of woman suffrage to a referendum vote.

Bodies Cut In Two.

Brockville, Nov. 12.—At an early hour yesterday morning sectionmen on the Grand Trunk found the mangled body of George Nash of Point St. Charles, Montreal, aged 19. Frank Fraser left Montreal Thursday night riding on the bumpers of a freight. When rounding Midland curve Nash lost his hold and fell between the cars, his body being cut in two.

Rioting at Shanghai.

Shanghai, Nov. 12.—Rumors spread among the populace that the work of the newly-organized sanitary department, which is installing a sewage system, really consisted of poisoning Chinese in hospitals, removing the eyes of infants, and other horrible tortures, resulted in rioting yesterday. The sanitary officers were assailed, and it was necessary to call out the volunteer troops.

Hold-Up That Failed.

Sarnia, Nov. 12.—Charles Pratt, a teamster, was accosted by two unknown men at 6.30 p.m. One man presented a revolver and climbed on the wagon, demanding money. Pratt kicked the man in the face, and the other man, standing in front of the team, discharged a revolver and the horses ran away. Pratt lost the lines, and the horses ran several blocks.

Both Crews to Blame.

Corinth, Nov. 12.—The inquest into the cause of death of the Wabash engineer, George Smith, killed in collision here last Friday, took place yesterday. The evidence of Despatcher Cassidy of St. Thomas would indicate that if he had been able to raise the Aylmer operator the night of the collision the accident would not have happened. The verdict of the jury was that the lights and signals were properly displayed by the operator at Corinth, that the crew on No. 1807 did not take all precautions possible, that sufficient time was not allowed No. 1807 to go from Tillsonburg to Corinth, and that the crew of No. 94 did not observe the semaphore displayed, and thus contributed to the collision.

A Professor in Trouble.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 12.—A quiet investigation is being made to find out whether there exists among the students of the University of Wisconsin mystic social circles, as might be inferred from private papers seized by the postal authorities after arresting Prof. Irwin Billman of the history department, on the charge of having mailed obscene letters and photographs to a young woman student.

NEW 1911 RUSSELL CAR

Ald. Duffus has received from the Canada Cycle and Motor Co., Toronto, a new 1911 Russell touring car, he having secured exclusively the agency for the Russell and Ford automobiles for this district. That the Russell car is recognized as the best and most popular car on the market is evidenced by the fact that during the past season they could only supply two-thirds of their customers, and for this reason they have delivered already this fall as many 1911 cars as they delivered up to March, 1910. The Knight motor has proved so very satisfactory during 1910 that most of the Russell cars this year will be equipped with this powerful, silent-running engine, and no doubt will find its way into the hands of nearly all those who want a high-grade, up-to-date large touring car.

The Ford car this year will sell for $975.00 for the touring car and $875.00 for the roadster, and both of these will be built more roomy and attractive than ever, and with the reputation that this car has gained for itself no doubt there will be a great demand for these two models, as they are recognized as the most economical and satisfactory medium priced car offered for sale.

Ald. Duffus will shortly open up a new salesroom and garage, where a competent man will be in charge at all times and customers will be able to have their cars looked over, cleaned, repaired, and replenished with the highest grade oils and gasoline, at any and all times. This, with a good supply of accessories in stock at all times will prove a great satisfaction to car owners.

These two firms are to be congratulated upon securing Ald. Duffus as their local representative, as he has the highest reputation, and is well known in this locality, having been in business ten years in the firm of Drummond & Duffus, and having spent the last two years in the automobile part of the business.

ALL MY PIMPLES GONE

Girl Tells How a Blotchy Skin Was Cleansed by a Simple Wash.

"I was ashamed of my face," writes Miss Minnie Pickard of Altamahaw. "It was all full of pimples and scars, but after using D.D.D. Prescription I can say that now there is no sign of that Eczema, and that was three years ago."

D.D.D. has become as famous as a cure and instant relief in eczema and all other serious skin diseases, that its value is sometimes overlooked in clearing up rash, pimples, black-heads, and all other minor impurities.

The fact is, that while D.D.D. is so convincing that it strikes to the very root of nearly every other serious trouble, the soothing Oil of Wintergreen, Thymol and other ingredients are so carefully compounded there is no wash for the skin made that can compare with this great household remedy for every kind of skin trouble.

D.D.D. is pleasant to use, perfectly harmless to the most delicate skin, and absolutely reliable. Write D.D.D. Laboratories, Dept. P.E., 23 Colborne street, Toronto, for a free trial bottle, and prove its wonderful effectiveness. Guaranteed and duty, druggists; also Peterboro drug store.

"WHEN ALL HAS BEEN SAID"

With "When All Has Been Said" next Thursday, Nov. 16, local theatregoers are to be given another taste of the brand of theatrical entertainment served up by that indefatigable firm of producers, Liebler and Company. This firm, whose list of present attractions includes such praiseworthy winners as "Alias Jimmy Valentine", "The Man From Home", "The Dawn of a To-morrow" "The Fourth Estate," "The White Sister", "The Deep Purple", "The Melting Pot", "The Battle" and many others of like calibre, whose magnum opus for the year is the great production of Mascagnis new opera, "Ysobel", in which Bessie Abott is to sing at the New Theatre, New York, and whose past productions include such popular plays as "The Christian", "The Squaw Man", "Salomy Jane", "You Never Can Tell", "Merely Mary Ann" and "Raffles," certainly stands preeminent in the production of plays that are really worth while. What is more, the past experiences that theatregoers have had with Liebler and Company attractions, leads them to look forward with certainty to a strong, well-balanced Company and a production that fulfils all requirements.

Emily Stevens, who appears as Mrs. Gordon, in Liebler & Co's Production of "When All Has Been Said"

From advance accounts "When All Has Been Said" will not disappoint those who are inclined to put faith in the producing firm's reputation for general all round excellence. It is described as a play with a big human appeal, the work of a comparatively new dramatist it is true, but one who has made his mark in other fields of endeavour. His name is Bayard Veiller and for years he has been prominent in the coterie of journalists that lead the New York dailies their vitality.

Mr. Veiller has founded his play upon Jackson D. Haag's 'That Which Never Dies.' Mr. Veiller, in the course of his newspaper work, has been closely associated with people and affairs of the stage, so he has been very successful in avoiding the technical pitfalls that so frequently ensnare the newly arrived dramatist. Moreover, in staging his play he has had the assistance of Hugh Ford, an acknowledged master of his craft. Judging from the reception accorded the play wherever it has been seen, it abounds in stirring, highly dramatic scenes, relieved by excellent comedy, and is bound to be most popular.

In the matter of Education, those who have had the privileges of a liberal education would not be without its advantages. Many who have not a liberal education, like many who need glasses, do not realise their lack of ability to earn a livelihood, the lack of enjoyments, etc. We frequently have persons remark: "Oh, if I had but known that such comfort and clear vision were possible, I would have had these glasses long ago. I would not be without them for many times their price."

TAG-DAY PREEMPTED.

The second Saturday in November of each year is set apart as a perpetual tag-day in the interest of the Children's Aid Society. It is felt that this Society is the only one that can consistently operate a tag day. The society appeals to all ranks of citizenship without regard to creed or social standing. Everybody recognizes the society. The universal nature of public interest is shown by the character of the contributions received last Saturday. In the boxes was found the amount of $30 in one cent pieces, representing perhaps about 3,000 contributors of mites. There were nearly four hundred dollars in five cent pieces; so that it seems nearly every citizen, man, woman and child, had a hand in compiling the $1,267 found in the boxes. In view of this the interests representing the Children's Aid Society have filed a claim with the great public for a recognition of the second Saturday in November of each year as Tag-day. There will be no dissent from this proposal. The society needs every cent it received last Saturday to carry on its routine work; and next year a similar sum will be needed, and will probably be got. The $1,200 odd raised made no large demand on any body. What was easily spared was freely given.

A GRAND RESULT AND A GRAND LESSON.

The amount of contributions resulting from Children's Aid tag day on Saturday reached the excellent figure of $1,267. These figures have a double meaning and a double value. In the abstract it is extremely gratifying that so noble a charity should have its usefulness so substantially recognized; it is extremely gratifying to see such general evidence of public interest in its work and function. But neither of these is the greatest. By far the most gratifying feature is the fact of what can be done when all classes of the community unite in heart and action in the support of an interest that appeals to all classes, creeds and conditions; it demonstrates what can be done when our citizenship is united, as it can be, upon such a work as the Children's Aid Society. We are all Christians, nominally at least. In spite of all our petty—petty in the light of practical religion—differences in the matter of creed and observance of rites and ceremonies and forms of worship, we are all of one belief in one God, the Father of us all. We acknowledge one common Fountain of redemption, and we all agree upon the great primary essentials of the Christian faith. We can all subscribe to the Children's Aid Society because it is founded upon the central fact of Christianity—salvation by love. Salvation from sin is the foundation rock of Christianity, and upon this rock all the waves of schism religious differences, religious bigotry, religious strife, religious intolerance, race they never so fiercely, break in futile spray. The rock remains. The essence of the Children's Aid Movement is to save the neglected child from his sins—from the consequences of his vicious environment. It is unsectarian; it knows no creed distinction, fits the wheels of its machinery to no narrow theologic or dogmatic groove. It is broad, inclusive, all-embracing; in a word it is Christian. It occupies a ground upon which all can stand, and upon which all classes, creeds, and conditions did stand, when the magnificent sum of nearly thirteen hundred dollars was contributed in a few hours. There were no large sums; the contributions ran into the thousands, showing that they were universal in their range, and that everybody, rich and poor, young and old, entered into the spirit of the occasion. The people succeeded on Saturday; why? Because they were united, en masse, though they were divided in many ways in the matter of conception and practice of the principles of the Christian faith. And they are as divided to-day in that sense and are none the less faithful to their individual religious principles, because they united on Saturday in a common aim in a movement based upon the broad theological fact that all Christians recognize.

This result is a splendid lesson upon the value of unity of purpose, not only in civic and community, but also in national, life. The result referred to could not have been reached except by a generous subordination of the religious differences that divide our people, but have no legitimate bearing upon a cause common in interest and importance to all. It impresses the value of national harmony and national peace in relation to the progress and upbuilding of the country and justifies the action of our public men, like Sir George Cartier, Conservative, and Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Liberal, who have spent their life time in harmonizing the racial and creed differences which rend and weaken our citizenship. These differences are legitimate and call for loyalty to the principles and ambitions they represent in private life. But they have no place as factors in the national life. They should, and must, be subordinate to the claim of a common patriotism, which looks to the building up of a strong and united citizenship, and the achievement of the great work of national consolidation. Our statesmen in the past past gave us Confederation. Great as that was, consolidation is far more important and indispensable if we are to realize the destiny which natural and created conditions make possible.

What Canada needs is a united and harmonious people, united in an aim upon which all can work together—the welfare of Canada as a nation. We can set our race and creed differences in the back ground; we can all hold our convictions honestly and practise our religion in our private and church lives, but we can, at the same time, nevertheless, all be united in being loyal Canadians, loyal supporters of the empire in which membership alone accounts for the standing, privileges and rights which we enjoy in this blessed country of Canada.

The result of the Children's Aid canvas on Saturday, not only shows the value of harmony of citizenship and unity of action, but it is a pungent lesson to the firebrands, the several incendiaries, who, in the desecrated name of religion, stir up creed and race strife and inject into our national life the most destructive elements of disintegration, the most bitter foe to national growth and greatness—discord of citizenship. There are two elements at work in this country, one conspicuously in Quebec and the other in Ontario. Bitterly antagonistic to each other in the principles they claim to hold, they are both working in malignant harmony of effect, for the same end, the same result, the destruction of the harmony of citizenship and its unspeakable train of evils, without one redeeming feature. Railing for railing, scorn for scorn, abuse for abuse in pulpit and platform, or in the press convinces nobody, reforms nobody, changes no opinion. The result is strife, only, bickering and bitterness. Whether done, as ostensibly it is done, in the name of religion, or as really is done, in the interests of some political cult or faction, the sowing of the seeds of strife is the work of moral incendiarism, the most insidious and dangerous; for pretended interest in religion is the cloak under which are worked schemes for private or party aggrandisement. If these antagonistic champions of religion and righteousness want to show the respective superiority of their religion they can only do it in one way—by living it, and thus furnishing concrete evidence of its superiority. Faith without work is dead.

LODGE CLOSES DOWN.

Emancipation of Grand Orient of France Sends In Its Charter.

Montreal, Nov. 14.—The Temple of Masonry brought here from old France in 1896 has fallen, and nothing remains to tell the tale. In other words, the famous branch of the Grand Orient, known as the Emancipation, which met with more or less success in French Canada during the past fourteen years, has ceased to exist, and the charter has been returned to Cadet street, Paris, the headquarters of the Grand Orient in France.

From the start in 1896, the Emancipation had a stormy career in this city, for it was recognized at the outset that the prejudices of the people against Masonry in any form were so strong, that the greatest caution would have to be taken. The membership, however, rose to three hundred, and there were never less than seventy-five active members of the lodge, which was recruited from the professional and literary classes. In fact, the office of venerable, the highest official position in the organization, was always held by prominent and influential citizens.

The members of the Emancipation felt that they were handicapped by the fact that there were no officials or other relations between the Grand Orient and the English and Scotch Rites, as a visit from one organization to the other was absolutely forbidden.

So, after a good deal of consideration, French Masonry was banished from Canada and most of the members have since been allied to the various English lodges, all persecution being voided by this latest alliance with the powerful English-speaking organization.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Senator Clay of Georgia is dead.

Half of Paris is without electric light because of the Seine flood.

T. B. Coulson of Eden Mills died from injuries sustained by a beam falling upon him.

The London Daily Chronicle says the general election in Britain will be over by Dec. 20th.

Lawrence Ryan, a brilliant young physician, died in the police cells at Saskatoon, after being arrested for drunkenness.

Three hundred men out of employment seeking to enter Canada from the United States have been turned back at Windsor.

Oscar Johnson, a sailor on a schooner, fell over the vessel's side at Kingston Saturday night, and had his spine broken. He will die.

Clarke Woods, who killed Hector Murray by striking him with a bottle was sentenced at Red Deer, Alta., to ten years' imprisonment.

The dead body at St. Thomas, identified as that of William Brandow of Kingsmill, turns out to be that of Benj. Taylor of Melbourne. Brandow is alive and well.

Rev. Father Guertin, parish priest, yesterday flatly accused the authorities of Hull of boosting the city's population, in order to attach extra license to the list.

The British Admiralty has invited tenders from Clyde shipbuilders for the construction of a large armored cruiser with speed and gun power surpassing any vessel in the navy.

Mayor Guerin presided at a meeting of Herbrews in Montreal, which adopted a resolution, asking the Minister of Justice not to allow the extradition to Russia of Federenko, who shot a policeman in Russia some time ago.

Walter Crockill, aged 65, Government weather observer at Medicine Hat, was found dead in his office chair yesterday. When the usual weather report was not received at the telegraph office, enquiries were instituted.

Huge Plant for Soo.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Nov. 14.—Manager W. C. Franz of the Lake Superior Corporation, stated yesterday morning that arrangements had been made for the installation of a paper mill here, valued at $1,000,000, although nothing definite is given as to the site. The fact that the Lake Superior Corporation has arranged for the improvement of the water front from the ship canal to Bruce street would lead to the belief that the new paper mill is to be constructed in that vicinity. This contradicts the rumor that an American syndicate had arranged for the construction of a paper mill in the Soo.

Saturday the blast furnaces of the Lake Superior Corporation made another record, turning out 680 tons of bessemer iron. The former record for one day was 676 tons, and the average for the past month was 652 tons per day.

Guilty of Manslaughter.

Winnipeg, Nov. 14.—Frank Leland formerly watchman in a signal tower at Wood's Siding near this city on the C.P.R., was convicted of manslaughter in the Assizes Saturday. Sentence was deferred.

Leland was very drunk on duty on Sept. 10, when the local train from Winnipeg approached the crossing of the C.N.R. at a siding. He threw the switch as the train approached and derailment ensued. Fireman Samson Pattison jumped, but was crushed to death under the locomotive.

Leland was arrested at once, and the crown had no difficulty in proving that the fatality was due to his negligence. His only excuse was that he was drunk. The evidence went to show that he was not only intoxicated, but was quarrelsome and disobedient.

C.P.R. to Build Big Liners.

London, Nov. 14.—It is believed that the plans for Canadian Pacific steamers of 40,000 horse-power have been prepared. It is stated that tenders will be shortly invited for the Canada and West Indies service, which the Home Government will partly subsidize.

Car Strike Next?

New York, Nov. 14.—A bold theft of an express van, containing merchandise worth $50,000, and several attacks by mobs on drivers of express and delivery wagons, occurred Saturday afternoon, giving the police the hardest work they have had for several days in connection with the strike.

Four strikebreakers were arrested, charged with the theft of the van, which belonged to the Adams Express Co.

It is charged that they transferred the goods on the street to two smaller vans, and then drove to a storage warehouse, where they were apprehended at the point of revolvers, as they were starting to put the goods in a vault.

Hugh Frayne, general organizer of the American Federation of Labor, and personal representative of Samuel Gompers, said yesterday that the street railway men of this city were ready to go on strike at any moment.

He said that these men have been dissatisfied for a long time, and that committee have been to the American Federation, with requests that they be organized. This work has been going on for six months, Frayne says, and is now complete.

Americans Not Hopeful.

Washington, Nov. 14.—The State Department officials, while they have not yet been acquainted with the details of the three-day conferences at Ottawa last week between Canadian and American conferees, looking to a reciprocity agreement, do not expect a general agreement as an immediate result of the conference. The interests of the two countries are too extensive to admit of the violent derangement that might be expected to following a sweeping readjustment.

It is under stood that each side at Ottawa contented itself with submitting a very limited list of articles, upon which the principle of reciprocity might be tried. Included in the Canadian proposal were timber, grain, a whole line of agricultural products, and perhaps live stock and meats. Wood pulp may not be put on the free list, but in any event it is marked for a substantial reduction.

There is reason to believe that the list of articles that Canada offers to admit from American at reduced rates is disappointingly small.

The Strike Settled.

New York, Nov. 14.—The strike of divers and helpers employed by the transcontinental express companies was formally declared off Saturday evening, and it was announced at strike headquarters that the men will return to work Monday. The close of the strike was brought about by the New Jersey strikers, who voted late Saturday evening to accept the terms upon which the companies offered to take back the men. The New York strikers voted Thursday night to accept the company's offer, conditional upon similar action taken across the river.

Mayor Gaynor and Mr. Towne were largely instrumental in inducing the companies to name terms acceptable to the strikers. The agreement provides that the men shall be taken back without discrimination, except for acts of violence during the strike.

Brutal Child Murder.

Asbury Park, N.J., Nov. 14.—The body of Marie Smith, 10 years old, who has been missing since Wednesday, was found yesterday in a clump of woods not far from her home. The child had been choked and criminally assaulted. An alarm has been sent out for a negro wood-chopper.

In her struggle she had been grasped by the hand with such force, that a gold ring she had worn had been flattened into the flesh. Her arms were badly scratched, and there was a wound in the cartilege of her nose, which must have been caused by human teeth shut down on it to cut off her breath.

Thomas Williams, known in the neighborhood as Black Diamond, a negro woodchopper, employed by the girl's aunt, had been missing since the day Marie disappeared. He was arrested last night.

Died of Exposure.

Vancouver, Nov. 14. The strange and sudden death of one of its members, Dr. H. S. Ford of this city, followed a Vancouver hunting party, which had been spending the past ten days in Jervis Inlet, a famous hunting ground 100 miles north of Vancouver. In an attempt to recover a mountain goat which he had shot, he became detached from his companions and their Indian guide last Tuesday morning. It was not until late Thursday afternoon that the party found his lifeless body. He had evidently lost his way in an effort to take a shorter route back to their camp, and died from exposure.

Queen's Students Parade.

Kingston, Nov. 14.—Saturday night was a big night for the Queen's students, when the annual parade was held from the college grounds around the main streets of the city. The Varsity boys, who were here for the games, joined in with Queen's and enjoyed the fun. Several large floats were in line, and students appeared in all sorts of garbs. After the parade they rushed the theatres.

Seaforth Pioneer Dead.

Seaforth, Nov. 14.—Robert Willis, one of the pioneer residents of Seaforth, died yesterday morning, at the age of 73, after an illness of several months. He carried on a successful boot and shoe business during the past forty years.

Not Safe Elmore.

Alta. Alta., Nov. 14.—The bottom has fallen out of the Crippen yarn. The woman who was a victim of epileptic fits and extremely nervous, has proven her identity to the entire satisfaction of the authorities.

Held For Stabbing Woman.

Quebec, Nov. 14. A man giving his name as Edouard Lafrance, aged 36 years, who states that he is a native of Quebec, but has lived for some years in Toronto, is held upon a charge of stabbing a woman, Cordelia Coburn, at the door of a house on Ste. Cecile street, Saturday evening. The man gives every indication of being mentally deranged. After the assault the unfortunate woman fell backward into the passage, while the assailant made off.

Dr. Faucher was hastily summoned, and, after dressing the wound, had the woman conveyed to the Hotel Dieu Hospital, where she is now a patient. The wound, although a painful one, is not considered dangerous, and no fatal effect is anticipated.

Wheel Flew Off.

San Antonio, Texas, Nov. 14.—Tobin De Hymel, a widely-known driver of racing automobiles, was killed in the races here Saturday, when his car lost a wheel. He drove in the last Vanderbilt cup race in New York, and was known as the big Aztec Indian driver.

De Hymel was rounding a curve at a furious clip, when a front wheel flew off, and the car crashed into an embankment. De Hymel was thrown clear of the car some distance down the track. When track attendants reached him he was dead, with the broken steering wheel clutched tightly in his hands.

Keep the Upward Draft Open . . .

Human nature is like the fire in the open grate. When everything is clear how it glows with comfort and inspiration. How our castles rise to ambition's height. But when the fire and our lives become clogged with ashes, how cheerless the view. Keep the upward draft open.

Do you ever notice how the face of a dear, sainted mother shines when it reflects the rare sweet light that glows beyond the hills of time? A great preacher once said that this was a grander benediction than he could pronounce.

There is no such thing as secret thought. All thoughts write themselves on the face.

"THE BETRAYAL"

(By E. Phillips Oppenheim.)

"Guy," she said, "I want to be rid of this man, because every word he speaks—hurts. But I cannot even look at him any more. At this war of words he has won. I am beaten. I admit it. I am crushed. I am not going away. I spoke truthfully when I said that I came to England in search of you father. We may both of us be the creatures that man would have you believe, but we have been husband and wife for eighteen years, and it is my duty to find out what has become of him. Therefore I stay.

I could see Ray's black eyes flashing. He almost gripped my arm as he drew me away. We three left the house together. At the bottom of the drive we met a carriage sent down from Rowchester. Ray stopped it.

"Blenavon and I will take this carriage to the station," he said. "Will you, Ducaine, return to Lady Angela and tell her exactly what has happened?"

"Oh, come, I'm not going to have that," Blenavon exclaimed.

"It will not be unexpected news," Ray said sternly. "Your sister suspects already."

"I'm not going to be bundled away and leave you to concoct any precious story you think fit," Blenavon declared, doggedly. "I—"

Ray opened the carriage door and gripped Blenavon's arm.

"Get in," he said, in a low, suppressed tone.

There was something almost animal in the fury of Ray's voice. I looked away with a shudder. Blenavon stepped quietly into the carriage. Then Ray came over to me, and as he looked searchingly into my face, he pointed up the carriage drive.

"Boy," he said, "you are young, and you look like a ghost. You ought to take a rest now. You ought to want one, at any rate."

Then the smile faded from her lips and the anxiety of a sudden thought possessed her.

"I have not heard a word from Colonel Ray," she said. "It terrifies me to think that he may have told my father about Blenavon."

"You must insist upon it that he does not," I declared. "Your brother has left England, has he not?"

"He is at Ostend."

"Then Colonel Ray will keep his word," I assured her. "Besides, you have written to him, have you not?"

"I have written," she answered. "Still, I am afraid. He will do what he thinks right, whatever it may be."

"He will respect your wishes," I said.

"He is not an easy person to influence," she murmured. "I doubt whether my wishes, even my prayers, would weigh with him a particle against his own judgment. And he is severe—very severe."

I said nothing, and we walked for some time in silence.

"Next week," she said abruptly, "I must go back to London."

"Next week," she said abruptly, "I must go back to London."

It was too sudden! I could not keep back the little exclamation of despair. She walked for some time with her head turned away from me, as though something on the dark, clear horizon across the waters had fascinated her, but I caught a glimpse of her face, and I knew that my secret had escaped me. Whether I was glad or sorry I could not tell. My thoughts were all in hopeless confusion. When she spoke there was a certain reserve in her tone. I knew that things would never again be exactly the same between us. Yet she was not angry! I hugged that thought to myself. She was startled and serious, but she was not angry.

"One season is very much like another," she said, "but it is not possible to absent oneself altogether. Then afterwards there is Cowes and Homburg, and I always have a plan for at least three weeks in Scotland. I believe we shall close Rowchester altogether."

"The Duke?" I asked.

"He never spends the summer here," she answered. "We are generally together after July, so perhaps" she added, "you may have to endure more of my company than you think."

She looked at me with a faint, provoking smile. How dare she? I was master of myself now, and I answered her coldly.

"I shall be very sorry to leave here," I said. "I hope if my work lasts so long that I shall be able to go on with it at the 'Brand.'"

She made no answer to that, but in a moment or two she turned and looked at me thoughtfully.

"You are rather a surprising person," she remarked, "in many ways. And you certainly have strange tastes."

"Is it a strange taste to love this place?" I asked.

"Of course not. But, on the other hand, it is strange that you should be content to remain here indefinitely. Solitude is all very well at times but at your age I think that the vigorous life of a great city should have many attractions for you. Life hereafter all, must become something of an abstraction."

"It contents me," I declared shortly.

"Then I am not sure that you are in an altogether healthy frame of mind," she answered, coolly. "Have you no ambitions?"

"Such as I have," I muttered, "are hopeless. They were built on sand—and they have fallen."

"Then reconstruct them," she said. "You are far too young to speak with such a note of finality."

"Some day," I answered, "I suppose I shall. At present I am content to live on amongst the fragments. One needs only imagination. The things one dreams about are always more beautiful and perhaps more satisfying than the things one does."

Again our eyes met, and I fancied that this time she was looking a little frightened. At any rate she knew. I was sure of that.

"What an ineffective sort of proceeding!" she murmured.

A creek separated us for a few minutes. When we came together again I asked her a question.

"There is something, Lady Angela," I said, "which, if you would forgive the impertinence of it, I should very much like to ask you."

She moved her head slowly, as though giving a tacit consent. But I do not think that she was quite prepared for what I asked her.

"When are you going to marry Colonel Ray?"

Your Time Is Not Yours

It Belongs to Those Depending on You. For Their Sakes Preserve Health and Strength.

You never thought of it just this way before. While not feeling well you have neglected to take active means of restoring health, thinking all the time that you were the only one to suffer by delay.

Not so. For who among us has not someone depending on him for comfort, happiness or the means of livelihood?

When you lie awake nights, worrying over little things, get nervous and irritable, have indigestion and headaches, you may be sure the nervous system is becoming exhausted.

Time is not yours to delay. You must call a halt to the wasting process. Otherwise you will have a rude awakening some day, when prostrations, paralysis or locomotor ataxia lays you low. For such is the natural and inevitable result of neglected, nervous diseases.

You can restore the nervous system by using Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food. Being composed of Nature's most potent nerve restoratives, it cannot fail to benefit you. Each dose must of necessity bring you nearer to health, strength and vigour.

Mr. William Brandon, Victoria street, Strathroy, Ont., writes: "Before using Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food my nervous system seemed all unstrung. I could not sleep, had no appetite, hands and feet were cold, my digestion was poor and I had jerking of the limbs. The first box of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food helped me, and I continued until I had taken twenty-four boxes. This treatment has made a radical change in my condition, building up the system and overcoming the worries."

Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

IS THINNESS EMBARRASSING?

Undoubtedly It Is to Many a Maiden and Youth—While Even Those Well Along in Years Prefer Well-Rounded Figures.

Prescription Increases Weight.

A scrawny, gangling youth or maiden is almost invariably slighted, over-looked or ridiculed in any social gathering. There is something about a plump or well proportioned figure which attracts not only friendship, but love and adulation as well.

People with a proper amount of flesh are favoured in all walks of life, while the thin are unblessed, unwelcome and frequently miserable for life. The difference lies in the power of the digestive functions and the ability of the blood and nerves to absorb and distribute over the body the nutrition extracted from the food eaten.

The thin person is abnormal and lacks the power to absorb and retain the flesh and fat elements which the gastric juices in the stomach and intestines should extract or separate from all kinds of food and drink.

A recent accidental discovery has proven that tincture cadomene when blended with certain other drugs, will add from one to three pounds of flesh per week during treatment, while the general health and strength also improves wonderfully.

Get in a half pint bottle, three ounces of essence of pepsin and three ounces of syrup of rhubarb; then add one ounce compound essence cardiol; shake and let stand two hours; then add one ounce tincture cadomene compound, (not cardamom). Shake ewll and take a teaspoonful before and after meals, drinking plenty of water between meals and when retiring.

FIREMEN'S UNIFORMS

The Fire, Water and Light committee of the City Council visited the fire hall Friday night, and inspected the brigade in their new uniforms. The men, donned their new suits and assembling in the capacious south bedroom, went through a brief drill under the capable command of Chief Howard, in a manner that would reflect considerable credit on a crack company in a military organization. The new uniforms are the work of Mr. Geo. Ball, and the cloth in Forbes' 24 oz. indigo blue military serge, manufactured at Hespeler, Ontario. The tailoring is perfect, while the Canadian cloth is far superior to the English military serge, being more closely woven, which enhances its durability. The outfit cost the city $238.65, for 13 suits and an officer's tunic, and the only drawback apparent is that the suits while admirably adapted to winter wear are too heavy for summer use.

The committee and Chief Howard expressed their unqualified gratification at the highly satisfactory work of Mr. Ball, which left nothing to be desired. The chief says that these uniforms are the best the brigade ever had made, both in quality of workmanship and material.

An inspection of the fire hall revealed the fact that everything is kept spick and span, and that cleanliness prevails throughout. The gong was also sounded and it is difficult to conceive of any brigade manning their respective posts in quicker time. One could hardly turn around before the horses were out of the stalls and in harness, the lines in hand, and exit doors open. In fact Peterborough has reason to be proud of its fire hall, equipment and present well drilled brigade.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"WHEN ALL HAS BEEN SAID"

On Wednesday night, another Liebler and Company attraction is to be unveiled at The Grand for the benefit of local playgoers. It is Bayard Veiller's new comedy drama "When All Has Been Said," enacted by a splendid company. It is usually the case when a new attraction of this managerial firm reaches town, very little of the story of the play is unfolded in advance, inasmuch as it is considered good policy to reserve some little surprise for the audience on the night of the first performance. Just enough 2 is revealed to insure an interesting evening. The story contains two elements—a political campaign in which one candidate, a banker, is viciously attacked through his bank, the attack culminating in a run on his bank, and a strong domestic episode, the burden of which is borne by the well-drawn character of the manly, amusing little seven-year-old son of the banker. In the clever hands of the dramatist, Mr. Veiller, these divergent elements are welded into an absorbing and well-constructed four-act play. The play is said to carry a powerful human appeal, and is bound to prove one of the most attractive of the season.

In the strong company that Liebler and Company have gathered together for their production of "When All Has Been Said" appear the familiar names of Emily Stevens, cousin of Mrs. Fiske, and late leading woman for George Arliss; Charles Balsar, who was leading man in the New Theatre production of "Sister Beatrice"; Eugene Ormonde, last year leading man for Margaret Anglin; Master Thomas Tobin, a splendid boy actor, George Woodward, an old-timer, who is by no means a has-been; Joseph Sparks, a veteran of the Harrison and Hart forces, and a number of others of like calibre. Hugh Ford, master of stage-craft, staged the play. The seat sale opened this morning.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

Not long ago a woman wrote me a little story of a mother who had her little boy with her in a millinery shop. While she was looking at the new models, the boy went from hat to hat, examining them. Being of an investigating turn of mind, he was anxious to see what everything was made of, and on each hat would squeeze some ornament between his fingers, saying "That's glass" or "that's wax" or that's cloth" as the demolishment proved.

One of the clerks, catching sight of the destruction that was going on, bore down upon the youngster with a gentle "Oh, little boy, please, you mustn't." Whereupon the mother, instead of reproving the boy and apologizing for his actions, turned upon the clerk haughtily, announcing "He may play with all the hats he likes, and spoil every one in the shop if he wishes. His grandfather owns the store."

My correspondent winds up her tale by inquiring if I approve of the woman mother's conduct.

Seems to me that's very analogous to inquiring if I have any common sense at all.

That mother had the pleasure of discomfiting the saleswoman and bringing about a very dramatic denouement to the little incident. I wonder if that repaid her for the harmful lesson she taught her boy.

Instead of self-restraint and respect for the rights of others, she was impressing upon him his right to absolute self gratification.

Some day may be that son will run away and marry a chorus girl, or disgrace his family by stealing a few hundred thousands from some bank. And his mother will wring her hands and bewail her fate. Will she ever realize, I wonder, the part she had in making that fate?

Whenever I see children whose mothers allow and encourage them to treat their "inferiors"—shopkeepers, servants, etc.,—in a domineering way, I don't know which to be the more sorry for, the mothers, or the children.

Just the other day I saw a little girl, the pink-and-white-and-goldest little creature you ever saw, exquisite as a French doll, fresh and sweet looking as a May morning, sitting with the coachman on the box of a carriage in front of a shop, evidently waiting for her mother who shopped within. I stopped to admire her, and then I stopped admiring her. For Lady Goldiness decided that she wanted to get out and superciliously ordered the coachman to lift her down. In doing so he disarranged her coat and the dressing down this wretched little imitator of elders that didn't deserve to be imitated gave him, was a caution. I can tell you my admiration shrivelled up like an autumn leaf at the touch of the bonfire's flame.

It seems to me an axiom of child training that children should treat servants with thorough respect and courtesy, and that failure to do so should be punished as unfailingly as any other fault.

I have several times heard of servants who left good positions simply because they could not stand the freedom with which children were allowed to interfere with their work, and the insolence they were allowed to show toward them.

That shows bad mistresses and worse mothers. I am sorry for the servants who are obliged to leave good positions for this reason, sorry for the mothers who are piling up trouble for themselves, but most sorry of all for the children, whose characters these mothers are helping to spoil.

Aren't you?

YOUNG AT 80

Good Fellowship Guild Discussed "Brotherhood Of Man" Yesterday

There was a capital attendance of men at the Princess theatre yesterday afternoon, when the "Brotherhood of Man" was the subject of an interesting address and discussion, at the League of Goodfellowship.

The Rev. C. Carpenter, in introducing the subject, showed how his discourse on "A growing ideal" naturally led up to that of the brotherhood of man. He argued that universal brotherhood was not synonymous with democracy; that universal brotherhood did not mean levelling up of all grades. It was not the doctrine that led to anarchy and anarchy does not in any sense represent the brotherhood of man. From all time there had been different graduations. Holy Scripture proves it, for right through, from Genesis to Revelations there had been the Ruler and the ruled. And even in Heaven we are taught that there will be degrees of reward. But the essentials of brotherhood may be kept, and the various grades still maintained. Uniformity is an impossibility. Individuality cannot be merged in a community. It does not mean that individual ideas should be quashed for the sake of brotherhood. It is possible to hold them and to still have some brotherhood. As in nature there is great diversity and yet splendid unity; so there must be a mingling of individualities to produce perfect brotherhood.

Brotherhood does not mean the admission of every individual being, unless such a one is willing to take his share of responsibility. For instance a vast percentage of mankind is thoroughly criminal; whilst another portion is unable, through mental weakness. Neither of these classes can be real members of a universal brotherhood, for they are unable to discharge its responsibilities.

But what real strong brotherhood will do, is that it will realize that it must be its brother's keeper; it must educate the weaker to the acceptance of the idea, that brotherhood has its responsibilities as well as its privileges.

Jesus Christ taught the fundamental basis of true brotherhood, namely, to look upon our neighbour as ourself.

If one is in poverty, relieve him: if he is down, lift him up; if he is naked, clothe him; if he is in prison, visit him, comfort him, and try to lift him once more on to the plane of common humanity, and thus bring him back to be a law-abiding citizen. Humanity, at the root, is always the same.

Brotherhood maintains unanimity of aim and purpose, like yeast fermenting the whole, contributing and being contributed to, destroying selfishness and making the world better.

Tell the down-trodden and the despairing that they have still a chance, and that you will be their backers. Tell them, that though they are down to-day, they may rise and stand in their proper place to-morrow.

Thus shall selfishness be crushed, arrogance shall be brought down, autocracy shall be abolished and every man shall have the opportunity to make himself that highest and noblest creature which God intended him to be.

A number of men took part in the discussion.

During the interval Mr. T. Woodworth recited "The Newsboys' Debt."

MODERN DANCE IS A DETRIMENT TO THE WORK OF JESUS CHRIST

"The Ethics of the Dance" as Dealt With by Rev. W. T. Riddiford in the First of a Series of Special Sermons.

EVILS RESULTING

Modern dancing violates the universal recognized laws of health. It might be healthy exercise if carried on in a limited period of time in a gymnasium.

The dance of to-day contributes to the aimlessness and emptiness of the modern times.

Dancing undermines and exerts a positive influence in withholding young people from the Christian life. You don't find the Sunday golf players, the bridge devotees, and the dancers, at the weeknight prayer meeting.

The modern dance retards the work of Jesus Christ. If I was to go to a fashionable ball and dance, there would be a great howl in my congregation. Why not the pastor dance as well as some members of his flock.

Many girls attribute their degradation and downfall to the curse of passion, resulting from the dance.

The above are some of the statements uttered by Rev. W. T. Riddiford at the Park Street Baptist church last evening, in the first of his series of sermons on "Some Ethical Questions," dealing last night with "The ethics of the dance". The reverend speaker took a fair-minded view of the dance, and did not say to his congregation "You must not dance!" but left it entirely with the individual, pointing out the Biblical view of it. He spoke from the text: "Whatsoever you do, whether it be eating or drinking, do all to the Glory of God."

Before announcing his text, Rev. Mr. Riddiford introduced his subject by stating that no less than seven times had he been approached during the past month, by young girls, who asked him the rules of the Baptist Church in regard to dancing. He referred them to the teachings of Jesus Christ, the head of the Baptist Church. He, as their pastor, could not forbid them to dance. It rested with them individually, to find if it was God's will, by the study of His word. He intended to deal with the question as the Bible did.

"Did we ever stop to think if there was any harm in dancing?" Have we met the question fairly? Solomon says there is a time to dance, but the dance he refers to, was an expression of glory and gratitude. The text says: do all to the glory of God. When you dance, do you do it to God's glory? I have been to all kinds of dances, but I never saw one done to the glory of God. I am coming out against the modern dance, because I believe it to be a detriment to the work of the church. Taking a Biblical view of it, the ancient dance was a religious act, and was practised only on festive occasions, and in times of victory. Then it was done by the ladies alone. There were no dances of the sexes, save in the family of Job, and on that occasion the house fell in on them. The ancient dance was a promoter of debauchery and the modern dance was a hindrance to the work of Jesus Christ. Young girls fade away in sin with the curse of passion upon them, and all they say, because of the dance.

The reverend gentleman then went on to speak of the evils of the modern dance, as are outlined above. In conclusion, he pointed out to his hearers that it was an individual question which they must answer for themselves. He urged them to study God's word in regard to it, and then to obey the dictates of their own consciences.

Next Sunday Rev. Mr. Riddiford will speak on the "Ethics of the Theatre."

$1,267.17 WAS AMOUNT COLLECTED FOR THE CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY ON TAG DAY

Result of Campaign Was a Great Success—The Girls, Aided by Splendid Organization, Worked Faithfully and Well.

SOME FEATURES OF DAY

Amount in Boxes, $1,248.28.

Received after boxes were opened, $18.89.

Total amount from Tag Day, $1,267.17.

Expenses of Tag Day, $97.41.

Net results of Tag Day, $1,169.76.

The above figures express in a concrete form the results of undoubtedly the most successful fund raising campaign in the history of Peterborough.

The Tag Day Crusade under the auspices of the Children's Aid Society, was crowned with complete success. With a splendid organization, an adequate force of girls who worked energetically and well, and the hearty cooperation of the public, the event was a red letter day with the Society, the officers of which are delighted with the results, and with the manner in which their campaign was received by the people of Peterborough. The splendid sum collected in one day, for the most part in small amounts, shows how generally the public cooperated in the results.

The girls who acted as canvassers are to be congratulated upon the success of the affair. They worked unceasingly and pluckily, and never let up in their efforts for a moment. Some of the girls were at work at 7 o'clock in the morning, and from then until the close of the campaign at 9 o'clock Saturday night, they were busily engaged in tagging people. The result was that there were very few, indeed, who did not have at least one tag in a conspicuous place on their clothing on Saturday. Every place that promised any likelihood of yielding financial results was besieged by the girls. They visited the stations, banks, offices, everywhere where there was a chance of collecting some money in exchange for a tag. They met a liberal response wherever they went, and report the best of treatment on every hand. The girls had been carefully and systematically located to the different districts and the organization was splendidly arranged so as to produce the best results.

The ladies who had charge of the work in the market division report somewhat unfavourably against the returns from the agricultural community. The farmers did not seem to grasp the importance of the scheme, and the donations received from them were largely five cent pieces and coppers, quarters being in the minority. As a matter of fact about seven-tenths of the children requiring the help of the Society are from the rural districts.

Some funny incidents occurred during the day. In one case a well-known barber made a bet that he would not be tagged during the day. The bargain was that which ever won, the proceeds should be given the Society. Naturally the friend of the barber, and everyone else who heard of the wager, proceeded to see that he was kept busy. The result was a steady stream of tag girls to his shop, which kept up all day. Coaxing and persuasion were, however, of no avail, and finally when four girls arrived together it was suggested that they should tie a tag on Mr. Barber by main force. The ladies gallantly made the attempt but had to retire unsuccessful, and the tonsorial artist won his bet.

The ladies of the division of which the Examiner office was the headquarters headed the list for the day, getting the largest amount of the ten districts. So successful was the event that the Society has decided to make the Tag Day an annual event, and, therefore, claim the second Saturday in each November for their campaign.

The officers of the Society, Messrs. T. F. Matthews, president; Mr. Travers, vice-president; Mr. E. L. Goodwill, secretary; Mr. Peter Campbell, treasurer; Mr. Ritchie, Mr. T. H. Mulholland, Mr. George Cochrane, the agent, and the other gentlemen who assisted in the work and in the organization of the campaign, deserve great praise for the success scored. The ladies who supervised the work and the girls who sold the tags cannot be praised too highly.

Local Board Of Trade To Discuss Formation Of Provincial Board

In the Council Chamber of the Board of Trade of Toronto, on November 3rd, some 25 representatives from different cities and towns in Ontario, met and discussed a project of the utmost importance to the province, from an Agricultural, Commercial and Industrial point of view.

The object of the meeting was to sound the feeling of the different communities as to the advisability and feasibility of forming an Association which would incorporate all the Boards of Trade in the province.

Mr. W. J. Gage, of Toronto, the very energetic president of that Board, was appointed chairman, and that the Ontario associated Boards of Trade is now in the way of being an accomplished fact is due in a large measure to the energy and enthusiasm of that gentleman.

A tentative constitution was submitted and the following are among the objects to be considered by the Board when fully organized.

The stimulation of Ontario's agricultural industry, good roads in Ontario, University extension in the province of Ontario, an aggressive colonization policy for Ontario, the deepening of the Welland canal and the Great Lakes Waterways and Harbours, old Ontario and a publicity campaign through the London Office. Also consideration was given to those subjects which are of vital importance to the manufacturing and commercial communities.

Mr. Gillespie, president of the local Board of Trade has called a meeting for Tuesday, the 15th, to fully explain to the ePterborough members, the aims and objects of the new formed organization.

The number of delegates or representatives from each of the Boards of Trade is determined by the number of members on its roll, and if Peterborough is to maintain her prestige as a manufacturing community and a city of industrial prominence in Ontario, there will have to be a determined effort on the part of the Board of Trade to increase its membership to over 200. If this membership can be obtained the city will then be permitted to send eight representatives to the conferences of the Associated Boards. The importance of sending as large a representation as possible cannot be too strongly emphasized, and in a city of the size of Peterborough there should be no difficulty in the world strolling members to the number indicated.

A well organized, working Board of Trade can be of inestimable value to any town. It provides a recognized and organized forum for the free discussion of public and municipal questions and thereby developes an intelligent public opinion in regard there to.

Through the medium of the press, it is able to present to the general public the arguments and conclusions of important questions resulting from discussions which otherwise would be merely individual expressions of opinion.

The more successful Boards of Trade of the United States have considered a comprehensive and definite plan for the future development of the city, and through cooperation with the municipal government and a campaign of education of the citizens, accomplish results which possibly otherwise would not be obtained.

A Board of Trade need by no means confine its energies and thought wholly to questions of trade and commerce, but should enlarge its vision to embrace all those conditions which contribute to the ideal community. It

MR. JOHN FINLAY, EX-M. P. HAS PASSED AWAY

Well Known Norwood Manufacturer, Who Represented East Peterborough in Parliament for a Term, Died Yesterday---A Life-Long Resident of the County.

One of the best known residents of Peterborough County passed away yesterday morning at Norwood in the person of Mr. John Finlay, ex-M.P., a life-long resident of this district and a gentleman who was held in the highest esteem and respect by every one who knew him. Mr. Finlay was very seriously ill a year ago but recovered and during the past summer had seemed to enjoy very good health. He had only recently completed a three weeks' trip through Western Ontario in the interests of his firm and had only been back home a short time when he became ill and grew steadily worse until his death came yesterday morning. The late Mr. Finlay was born in Dummer Township in the year 1836. His father, John Finlay, sr., was born in Ireland and came to Canada in 1832 settling soon after in Dummer Township where he resided until 1870 when he removed to Peterborough, dying here two years later. John Finlay, jr., learned in his youth the trade of carriage making and followed the same for fourteen years when he engaged in the manufacture of carriage goods in Norwood. In 1877 he met with a reverse when his factory was burned down, the loss being about $25,000. Undaunted he erected a larger and better factory and the business has been carried on ever since, during the late years going under the name of J. Finlay & Sons.

The late Mr. Finlay was elected to Parliament in 1904, in the Liberal interests, to represent East Peterborough and served that constituency faithfully during his four years in the House of Commons, from which he retired in 1908. Through all his representative career he showed an earnest anxiety to serve the interests of his constituents. He was a splendid type of citizen and held the respect of a very large circle of friends and acquaintances.

The deceased was twice married, his second wife surviving him. Three daughters and two sons are also left to mourn his loss. They are Mrs. R. N. Ackerman, of Norwood, Mrs. Fitzgerald of Tweed, Mrs. Callendar of Guelph, and Messrs Thomas and Alfred of Norwood.

The funeral will take place to-morrow, Tuesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock at Norwood.

Dr. Brown's Address In The Crystal Was Enjoyed

Yesterday was a big day at the local Y.M.C.A. Dr. John Brown of the International Committee of New York was a visitor at the Association over the week end and the Officers made good use of him.

The Men's Meeting was the biggest item on the programme. It was held in the Crystal Theatre where about one hundred and twenty men had gathered to hear an address on "The Strength of Men". There was more than usually good singing which was led by an Orchestra The Torry Alexander Hymn Book was used and some of the favorite hymns from that book were sung.

Dr. Brown gave the men some pretty straight advice, not merely on morals but on the care of their bodies. This they ought to do not only for their own sakes but for the sakes of those who would follow them in the next generation. He spoke of the need that those in authority in municipal government should recognize while the City is yet young, the great need to set apart places where the children of the present and of the future can play. He dwelt, too, on the need for public baths properly supervised. In conclusion he assured the men that it was only as they were united with God, through Jesus Christ that they could have true strength.

A good male quartette led by Mr. J. Miller rendered a selection in a manner that pleased the men immensely. Mr. Frank G. Hassard, read the lesson and Rev. W. C. Riddiford also assisted in the meeting.

On Saturday evening Dr. Brown met the Leaders' Corps at Dinner and gave them an interesting address on the work of the Physical Department. He was pleased to find that this body of men were well organized under the Physical Director and that they were doing a very important and unselfish work in leading men in the Gymnasium.

The first Strangers' Tea of the season was held last night in the Boy's Reading Room. The Ladies of the Charlotte Street Methodist Church provided a bountiful repast and it was thoroughly enjoyed by the men, all of whom were new comers to Peterborough.

Dr. Brown also addressed the Boys' Department on a theme of interest to the boys.

Two Bible Classes held their regular sessions in the building yesterday morning, one for adult members at 9.30 and another for Lads at 10.00 o'clock.

The Rev. W. C. Riddiford had a big night at the Boys' Department of the "Y" last Friday, when over 20 of the boys who had prepared themselves for the test were sworn in, from the Tenderfoot Class, to that of a real live Scout. Most of these boys now have at least a portion of their suits, and some have the complete outfits. As soon as the boys were sworn in they being very eager to get right down to work, were taken to the armouries by Mr. Hodges, the Scout Master, when a most profitable hour was spent in drilling. After which the boys returned to their rooms at the Y.M.C.A. and formed patrols, selecting three Patrol Leaders, the leaders selecting their own Corporals, and then the Patrol Leaders and Corporals selected the boys for their Patrols. On Saturday they were out scouting, the manouerring being in charge of the Patrol Leaders and Corporals and for the first attempt they made a favorable impression.

The following boys were selected as Patrol Leaders and Corporals.

Patrol Leaders, B. Armstrong, G. Matthews, B. Hamilton: Corporals, R. Reid, L. Quinn, L. Anderson.

Boy Scouts organized at St. Paul's Church, Friday night, the Boys' Secretary of the "Y" attended a Brotherhood meeting at the church for the purpose of organising Scouts which will be under the direct charge of the Y.M.C.A. Quite a number of boys signified their intention of becoming Scouts. A short talk was given the boys by Mr. Tait, explaining the Scout laws, etc., to them then the relation of the Y. to the Scouts of Peterborough was briefly explained. The Y.M.C.A. has formed a training class at which it is the intention of the Secretary to train Scout Masters, Patrol Leaders, Corporals, etc. In order that these boys may then look after the Scouts in connection with their various clubs. Some of the most able men attainable will be secured from time to time during the winter to give special talks and to teach along the lines in which they are expert. Any club in Peterborough may send their representatives to this class. All Church clubs especially invited to do so.

WAS REMANDED FOR A WEEK

Frank Beal, who appeared before Magistrate Dumble in the Police Court last Monday and was remanded for a wek, appeared again this morning and was again remanded. He pleaded not guilty to the charge of theft last Monday and to-day several witnesses were examined. Crown Attorney R. E. Wood conducted the prosecution while Mr Basil Hall appeared for the defence. It will be remembered at the White House on Friday night November 4th, and on the following Saturday, he told the the following Sunday he hold the proto too high and left, going to the Grand Hotel. After he left, a coat and vest were missed also two razors and 65c. vanished mysteriously. The suspicion fell on Beal and evidence given by the witnesses in the Police Court this morning went very hard against him.

Mr. White, proprietor of the White House gave evidence first. He corroborated the prisoner's statement, regarding the time of coming to the hotel, also his reason for leaving and so forth. Mr. White stated that he missed no personal property and nothing was missed except what the two boarders claimed.

Leslie McKeen, then went into the box. He stated that when he came to his room in the White House on Saturday evening, he missed his coat and vest. And then a coat and vest were produced in Court which he recognised to be his.

Mr. Robt. Anson, who also rooms with Mr. and Mrs. McKeen at the at the White House, gave evidence. He claimed that he misse dtwo razors. Two razors which it is alleged were in the possession of the prisoner were produced and the witness claimed them as belonging to him.

Mr. Jay, who keeps a second-hand store on Aylmer street told his story. He said that on Saturday, the 5th of November, the prisoner came into his store and sold him the coat and vest, which were in court for $1.25. He also stated that the prisoner gave him his address as 195 George St.

A local pawn broker gave evidence to the effect that the prisoner came into his store the same day with two razors, those which were in court and sold them to him for 50 cents. He gave his name as F. J. Barker, and address as 195 Charlotte St.

Both the clothes and the razors were recognized by their respective owners in Court, and other evidence went hard against the prisoner. Beal claimed that he had been employed with the Morgan & Wright Rubber Tire Company, as a tire maker, and later engaged with a harness manufacturing firm in Toronto. He got on the 'booze' and came to Peterborough, where he got into trouble.

A remand for a week was asked for in order that further evidence could be looked into. It was granted and the Court adjourned.

MILK WAGGON BADLY DAMAGED IN RUNAWAY AT NOON TO-DAY

Fortunately the last call had been made this morning when a milkman's horses got frightened and, before their mad dash for liberty was terminated, had caused a good deal of damage to the outfit. The runaway team and milk waggon belonged to Mr. Bert Miller, of the second line of Smith. Just at noon the horses took fright on Stewart street, and at a wild gallop tore up the street as far as Brock St. where they turned into Rubidge St., and down Kirk street, where the vehicle collided with a tree and was badly smashed. Here one of the animals broke away and it is said made straight for its home. The other one was stopped and was taken home by its owner. Considerable damage was done to the waggon. The milk had however, been all delivered.

Broke Handle Of Pitchfork Over His Neighbour's Head---Case Heard

A local man who was arrested at Young's Point, on a charge of having assaulted and having done actual bodily harm to Joseph Young, his neighbour, appeared before Magistrate Edmison, in the Police Court, this morning. It appears from the evidence adduced that there has been a feud existing between the two parties for the past six years, and on this day of the assault the complainant stated in the witness box this morning, that the prisoner broke the handle of his pitch fork over his head, inflicting a cut over an inch long, a quarter of an inch wide and the same in depth. Dr. Graham of Lakefield attended Mr. Young, and gave evidence this morning as to the injuries.

The prisoner's own son witnessed the assault and testified as to what took place. The accused in his own defence, went into the box and denied the allegations of the complainant. Magistrate Edmison stated that he would reserve judgment for a few days. The prisoner was defended in court this morning by Mr. C. N. Gordon of O'Connell and Gordon, and Crown Attorney R. E. Wood conducted the prosecution, assisted by Mr. O. A. Langley, of Lakefield.

GIFT IS INCREASED

Great Canadian's Total Fund For the Extension of Physical and Military Education In the Schools of Canada Is Now Half a Million—To Make the Children Patriotic, Is Strathcona's Wish.

Ottawa, Nov. 14 Lord Strathcona has given another striking evidence of his sterling patriotism and his great generosity. He has written to the Minister of Militia and Defence, Sr Frederick Borden, announcing a further gift of $200,000 to the Strathcona trust for the encouragement of physical and military training in the public schools of Canada. With the $300,000 which he gave for this purpose last year, this further generous gift brings the total of the fund up to the splendid sum of $500,000, and assures the committee in charge of the administration of the fund an annual amount of $20,000 to assist in the joint work of the Federal and Provincial Governments towards the establishment of a uniform system of physical and elementary military training for the youth of the Dominion.

In March of last year Lord Strathcona donated a first sum of $250,000 for this purpose. This was supplemented a little later by an additional

LORD STRATHCONA.

$50,0000. Now that the Minister of Militia has completed arrangements with nearly all the provinces for the adoption of a scheme of co-operative action in the matter of making physical training and elementary military drill a part of the education of the boys and girls of Canada, Lord Strathcona has nearly doubled the central fund available for establishing the movement on a permanent and assured basis of success.

The Federal Government has taken over the whole amount from the trustees of the fund, and has guaranteed interest at four per cent. per annum, thus giving an annual amount of $20,000 to be administered by the Strathcona Trust Fund Board under the conditions of the original donation.

The object of the fund may be briefly set forth by a quotation from Lord Strathcona's letter of March 23, 1909, announcing his first gift of $250,000. His Lordship then wrote:

"My object is not only to help to improve the physical and intellectual capabilities of the children by inculcating habits of alertness, orderliness and prompt obedience, but also to bring up the boys in patriotism and to a realization that the first duty of a free citizen is to be prepared to defend his country. The Dominion at the present time, and for many years to come, can hardly hope to be able to give so long a period of training to her military forces as by itself would suffice to make them efficient soldiers, but if all the boys had acquired a fair acquaintance while at school with simple military drill and rifle-shooting, the degree of efficiency which could be reached in the otherwise short period which can be devoted to the military training of the Dominion forces would, in my opinion, be enormously enhanced. I will only add that I should prefer that for the present at least the whole of the money grant should be devoted to those educational establishments which maintained entirely out of public funds. I think further that the administration of the fund should be such as to enable both sexes, whether teachers or pupils, to share in the rewards, and that the allotment of the money should be so made as to afford an inducement both to the teachers to instruct and to the pupils to perfect themselves in the training desired."

REDMOND RETURNS

General Opinion Is That British Premier Will Dissolve the Present Parliament and Secure Another Election Before the Holidays — His Veto Proposals Would Be Delayed Too Long In the Lords.

London, Nov. 14. A Cabinet meeting today or to-morrow will decide what step the Government will take to bring the political crisis to a focus. The plan most likely to be agreed upon is the immediate dissolution of Parliament. While the Government might send a bill embodying its veto proposals to the House of Lords for consideration, the Lords would certainly reject it, but probably would consume much time in its consideration, and discuss the general question of the reform of the Upper House along the lines suggested by Lord Rosebery last session. Immediate dissolution will save time, and perhaps make possible the holding of the elections before the holidays.

Premier Asquith returned Saturday from Sandringham, where he was in consultation with the King. He left quickly for a brief stay in the country. The other members of the Cabinet are scattered in the provinces. No further steps in arranging the Government's program are likely before the Cabinet meets.

"Home Rule and Home Ruin With American Money," "England for Sale," "Bid Two Hundred Thousand Dollars." These headings appeared yesterday in The Sunday Observer, which first started the campaign of the Conservative press in favor of federal home rule. The paper publishes three columns, denouncing "the unparalleled ignominy of the attempt to wreck the British constitution with American money."

Frederick E. Smith, M.P. for Liverpool, a prominent Conservative, speaking at Brockley Saturday night, ridiculed Premier Asquith, as the successor of Chatham, declaring that he was powerless until the appearance of the uncrowned king of political mendicants, with his pockets bulging with American gold.

Redmond Given Ovation.

Queenstown, Nov. 14.—John E. Redmond, leader of the Irish Parliamentary party, which has been on an extended tour of America, arrived here Saturday night on the steamship Celtic, from New York. There was a big gathering of representatives of public bodies and political parties, as special interest attaches to Mr. Redmond's home-coming with reference to the Nationalists in the present political crisis. Replying to an address of welcome, Mr. Redmond dwelt with enthusiasm on his reception in America.

Like Parnell's Home-Coming.

Cork, Nov. 14 No such demonstration has been witnessed at Cookhaven since Parnell returned from his American tour in 1880, as the welcome given to John E. Redmond and other members of the Irish deputation, when the steamship Celtic appeared Saturday. Great bonfires burned on all the hilltops, salutes were fired and rockets sent up.

Blames Crisis on Redmond.

Dungarvon Nov. 14. Mr. Redmond's American speeches were responsible for the present political crisis, according to William O'Brien, the leader of the faction of the Nationalists opposed to Redmond, in an address here Saturday night. Mr. O'Brien declared that Mr. Redmond had repudiated his own words, and this had stirred up the Tory party to revolt and wreck the veto conference.

Train Struck Street Car.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Nov. 14 Eight persons were killed Saturday night, when the Michigan Central express running five hours late, struck a Main street car. About a dozen were injured, one fatally.

The known dead are: Motorman Ward Abbott, Miss Bertha Heasler, Hazel Hart, James Breeze, William Shaffer, Henry Holtz.

Conductor Vern Vanhorn had gone on the track to flag his car ahead. Standing near the crossing was a string of box cars. Down the yards a short distance was an engine standing near a watertank. Seeing no train in sight, he motioned his car ahead. He had stepped aside to let his car pass, when the train came around a bend at terrific speed. The crash came just as Vanhorn stepped from between the train and his car. He escaped injury, but has been removed to his home, suffering from a nervous collapse.

Telegraphic Pole Broken.

Montreal, Nov. 14.—On Saturday night a few minutes after midnight, Bruce Currie, a buyer in the firm of Reo & Co., who came here a year ago from Toronto, was passing the St. Dominique street entrance to the General Hospital, when a telegraph pole fell down, breaking his back. A policeman who was near at hand carried the injured man into the hospital, where he was able to give his name and address, and shortly after asking that his wife be sent for, he expired. An inquest will be held to-day. Two companions were with Currie at the time of the accident.

TOLSTOI IS FOUND

Philosopher and Author Left a Note Saying That He Was Going to End His Days In Solitude—Countess Twice Attempted to End Her Life—Tolstoi Is Discovered on a Wealthy Man's Estate.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 14.—The Moscow correspondent of The Novoe Vremya says that Count Tolstoi has been found in the Mount Sensky district of Toli Province, on the estate of the Abrikosoffs, well-known manufacturers.

Because of the failure of the family to obtain any trace of Count Tolstoi, who vanished from his home at Yasnaya Polisna some days ago, the aged countess, who has borne him nine children, attempted suicide Saturday by jumping through a hole in the ice. It was her second attempt since her husband disappeared. Her daughter, Alexandra, saw her approach the frozen pond and realized her intentions. Aided by several peasants, she rescued her mother and carried her to the villa.

The disappearance of Count Tolstoi remained a family secret until Saturday. The news became known soon before the sending out of the report that the countess had against attempted suicide. A statement from the family discloses that the count left home in the company of Dr. Makovitsky, an old friend.

He left a note for the countess in which he wrote:

"I cannot continue longer to live surrounded by luxury, and like many other old men I intend leave the world to complete my life in solitude. I ask that you do not seek my place of sojourn and that you do not come to it if it is discovered. I asked forgiveness for the grief that I may cause you."

The count is 82 years old, and it is feared that his great mental powers have suddenly suffered collapse. His reference to living amid luxurious surroundings is significant of his state of mind, as he has long lived the life of a peasant. While his family occupied a substantial mansion on the Yasnaya Polisna estate, Tolstoi abode in a peasant's hut, partaking only of the simple peasant's food, and wearing peasant's costume, a rough blouse, wide trousers tucked into high cowhide boots, a leather belt and fur cap. He made his own boots and cooked his own meals.

Had Severe Pains In His Back.

Could Hardly Work.

Mr. Alfred E. Davis, Gorrie, Ont., writes: "For seven years I suffered from severe pains in my back and could hardly work at all, and when I stooped down to pick up anything felt as if my back must break. I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and after taking two boxes I was entirely cured, and feel that I cannot speak too highly in their favor.

"This was nearly four years ago and I still remain cured."

Those who have never been troubled with kidney trouble do not know the suffering and misery which those afflicted undergo.

Weak, lame or aching back comes from the kidneys, and when the kidneys are out of order the whole system becomes deranged.

They help the kidneys to flush off the acrid and poisonous impurities which have collected, thus cleaning out the kidneys, bladder and urinary passages.

could be of greatest assistance to the municipal government of a city, inasmuch as it provides an organized medium for the expression of public opinion on questions that may be engaging the attention of the councils. To accomplish results, require aggressive enthusiasm and the expenditure of thought, and study and time by the members, but if a community is to rise above the mediocre these sacrifices must be made, and to what worthier cause can a man devote his time and energy than for the advancement of the community in which he lives, moves and has his being, and thereby contributing to the health, happiness and prosperity of his fellow men.

The working of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade bear the same relation to the province that the individual organization does to its town or city; therefore, in supporting this new movement, it is assisting in the development, not only of our own town, but of our province and country as a whole; therefore should there not be an energetic effort on the part of the Board of Trade here by increasing its membership and its activity to greatly benefit Peterborough, and by the enlarged scope of its operation be a strong influence in the new organization.

SCENE OF AMAZING ACTIVITY.

Whole Chinese Empire Going In For Various Forms of Education.

During the last year or two the Chinese have taken up wireless telegraphy with especial earnestness states a writer who returned from that country not long ago after the third visit of six months' duration to the Chinese empire in the last ten years. Two hundred men are studying it in a school established by the Government especially for the purpose. There are many wireless stations at Tibet. And even the small Chinese river gunboats are equipped with wireless. The whole empire to-day, in short, is a scene of amazing military and educational activity. Wherever I went on the trains I saw military camps, in which part of the 5,000,000 army which China is mobilizing, is being trained. Schools are being opened literally by thousands. There are railroad schools, telegraph schools, postoffice schools, custom house schools normal schools, laboratories, museums and libraries. The teachers in these schools are partly foreign, but chiefly native. All these schools have recently been established by the Imperial Government itself to further the national desire for being up to date. The Chinese admire the English-speaking races, and turn their thumbs up as a sign of gratification whenever they see one of our fellow-countrymen.

In spite of the fact that the Imperial Government is giving the Chinese every possible concession in the way of education, there is considerable dissatisfaction at being governed under a regency. China's last three monarchs have been babies when they first came to the throne. The Chinese feel that they are passing through a critical period of their history, and that they need especially now a full-grown man to govern them. For this reason, what might be called China's "anti-baby" feeling is very strong.

Making Cigarette Paper.

Rice paper, with which cigarettes are made, has nothing to do with rice, but is made from the membranes of the breadfruit tree, or, more commonly, of fine, new trimmings of flax and hemp. France makes cigarette papers for the whole world, the output of Austria and Italy being insignificant.

So light is this paper that 500 of the tiny sheets goes to the ounce. They are perfectly combustible and give off the minimum of smoke. Before being rolled with tobacco they are analyzed to prove that they are free from deleterious ingredients and that they contain nothing but the purest paper fiber.

Only new material—flax and hemp trimmings—is used, and these are thoroughly purified. Chopped by machinery into minute particles, they are well mixed by a revolving fan, and then reduced almost to dust. This is placed in a solution of lime and soda.

In order that every foreign substance may be eliminated it undergoes a thorough washing process, the water being obtained from artesian wells sunk for the purpose.

The pulp is again crushed and rolled out into paper. This is of a grayish tinge and the pure white of the finished leaf is obtained by an electric process, which also cleanses it of all possible impurities.

Amended It.

When King George was Prince of Wales one of his body servants was once trying to explain to Sir Arthur Bigge some incident that had taken place.

"Me and the prince"—he began.

"You should say 'the prince and I,'" he observed. The man looked at him for a moment and then said:

"I beg pardon, sir, but I did not know you were there at all. However, you and me and the prince."

Sir Arthur was compelled to laugh at this and, after another attempt to explain to the man how the story should be told, was content to let him tell it in his own fashion.—Pearson's Weekly.

Naming the Baby.

Down in Princeton there is a baby four months old who has not yet been christened. It has worried the friends of the parents, for they are anxious to know what the child is to be called. The other day a friend of the father stopped him on the street and said:

"Named the baby yet?"

"No, not yet," was the answer.

"Well, why don't you name him?"

"What's the use? He's red-headed an't he?"

"But what difference does that make?"

"All the difference in the world. It wouldn't do us any good to name him. The kids wouldn't call him by it anyhow."

Curved Bridges of Japan.

The curved bridges of Japan are of three kinds—first, those known as spectacle bridges, with an arch in the centre suggesting a pair of spectacles; second, the camel back bridges, which go up very high indeed; third, the ordinary one arch, semicircular bridges. The reason the Japanese so often have curved bridges is because until modern times they could not build them flat, and even to-day there is no keystone to the Japanese arches. They are not generally familiar with the keystone. A great many of two classes of bridges—the camel back and the high curved bridges—are found in the palace grounds at Pekin, in China.

A Tragedy.

"Deceiver!" she hissed. "I hate you!"

"Hate me!" gasped her affianced. "Why, it was only yesterday you said you loved every hair on my head."

"Yes, but not every hair on your shoulder!" she retorted as she held up a bit of golden evidence.

The Diamond.

While the diamond is the hardest substance known, it is also brittle and may be fractured by a blow. But if it is placed between two hard steel faces in a hydraulic press and a slowly accelerating pressure applied the hard steel will become indented.

Laughter.

Laughter is recommended as a cure for indigestion. It looks easy to the person who is not afflicted with indigestion.—Seattle Mail.

IDLENESS AND POVERTY

THEY ARE RESULTS OF YEARS OF MISRULE IN COREA.

The Monotony and Decay That Characterize Corean Towns Are Outcome of Corruption That Dates Away Back Into Middle Ages—Japanese and Their Methods Are Not Welcome, But Are Inevitable.

The isolation which earned for Corea the name of the Hermit Kingdom has also preserved its peculiar customs unchanged. In the costumes of the people, which seem more suitable for a comic opera than practical use, the primitive construction of houses and the national customs Corea today is practically the Corea of a thousand years ago.

To-day the traveler who crosses from Japan may land at the harbor of Fusan, because it has been selected as the railroad centre of the country by the Japanese. The first impression upon landing is the absolute lack of any color. Southern Corea is practically destitute of trees. Its forests were chopped down, the story goes, in order the more easily to do away with the country's former scourge, the tiger; more probably the reason was that the people needed wood and with typical improvidence forgot to plan for the future.

The impression of the country on nearing land is therefore of darkness, the town itself adding only the gleaming white of sandy, sun-baked streets and costumes equally white in effect if not too closely examined, for the Coreans, men and women alike, save those of the upper classes, wear curious white cotton garments consisting of long baggy trousers and a long coat of simple cut that closes with a bow near the right shoulder. For the married men the effect is made even more ridiculous by a black hat, narrow of brim and high of crown, under which their long hair must be gathered in a knot.

The appearance of Corean towns and cities, even of Seoul, the capital, is monotonous and depressing once the impression of universal and complete poverty, filth and decay has worn off. For though social distinctions are said to be as strict in this [illegible] as they are in others they have no outward expression in the [illegible] of living, for with the exception of court and king the nation lives in mud huts, usually of two rooms, covered with straw roofs and opening in the back on small yards or compounds surrounded by mud walls of varying but formidable height.

Sanitation in spite of the efforts of the religious missions and the Japanese is practically non-existent; the heating in winter is done in a kang, a stove similar to that of the Chinese, in which the fire is made underneath the stone floor. It gives no warmth at all or makes the room unendurably hot, besides being very dangerous. The chimney is a hole in the side of the house near the ground.

In the compound domestic animals are kept if the family possesses any, and in one corner sunk into the ground are the kimshi jars. Kimshi is the universal winter food, a preparation of cabbage, tomatoes, onions and red peppers tightly packed, covered with straw and set aside to ferment. The older the mixture and the stronger the odor the greater delicacy it is considered.

The street picture increases the impression of a hopeless poverty against which the people have ceased to struggle. There is little activity. A few ox drawn carts go slowly lumbering by and occasionally men pass carrying enormous loads on their backs, for in Corea man is the commonest beast of burden.

The majority of the population in various states of dress and undress are stretched out in the little spots of shade, sleeping, laughing or tessing one another. Idleness leads to scuffles here and there, but as a rule graceful lethargy prevails. Naked children play in the dirty sewer water which usually runs through a ditch in the middle of the street. Everywhere is indescribable filth and a calm acceptance of it.

The reason commonly given for the condition of this pauper kingdom is the official corruption, which is of such ancient date that it has almost become honorable. From the king to the lowest man in authority stealing, or squeezing as it is called in the east, was the common means of existence, openly carried on. If any citizen built a house, owned property, or showed other indication of means he or one of his relatives was promptly imprisoned and the family was forced to ransom him.

What the official stole from the people the courtier took from his inferior and the king helped himself universally. When the people had nothing left the king sold to wealthy nobles the right to coin money, which they made the most of by using any inferior metal and by continuing even after the right had expired. The country was soon so full of debased coins that at one port there were quotations current in 1901 for (1) Government nickels; (2) first-class counterfeits; (3) medium class counterfeits, and (4) counterfeits so poor as to be passable only after dark.

The result of this system was that all manner of work was discouraged until labor fell into discredit. Why amass wealth that would surely be stolen? One class copied the lesson of idleness from its superiors with the result that even the poorest and lowliest citizen considered labor beneath him.

The Coreans can make no effective opposition to the Japanese, for poverty, lack of arms and organization make their efforts useless against the large and well-train Japanese army against Japanese superiority as a race and Japanese advantages of experience and training in matters political and social.

Suffered for Years From Constipation and Sick Headache.

Headache seems habitual with many people; indeed, some are seldom, if ever, free from it, suffering continually, and wondering why they can get no relief. The most frequent of all are bilious or sick headaches, and are caused by some derangement of the stomach or bowels, or both.

Burdock Blood Bitters regulates the digestive and biliary organs, removes acidity of the stomach, improves digestion, regulates the constipated bowels, and promotes a perfect circulation of pure blood to all portions of the body.

Mrs. C. Meadows, Clarkeburg, Ont., writes: "For years I was troubled with sick headache and dizziness, and was also constipated. I was advised to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I only took three bottles of the medicine, and now feel like a new person as I am completely cured. I can truthfully testify that B.B.B. is the best medicine I have ever used."

Burdock Blood Bitters, has, during the last 35 years, built up an unrivalled reputation as a cure for all troubles arising from a constipated condition of the bowels.

He came to Peterborough from Fenelon Falls many years ago and had ever since resided in Peterborough where he was well known as a painter and decorator. He had carried out many big contracts, his last being the painting of the new Public Library. He had been a member of the 57th Regiment for many years, holding the rank of Staff-Sergeant and by no one will he be missed more than by officers and men of the Rangers. Some years ago he received his long-service medal, signifying that he had served twenty years in the Militia. The late Mr. Sharpe was also for many years a member of the old Peterborough Volunteer Fire Brigade and was a useful servant of the city in that capacity. Twenty-three years ago he was married to Miss Louisa Rutherford, who with two children Irene and Ruby, survive him. There are also left to mourn his loss, his mother, three sisters, Mrs Arthur Tebb of Vancouver, B.C., Mrs. Samuel Crawford of Toronto and Mrs. Thos. Emmerson of Peterborough and two brothers, Messrs. William L. and Joseph E., residing in this city. The funeral will take place from his late residence, 510 College Street, on Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock to the Little Lake Cemetery and will be conducted under the joint auspices of the military bodies and the Oddfellows, the deceased having been a member of the Otonabee Lodge, I.O.O.F. The service at the house wil take place at 2.30.

MISS ELIZA J. STAPLES.

A very well-known resident of Cavan Township passed away at Port Hope on Thursday last, Nov. 10, when the death occurred of Mrs. Eliza Jane Staples, relict of the late Samuel Staples. The deceased had lived in Cavan for the greater part of her life and was known and liked by everyone in the district. She had an unusually large circle of friends, her sterling character and many amiable qualities winning her the respect and affection of everyone. She was a staunch member of the Methodist church and a very active church worker.

She is survived by three sons—Messrs Harry, Joseph and Fred, all living in Cavan, and by two daughters, Mrs. Purser of Port Hope, and Mrs. Sutton of Cavan.

The funeral took place yesterday to the Cavan cemetery and was largely attended.

Among those who were present from Peterborough was Mrs. Geo. Syer, a friend of the deceased for many years.

EMILY ELIZA GARDINER

There passed away at an early hour Sunday morning, Emily Eliza Gardiner, widow of the late Dr. C. H Gardiner, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. Strain, Robinson street, East City. The deceased had reached the age of 73 years and had always seemed to enjoy the best of health During the past year her strength has commenced to wane, and gradually she grew weaker until it was plain to all that it was merely a matter of time when she would be but a memory for those, who would be left behind. The end came in the first hour of another blessed Sabbath, and was calm and peaceful. The deceased had resided with her daughter, in East City for the past nine years and previous to that had lived in Bannockburn. She was of the old U. E Loyalist stock and was a native of Prince Edward County. One brother, Mr. Marshall Browne of Picton, is the only survivor of the family, who, with her daughter and grandson, Mr Arthur Wort, are left to mourn her loss.

The funeral will take place from the residence of Mrs. John Strain 70 Robinson street, on Tuesday, November 15, at 2 p.m., to Little Lake cemetery.

A BRISTOL CLASS VESSEL

Order Is Placed With a British Firm For a Five Thousand Ton Warship For Canadian Navy—Will Have Eight Six-Inch Guns and a Speed of 28 Knots—Australian Commonwealth Getting Two.

Ottawa, Nov. 15.—It has transpired that the Dominion Government has ordered a cruiser of the improved Bristol class, to be built in a British dock yard. The vessel will be of rather over 5,000 tons, will have an armament of eight 6-inch guns, five of which can be fired on each broadside, and a probable speed of from 25 to 28 knots, or about 32 statute miles per hour. The Bristol, the latest vessel of this type to be constructed has made 27 knots, or 30 1-2 miles an hour. The ship should be ready in about 20 months, or about June or July, 1912.

The Commonwealth of Australia has ordered two such vessels, which are actually building now on the Clyde yards. In addition, the Australian Government has two large torpedo boat destroyers, which have been built in Great Britain, and now are in Australia, while a third has been sent out to Australia, and will be assembled there.

In addition two huge armored cruisers, the Australia and New Zealand, are being built in Great Britain for the two British countries which their names commemorate. Each is of some 9,000 displacement, each has eight 12-inch guns, and each will steam about 30 knots, or 35 miles an hour. They will be completed in 1912.

WOUNDS WAITRESSES

James Shaw Enters Restaurant and Wounds Mrs. Bessie Brookes Jones and Mrs. Georgina Carr, In Revenge For a Fancied Insult—Mother of One of the Women Says Jealousy Was Cause.

Toronto, Nov. 15. Crazed by continued drinking and a fancied insult, James Shaw, a laborer, 25 years of age, yesterday afternoon shot and dangerously wounded two young women, waitresses in the restaurant at 233 King street east, where he boarded. Both are in the hospital and one may not recover. Shaw was followed by a kitchen helper, who, with two other citizens, overpowered him, took away his revolver and held him for the police. He is charged with attempted murder.

The women shot are Mrs. Bessie Brookes Jones, 22 years of age, 235 King street east, and Mrs. Georgina Carr, 17 years of age, same address.

Mrs. Jones is shot through the right shoulder, the bullet entering above her breast and coming out behind the shoulder blade, and is in St. Michael's Hospital, while Mrs. Carr is in the General Hospital with a wound in her back, just above the hip, where the bullet entered, breaking the lower right rib and was extracted immediately in front of it. Without blood poisoning, she will recover.

Bessie Jones gave the following version of the shooting: "Shaw had boarded in the restaurant for about a week and had a room upstairs. He had been drinking heavily of late. Today he came in the worse of liquor. I asked Georgina Carr to go upstairs for a cloth. He stood at the foot of the staircase and tried to keep her from going up. She got past him, went up and came down again. He went upstairs then, got a revolver, came down and started to shoot."

Meanwhile a police ambulance was summoned and the women hurried to the hospitals. Mrs. Carr being taken in an auto. At the General it was thought that Mrs. Carr was dying, and Crown Attorney Corley and Detective Taylor went down, taking Shaw, so that he might be identified by the girl, and also to take her ante-mortem statements. Finding there was no immediate danger, they refrained from exciting her and Shaw was taken back to the cells.

Mrs. Greendale says that Shaw has boarded there about a week, but has always been tractable until last Saturday night, when he quarrelled with a man in the restaurant and after throwing potatoes at the other patron's wife, Mrs. Carr had sent Mary for a policeman who wouldn't make an arrest because Shaw lived there and didn't leave the premises. When the trouble was over Shaw had remarked, "I'll make it even with you. I'll make it even with all of you for that."

According to Mrs. Oakley, the mother of Georgina Carr, it was a case of jealousy.

"Some months ago," she says, "Shaw caught hold of my arm outside of here, and I told him to stop that as I had a baby in my arms. He said 'How would you like to have me for a son-in-law.' I told him I would not have any man like that marry my daughter."

Besides this, trouble with Bessie seems to have been brewing for some time. Last week Shaw asked Bessie to go to a theatre with him, but she refused. Some years ago she was married, but got a divorce in Illinois, and now, it is said, is keeping company with a young man who boards at the restaurant.

Mrs. Carr is a granddaughter of Mrs. Greendale, and was married on the quiet about a month ago.

Shaw, it is said, had been drinking steadily during last week, but did not seem to be drunk yesterday. He is an undersized and even insignificant looking man. He says he is a Canadian and a laborer, but the police do not think that he ever exerts himself. He has never been through their hands before.

"I'll take you some time to prove this on me," he said to Inspector Davis, as he was being searched. "There will be money in this for me. Some of you people will pay for it."

Fear Foul Play.

Quebec, Nov. 15. Grave rumors are current in the city relative to the death of Arthur Cardinal, whose body was found drowned last week in the Louise Basin. Cardinal was last seen on Oct. 16, when he was in company with another man on St. Andrew street. On leaving house he had nearly $100 on his person, and a watch and chain. Neither the money nor the watch and chain were found on the body, which leads to the belief that the unfortunate man met with foul play.

To Recognize All Degrees.

Ottawa, Nov. 15.—The dream of complete reciprocity in the recognition of medical degrees which has been entertained by the progressive physicians and surgeons of Canada for a generation past seems to be on the eve of realization. Soon after the opening of Parliament, Dr. J. B. Black, M.P. for Hants, N.S., will introduce a bill to amend the act of 1902 and ensure the recognition of degrees by all the provinces.

He Was a Spy.

London, Nov. 15.—Lieut. Siegfried Helm, the German army officer who was arrested charged with having made sketches of the fortifications of Portsmouth harbor, yesterday pleaded guilty, and was placed under bonds of $1,250 not to repeat the offence.

POPULATION DWINDLING

Toronto Man In Address Before Canadian Club, Says Population of Rural Ontario Has Decreased Over 86,000 In the Past Twenty Years—He Says Protection Is to Blame For State of Affairs.

Toronto, Nov. 15. "A rural decrease of 86,000 in twenty years, after an exhaustive drain during the previous thirty years, a rural birthrate scarcely exceeding the death rate, an urban increase of 450,000—that is a condition for which every consideration of patriotism and sound national life demands an immediate remedy," said Gordon Waldron, barrister and political economist, in addressing the Canadian Club yesterday on the depopulation and improvement of rural Ontario.

"It is, he say, Canada's growing time Canada's century. We are, we boast, annexing the United States. Not, painful as it is to disturb a pleasant delusion it must be said that there is still an exodus so large that without a compensating immigration into the northwest, we could not possibly long survive," said Mr. Waldron. "On turning to the public reports, I find that notwithstanding all our confidence and buoyancy seventy thousand persons left Canada last year to make their homes in the United States. Wherever that exodus went from, I may venture to say in the presence of manufacturers unable to fill their orders from the west for lack of labor that it did not go from the cities and towns of Ontario. It was an exodus from the land—an exodus of farmers.

"But let me confine myself to rural Ontario. There, the evidence of depopulation and impoverishment is so plain that I am sure that you have all noted it. Unprepared buildings and forces, neglected orchids, ill-cultivated land, land turned to pasture and in effect abandoned, the disappearance of the farm laborer and their dwellings, the fall in land values, and the very significant fact that farm production has not appreciably responded to an extended period of high prices.

He quoted birthrate statistics to show that in rural districts the birthrate had fallen to 14 in the thousand and lower, while rural schools, which thirty years ago had 50 to 75 pupils, now had but a mere handful. To prove the movement of the population he gave figures to show that in 1872 the rural population of Perth was 31,000; it is now 29,000. In the same year the rural population of Norfolk was 25,000; it is now 19,000. In 1872 the rural population of Huron was 50,467, it is now 36,567, a loss of nearly 14,000. In 81 rural Middlesex numbered 53,000; it is now less than 40,000. And they had not gone to the cities.

What are the economic causes? The principal ones are protection and the exclusion of the farmer from the markets of the United States, said Mr. Waldron.

"Relief is to be found in tariff reform, in admission to the markets of the United States and in a reduction of the federal expenditure.

"There is another remedy offered by our friends who call themselves imperialists. It is preference in the British markets. Of that I do not venture to speak, lest I lose my reputation for temperate and cautious speech. Suffice it to say that I regard the tariff reform movement in England as at heart a movement for agricultural protection, and I am convinced that agricultural protection once enthroned in England will prove itself quite as destructive to Ontario or Canadian agriculture as the industrial protection of the United States or Toronto."

Turks Beat Missionary.

Boston, Nov. 15.—The American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions received a despatch yesterday afternoon announcing that one of its missionaries, Rev. Charles Telford Erickson, had been beaten and arrested and taken to police headquarters under guard of two officers at Monastir, Macedonia, Turkey. The report states that after an hour or so of detention he was released upon the demand of the Austrian consul, who is acting for the United States in Macedonia.

Beating Was Deserved.

San Francisco, Nov. 15.—Because his father made reflections upon his mother on the witness stand in the Police Court here yesterday, George Cameron attacked him, and gave him a terrible beating, before the court attaches succeeded in separating them.

Judge Shortall said the beating was so well merited that he would not hold the young man for contempt, but he was ordered from the court room. The older Cameron was convicted on a charge of battery, preferred by his wife.

Hotels Get Reduction.

Galt, Nov. 15.—Reductions in assessment have been made to the owners of four hotels, who appealed against their ratings on the score of depreciation of the value under local option. They were George Barnhart of the Iroquois, Card of the Imperial, Oliver Baker of the Grand and George Stephens of the New Royal, the last named house being closed up entirely. Reduction of assessment was ordered totalling $20,000 on buildings and $5,000 on business tax.

Would Expel Socialist Leader.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 15.—Premier Stolypin informed the Duma yesterday that the Socialist leader, Chenaye, had been elected on false credentials, and requested his expulsion. Chenaye lived for years on his brother's passport to escape the consequences of an earlier political career.

Says Thaw Is Well Off.

Albany, Nov. 15. Attorney-General O'Malley filed in the Court of Appeals yesterday affidavits in opposition to the appeal of Mrs. Mary C. Thaw in her application for the transfer of her son, Harry K. Thaw, who killed Stanley White, from Matteawan State Hospital to some other asylum within the state. Among the affidavits prepared by Deputy Attorney-General Franklin Kennedy, who is in charge of the case, is one by Dr. Amos T. Baker the first assistant physician at Matteawan.

In support of his contention that Thaw's surroundings are conducive to health, Dr. Baker alleges that since Thaw was committed to Matteawan he has gained 37 pounds in weight, is permitted to play cards with congenial companions, to receive visitors, take outdoor exercise, read the best of literature, and is not compelled to associate with anyone who is not his equal intellectually and morally.

One of Mrs. Thaw's contentions is that her son is compelled to associate with patients who use vile language in his presence, and who often assault him. Dr. Baker says that these assertions are wholly unfounded, and that, on the contrary, the record of Thaw's past life, as brought out in the courts, would indicate that some of the patients might have good reason to object to associating with him.

"THE BETRAYAL"

(By E. Phillips Oppenheim)

She looked at me quickly, almost fruitively, and I saw that her cheeks were flushed. There was a look in her eyes, too, which I could not fathom.

"The date is not decided yet," she said. "You know there is some talk of trouble in Egypt, and if so he might have to leave at a moment's notice."

"It will not be, at any rate, before the autumn, then," I persisted.

"No."

I recognized him at once a small grey figure, standing on the top of a sandhill a little way off, and regarding us steadily. It was the Duke.

"Your father," I said.

We quickened our pace. If Lady Angela was in any way discomposed she showed no signs of it. She waved her hand and the Duke solemnly removed his hat.

"I am so glad that he has come down before the others," she said. "I am longing to have a talk with him. And I don't believe he knows anything about Blenavon. No, he's far too cheerful."

She went straight up to him and passed her arm through his. He greeted me stiffly, but not unkindly.

"I am so glad that you have come," he said. "If I had not heard I should have telegraphed to you. I've seen it in all the papers."

"You approve?" I heard him ask quietly.

"Approve is not the word," she declared eagerly. "It is magnificent."

"I wonder," he asked, "if you realize what it means?"

"It simply doesn't matter," she answered, with a delightful smile. "I can make my own dresses, if you like. Annette is a shocking nuisance to me."

"I am afraid," he remarked, with an odd little smile, "that Blenavon will scarcely regard the matter in the same light."

"Bother Blenavon!" she answered lightly. "I suppose you know that he's gone off abroad somewhere?"

"I had a hurried line from him with information to that effect," the Duke answered. "I think that it would have been more respectful if he had called to see me on his way through London."

I heard her sigh of relief.

"Now, tell me," she begged, "where shall we begin? Cowes, Homburg, town house or Annette? I'm ready."

The Duke looked at her for a moment as I had never seen him look at any living person.

"You must not exaggerate to yourself the importance of this affair, Angela," he said. "I do not think we need interfere for the present with any existing arrangements."

She took his arm, and they walked on ahead to the clearing in front of my cottage, talking earnestly together. I had no clue to the meaning of those first few sentences which had passed between them. And needless to say, I now lingered far enough behind to be out of earshot. When they reached the turn in the path they halted and waited for me.

"I am anxious for a few minutes' conversation inside with you, Duceine," the Duke said. "Angela, you had better perhaps not wait for me."

She nodded her farewell, a brief imperious little gesture, it seemed to me, with very little of kindliness in it. Then the Duke followed me into my sitting room. I waited anxiously to hear what he had to say.

CHAPTER XXVI.

"NOBLESSE OBLIGE"

The Duke selected my most comfortable easy chair and remained silent for several minutes, looking thoughtfully out of the window. Notwithstanding the fresh colour, which a soldier's life and the trim perfection of his dress, I could see at once that there was a change in him. The lines about his mouth were deeper, his eyes had lost much of their keen brightness. I found myself wondering whether, after all, some suspicion of Lord Blenavon's doings had found its way to him.

"You are well forward with your work, I trust, Mr. Ducaine?" he said at last.

"It is completed, your Grace," I answered.

The proposed subway fortification as well as the new battery stations?"

"Yes, your Grace."

"What about the maps?"

"I have done them also to the best of my ability, sir," I answered. "I am not a very expert draughtsman, I am afraid, but these are at least accurate. If you would care to look them over, they are in the library safe."

"And the code word?"

In accordance with our usual custom I scribbled it upon a piece of paper, and held it for a moment before his eyes. Then I carefully destroyed it.

"To-morrow," he said, "perhaps to-night, we have some railway men coming down to thoroughly discuss the most efficient method of moving troops from Aldershot and London to different points, and to inaugurate a fresh system. You had better hold yourself in readiness to come up to the house at any moment. They are business men, and their time is valuable. They will probably want to work from the moment of their arrival until they go."

"Very good, your Grace," I answered.

He turned his head and looked at me for a moment, reflectively.

"You remember our conversation at the War Office, Mr. Ducaine?"

"Yes, your Grace."

"I do not wish you to have a false impression as to my meaning at that time," he said, coldly. "I do not, I have never, doubted your trustworthiness. My feeling was, and is, that you are somewhat young and of an impetuous disposition for a post of such importance. That feeling was increased, of course, by the fact that I considered your story with reference to the Prince of Malors improbable to the last degree. In justice to you," he continued more slowly, "I must now admit the possibility that your description of that incident may exactly be in accordance with the facts. Certain facts have come to my knowledge which lend somewhat in that direction. I shall consider it a favour, therefore, if you will consider my remarks at that interview retracted."

"I thank your Grace very much," I answered.

"With reference to the other matter," he continued, "there my opinion remains unaltered. I do not believe that the papers in the safe were touched after you yourself deposited the there, and I consider your statement to the contrary a most unfortunate one. But the fact remains that you have done your work faithfully, and the Council is satisfied with your services. That being so, you may rely upon it that any feeling I may have in the matter I shall keep to myself."

I would fain have expressed my gratitude to him, but he checked me.

"There is," he said, "one other, a more personal matter, concerning which I desired a few words with you. I have had a visit from a relative of yours who is also an old friend of my own. I refer to Sir Michael Trogoldy."

I looked at him in amazement. I was in fact so surprised that I said nothing at all.

"Sir Michael, it seems, has been making inquiries about you and learning of your present position," the Duke continued. "He asked me certain questions which I was glad to be able to answer on your behalf. He also entrusted me with a note, which I have here in my pocket."

He produced it and laid it upon the table. I made no movement to take it.

"The details of your family history," the Duke said, "are unknown to me. But if the advice of an old man is in any way acceptable to you, I should strongly recommend you to accept any offer of friendship which Sir Michael may make. He is an old man, and he is possessed of considerable wealth. Further, I gather that you are his nearest relative."

"Sir Michael was very cruel to my mother, sir," I said slowly.

"You have nothing to gain by the harbouring of ancient grievances," the Duke replied. "I have always known Sir Michael as a just if a somewhat stern man. Please, however, do not look upon me in any way as a would-be mediator. My interest in this matter ceases with the delivery of that letter."

The Duke rose to his feet. I followed him to the door.

"In any case, sir," I said, "I am very much obliged to you for your advice and for bringing me this letter."

"By-the-bye," the Duke said, pausing on the threshold, "I fear that we may lose the help of Colonel Ray upon the Council. There are rumours of serious trouble in the Soudan, and if these are in any way substantiated, he will be certainly sent there. Good afternoon, Mr. Ducaine."

"Good afternoon, your Grace."

So he left me, stiff, formal, having satisfied his conscience, though I felt in my heart that his opinion of me, once formed, was not likely to be changed. Directly I was alone I opened my uncle's letter.

"27, Grosvenor Square,
"London, W.

"Dear Guy,—It has been on my mind more than once during the last few years—ever since, in fact, I heard of you at college—to write and inform myself as to your prospects in life. You are the son of my only sister, although I regret to say that you are the son also of a man who disgraced himself and his profession. You have a claim upon me which you have made no effort to press. Perhaps I do not think the worse of you for that. In any case, I wish you to accept an allowance of which my lawyers will advise you, and if you will call upon me when you are in town I shall be glad to make your acquaintance. I may say that it was a pleasure to me to learn that you have succeeded in obtaining a responsible and honourable post.

"I am, yours sincerely,

"Michael Trogoldy."

I took pen and paper, and answered this letter at once.

"My dear Sir Michael,—As I am your nephew, and I understand, almost your nearest relative, I see no reason why I should not accept the allowance which you are good enough to offer me. I shall also be glad to come and see you next time I am in London, if it is your wish.

"Yours sincerely,

"Guy Ducaine."

Grooton brought in my tea, also a London morning paper, which he had secured in the village.

"I thought that you might be interested in the news about the Duke, sir," he said respectfully.

"What news, Grooton?" I asked, stretching out my hand for the paper.

"You will find a leading article on the second page, sir, and another in the money news. It reads quite extraordinary, sir."

I opened the paper eagerly. I read every word of the leading article, which was entitled 'Noblesse Oblige,' and all the paragraphs in the money column. What I read did not surprise me in the least when once I had read the circumstances. It was just what I should have expected from the Duke. It seemed that he had lent his name to the prospectus of a company formed for the purpose of working some worthless patent designed to revolutionize the silk weaving trade. The Duke's reason for going on the Board was purely philanthropic. He had hoped to restore an ancient industry in a decaying neighbourhood. The whole thing turned out to be a swindle. One angry shareholder stated plainly at the meeting that he had taken his shares on account of the Duke's name upon the prospectus, and hinted ugly things. The Duke had risen calmly in his place. He assured them that he fully recognized his responsibilities in the matter. If the person who had last spoken was in earnest when he stated that the Duke's name had induced him to take shares in this company, then he was prepared to relieve him of those shares at the price which he had paid for them. Further, if there were any other persons who were able honestly to say that the name of the Duke of Rowchester upon the prospectus had induced them to invest their money in this concern, his offer extended also to them.

There were tears of applause, wild enthusiasm. It was magnificent, but the lowest estimate of what it would cost the Duke was a hundred thousand pounds.

I put down the paper, and my cheeks were flushed with enthusiasm. I think that if the Duke had been there at that moment I could have kissed his hand. I passed with much less interest to the letter which Grooton had brought in with the paper. It was from a firm of solicitors in Lincoln's Inn, and it informed me, in a few precise sentences, that they had the authority of their client, Sir Michael Trogoldy, to pay me yearly the sum of five hundred pounds.

Suffered Greatly From Heart Trouble.

NERVES WERE VERY WEAK.

Mrs. John Parrell, Rose Hill, P.E.I., writes:—"It is with the greatest of pleasure I write you stating the benefit I have received by using Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

"About five years ago I suffered greatly from heart trouble, and my nerves were very weak. After seeing several doctors and using their medicine, I got no relief until a friend told me of your Heart and Nerve Pills. I took two boxes and they effected a complete cure. I can recommend them highly to all nervous and run down women.

"I have advised many others to try them and they have all been cured of the same trouble."

The proper action of the nerves, so important to the well-being of the heart, depends entirely upon the general condition of the nervous system. If there be nerve derangement of any kind, it is bound to produce heart derangement.

In Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills is combined a treatment that will cure all forms of nervous disorders, as well as act on the heart itself, and in this is the secret of their success in curing so many cases of heart and nerve trouble.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c per box, or 3 for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THE KING'S TREASURES

Guarded Beyond the Hopes of the Most Daring Burglar

Special precautions were taken to safeguard the Royal treasures during their removal from Marlborough House to Buckingham Palace. Four detectives were especially detailed to guard them. These personal treasures consist of gold and silver works of art and some exquisite Dresden china, a number of valuable pictures, and a large quantity of very rare antique furniture. In addition to these valuables, there is, of course his Majesty's collection of stamps and a big library containing a number of extremely rare editions.

There is only one attempt on record in the past hundred years to burgle Buckingham Palace, which is most carefully watched night and day by the police detectives both inside and out. The private entrance used by members of the Royal Family was one evening left ajar by the Prince Consort, and almost immediately afterwards it was entered by a man who was permitted by the servant at the entrance to pass. Subsequently, the man was stopped when attempting to enter one of the private apartments and was given in charge of the police—a plan of the Palace was found on him.

It may be remembered that some years ago, when some of Queen Alexandra's collection of miniatures were sent to be reframed, four of them were stolen. They were, however, recovered very shortly afterwards. As a rule, the Royal treasures are so carefully watched and guarded that the most daring and ambitious burglar never hopes to capture them.

RUSSIAN HOLIDAYS

There are no fewer than eighty six general holidays in a year in Russia.

TWO EDWARDS, A COMPARISON

The Prince of Wales Compared to His Grandfather, the Late King Edward, When the Latter Was a Prince

In appearance the Prince of Wales bears a distinct likeness to the late King when his Majesty was his age, though his Royal Highness is rather fairer and of slighter build than was King Edward when a boy and the Prince's features are sharper; but the heir to the Throne has unquestionably inherited his grandfather's expressive eyes. This fact is especially noticeable when the Prince is amused; then his eyes become laughter-lit and the blue deepens, and his whole expression very much recalls that of the Prince of Wales of fifty-three years ago, says a writer in M. A. P.

The upbringing and education of the future monarch is being conducted on different lines from those followed in the early training of the late King. King Edward, I believe, was always of the opinion that he himself was brought up over strictly.

Severe Discipline

Between the ages of ten and eighteen his late Majesty was allowed little personal liberty, and had to strictly conform to a severe code of discipline, under which Queen Victoria and the Prince Consort thought it wise to place him, but which the young Prince found irritating, and which certainly seemed to him sometimes unnecessarily severe.

The present heir to the Throne has been, and is being, allowed to exercise his own judgment in many matters which the late King had decided for him by his tutors or parents.

For example, when the late King was a boy, all his intimate friends were chosen for him, and the companionship of one or two were not specially welcome to the young Prince.

But the friends of the present Prince of Wales are entirely of his own choosing. Nothing has been done to force the companionship of anyone on him whom he did not personally desire to have as an intimate friend, yet in Lord Wendover and Mr. Edward Knollys, the Prince has two friends whom their Majesties would certainly have selected themselves to be his associates.

A Studious Prince

The heir to the Throne, however, is of a more reserved disposition than was his grandfather as a boy. The late King certainly desired to have a larger circle of friends than does the present Prince of Wales, and, no doubt, this made the choice of associates for the then eldest son of the Sovereign rather a difficult matter.

The present Prince of Wales is, undoubtedly, more studious than was his grandsire when a boy; but I believe, that is because his Royal Highness has never been forced to study as was the late King, upon whom great pressure was put by his tutors in his early days.

As a matter of fact, though the Prince of Wales could read and write at five years old, no pressure at all was put on him to acquire any knowledge from books until he was six years old, and even then his studies were never made unduly severe.

It may be noticed that the Prince was confirmed a year earlier than was King Edward, but his Royal Highness has not, perhaps, attended so many functions, or been as much before the public as King Edward had when his late Majesty reached his sixteenth birthday.

The love of his home is, indeed, playing a very important part in the formation of the character of the heir to the British Throne, and his great affection for his only sister has been a potent influence for good in his young life. Fond as King Edward was of his sisters, he never, as a boy, made a companion of any of the Princesses as the Prince of Wales has of the Princess Mary, who has joined him in countless sporting expeditions with gun and rod, and these home influences in the Prince's life have tended to strengthen, not to weaken, his manliness of character.

A PEARL OF GREAT PRICE

A SHORT STORY

BY MABEL COLLINS

(Author of "The Sho... Sapphire")

(All Rights Reserved)

It is very beautiful.

It must be worth a great deal of money.

"I wonder what Grandmama gave for it."

"She has not bought it, don't you remember that Granny promised when you were christened that she would give them to you when you were grown up? This is one of her own jewels."

These were some of the exclamations made over one of Pearl Ogilvy's birthday presents. She was seventeen, a slight girl, delicate looking, with dark eyes that were generally soft and gentle in expression, but which held in them a latent fire. She and her father and mother and her brother were all looking at a little case which stood open on the breakfast table. In it lay a superb black pearl forming the head of a pin.

"I thought," said Gerrard, "you were to have them all when you got married."

"Don't talk nonsense," said his mother, who had recognized that the jewel was one she had seen many times before. "If she said anything of that sort you were not intended to hear it. You have terribly sharp ears, Gerrard. What Grandmama says to me is not intended for you to listen to."

Mrs. Ogilvy was evidently annoyed and Gerard looked up at her in surprise. To him the matter was only a joke, he looked upon his sister as a child still, to be teased when he thought fit.

"Well, I shall be late all day if I do nothing but look at my beautiful pin," said Pearl at last, with a deep sigh of satisfaction. It was a joy to her to think that she possessed it, for she was fond of beautiful things and of possessions generally. She drew the pin gently from its case and fastened it into the lace at her throat.

"Don't lose it," said Gerard, mockingly, "girls don't know how to put in a pin."

"I won't lose it," said Pearl complacently. And she began to open other parcels, and to read some love-letters, eating her breakfast as she did so. But before she had got half through her birthday correspondence a servant came to say that "Mr. Merrion was in the music-room."

"Oh!" she exclaimed, "and I meant to do half-a-dozen things before my lesson."

"Couldn't you ask him to have some breakfast?" said Gerard. "I never saw such a hungry looking fellow as he is. I don't believe he has had enough to eat."

Nobody took any notice of Gerard, who went on stolidly with his own breakfast. Pearl hurriedly gathered all her treasures and letters together and soon went away, followed by her mother. Mrs. Ogilvy had established a writing table in the corner of the music-room, and took her letters and her account books there, to spend the hour of Pearl's violin lesson. Mr. Merrion was a new acquisition. He had come to play at a concert in the neighboring town, and then had taken rooms in the village of Riddlestone instead of going to play at other concerts. He had filled up his little sitting-room with a grand piano hired in the town, and with that and his violin his whole life was passed. It soon became known that he was composing the question was, What? a sonata? or an opera? His name was unknown as a composer, and no one expected it ever would be known, chiefly because he was very quiet, almost without the faculty of conversation, and made no friends. However, no one doubted that he played the violin extremely well, for he had been heard and Pearl, who had been learning it from indifferent teachers since she was a child, had been determined to have lessons from him. She got her way, making her father write to him. He refused at first, on the ground that his whole attention was taken up with a task which he had set himself to accomplish within a given time. Pearl induced her father to write again, making the offer seem very tempting. So it was settled, and to Pearl, who was really a musician, these lessons were a great joy. Out of them had arisen another engagement for Mr. Merrion—he went over from the Vicarage to Riddlestone Park and played for a little while to the sick, crippled Lord Crampton, to whom these visits were as angels' visits.

"What I can't understand, Mrs. Ogilvy was never tired of saying, "is how the boy proposed to live till he had finished his composing, without giving any lessons. For as it is he is evidently desperately poor. His coat is threadbare, and his landlady tells me he spends nothing on himself."

Mr. Merrion did indeed look very young, but Mrs. Ogilvy spoke of him always as a boy in order that Pearl should not be led into regarding him as an equal even in that respect (she being full of the contempt of a girl of seventeen feels for boys!), and she liked to remind Pearl of his poverty also. For Pearl had been brought up on a worldly school, and so far had shown every disposition to do credit to it, in a very pretty, gentle, ladylike fashion.

Mr. Merrion played over certain passages sin such a wonderful way that morning that Mrs. Ogilvy turned round from her table.

"I have never heard you play that so well!" she said.

"I am improving," he answered simply, with a faint flush on his thin delicate face. He was slight, frail looking, with slender musician's hands, men of Gerard Ogilvy's type looked on him with good-humored contempt. But Mrs. Ogilvy knew very well that danger lurked for any woman in those eyes of his—deep violet eyes, fringed with long black lashes. He spoke quite humbly as though he were the pupil, not the master. Pearl essayed to reproduce his effect, and laughed quietly at herself. "I am not improving as fast as you are," she said.

"You do not work so hard," he replied. And after this there was half an hour of very hard work indeed, during which Mrs. Ogilvy, oblivious to the sweet sounds about her, added up her account books. She was ready to go straight to the housekeeper's room and give all the final orders for the day and for the dinner party of the evening, by the time Pearl's violin was laid down, and Mr. Merrion's was in its case. As he crossed the room to the door she rose to shake hands with him.

"Why, Mr. Merrion, you are lame," she exclaimed in surprise noticing that he limped.

"It is nothing," he said, the hectic flush that came into his face coloring it vividly. And he hastily said good-bye and left the room.

As soon as he was out of sight he was forgotten; but Mrs. Ogilvy, looking out of the staircase window as she went down to meet her cook and undertake the serious business of the day, saw him walking down the drive. "He is quite lame," she said. "I should hardly think he can walk a mile to the Castle." He turned into the road at this moment, and here once more out of sight was again forgotten. She went on to her absorbing business, which filled all her time till the lunch gong sounded through the house. There was a great deal of talking and laughing in the dining-room, for more birthday presents had arrived, one of them was a St. Bernard puppy, at the most captivating age of puppydom, and Pearl was nursing it and refusing to let anyone else touch it.

"Where's your pin?" asked Gerard suddenly.

"Put away safely, of course," said Mrs. Ogilvy, who was always standing between Pearl and her teasing brother.

The girl put her hand up to the lace at her throat, and in a moment was as white as the lace itself.

"Oh, where can it be?" she cried out. "How thankful I am I have not been out! It is in the house somewhere."

From that moment an element of distraction was introduced into the day, which bid fair to spoil it altogether. Before the afternoon was half over Pearl's eyes were red and swollen with tears. The pin was lost. Every moment that anybody could possibly spare from the various necessary preparations for the dinner was spent in searching for it, the whole household from the Rev. Hugh Ogilvy to the youngest housemaid steadily exploring the house. At last Mrs. Ogilvy insisted upon Pearl giving up the search and going to rest in her own room. "You will not be fit to be seen to-night, child; go and bathe your eyes and lie down in the dark, and you going to wear white, too! You positively cannot put on your

AFTER FOUR YEARS OF MISERY

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Baltimore, Md.—"For four years my life was a misery to me. I suffered from irregularities, terrible dragging sensations, extreme nervousness, and that all gone feeling in my stomach. I had given up hope of ever being well when I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Then I felt as though new life had been given me, and I am recommending it to all my friends."—Mrs. W. S. Ford, 1938 Lansdowne St., Baltimore, Md.

The most successful remedy in this country for the cure of all forms of female complaints is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has stood the test of years and to-day is more widely and successfully used than any other female remedy. It has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means had failed.

If you are suffering from any of these ailments, don't give up hope until you have given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

If you would like special advice write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for it. She has guided thousands to health, free of charge.

to a dress unless you cut it out to-night."

It was terrible indeed, but evidently Pearl and poor Pearl went away to her room very sad and downcast.

The wound is insane, raged, defiant, full of an indomitable power to face the world bravely no matter how dire the struggle might be, walked lamingly and in rapidly increasing pain, until he was out of sight of the house. Then he paused halted and turning his head looked at the sole of his boot. What a deplorable sight! There was hardly any sole at all. The boot was very well-shaped, and the upper part of it was fairly preventable, and carefully polished. But the soles were no protection from the damp, nor yet from the sharp stones or other painful substances, as he well knew from bitter experience. He was going through such an experience now; something very painful indeed was working steadily into his foot. His indomitable pride had made it impossible for him to confess this when in the Ogilvys music-room. He would have died sooner than have allowed anyone in that house to have known that he was almost bare-foot.

He looked to and fro, and finding that no one was in sight, determined to pull off the boot and discover what it was that was making him so lame. He had just put down his violin case in order to do this when a dog-cart came at a sharp trot round a turn in the road and was upon him directly. His pride took fire at once; he picked up his violin case and went limping on. The dog-cart soon overtook him and the horse was pulled up short.

"Do have a lift Mr. Merrion," said a fresh and very sweet voice. "You are lame!"

Mr Merrion looked up, a vivid flush covering his sensitive face at the sound of the well-known voice. Lady Harriet Vane, the Riddlestones youngest child, sometimes came into her brother's room when he was there. She was Lord Crampton's greatest friend, his help and aid in all things.

"Yes, I am a little lame," Mr Merrion answered. "I have hurt my foot."

"Oh, please get up, do! There is room though we have nearly filled the back seat with things. Crampton wanted so many errands done in the town to-day that I decided to drive in and get him all he wanted. I am very glad we overtook you, for he is not in the state to-day to wait patiently for anything, and he does value the hour of music you give him so much. I don't think you will ever know what it is to him."

By this time the quick trotting mar chad carried them a long way towards the Castle, and Merrion could not but rejoice that he had not been obliged to walk all the way. For even if he had discovered what was laming him he was beginning to find walking almost barefoot a distinct trial.

Arrived at the steps of the Castle, Merrion had to encounter the difficulty of walking on a very lame foot indeed; it was growing rapidly worse. However, he forgot all about it when he had got out his violin. It was a great delight to him to play to Lord Crampton, who lay back on his invalid couch and gave himself up to utter pleasure. He spent his days in a room that was almost a library, so lined were the walls with books; it was on the sunny side of the Castle, and was flooded with sunshine to-day. At one side a glass door, wide enough for his chair to be wheeled through it, opened into a greenhouse. A St. Bernard dog lay on the ground beside whim, it had been one of his earliest playmates and pleasures—he a crippled child glorying in the gambols an dhigh spirits of the superbly healthy puppy. Now grown elderly and sedate, the fine dog loved his master with a devotion like that shown by Lady aHrriet—with whom alone he would go out now for walks. Lord Crampton had everything that man could desire save the one preeminent boon of a healthy body. Merrion loved to play to him ever after the first time that he had been greeted with a smile. But he would not be paid for doing so—terribly sore pent with everyone concerned. Probably for the very reason that he was playing for love, he never had yet performed in public as he did in this hour in the sick room. The servants crept down the corridor to listen—visitors in the Castle were smuggled into an ante-room and the door pushed gently a little ajar and would listen spell-bound.

Lady Riddlestone was a kind-hearted woman, though somewhat spoiled by the great ladyism from which her daughter was so free, and she tried her best to compensate Merrion for the exquisite pleasure he gave the invalid. But it was not easy. He scarcely ever stayed to lunch—he refused all invitations to dinner and it was no possibly to be always sending him game. Besides his landlady revealed the fact that he always sent it away somewhere by post when it was sent to him; he said he did not care about eating birds—and there was a conviction among the servants at the Castle that he lived on an occasional crust—like Shelley, of whom they had never heard.

Merrion stayed to lunch that day, partly because Lord Crampton begged him to have it with him, saying that he was well enough for it; and partly because he did not quite know how he was going home. He went into Lord Crampton's luxurious dressing-room, and being alone at last for a moment, he speedily drew off the boot which had caused him so much trouble, and a good deal of pain it gave him to do so; then he examined it. Hurriedly he drew something from it, and held it up to the light. He began ecdeally white as he looked at it. He soon returned to the room where Lord Crampton lay, a table having been spread beside him for luncheon.

"Is not this something very valuable," said Merrion, as he sat down and he leaned across the table and put something on the white cloth in front of Lord Crampton. He was still white and his face looked drawn.

(To be concluded to-morrow.)

"Bronchitis"

This is an acute inflammation of the mucous membrane lining the air tubes in the lungs.

The disease begins with a tightness across the chest, difficulty of breathing, hoarseness, and there is a dry, harsh, croupy cough.

After a few days mucous begins to be raised. This is at first white, but later of a greenish or yellowish color and is occasionally streaked with blood.

Cure the first symptoms of Bronchitis by the use of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup and thus prevent it becoming chronic and perhaps turning to Consumption.

Mrs. D. J. McCormack, Cleveland, N.S., writes: "My little boy, two years old, caught a bad cold which developed into Bronchitis. He was so choked up he could hardly breathe. Reading about your wonderful medicine, Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, I decided to try a bottle, and with such good result I got another which completely cured him, without having a doctor. I cannot say too much in its praise and would not be without it in the house as I consider it a sure cure for Colds and Bronchitis.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25 cents.

"WHY, it doesn't seem more than a week ago since the Wrights were guarding their workshop like a diamond laboratory and every one else in the game was either seating up keyholes or trying to peek through. And now look at them!" So spoke a man in the stands at the recent Boston aviation meeting as he stood staring up at the triumph of the event, when Messrs. Walter L. Brookins, Ralph Johnstone, Claude Grahame-White and C. F. Willard were sailing the air above the field in open exhibition.

The masters of the craft have abandoned, temporarily, the secret laboratory method in their work. Their machines are appearing daily under the guidance of their pupils at public gatherings, meets, fairs and celebrations in all parts of the country. They are no longer preparing models under lock and key and stealing away to make flights by night, but they are coming into the open and inviting the man in the stands and every one else to step up and watch their inventions. Moreover, they have abandoned the keen race for records, the breathless straining after fresh achievements that formed their chief interest a few years ago. Instead, they are resting on their laurels and satisfying public curiosity.

Aviation, so far as it means a nerve racking struggle for new flying marks, tense competition among bird men for premier honors of the air and constant study of new designs, has come to a halt, for the time being. If there is one apparent feature of present general conditions in the science it is that the contest for supremacy among American and foreign designers has paused and that aviators are grasping rather at tangible returns in money than at further fame in higher altitudes, longer journeys and faster flights.

Aviation, so far as it means public familiarization with the possibilities of the aeroplane, is enjoying its harvest moon. Flying is at its hour of hovering and prosperity. Its exponents are seizing the opportunity at the full. The time is ripe for the reaping of rewards and they are garnering the wealth that will carry them on in future important and serious work.

"We can scarcely be blamed," said one of the veteran aviators recently, in explanation. "If we turn aside from puzzling over theories and models to benefit by a fleeting stage of commercialism. We have spent hundreds of thousands of dollars in experimentation. We shall spend many more hundreds of thousands. In the meantime we are improving public interest to replenish our purses."

The Financial View.

This is the explanation of the phenomenon observed by the man in the stands. The practical aeroplane has materialized from a 'ream to a fact. The early strivings after startling results, when each week brought forth its astonishing advance, have passed. Man has flown across the Channel, across the Alps, from London to Paris, from Albany to New York. The future can hold nothing that will seem as marvellous in comparison with the past as did these feats, all within seven years of the first fifty nine second flight by Wilbur Wright. The public is satiated with wonders, crammed with records, and it demands most insistently that it be allowed a chance to see the strange machines itself. The aviators are quite content to humor it.

"I have been urged repeatedly to prepare a machine especially for a try at the speed mark," said the same aviator, who did not care to have his name used, "but why should I? There is no pension fund for impoverished air pilots that I ever heard of. Within the last year or so we have had our first returns. My machine will fly and my pupils can be well paid for flying it. That is what attracts me at present.

"After the present craze over the aeroplane has expended itself, as it must after the edge has been taken off public curiosity and an exhibition of a meeting ceases to be the drawing card it is now, why, very well. I shall be glad then to go back to my work bench and my models. I shall be seen to construct a machine designed to capture the speed record. And I shall be the keener mark this point, because I shall have the money to proceed with.

"Nearly all the flying men look upon it as I do. They have not gone money mad; they have not allowed a noble craft to fall foul of a hunger for riches, but, to mix the figure effectively, they are taking time by the forelock."

Incidental to this phase of the situation in aviation the man in the stands might have remarked another decided change. It was significant at the Boston meet, as at other recent meets, that of all the competitors on the ground, with the single exception of Mr. Glenn Curtiss, not one was flying a machine designed by himself, or, stating the reverse, none of the original inventors whose names are associated with a distinct type of machine was present except Mr. Curtiss. Mr. Wilbur Wright was a passenger in one of his machines in the bomb dropping contests, but beyond that was content to have members of his staff handle the Wright biplanes.

These facts signalized a tendency which is becoming more apparent among the pioneers of flying. The masters themselves are retiring from active competition and exhibition. Mr. Curtiss a few days ago emphasized his intention of abandoning public flights very soon. The Wrights no longer engage personally in competitive and demonstrative flying. Abroad the same holds true of Mons. Blériot and of Mr. Farman.

The actual manipulation of machines at meetings nowadays is being mostly carried on by a younger set who are followers and pupils of the original experts, instead of by the men who have borne such a close relation to the first tentative steps in aviation. The designers are leaving the greater risks to others and are turning their attention to construction and instruction.

Their Harvest Moon.

This condition runs parallel with the present prosperity enjoyed by aviators. There is no reason for the inventors to go aloft when they have pupils who can manage the machines for them. It is well that they refrain from continual flights, for the science could ill spare one of its pioneers. A representative displays the machine, sometimes on a percentage basis with the designer, and both profit by the public thirst for novelty. Meanwhile the master is free to impart his hardly gained wisdom and experience to those who must be looked to for the future to build machines and to improve his type.

Thus it comes about that the competitors and demonstrators of the day are chiefly graduates of the various schools founded by the pioneers, using the type of machine to which they have been trained. The Wrights, for instance, have such pupils as Messrs. Walter L. Brooklus, Ralph Johnstone, "Arch" Hoxsey and A. L. Welsh. The best known pupils of Mr. Curtiss include Messrs. Charles Foster Willard, Eugene Ely, J. C. McCurdy, Augustus Post and J. C. Mars. Mons. Blériot has a great number of pupils, some of whom have in turn pupils of their own. Comte Jacques de Lesseps, Mr. J. Armstrong Drexel and Mons. Paulhan are prominent exponents of the type of monoplane as are also Messieurs Alfred Le Blanc, J. B. Moisant and Emile Aubrun. Messrs. Clifford B. Harmon and Henry Weymann are pupils of the Farman school, as was Mr. Grahame-White, who has also learned to use a Blériot machine.

Some of those gentlemen approach flying in the spirit of the amateur and others are exhibiting on their own account. Still others are directly connected with the staffs of their instructors. These last are supplied with machines with which they fill engagements at exhibitions and meetings. At present their time is fully occupied. No important State or county fair is considered complete without a real, sure enough bird man as the big attraction. Balloons, parachute jumpers and horse races are worn [illegible] only upon the master aviators for the purpose of demonstrators. The bookings already effected a year or more ahead. A staff [illegible] good to fill a list of engagements like [illegible]

It is pointed out in [illegible] existing period of pioneer initiation, [illegible] temporary, is not without its value [illegible] the aeroplane. While the stress of [illegible] reckoned, the great number of flights [illegible] and the manufacture of machines [illegible] exhibitors all contribute to the [illegible] out the knowledge of its [illegible] flying man makes an ascent [illegible] more about the control and [illegible] of his aeroplane. Every time there [illegible] or a breakdown the cause is carefully [illegible] and an attempt made to correct the fault.

Flying for Money.

So it is that [illegible] are no longer pitted against one another [illegible] but are steadily studying out [illegible] the existing types building up from the experience of their pupils. The curious and curious public provides them with the wherewithal and the leisure.

Meanwhile there is one man who does not seem to have been able to dip his hand into the golden flood. Aviation meetings have been a vast success from the standpoint of the spectators and flyers, but the promoter, who usually looks out for a fat slice of the profits, has been sadly out of pocket. Up to the present time, it is said, not one such meeting has returned anything to those who backed it, and in most instances there has been a loss. Figures of the amounts lost at some recent aviation events are as follows:

Lanark	$40,000
Bournemouth	30,000
Blackpool	75,000
Rheims	100,000
Nice	110,000
Boston	20,000

The promoter's plaint upon this state of affairs comes back upon the aviator. The bird man is playing up to the top of the market. He knows that the public wants to see him perform, is clamoring for an exhibition, and he promptly "ups his price." The returns for those who are able to make [illegible] flights nowadays are enormous and the promoter has to stand the strain. What the promoter has so far apparently failed to observe is that the [illegible] aviation is quickly satisfied. Counting upon the wide advertising that flying has had and the generally keen interest aroused he has planned for long [illegible] seasons. The result too often has been that during [illegible] early in the meeting he has been confronted with [illegible] of empty seats. The public saw the aviators [illegible] did not care to see them again. The first week [illegible] was a success during its first week, but with [illegible] promoters extended the time, and with [illegible] they suffered a loss.

So it is that the [illegible] complains those ubiquitous little books for the [illegible] pocket containing statistics on everything under the sun and of late besides is now [illegible] why he [illegible] behind his car so far as the subject of aviation is concerned. World's [illegible] in flying no longer succeed one another with the rapidity of clay rabbits on a shooting range. A record may go by the boards here and there. But the aviators are no longer pursuing marks with the fervor of former days. What [illegible] them most nearly is the garnering of the shekels against the day when means will be needed to resume active development.

A GREAT VIOLINIST

A Few Stories That are Told of Jan Kubelik

Many amusing and interesting stories are told of Kubelik, the great violinist. Here are a few of them:

One of Kubelik's most treasured possessions was a violin made by Guarnerius, for which he paid £2,000. Some time ago young Franz von Vecsey, the prodigy, visited Kubelik, and was permitted to play upon the costly instrument. When the boy had finished, Kubelik deprived him of his breath by presenting him with the violin. Kubelik uses a "Strad," the gift of Mrs. Walter Palmer, and a Tourte bow which belonged to the famous violinist, Ernst, and was given to him by that artiste's widow.

At a very small London party a lady gave a start on opening her programme. "Oh, Kubelik," she exclaimed. "How delightful! I have heard so much of Kubelik. But what is it? Is it a new game? A kind of ping-pong, I suppose?"

At a reception at the Waldorf Astoria, New York, Kubelik retired to a corner after playing, rather ill at ease and silent. A young girl, approaching him, said, "Pardon me, sir, but your handkerchief is hanging out of your pocket." "Thank you," said Kubelik "thank you for this warning. You know the company better than I do!"

In the cause of charity, Kubelik is ever ready with his art. Once he was asked to play in a lunatic asylum because the resident medico thought, with Congreve, that music had charms to "soften rocks." The violinist mounted the improvised platform and played a lively Slav dance. The patients seated about the concert-room seemed deeply interested, and beat time with feet and hands. When Kubelik finished, a pretty young woman rose and beckoned to him. The musician imagined that she wanted an encore, and asked the doctor to inquire what she would like. Before the doctor could approach her she cried at the top of her voice: "Well, to think of the likes of me being here, while the likes of him should be at large in the world!" This was Kubelik's first and last experience of a lunatic asylum.

Kubelik's English has not always been so good as it is now; indeed, he speaks it brokenly still. When he was a guest of Canon Fleming at York, and was being shown round the Canon's house, he shook his luxuriant head of hair in front of the Canon's parrot. The bird naturally expressed considerable surprise. "Ha," exclaimed the violinist, "he tink I am an ourang-outang!"

SHE SCORED

"He's not what you call strictly handsome," said the major, beaming through his eye-glasses on an utterly hideous baby, as he lay howling in his mother's arms; "but it's the kind of face that grows on you."

"It's not the kind of face that ever grew on you," was the indignant and unexpected reply of the maternal being; "you'd be better looking if it had."

The Kidneys Wear Out

But many people of advanced years have learned how to keep these organs healthy by using

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

The kidneys are often the first organs of the body to cause trouble. Their work of filtering the blood is greatly increased by excessive eating or by the use of highly-seasoned foods and alcoholic drinks.

As advanced age comes on most people suffer more or less from derangements of the kidneys. With some there are years of pains and aches, with others Bright's disease is soon developed and the end comes quickly.

Fortunately a great many have learned about Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills, and are enabled by their use to keep the kidneys healthy and active.

This medicine is entirely different from ordinary kidney treatments, and invigorates the action of the liver and bowels. To this combined action is attributed its remarkable success.

Mr. Richard Preston, Osborne, Lambton county, Ont., writes: "I want to testify to the wonderful curative properties of Dr A. W. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills. Seventeen years ago I began the use of this medicine, when my back was so bad that to stoop or rise was torture to me. The kidneys were in bad condition, but these pills entirely freed me of back pains. I have used them ever since, whenever the kidneys would get out of order, and now, at eighty years, am well and hearty, thanks to this grand medicine."

THE WAXWORKS AT WESTMINSTER

Wax Effigies of Some of the Most Notable Figures in History Find a Place There

People have a curiously mistaken idea that the only place in London where one can see really good wax figures is at Madame Tussaud's, but this is a great error on their part.

The waxworks at Westminster Abbey are also very interesting, and, from an historical point of view, they may also be regarded as most venerable antiquities.

Years ago, in the early days of English history, people liked to be sure of their facts. There were no newspapers to herald the goings on of royalties, and every piece of news that was handed on from one to another came originally from an eye-witness of the scene described.

Therefore, when a king died, as there were no newspapers in which one could read a discreet description of his dying moments, it became necessary to announce the fact in some more direct fashion. It was no use saying a king was dead, the statement had to be proved, and so it became customary to embalm the dead body of the king and to bear it openly upon the bier to its last resting-place, so that the populace might see for themselves that there was no deception.

After a bit fashions changed, as they will, and instead of the king being embalmed and placed upon his bier, he was embalmed and placed within it, and a waxen effigy of the deceased sovereign was modelled from his dead figure and dressed in his best Sunday-going-to-meeting suit, and borne with pomp and heraldry on his coffin in the place of the poor, dead body.

When the body had received reverent burial at the Abbey the waxen effigy was placed upon the tomb, so that all might see what the sovereign had looked like upon earth. After a bit these effigies were found to lumber up the place, and it was decided to gather them together and to put them in the Islip Chamber, where they could be seen by the curious public for the small sum of threepence, which in those early days of which I write went into the pockets of the Minor Canons and Lay Vicars.

Sovereigns of Many Epochs

Many effigies were gathered in the chapel up the winding stair, but one by one they have crumbled to dust till only a few remain.

Queen Elizabeth is there in all her glory. Arrayed in the huge ruff with which her numerous pictures have made us so familiar, a velvet, gown, stitched with gold, a jewelled stomacher, and very high-heeled shoes.

She was so given over to the vanities of this world, that even when dying she insisted upon being arrayed in all her finery, and finally she died on the floor dressed as if for some great Court carnival, as you see her in the Islip Chamber. They say that the contents of her wardrobe on her death amazed everyone, so crowded was it with garments of all sorts, many of which the Queen had never even seen, much less worn.

By her side stands that merry monarch Charles II., in red velvet and priceless lace ruffles. There is a weird fascination in the pallid, ugly face of this well-known lady-killer, surrounded by a falling mass of ink-black curls. His face wears a half cynical smile, as if he found even death amusing. He was the most attractive scion of the very attractive house of Stuart, if historians are to be believed, and also the most unreliable.

Next him stands one of the fair ladies he loved so gaily, the beautiful Duchess of Richmond, clad in the robes she wore at the coronation of Queen Anne. This fair lady was so beautiful that she sat for the design of Britannia on the copper coinage, a compliment to her classical features that she no doubt much appreciated.

Sidelights on Royalty

The Duchess of Buckingham is also here, a lady who is historically notorious for taking the deepest interest in funerals and their trappings even her own. When she lay a-dying she ordered the canopy that was to be held over her hearse to be brought for her inspection, to see if it met with her approval. A Duchess of Buckingham could not quit this mortal sphere without every attention being paid to what was due to her rank and position in life. She probably knew the old saying, that if you want a thing done well you should do it yourself—and acted upon it.

William and Mary are also here, standing side by side, Mary completely over-topping her small, disagreeable-looking husband, whom she adored. They say that William, like many another husband, never fully appreciated his wife till she lay dying, and that then his grief knew no bounds.

William was a martyr to asthma, and this trying ailment may partly have accounted for his most uncertain temper, but in the death-chamber of his wife he strove to stifle his most persistent cough in case he might disturb her. But this kind attention on his part disturbed poor Queen Mary more than the cough. He had never bestowed any petits soins on her in life, and so, poor lady, she did not look for them in death, and she repeatedly asked where her husband was, and could not believe he was by her side because she did not hear his cough. What curious side-lights these little domestic details throw upon our knowledge of history! What a pity a few more have not come down to us! Lord Chatham and Lord Nelson are also here, but they are not genuine effigies, only fakes.

Lord Chatham was added to the collection by way of making a larger show, and Lord Nelson, arrayed in the clothes he wore at the battle of Trafalgar, even down to the patch over one eye, was shamelessly put here to attract back the fickle public, who deserted Westminster Abbey for St. Paul's when the national hero was buried there.—M. de L. Bartlett.

This will Stop Your Cough in a Hurry

Save $2 by Making This Cough Syrup at Home.

This recipe makes 16 ounces of better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for $2.50. A few doses usually conquer the most obstinate cough — stops even whooping cough quickly. Simple as it is, no better remedy can be had at any price.

Mix two cups of granulated sugar with one cup of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a 16 oz. bottle; then add the Sugar Syrup. It has a pleasant taste and lasts a family a long time. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

You can feel this take hold of a cough in a way that means business. Has a good tonic effect, braces up the appetite and is slightly laxative, too, which is helpful. A handy remedy for hoarseness, bronchitis, asthma and all throat and lung troubles.

The effect of pine on the membranes is well known. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norwegian white pine extract, and is rich in guaiacol and all the natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this formula.

This Pinex and Sugar Syrup recipe has attained great popularity throughout the United States and Canada. It has often been imitated, though never successfully.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

PLUCKY STEWARDESS

An Incident on a Passenger Steamer En Route to St. John, N.B.

R. McBride, Glasgow, relates the following story of a plucky stewardess:

"Some years ago, when serving as an assistant engineer on board a passenger steamer en route to St. John, N.B., we ran into one of those impenetrable fogs so prevalent in the Bay of Fundy. Suddenly, as if on the rocks, the ship bumped heavily several times close by where I stood in the engine-room, followed by the telegraph signal from the bridge, 'Full speed astern.' I was relived by the chief engineer, and ordered to take a good look round, and see if any excess water was rising in the bilges. Descending two or three steps to the shaft tunnel convinced me that it was, and rapidly, too, as I found myself up to the knees in sea water. After putting the pumps to work, I hastened to the stokehole, to find that the firemen on watch had already cleared out, and that the fires were burning low. On going in search of them on deck, I was just in time to notice their heads vanish down the stokehole ladder, while the voice of our stewardess was raised in angry tones, denouncing them as cowardly dogs for deserting their post at the first sign of danger. At her feet stood a partly-filled bucket of hot water, and in her hand she flourished the galley soup-ladle; and I learned that she had been liberally douching them with boiling water from the bucket on finding them preparing to clear away on one of the boats. They had evidently slunk back to work, and the risks entailed, rather than brave the biting lash of the infuriated woman's tongue and the compelling influence of the scalding water. To her timely and heroic conduct our salvation from foundering was undoubtedly due, as we all had our work cut out in bringing the ship safely to Halifax dry dock, where it was found that besides being badly strained and fractured, several plates in the ship's bottom had been broken, through which the water was rushing in."

HENNIKER HEATON

Has Four Times Declined the Honor of a Knighthood

The City of London conferred its freedom upon Mr. Henniker Heaton eleven years ago, and successive Governments have pressed a K.C.M.G. upon him. But Mr. Heaton has four times declined the honor. There is a joke in connection with Mr. Heaton's friendship with Mr. Marconi which might bear repetition. When he was made a Freeman of the City of London Mr. Marconi accompanied him, and when the latter's turn came and he received the freedom of Rome, he insisted that Mr. Heaton should return the compliment by going with him to Rome. Some little time before this Sir Benjamin Stone had photographed them together on the terrace of the House of Commons in the costumes of their respective Courts. Mr. Marconi sent a copy of this to an Italian newspaper, and the latter published it on the day Mr. Marconi received the freedom of Rome over the inscription: "Mr. Marconi and King Edward the Seventh." One of Mr. Heaton's most treasured possessions—and he only received it during his election campaign this year—is a letter from Mr. Chamberlain wishing him success. Lord Desborough has chosen the following extract from it as an inscription for Mr. Heaton's tombstone: "It has been given to few men to promote reforms independently, and to see them adopted in their own lifetime with universal approval." There is an amusing anecdote in connection with a Parliamentary chess match which the famous postal reformer got up between Great Britain and America in 1907. It was played by cable, and at one stage of the game everything pointed to the defeat of the Yankees. Realizing this, they wired "You're too good for us, we'll play you at poker!" The game, however, ended in a draw, and the offer to play poker has not been accepted.

QUITE APPROPRIATE

"I'm sure I don't know why they call this hotel 'The Palms.' Do you? I've never seen a palm anywhere near the place."

"You'll see them before you go. It's a pleasant little surprise the waiters keep for the guests on the last day of their stay."

HOPE OF WALES

Mr. Lloyd George on the Religious Activity of the Day

Lloyd George, in opening a bazaar in Wales, in which Mrs. Lloyd George is president, said of late he had had some experience of extracting money, and he hoped the promoters of that bazaar would not meet with his difficulties, and that their efforts would not arouse resentment, as he seemed to have done, among the customers at his little bazaar. (Laughter).

Within recent years, he said, he had motored more than ever through the sterile and wild parts of Wales, across great mountain moors, with hardly a habitation in sight, perhaps only a shepherd's cot, but he has never gone very far without seeing a little chapel somewhere or other in the wilderness. (Hear, hear.)

"I am also struck by the way Nonconformity is dealing with the rapid changes which are taking place, not so much in the character of the population as in its training and outlook. There are two conditions in the life of Wales which contain elements of peril to the spiritual life of any nation. One is the great access of material prosperity and the other is the enormous improvement in the educational outfit and facilities of the people. Both are full of peril to the spiritual life of the people unless they are properly dealt with, and unless measures are adapted of utilizing them.

"For all the education was very much like carrying a lamp in the darkness. It illumined all the immediate vicinity, enabling one to see everything that was near with greater clearness, but it was very apt to darken the vastness around. At the great centres of learning on the Continent students saw material things with greater clearness, and thus for a moment darkened or thickened the darkness of impenetrable mysteries around them. Nonconformity realized the perils. Its ministry had become a better trained and educated one, and one which was quite adequate to cope with the new generation which was springing up in Wales with an intellectual awakening which was on of the greatest features of its national life at the present moment. These were things that filled the heart of anyone loving Wales with a great sense of hope and of confidence as to the future of the country." (Cheers.)

DESCRIBED HIS PARENT

A Twelve-Year-Old Boy's Essay on "My Father"

The twelve-year-old son of a well known Liverpool doctor was asked the other day to write an essay on "My Father." This is what he produced, and the doctor himself confesses that the portrait is not a bad one:—

"My father is a very moody person. Sometimes when he comes home on Saturday he will give me sixpence instead of three pence. When he is in a bad mood, I ask him for my three-pence, and he says 'Humph,' and after a good deal of grumbling he gives it to me. The way to make him in a bad mood is to ask him the time when he is reading his paper. On Sunday morning he generally devollops; he is rather good at enlargements and has been working wildly at them. Whenever he drops a plate and smashes it, he is a little farther off Heaven and nearer to the other place—I do not think I need mention it. On Saturday he generally goes to a football match all by himself. At one time he took up German, but that has altogether died out. In the morning from about eight or nine he is very bobbish and sings and dances all over the place. His favorite song is 'The Songs of Araby.' Whether he sings all this because of the night before I do not know, but I do not think so. He is very fond of smoking, and once made himself ill. He likes playing the piano, but when you want him to play nothing will induce him, simply because he is not in a mood. Altogether he is not a bad sort."

FEARED BLINDNESS.

Canadian Girl Attempted Suicide in Detroit.

Detroit, Nov. 15.—Pathos and mystery mingle in the weird attempt of Esther Carleton, employed as a maid in the home of Charles Ritter, 134 West Bethune ave., to kill herself Sunday afternoon. While alone in the house, the girl ransacked it, to give it the appearance of having been entered by a burglar, then she turned on all the burners of the kitchen range, and waited for death.

Esther, who is only 17 years old wanted to make it appear she had been foully dealt with. The gas didn't overcome her quickly enough, and she changed her mind about dying, because she thought of her dead mother. Though extremely weak, Esther managed to call the police. Esther was lying on the floor, with all the windows and doors open. Burrau and dresser drawers had been pulled out, but nothing was missing.

Esther claims to be the daughter of a former Toronto business man. Her mother died last June. The girl had been used to luxury, but, with the death of her mother, Carleton, she says, sold his business, and went away with another woman. Esther was left with an aunt, but, with her father gone, she was denied fine clothes, and she ran away, reaching Detroit five weeks ago. Her sight was failing, and she confided to Mrs. Ritter that a Toronto physician had told her there was no hope for her and that she would eventually become totally blind.

"She really wanted to die," Mrs. Ritter said. "While she was growing weaker from the gas, she thought of her mother, who she always spoke of as a good Christian woman. She wondered if her mother would look down from heaven and see her trying to die, and she asked herself if she would join her mother. Then she realized that it was wicked to take her own life, and that she could never, never go to her mother that way, so she decided to live."

The girl was in a Toronto high school for two and one-half years only leaving when she was told that she would have to give up study to save her eyes.

Coal Found Near Edmonton.

Ottawa, Nov. 15.—That there is coal of good quality along the line of the G.T.P. west of Edmonton, is one of the most important results of the work of the field staff of the geological survey, who have now nearly all returned to Ottawa. The scene of the finds is over 200 miles west of Edmonton. One deposit is at a place known as Jasper Park, and the other is situated near Brule Lake.

There is very little coal between the latest finds and the western coast, and to the east there are no deposits, except for what is known as "domestic coal," which is unfit for use in engines. At present the railway pays about $10 per ton for its fuel, whereas it should not cost them more than about $2, should local deposits be utilized. Of these by far the largest is what is known as the Brazeau field, which the G.T.P. will probably tap with a spur line.

Objects to Provincial Audit.

St. Catharines, Nov. 15—Months ago the City Council decided to have a chartered accountant look over its books, with the view of establishing a modern system. Last night a petition was signed by forty-two ratepayers, not all property owners, asking for a provincial audit. Ald. Merrill suggested that the petitioners be heard, but when Mayor McBride extended an invitation no one replied.

A motion was carried that H. Vigon, chartered accountant of Toronto, be employed to examine the books of the city treasurer and various associated boards and to make suggestions of desired changes and that memorial be transmitted to Ontario Government, protesting against the petition for a provincial audit.

Negotiations Abortive.

London, Nov. 15.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Standard says that private advices received at London in regard to the reciprocity negotiations show that the only agreement reached has been for a certain amount of reciprocity in coal. Otherwise the negotiations have been more or less abortive.

Another Automobile Fatality.

Savannah, Ga., Nov. 15.—W. H. Sharpe of Trenton, N.J., automobile driver and owner, who was to drive car No. 1 in the grand prize race, died yesterday of injuries received during practice on Thursday. Sharpe was injured internally, and although it was at first thought he would recover, complications arose which resulted in his death.

Sales of selected lots were made at $7.25 to $7.35 per 100 lbs., weighed off cars, but they say that they will not pay more than $7.25 for supplies for the balance of this week, and that next week it will be the ruling figure.

An active trade was done in Upper Canada lambs at 6c to 6½c, and Quebec stock at 5½c to 5¾c, while sheep sold at 5¼c to 5½c per lb. The demand for calves was good, and prices for choice milk-fed stock were firm, at 5½c to 6c per lb.

MIRACULOUS RESULTS IN DUNVEGAN, C.D.

GIN PILLS Brought Relief

"I suffered untold misery even when under treatment from the best doctors for over ten months, and nothing seemed to do me any good or relieve my painful condition. My trouble was Inflammation of Kidneys and Bladder.

I finally determined to go to the Victoria Hospital, Halifax, for treatment.

Two days, however, before my intending departure, a neighbor called and happening to have a GIN PILL in his pocket, insisted on my taking it. I did so and six hours after taking it, the results and benefits I derived were simply nothing more or less than miraculous. Instead of going to the hospital, I sent for a box of GIN PILLS with the result that I am a cured man. I recommend GIN PILLS to everyone suffering from Kidney Trouble."

HASTINGS MAN BADLY HURT BY BELLEVILLE TRAIN TO-DAY

John King, a Teamster, Was Struck at Crossing by Grand Trunk Train No 6 and Slight Hopes are Held for His Recovery---His Skull Was Fractured in Three Places.

Special Wire to The Examiner.

HASTINGS, ONT., NOV. 15.—A serious accident occurred at the Grand Trunk railway crossing this morning, when Mr. John King was struck by a G.T.R. train, No. 6, which runs between Belleville and Peterborough, and seriously injured. Mr King was employed as a teamster for Mr. B. Sherwin, and had been unloading a car of cement and was returning for another load when the accident occurred. He is seriously injured about the head, and has a gash of about ten inches in his scalp. His skull is also badly fractured in three places. Little hope is held out for his recovery by Doctors Wade and Edmonson. King has a wife and two children. The train was in charge of Conductor Adams.

A Springville Charivari Of The Proper Character

Two weeks ago there was a marriage celebrated in the neighbourhood of Springville—Mr. Harold Baptie and Miss Edith Foster, of Peterborough, were the fortunate persons. According to a well-known custom the idea spread among the young men of the neighbourhood that a charivari would be a good thing. When the report that this idea was entertained came to the ears of Dr. Marsh, he suggested a better way of celebrating the occasion. He called the young men together, took them into his confidence and a decision was come to, to call on the bride and bridegroom at their home. This was acted upon, and instead of saluting them with cowbells and foghorns, the party went to the house to the music of the song, "For they are Jolly Good Fellows." They then entered the house and made speeches and presented the bride with a very handsome mantel clock. After this refreshments were served and the young men returned to their homes with consciences wonderfully bright and with no memory of having done anything to degrade marriage or discredit their own good name, or that of the neighbourhood and with the happy feeling that they had added to the pleasure of the worthy objects of their attention, and set an example of conduct in keeping with the characteristics of a civilized community.

Pools On Tag Day Amount $1267.17 Is Correct Figure

Sporting Editor of the Examiner:

We would like you to settle a question that has been in dispute as a result of the Tag Day of the Children's Aid Society on Saturday. Several of us were in a pool on the Tag Day receipts and we would like to know the correct figure in order to settle the matter. In your paper last night you gave some figures, among them a bequest from the estate of the late Mrs. Levick. Are these to be considered as part of the tag day receipts?

Yours, etc.,
INQUIRER.

Answer.—In reply to Inquirer it might be stated that the aTg Day receipts were $1,267.17. In the set might be stated that the Tag Day result, this figure is the only one that can be used. The other amounts, $500 from Mrs. Levick's estate, $20 from a friend and other amounts credited are regular subscriptions to the Society and have nothing whatever to do with Tag Day. They should not be taken into account in any bets and pools upon the Tag Day results. Surely this was made plain in last night's Examiner.

"THE SURFACE OF THE SUN" LECTURE BY DR. MARSH

An illustrated talk on "The Surface of the Sun" will be given this evening at the meeting of the Royal Astronomical Society in the Collegiate Institute.

Dr. Marsh will be the speaker of the evening. And as it is well known that he has made a specialty of solar photography, producing some of the most excellent pictures in existence today, we are safe in stating that the speaker knows his subject thoroughly.

During the last few years astronomers have found out a great many things in regard to the great sun, which have proved very important to the advancement of this branch of the science. Wonderful photographs have been secured, which are most interesting and instructive to the amateur.

The public will find these lectures worthy of their attendance. The views are entertaining and instructive. There is no charge.

DISSOLVE ON NOV. 23

The Likely Dote for Dissolution of British Parliament—Will be Followed by a Whirlwind Campaign

DATE NOT DECIDED

Special Wire to the Examiner.

LONDON, ENG., NOV. 15.—November twenty-third is mentioned as the probable date for the dissolution of parliament, to be followed by whirlwind campaign and immediate appeal to people on straight issue of Constitutional government. Parliament reassembled this morning, but only routine business was touched upon and adjournment was immediately made, presumably to give Asquith time to prepare momentous statement for tomorrow. Various guesses have been made as to the date of the elections, but nothing definite.

(Later.) After a long Cabinet meeting it was announced this afternoon that Asquith wouldn't make a statement to parliament till Friday. This, presumably, is to give the government time to strength n position.

TORONTO, NOV. 15. — Some hundreds of foreigners who have recently received citizenship papers will lose their rights of naturalization, as the result of the discovery that the signature to their papers, of Jacob Cohen, J. P., was attached by others, Cohen having given another man permission to sign his name. Some of these foreigners have moved to other cities.

The annual meeting of the shareholders of the Peterboro' Golf and Country Club will be held on Saturday the 19th of November, 1910, at 8 o'clock p.m., in the Bank of Montreal Chambers, Water Street, for the purpose of receiving reports by the Officers, for the past year, election of officers and committees, for the coming year and for such other business as may properly come before the meeting.

NO DEATHS OCCURRED

OTTAWA, NOV. 15.—When the Canadian Commons assembles on Thursday, the assembling will be especially notable from the fact that during the recess not one member of the Commons or Senate has passed away. This is the first time for a generation that parliament will assemble without a vacant chair through death in the interval. The only change is the promotion of Lavergne to the Senate and the introduction of his successor, the Nationalist, Gilbert, the winner in the bye-election fight in Drummond and Arthabaska. It is expected that the session will be a fighting one, as the third session of the Canadian Commons always are.

SILENCE IS BROKEN

Special Wire to The Examiner.

WASHINGTON, NOV. 15—The long period of censored silence regarding the situation between the United States and Mexico was broken today when word was received from Texas that Governor Campbell is calling out the state troops and sheriffs, swearing in an armed posse to protect the state frontier, where Mexicans are gathering in force ostensibly with the object of raiding the state in revenge for the lynching of their fellow countrymen and for other alleged insults. The situation is grave.

HUNTERS RETURN

Ketcheeum Lake Hunt Club Arrived Home Last Evening—All Received Their Allotted Number

DEER PLENTIFUL

The Ketcheeum Lake Hunt Club has returned to the City after their annual two weeks' deer hunting in the northern wilds. Those who composed the party were, Mayor Morrow, H. C. Winch, Harold Morrow, Manson Comstock, R. J. Munro, R. Gibbs, T. Simpson (guide), and Archie Jackson (cook.) The members arrived in the city last evening at 9 o'clock with their full quota of deer, after having been on the way since yesterday morning. Mayor Morrow was again hard at work in his office this morning, after his two weeks' outing, when the Examiner called on him. The deer he said, were very plentiful this year and all the members of his party returned home well satisfied. They had a splendid outing and one of the most successful hunts in the history of the club.

The balance of the Bottle Lake Club, of which Arthur Read, who was badly injured while in camp, was a member, returned home yesterday also, and despite their small numbers secured the allotted share of deer.

DEATH WAS SUDDEN

Telephone Pole in Falling Struck Young Man in Montreal, Who Formerly Lived Here

WAS 25 YEARS OLD

Special Wire to the Examiner.

MONTREAL, Nov. 15th.—Death came to one man and four others received injuries through the collapse of a rotten pole on St. Dominique street, near the General Hospital, at noon Sunday.

The dead man is Bruce Currie aged 25, an employee of A. E. Rea & Co., who boarded at 57 Shuter street and whose home was in Lindsay, Ont.

The injured are:

P. Chouinard, aged 31, 937 Berri street, right shoulder injured and cut on head.

D. Mendelssohn, aged 24, 134 Laval Avenue, three ribs fractured.

Charles Hauser, 314 St. Catherine street west, right arm injured.

Joseph Frechette, Visitation street, internal injuries.

The inquest on Currie was begun this morning. Mr Hanson was able to appear as a witness.

The evidence was to the effect that the pole, which was about 30 feet in length, belonging to the Merchants' Telephone Co., situated on St. Dominique street, near the outdoor entrance to the General Hospital, fell as the men were walking on the sidewalk.

A section was produced, showing that the pole was rotten.

In order to make further investigation, however, the inquest was postponed until 10 o'clock to-morrow morning.

The deceased, when picked up by Constable Savard of City Hall Avenue station, who carried him into the hospital, was conscious and was able to give his address and asked to have his wife notified and sent for. Within a few minutes, however, he died as he reached the ward.

The late Bruce Currie was at one time a resident of Peterborough and will be remembered by many friends who will learn with deep regret of his sad death. He was during his residence here employed in the clothing store of Gough Bros., which is now owned by Merrell and Meredith.

LINDSAY GETS AN INDUSTRY A BOOT FACTORY IS LIKELY

Citizens of Neighbouring Town Are Jubilant Over the Prospects as New Concern Will Employ 300 Hands and its Coming Will Mean Building of Dwelling Houses and a Boom Generally.

The Lindsay Post says:

Citizens may now congratulate themselves on having secured a new industry which will be a great acquisition to the town, and will give employment to 250 or 300 employees.

The new concern will be known as the Thomas Shoe Co. Mr. D. R. Thomas, of Cincinatti, is the gentleman who has conducted the negotiations and they are so far completed that the establishment of the concern in town is a certainty. The town is asked to provide a site and make a fixed assessment on the buildings the company may require.

The main building will be 165 by 55, three storeys and basement, which will be used for the shoe factory and will be capable of turning out about 1,000 pairs heavy and light shoes in a day. A smaller building will also be erected for the manufacture of gloves, which will give employment to about 50 hands. This branch of the business Mr. Thomas expects to get into operation in a few weeks. The main building will be erected in the spring as soon as bricks can be secured. Mr. Thomas is negotiating for the purchase of a tannery where they will tan part of their raw material.

Mr. Thomas is a practical man in the shoe business and knows it from A to Z. He has been connected with the United Shoe Co., one of the largest shoe concerns in the United States. He is a young man of about 30 years of age, understood to have ample capital and has an established connection with the shoe business in Canada. This concern comes into Canada in order to save a duty of 45 cents a pair on their output.

The company will bring into Lindsay a number of experienced workmen and from fifty to one hundred married men. Mr Thomas will erect a number of cottages for the employees and this proposition in itself means a great deal for the town, as the erection of the dwellings will necessarily give employment to a large number of men.

Mr Thomas will be in town for a week or ten days to make preliminary arrangements for beginning work on the factories. It is altogether probable that he will remain here for the winter.

At present Mr Thomas is negotiating for the purchase of a tannery in this district, where he will manufacture his own leather.

Our citizens, we feel sure, will rejoice that the town has secured such an industry—an industry that is well manned financially and one that promises to expand according as its business increases.

NEXT POPULAR BAND CONCERT ON NOV. 25th

The next of the series of band concerts will be held on the evening of Friday, November the 25th, when the 57th Band will present the fantasia "Under a British Flag," assisted by a strong chorus. Miss John Choate, the gifted young violinist, will also be on the programme. A grand musical evening is anticipated.

The Official Report Upon The Field Crops Of The Dominion

OTTAWA, NOV. 11.—The Census Office issues today a bulletin on the crops of Canada as prepared from reports made up to the end of October.

The closing months of the year give good reports for nearly all of the field crops of the Dominion. Potatoes alone indicate partial failure, and in all the provinces there are complaints of rot in the fields and in the heaps for winter storage. The area is 503,262 acres and the estimated yield 74,048,000 bushels, being an average of about 147 bushels per acre, which is nearly uniform for all the provinces. The quality is 84.42 per cent. Turnips and other field roots show a quality of 88.57, a yield per acre of 402 bushels and a total yield of 96,207,000 bushels for a crop of 236,622 acres. Hay and clover are computed for 8,515,400 acres and a yield per acre of 1.82 tons. The quality is 90.45 per cent, and the total yield 15,497,000 tons. Fodder corn has an estimated yield per acre of 9.38 tons, which, upon an area of 271,960 acres gives a product of 2,551,000 tons. Sugar beets are grown most extensively in Ontario and Alberta where they supply roots for three sugar factories. The area in crop this year is 16,000 acres, which is a substantial increase upon last year. The yield per acre is 9.69 tons, the total yield 155,000 tons and the quality 93.15 per cent. The roots supplied to the Berlin factory are testing 17 per cent. of sugar and at the Wallaceburg factory 16 per cent; but a product of 5,000 acres in Ontario is being shipped to factories in Michigan. The product of 8,200 acres in that province is marketed at Wallaceburg and Berlin where the average price is about $5.86 per ton, or better than $57.80 per acre. Computed at the average local prices the market value of potatoes this year is $33,446,000, of turnips and other roots $21,441,000, of hay and clover, $149,716,000, of fodder corn, $11,057,000, and of sugar beets $897,000. The report on fall wheat sown this year shows an area of 790,900 acres, whereof 682,500 acres are in Ontario and 107,800 acres in Alberta. Last year the area was 699,900 acres for Ontario and 98,400 in Alberta. The condition of the crop is reported at 98.40 per cent, as compared with 93.60 last year.

The per cent. of fall ploughing completed this year compared with the area planned for is less than last year, but the report is made for a period one month earlier. The per cent of summer fallowing compared in the same way, is somewhat lower, but increases are shown for Saskatchewan and Alberta.

KILL THE DANDRUFF GERM.

Or Your Hair Will Fall Out Till You Become Bald.

Modern science has discovered that dandruff is caused by a germ that digs up the scalp in scales, as it burrows down to the roots of the hair, where it destroys the hair's vitality, causing falling hair, and ultimately, baldness. After Prof. Unna, of Hamburg, Germany, discovered the dandruff germ, all efforts to find a remedy failed until the great laboratory discovery was made which resulted in Newbro's Herpicide. It alone of all other hair preparations kills the dandruff germ. Without dandruff, hair grows luxuriantly. Destroy the cause, you remove the effect. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

For sale by McDermid and Jury, druggists; also Payne's drug store. $1 bottles guaranteed.

GOOD POSTAL RESULTS.

Good government and administration do not always give as tangible evidences of success as the Post Office Department of Canada. The Canadian post office shows a surplus of three quarters of a million, $750,000, on the year's operations. Since the Liberal Government took charge of the post office business and shook it up there has been a yearly surplus in contrast to previous heavy deficits every year. This year the United States postal department shows a deficit of twenty million dollars. No doubt a considerable amount of this is due to the extensive application of rural mail delivery. This goes far to justify the Canadian policy of gradually introducing rural free delivery in places where mail routes facilitate its adoption without too great addition to the general expenditure. Canada's excellent postal revenue results are a proof of the activity of commercial operations, and the free interchange of correspondence among the people, one of the best means of bringing and keeping our people in touch and promoting solidarity of the sentiment of united citizenship.

THE LEMIEUX ACT.

The first report of the Department of Labour since it has been under the undivided attention of a minister has just been issued. The number of disputes dealt with under the Lemieux Act, an Act designed to minimise the dangers and evils of strikes and lockouts, was thirty, and the total references since its enactment, eighty-two. As an evidence of the growth of favourable sentiment towards this measure, the report states that applications have been received by the minister for the extension of the Act to industries other than those to which it now relates.

Inquiries continue to reach the department almost daily from different parts of the world for the fullest information as to the operation of the Act, showing how ineffective existing legislation on the subject in most countries is conceived to be. Bills modelled closely on the lines of the Canadian Act have been introduced into the Legislature of Massachussetts and Wisconsin. The chief disputes attatrated under the Act last year were railways, 12 coal mining, 9, and freight handlers 2. Only in four cases was there a failure to end the dispute. The total number of disputes in 1908 and 1909 was 69 each, as compared with 104 in 1901, 123 in 1902 160 in 1903, 103 in 1904 87 in 1905, 139 in 1906 and 151 in 107.

During the year 1909 there were reported to the department 1,279 fatal and 2,718 serious non-fatal industrial accidents. This is an increase of 7 fatal and 441 non-fatal accidents over the previous year. 283 fatalities occurred in the railway service, 256 in agriculture, 160 in mining and 130 in lumbering.

An interesting chapter of the report contains a review of the special report on wholesale prices 1890-1909. A reference is made to the rapid and continuous advance in the cost of living.

One hundred and forty-eight wage schedules for insertion in public contracts were furnished by the department. The total number of fair wage schedules prepared since the inception of the policy is 1,570, of which almost one-half have been for the Department of Railways and Canals, and over one-third for the Department of Public Works.

IMPROVED CIVIC GOVERNMENT.

The idea of the Peterborough Policy—the police of having something to do and doing something, is regarded with general popular favour. It is sometimes felt that the necessity of adopting such a policy, the neglect to have applied some such a policy to civic administration, is not unconnected with the constitution of, and the manner of constituting, our civic governing body. In the matter of electing aldermen, does the system in force tend to produce the best results. We have tried the system in all its phases. We tried the Ward system for years and it failed to commend itself as the perfect system. We tried the election of aldermen by general vote—the more rational system. We tried the biennial term for aldermen; but we didn't even give it a fair trial. Then we relapsed into the ward system again and as "Hennessy" would say, "There y'are". Of course this was a retrograde step and could not be expected to lead to improvement.

Now we have an opportunity, and more than that, an incentive to try something else, and that something else might well be government by commission. This has been tried with success in other places, and even our own experience of the value of this form of administration in the case of the Waterworks, justifies attention to the subject. The city of St. Catharines is considering the adoption of the principle of Government by Commission. That city feels that the election of aldermen, by either the ward system, or the system of voting at large can easily secure election of men the best qualified for the discharge of duties so important as those pertaining to civic government. Especially under the Ward system aldermen can easily secure election from sentiment or sympathy, or for personal reasons, who have little to commend them in the way of business or executive qualification, in the way of experience, or soundness of judgement, or otherwise, for the position into which they are thrust, in defiance of such considerations. Men elected for personal or social reasons without reference to far more important qualifications may well turn out to be small men—men of small ideas—and unfitted in any way to deal with large questions, such as a growing city is bound to present. Under our present system of election, municipalities as well as parliamentary constituencies are called upon to vote for men lacking every qualification of business capacity, judgment and steadiness of purpose. The public are too prone to vote without reference to the really important matter—the qualification and capacity of the candidate to give effective service. The church or lodge candidate whose only commendation is comprised in such a relation can often succeed. Such a candidate, elected under such conditions, cannot represent the city, he only represents this special and partial interest to which he owes his place.

With the principle of government by commission adopted we should have men of greater capacity offering for selection, men whose claims to public favour would rest solely upon qualification. That we should have better results not only in routine administration, but in the matter of policy, large outlook and improved results, does not admit of argument.

Suggested Significance Of The Drummond-Arthabaska Election

(Toronto Saturday Night)

As a prominent newspaper said on the morning after the election in Drummond and Arthabaska, "The Bourassa propaganda must be met squarely." The advice was intended for the Liberal party, but it is equally applicable to the Conservative party and to all classes of Canadians who have the future welfare of this country at heart. While the defeat of the Laurier candidate and the election of the so-called Nationalist may have come as a surprise to the majority of Canadians in this province it was not to anyone who has closely followed the course of political events in Quebec during the past few months. It is a propaganda with which neither the Conservative party nor the Liberal party can afford to make a truce. It must be destroyed by the combination of the two historic parties. We cannot prevent the French-Canadians, if they are foolish enough to do so, from electing Nationalist representatives to the House of Commons; but any measures which they present to further their aims can be crushed by the combined votes of both the older parties.

What it will be asked, is the Bourassa propaganda? As has been stated in these columns in the past, it is a clerical and racial campaign to extend the French language and Quebec institutions in this country. A lip loyalty to Great Britain cloaks an active hatred of everything British. It is in spirit if not in word seditious. Despite the fact that the parish curés of the two counties worked like committee men for the Nationalist candidate, and that he himself tried to give a religious aspect to his victory by asking the crowd to sing "Veni Creator" as a hymn of thanksgiving (thereby introducing the Deity as a factor in a lottery and unscrupulously fought bye-election), it would not be fair to saddle the Roman Catholic church as a whole with responsibility for this new party since it hates the Irish Catholic more keenly than it hates the Canadian of English descent and has already made war on two prelates of Ontario, Mgr. Gauthier and Mgr. Fallon. It already aims to extend the field of its operations beyond the province of Quebec into Ontario and into Manitoba. It has been working unobserved by the average Canadian of other provinces, and with what success this signal defeat of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's chosen candidate in a stronghold of Liberalism has demonstrated. It is an hysterical propaganda, but not the less dangerous on that account. In the recent election Mr. Armand Lavergne and his band of politicians and well-meaning but distrait clerics, ran about like the girl in the melodrama shrieking that they had been "betrayed" and that the villain of the piece was Sir Wilfrid Laurier. In what does the betrayal consist. Let us first quote Mr. Albert Sevigny, one of the leading lights of Mr. Bourassa's party:

"English lords who do not want to do their duty, to pay the taxes they owe, have come out here to the colonies to make us pay those taxes. I am surprised that one of the members of the House of Commons, whom you have enriched, should come to you and say: 'Lie down; down; crawl before the English who impose their measures on us.'"

The assertion was capped by an address of Mr. Lavergne, who likened the position of the French-Canadian mother, whose son, he said, was going to be forced to fight for Britain, to that of the Virgin Mary standing by the Cross of Calvary. Speaking of the Arthbaska election on the night of November 3rd Lavergne, alluding to the English-speaking provinces, said: "The one way to save the Empire is by respecting the liberties of the colonies." Thus by some mysterious logic he tries to instil into the primitive mind of the French Canadian the idea that his liberties and privileges are jeopardized. In the same speech he made a cunning allusion to the tri-colour, in an obvious attempt to appeal to that sentiment which would place the flag of France above that of England.

That the Nationalists have succeeded in carrying many clergy and laymen votes with them is astonishing. In view of the fact that under the British flag the French-speaking Catholic enjoys privileges and liberties denied to his church in the ancestral land of France. Yet such is the case. The whole trend of Armand Lavergne's speeches in this campaign was the same as that of the nasaganne articles he has written for third-rate American magazines in denunciation and depreciation of Great Britain. The crime or act of betrayal by Laurier that this theatrical specter of fustian has been shrieking about is the fact that in response to the sentiment of English-speaking Canada the Prime Minister decided to assist in the naval defence of the Empire.

It has been customary to regard Mr. Bourassa the fountain head of the Nationalist movement, as fanatical, but sincere. In view of the utterances of his chief lieutenant, Lavergne and Sevigny, is it possible to regard Mr. Bourassa's statement that he is loyal to Great Britain as sincere?

What the people of Ontario and the West are chiefly concerned about is the effect of this propaganda on the rest of Canada. The recent victory has left Sir Wilfrid Laurier in a difficult position. It was in deference to the propaganda of Mr. Bourassa that the Prime Minister temporizes with the naval matter and refuses the utilitarian and economical method of dealing with it—that of direct contribution. That cost him friends in Ontario, and as is plain to be seen profited him nothing in his native province. It is quite evident that it is too late for him to placate Bourassa and his associates, who are obviously bent on his destruction. But though Conservatives who regard the personality of Sir Wilfrid Laurier as the main obstacle to their success in federal politics are disposed to rejoice over the blow his prestige has suffered in the very home of his youth even the most callous politician, to whom power and patronage mean more than anything else, must pause and ask himself what the Conservative party has to gain by an alliance with Bourassa. He is no blather-kite like the orator Lavergne, he is brilliant able, self-willed, and within his lights a scrupulous man. He has no intention of being made the cat-paw to draw the chestnut out of the fire for the Conservative party. His aim is lower. If by an alliance with Mr Borden he should attempt to defeat the Laurier Administration it would be on terms that would assure a permanent voice in the affairs of government for his party. During the Eucharistic Conference at Quebec it was made clear that there was an alliance between Bourassa and the Archbishop of St. Boniface to carry the war immediately into Manitoba. Is it then so certain that the Conservatives, by casting principle aside and entering into a tacit alliance with this brilliant fanatic, would really gain anything substantial? Should To is generally conceded to be the Canadian stronghold substantial Toronto is generally conservative. If it were even suspected that the Conservative leaders were in alliance with men like Lavergne and Sevigny one admits that Bourassa is more respected, the Liberals would carry the great ridings of East, West and North Toronto, the largest, numerically, in this province, ridings which are incorruptible and which give the indicative note of how the province of Ontario stands. The large Irish Catholic vote of the province would assuredly be cast for the party headed by Laurier and the Orange vote as well. To use a vulgar but expressive political phrase, much in vogue in political caucuses, the policy for Conservatives is "Let Bourassa stew in his own juice." It is their further duty to oppose every idea on which his campaign is based. Some of us may not have approved of the temporizing conduct of the Laurier Government in connection with the naval question; but since the navy is an established fact, the policy for all Canadians who are not racial fanatics is "Play the game."

The London Chronicle says that the British general elections will be over by December 20. It will be cold grow instead of hot goose for somebody's Christmas dinner.

Toronto Star: Ontario, with an estimated population of 2,200,000, has now over 300 K. C.'s. Ireland and Scotland, each with a population of over 4,000,000, have 46 and 60 K.C.'s respectively, while England and Wales with a population of 5,000,000, have 276 barristers who have "taken silk."

An Ottawa clergyman told his congregation on Sunday that a Canadian navy would be needed to keep Quebec in order. A foolish utterance in any case, and worse than foolish in the mouth of the minister of the gospel. The London Advertiser might have well added that such men are the greatest and most dangerous enemies of Canada.

And now Saskatoon, that new, progressive Saskatchewan city "at the centre of the map," proposes to try the land tax basis of assessment. "Ontario had better," suggests the Ottawa Journal, "hurry and get into the game before she is left too far behind." That would be too original for the Whitney Government, which has small talent for initiative. Since it came into power it has originated no new policy. Even its hydro-electric policy, which Mr. Beck has pushed in the face of discouragement and opposition, not all outside the Cabinet, is founded in principle upon the policy of the Ross Government.

Keep the Upward Draft Open . . .

Human nature is like the fire in the open grate. When everything is clear how it glows with comfort and inspiration. How our castles rise to ambition's height. But when the fire and our lives become clogged with ashes, how cheerless the view. Keep the upward draft open.

Do you ever notice how the face of a dear, sainted mother shines when it reflects the rare sweet light that glows beyond the hills of time? A great preacher once said that this was a grander benediction than he could pronounce.

There is no such thing as secret thought. All thoughts write themselves on the face.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

A COMPLAINT was registered with me today to which I'm more than glad to give all the publicity I can.

It is against that class of people who through heedlessness rather than lack of money, let their bills lie three or four months before attending to them.

This true story accompanies the complaint:

"I know a music teacher who has the support of a family consisting of an invalid sister and two little children. The first of every month she makes out her bill and sends them to the parents of her pupils. The understanding when she took the pupils was that she would do this. She did not add that she hoped the bills would be paid promptly for she knew they were all fully aware that it was the only bread winner for the family.

"If ONE happened to let the bill run a month or two he could get along all right, but it means enough for a comfortable living but when it is frequently the case not just one, but all, forget or neglect to pay for several weeks or even a month, it places her in a very trying position. But this present month on the tenth of the month not one cent on one bill had been paid and had it not been that she had credit at the grocery the family would have actually suffered. But even though it did come to actual offering every housekeeper knows the discomfort of not having a little ready money on hand. There is the washerwoman to pay, the crock of butter coming in from the country, the farmer comes with vegetables, but she can only send to the grocery instead of buying at a saving as she ought to, and even if people would only pay her the money she has worked so hard to earn.

"And the most trying part of it all is that they might pay promptly if they only would. The payments come in checks, with hardly an exception and often after such a message as 'We've no place and no another bill.' I think the maid must have dumped it in other. I left it in the mantel, but it is gone,' or 'Your bill entirely slipped my mind until today and now it's nowhere to be found.' Time is money to this little woman and it takes hours of it to make out bills.

What one of us couldn't tell of one case more or less like it.

Myself, I am thinking of a dressmaker who has her invalid husband and two children to support. She was employed in a large dressmaking establishment and did such beautiful work that customers of the establishment persuaded her that she should start in for herself. She needed the money and after much deliberation took this step. At first I heard she was doing splendidly. Later I was much pained to hear that she had been obliged to get back to the former position at a reduced salary. Inquiry revealed the fact that she had failed through no lack of ability on her part, but simply because her customers, most of them rich, were so tardy about paying their bills that with her limited capital she couldn't keep the business on a paying basis.

A good part of the dressmaker's profit, you know, comes from buying her customers' trimmings, etc., at wholesale prices, and she cannot do that unless she is able to settle her store bills promptly.

Everyone ought, of course, to be able to pay all his bills at the end of the month. But even the people who can't do that, can at least collect the bills they will pay promptly that those who are forced to wait for their money will be people with capital, and not people who would suffer as this woman, and a million other like her do.

And as for the people who have plenty of money to pay their bills and only delay because "they let it slip" or "didn't think" well, I have always had an idea that Hell was paved with "didn't thinks" quite as much as with good intentions.

FOOTBALL PLAYER IS ARRESTED FOR MURDER

CAITON, O., NOV. 14. "I am going back to Bethany to face whatever charges the State authorities may bring against me," declared Tommy McCoy, the football player, to-day, when informed that a warran for his arrest on the charge of murder had been issued for him in connection with the death of Capt. Adolph Munk, of the Wheeling W. Va. team, who died as a result of injuries received Saturday in a game at Wheeling.

McCoy told how he and his comrades of the Bethany eleven met the lads of the West Virginia team.

"I was playing end," said McCoy. "I knew that the play was aimed toward my direction. I had no grievance against Munk. He headed the interference. I dumped it; that's all there was to it. When Munk started to get to his feet he was all in, but none of us thought it was a serious."

McCoy, who is 21 years old, lives with his parents. Mrs. McCoy says her son will be vindicated, and that if sh edidn't believe that she wouldn't let him return to West Virginia to-day.

"I'm willing to suffe rany penalty the law may see fit to give me, but I will always know that my work was not done with malice," were McCoy's concluding remarks.

WILL LOCK HIM UP

(Special to The Star)

WHEELING, W. VA., NOV. 14.—When Thomas McCoy reaches this city to-day to answer to the charge of murder growing out of the death of Adolph Munk, fatally injured during Saturday's football game, he will be locked in the Ohio county jail. It is expected that he will be present at the coroner's inquest, set for to-night.

The warrant for McCoy's arrest was issued yesterday by Coroner W. W. Rogers, following a post-mortem examination of Munk, who was captain of the West Virginia University football team. According to Homer N. Young, an attorney and former football star, McCoy slugged Munk in the head during the game.

ONLY ONE JUNIOR O.H.A. TEAM FOR CITY PROSPECTS BRIGHT FOR A GOOD SEASON

West Ends and T. A. S. Management Adopt a Sportsmanlike Attitude and the Junior Tangle is Happily Unravelled.

THE PETERBORO' JUNIORS

The clouds that have hung over the junior hockey horizon for the past few days have been chased away, and the outlook is considerably brighter than it was before last night's meeting. The executive of the Peterborough Hockey Club met with representatives of the West Ends and T. A. S. last night, and as a result of the gathering there will be only one team from this city in the junior series, and it will be known as the Peterborough Junior O. H. A. team. The West Ends and T. A. S. showed a sportsmanlike attitude in their views upon the subject and agreed to be commended upon the decision arrived at. A strong committee was selected to manage the juniors, and everyone agreed to get his shoulder to the wheel and help things along.

All the available junior material in the city will be lined up and the best team selected, no ill feeling being the only consideration. An effort will be made to have the youngsters start training at once and it is possible that road work and gymnastics will be commenced to get the boys in shape. The meeting decided to support Mr. Jas. Sutherland's amendment to have the junior age limit moved back to twenty years instead of nineteen as it stands at present. Last year the O.H.A. decided to raise the limit to nineteen years, the rule to come into force this season. As far as can be seen the rule only benefits Toronto. The smaller towns and cities are handicapped by a nineteen year limit, as they have only a limited field to pick from.

WEEK'S PROGRAMME

The Classes That Will Meet at the Y. W. C. A.

The first Saturday night social event of the winter was run off at the Boys' Department last Saturday, when a number of the boys gathered in the social rooms and were entertained by the short, but choice programme which was given as a starter to what will be a regular once a week programme for the purpose of having something doing on Saturday, which seems to be an ideal night for programmes of this nature.

The programme will not be particulars mentioned but will be worth while, and as was the case Saturday, a pleasant surprise perhaps to those who come around. Something worth while doing every Saturday night would be a good thing to remember, because such will be the case Tuesday night, at 8 p.m. Mr Galley's Business Boys' Bible class.

Wednesday night, Scouts, 7 to 8 in Scout room.

COLLEGIATE TEAM HAD EASY WIN IN LINDSAY

Defeated Byron Green aud Company by 28 to 0 in an Interesting Game on a Snow Covered Field---Team Work and Speed of the Collegians Too Much for the Lindsayites.

On a field covered with snow, and lined with about 200 lusty lunged Lindsay rooters, the Y.M.C.A. team of that town went down to ignominious defeat at the hands of the Peterborough High School team at Lindsay on Saturday. When Cap. Simpson's stop watch got through working the score 28-0 was announced with the Scuggogites at the humble end. Although the Peterborough youngsters had the better of the play at every stage of the game, it was an interesting struggle, featured by hard tackling, splendid backing and good punting. The Lindsayites were in no shape and on only one occasion got their yards on running and bucking, while on the other hand the locals had seldom to resort to the kick save on the third down. The Collegiate team worked better on Saturday, than they have done at any other game this fall. The four-man plunge, jake buck and crisscross plays were pulled off with good variety, snap and precision, and the assortment of bucks perpetrated on the losers was a source of bewilderment to the latter. While the team work was excellent the local backs took the heavy end of the play on their shoulders and not a weak spot was discernible. Gibson starred in the catching and running game. Hogan charged the Lindsay line time and time again for substantial gains and Minorgan looked after the punting in good style. Hayes and Matthews had each a good day in all departments of the game and the local wing line was invulnerable to the attacks of the opposing backs although well matched in weight. For the Lindsay team Byron Green, the old stand-by who played centre-half for the Lindsay champions a few years ago and Biglow who played left-half were the pick of the opposition. They were too closely watched however to give much trouble. The teams lined up as follows:—

P.C.I.		Lindsay
Hayes	Full back	Dougan
Gibson	Halves	Hopkins
Minorgan		Green
Hogan		Biglow
Matthews	Quarter	Williamson
Hill	Scrimmage	Balfour
Leahy		Mitchell
Corkery		Kennedy
Lang	Wings	Stevens
Eastwood		Knowlson
Throop		McNabb
Harstone		Anderson
Conroy		Riler
Gilbert		Collins

Referee: O'Brien: Umpire: Simpson.

Hardly had the pigskin been kicked off when play was introduced with a vengeance into Lindsay territory. The Lindsay line was torn to pieces and Gibson on a fake buck went over for a try planting the ball squarely behind the goal. Hogan converted nifftily. P.C.I. 6, Y.M.C.A. 0. A few minutes later Hogan charged through for another try which was not converted. P.C.I. 11, Y.M.C.A. 0.

In the second quarter Minorgan began to kick and although Green caught nicely behind the line he did not have a chance to usher the ball from behind being downed on two occasions. P.C.I. 11, Y.M.C.A. 0.

The third quarter produced no results to either side although Hayes and Matthews tore off some long runs.

In the last period Harstone dropped a fumbled ball for a try which was not converted. Minorgan kicked twice over the dead line and two more rouges were also added. In the last minute of play Minorgan again drove the pigskin over Green's head. The latter thought it was over the dead line and made no effort to recover. Gilbert however with a good eye to business dropped on the ball and a touch was allowed. Minorgan converted making the final score, P.C.I. 28; Y.M.C.A. 0.

R. M. C. AND VARSITY SECONDS MAY PLAY OFF HERE

Peterborough People will Likely Get a Chance to See the Intermediate Inter-Collegiate Finals---This City is Represented on Both Teams---Will Be a Good Game.

Peterborough rugby enthusiasts will likely have an opportunity of seeing a first class game here, as it is altogether likely that Royal Military College of Kingston and Varsity Seconds, of Toronto, who are tied for the championship of the Intermediate City, will play off for the title at Rivers cside Park. Dr. A. W. McPherson received a wire today asking if the grounds could be secured here and replied in the affirmative so that it is likely that the game will be played here. The game will have a peculiar local interest, as there is a Peterborough boy on each team, Harry Smith being on the back division of the Cadets, while Gordon Campbell plays quarter for the Toronto Collegians. Local fans will welcome an opportunity to see these two crack teams in action. Their pictures is very little to the write-up article in the Inter-Collegiate Union, and the game should be well worth seeing.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

THIS WOMAN AND THIS MAN.

"This Woman and This Man" announced on the programme at the New York Maxine Elliott theatre was the attraction at the Grand last night and was greeted by a very small audience. It proved a clever written and well acted play with a plot unusual in nature and was worthy of better patronage. Miss Minnie Dupree carried off the chief honors handsomely and was given capable support by Mr. William M. Blair and by Miss Elizabeth Tennant who played the part of a boy with cute and successful

FOR TRUANCY

A local man appeared in the police court this morning charged with not sending his son, a boy of 11 years, to school. The accused stated that he had sent the boy to school and wanted him to go, but he would play truant. It appears that other ways of persuasion failed to bring him to the school house. Another reason was that he found it hard to control him and his father was not at home to enforce the law. The case was remanded until to-morrow morning, when the boy will be brought to court.

When the accused was asked what he used to whip the boy with, he stated that he used his razor strop. His Worship Magistrate Dumble recommended that the Chief have a suitable strap brought into court and such men as the accused be supplied with them. The Chief promised to have the idea carried out and the court adjourned.

Generous and Independent.

In front of a confectioner's shop in Paris there used to sit a woman with two wooden legs. She sold pictures and songs and played well on the violin. In 1848 she was there, very pretty and dressed with a good deal of taste, and when Louis Napoleon, then merely Prince Louis, used to go through the street nearly every day, he never passed without giving her something.

She knew him and was also aware of his pecuniary embarrassments and his political ambitions. One evening she said to him, "Monsieur, I want to say a word to you."

"Say it, madame."

"They tell me that you are a good deal cramped just now. I have at my house a comfortable sum which is earning nothing. Let me offer it to you. You will return the favor when you are emperor."

Prince Louis did not accept the money, but he did not forget the kindness, and when he became emperor he offered her a small annuity. The woman was as independent as she was generous. "Say to the emperor," she replied, "that it is exceedingly good of him to remember me, but I cannot accept his offer. If he had accepted mine I won't say what might have happened, but as it is, no!"

ADAM'S PEAK.

A Shrine Sacred to Three Conflicting Religious Sects.

Throughout Asia "holy places" are almost as numerous as leaves on a tree, but in Ceylon is a mountain which enjoys the unique distinction of being a very holy place to the devotees of three absolutely distinct and conflicting religious sects. This is Adam's Peak, or Samanala.

According to the Mohammedan belief, Adam, after the fall, was taken by an angel to the top of Samanala, and a panorama of all the ills that through sin should afflict mankind was spread out before him. His foot left an impression on the solid rock, and his tears formed the lake from which pilgrims still drink. The Buddhists contend that it was not Adam, but Buddha himself that made the footprint in the rock, that being the last spot where he touched the earth before ascending to heaven, while the Brahmins have still another legend. All, however, Brahmins, Mohammedans and Chinese, agree that Samanala is a very holy place, and to perform a pilgrimage to the spot is to the Buddhist what a visit to Mecca is to a Mohammedan. In mixed crowds the worshipers come, each pitying the ignorance of the other, who is so far from the "true way."

It requires no little faith and some imagination to trace in the depression in the rock the likeness of a human footprint. It is 5¼ feet long by 2½ feet wide, on the top of a huge bowlder. The natives, however, insist that it is the footprint of Adam.—Emmett Campbell Hall in Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Conspired to Abduct Girl.

Whitby, Nov. 15.—Edward Finlayson and Emma Ocamb, both of Toronto, were found guilty of conspiring to abduct Edna Frink, a fifteen-year-old Oshawa girl, from her home. The offence occurred in August last, and the trial took place at the Court House here before his honor Judge McCrimmon.

Finlayson met the girl in Oshawa, being introduced to her by one George Paradis. A few weeks later Finlayson called at the Frink home and arranged with Edna to go to Toronto to meet him there. In Toronto Finlayson rented a room in a house on George street. Edna stopped at this house for several days, going out for meals with Finlayson, who spent much time with her.

The next heard of Edna was one night of the same week, when she came to Whitby from Toronto in an auto with George Paradis. The pair went to the Chinese laundry here, where they were found a few hours later when the police broke in. Paradis was acquitted on the charge of conspiring to abduct, but the other two were convicted. They will appear next Saturday for sentence.

Expropriation Case On.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Nov. 15.—Yesterday the Ontario Railroad and Municipal Board opened a week's hearing of the expropriation proceedings, instituted by Queen Victoria Niagara Falls Park Commission against forty farmers between Chippawa and Bridgeburg. Robert McCready, whose farm is one mile south of Chippawa, was offered $3,700 for the portion of his farm required for the frontier boulevard. The farmer claims it is worth $9,177.

William Manley German, K.C., representing the farmers, declared that very material damage would be done the McCready property by the trolley line, which, he contended, was to be built along the boulevard. George L. Staunton, K.C., of Hamilton, represents the park commission. Before the McCready case was completed, adjournment was taken till 10 o'clock to-day.

Shot His Father.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Nov. 15.—Joseph Weigle, aged 40, a farmer on the Garden River road, two miles from the Soo, is dead as the result of an accidental shooting by his thirteen-year-old son Alfred, who was practicing with a new rifle. Weigle lived but five minutes, the ball entering the left breast just above the heart. The deceased leaves a family of six children, besides a widow. A shell, which had been put into the rifle stuck and it is said the boy was proceeding towards his father to have it removed, when the weapon was discharged.

Sat Dead at Top of Stair.

St. Catharines, Nov. 15.—Death came suddenly to Mrs. Peter Guyette at Merritton yesterday afternoon. She had come from Chippawa to visit Mrs. John O'Reilly and was to visit all acquaintances here, but, failing to appear, Miss O'Reilly ascended the stairs, when she found the woman sitting dead on the top step.

Needed a Reward.

Sir Henry Hawkins was once presiding over a long, tedious and uninteresting trial, and was listening, apparently with great attention, to a very long-winded speech from a learned counsel.

After a while he made a pencil memorandum, folded it and sent it by the usher to the Queen's counsel in question, who, unfolding the paper, found these words: "Patience competition. Gold medal, Sir Henry Hawkins. Honorable mention, Job."

She Knew Him.

She—You know, Harry, so far as I am concerned, I am only too happy to become your wife, but my father, you know—

He.—But what has your father got to do with it? Your father hasn't got to live with me.

She—No, Harry, but you may have to live with father, you know.

The Pepper Vine.

The most common and widely used of all spices is pepper. It is a native of the East Indies, but is now cultivated in various parts of the tropical belt of this hemisphere. The plant is a climber and has a smooth stem sometimes twelve feet long. The fruit is about the size of a pea and when ripe is of a bright red color. In cultivation the plant is supported by poles. In some localities small trees are used instead of poles, for the best pepper is grown in a certain degree of shade.

The Gentle Art.

"I adore intelligence!" she cried.

"So do I," said he. "All the same, though, beauty and intellect never go together."

"And do you think me intellectual?" she faltered.

"No," he confessed frankly.

With a faint blush she murmured, "Flatterer!"—Los Angeles Examiner.

The White of an Egg.

The white of an egg is made up of little cells filled with albumen. By beating the white these cells are ruptured and oxygen from the air is inclosed, which gives the white and light appearance to beaten eggs. The white of a stale egg will not inclose as much oxygen, will not be as light and as easily digested as that of the fresh egg and, of course, less valuable. The importance of beating the egg in cold pure air is readily seen.

Complete Lives.

We should all strive to make our lives complete. Many people only half live. Health without usefulness, intellect without unselfishness, pleasure without duty—these are incomplete and unsatisfying elements of living.

A Fellow Feeling.

A burglar, entering softly by way of the window and looking around him, was rather disconcerted to find a large piece of paper on the table with the words "The Burglar" written on it in large letters. "Meant for me evidently," he said to himself and picked it up. This is what he read: "I know you are coming tonight—never mind how. If you will take away this parcel and lose it effectually you are welcome to what else you can find in this room." Wonderingly he opened the parcel, but at once his face cleared and he understood. "Pore chap, pore chap!" he murmured feelingly. "I'll take 'em for 'im right enough and let 'im off easy too. I'm a father meself!" For the contents of the parcel were as follows: One toy trumpet, one drum (large), one toy concertina, one tambourine, one musical box, one mouth organ, three tin whistles, one air gun.

First Jewelry Store.

It may interest women to know that the first jewelry store was started in the city of Chang On about 3,000 years ago. The Celestial millionaires of that period knew nothing of the fascination of diamonds, because diamonds were not in vogue at that B. C. period. Pearls and jade and coral and other unpolished mineral substances had to content them, and, as if to make good the glitter of reviere and tiarras, the princes of Chang On employed artisans to fashion them the most wonderful gold and silver ornaments, which in themselves were far more costly than diamonds.

Well Answered.

"Do you see much difference between Americans and Englishmen?" a handsome, spoiled English guardsman is said to have asked a sparkling American girl newly arrived in London society.

"Oh, yes," was her quick reply. "Over there the men admire us; here we are expected to admire you."

They say the astonished soldier almost fell off his chair at the unexpectedness of it.

Measles.

Measles is the most "catchable" of all the contagious diseases, says The Youth's Companion, but it is pretty well conceded that it can only be caught from a person who has it. It is not carried by the wind. This being the case, its control should not be difficult. Every child who develops a somewhat violent attack of coryza, with running eyes and all the usual symptoms of cold in the head, should be isolated for a day or two and watched for the development of the characteristic eruption. When this comes out it is certain the child has not a "cold," but has measles, and its isolation should be continued until the eruption has entirely faded.

A Luxury.

"But," objected the fickle girl, "I have been accustomed to every luxury."

"That's all the more reason why you should marry me," replied the impecunious suitor. "I'm a luxury myself."

Official Notice Of Mr. Doherty's Experiment With Brown Corn

About the middle of October Mr John Doherty, of Norwood, left with the Examiner a sample of broom corn grown by him at Norwood. The sample, with an explanatory letter, was sent by Hon. Mr. Stratton to the Minister of Agriculture at Ottawa, and the correspondence in connection with the matter, in reply to Mr. Stratton's letter, is reproduced below, as a matter of interest to farmers who do not wish to confine their operations on one line of production.

We all know how much it costs to buy in a broom now, the price has increased out of all proportion of a "trust." At present little or no broom corn for commercial purposes is grown in this country. The supply for local manufacture comes from the United States and has to be imported at a "hold up" price. Therefore anything that promises relief from these conditions and that tends to cheapen the cost of the main weapon in the cleanly housewife's armoury, will be considered with interest. The correspondence is as follows:

Ottawa, 12th November, 1910.
Honourable J. R. Stratton, M.P.,
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Mr Stratton,

With further reference to your letter of October 17th, in regard to the broom corn that Mr. John Doherty, of Norwood, has grown, I took the first opportunity of discussing this with Dr. Saunders, and after referring the matter to the Dominion Botanist, Mr. Gussow, Dr Saunders has sent me a memorandum of which the enclosed is a copy. I am quite sure that what Mr. Gussow states is correct and that he has only come to this conclusion after a careful examination of all the conditions.

In view of what is stated, I think it would be worth our while to undertake some experiments at the Experimental Farm next summer with reference to broom corn.

Yours very truly,
SYDNEY FISHER.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE
CENTRAL EXPERIMENTAL FARM
(Ref. no. 10, 1658)
Ottawa, Nov. 9th, 1910

Memo. to Dr. Saunders:

In reference to the question raised by the Honourable Mr. Stratton in his communication to the Honourable Mr. Fisher as regards the growing of broom corn for commercial purposes at Norwood. I have formed the following conclusion from the literature on the subject.

There is no doubt that this crop may be grown in Ontario, even as far North as Norwood. At Ottawa, early frosts have prevented the ripening of seed but this has been largely due to late sowing. At the Guelph Experimental Farm several varieties of broom corn have been under test for some fifteen years, maturing satisfactory crops for fodder. At neither place, however, was it the intention to raise the crop for manufacturing purposes, but no doubt the results obtained indicate that broom corn may be grown to some advantage for commercial purposes.

The quality of the crop for broom making may be expected to be satisfactory, provided the seed is selected from the best types. The head submitted, which contains too many coarse and crooked straws, would not likely command the highest price on the market.

The price quoted ($200 a ton) appears somewhat high, unless it has risen decidedly of late. For the best grades, one hundred dollars a ton is considered a fair price and eighty dollars a ton is about the average price realized. A yield of one ton per acre is much above that commonly secured in suitable broom growing sections; one-third of a ton being the average yield. (Vide Farmers' Bulletin, No. 171, U.S. Dept. of Agriculture, 1903).

To secure satisfactory material the production of this crop would require special machinery and equipment and necessitates that extra help be readily available at harvest time. Success on the other hand is also largely due to the experience and skill of the grower.

I do not wish to imply that the growing of broom corn would not be profitable in Ontario, nor that it may not become a crop of some importance in the future. Experiments, as suggested in Mr. Stratton's letter, might well be conducted to determine the best methods of growing and handling this crop, at least in those districts where a certain amount of it is already being grown. I am, however, of the opinion that this is not a crop which will appeal at present to the average farmer in Ontario, who looks largely to dairying and stock raising for his revenue, and generally avoids those crops which do not contribute to that end, and which tend to add to the difficulty of his labour problem.

H. T. GUSSOW,
Dominion Botanist.

NOTE—It is to be noted that the price of $200 referred to by Dr. Gussow, was actually paid by a local manufacturer. It was however paid under exceptional conditions which might never be repeated but there is no doubt that the Canadian manufacturer of brooms has to pay a price for his broom corn very greatly in excess of which according to Dr. Gussow's quotations, the Broom Corn Trust of the United States may force upon the producing farmer of that country.

EDITORS ARE WATCHING.

The editorial below is taken from the Honesdale Pa., Independent, of August 31st. Our thanks are hereby expressed to the editor, Benjamin F. Haines, for his clear and truthful statement of the facts. We have asked our brother editors all over America to compare the weekly 'long range' forecasts" of the weather bureau, with our forecasts, printed a year in advance, and we are gratified to see that they are taking the matter up, all over the country. Our brethren of the tripod will please understand that this is not an ill-humoured fling at the weather bureau, but it is a fair and honourable effort to find the truth on this great and vital subject of storm and weather. Read this:

Hicks and the government weather bureau agreed on weather forecasts for last week, the only difference being that the St. Louis man foretold meteorological conditions a year ahead and Uncle Sam's weather man had to wait until the change of atmosphere began somewhere up in the "Rockies." For the week of the 25th Hicks said there would "certainly be boreal winds from the north and a general change to unseasonable cold weather over most parts of the inland states." When the cold wave started, the government bureau wired over the country that it was coming, a fact Hicks foretold in both his Almanac for 1910 and his Word and Works for August. Yet there are those who would discredit this great and comparatively accurate weather forecaster.

From the Oklahoma, Record, of September 9th, we reprint from a full column editorial, the extracts following:

Those short-range weather prognosticators at Washington amuse us considerably. By the aid of the telegraph they can manage to crawl in a few hours ahead of a storm or radical change in the weather, while Mr. Hicks gives the information as fully months in advance. In proof of this we submit the following as printed in Hicks' almanac last November. * * *

The editor of the Record then quotes our forecasts, which had been printed in our 1910 Almanac a year in advance, showing his readers the truth and fairness of his criticism, closing his editorial in the following strong words:

Now all of our readers will recognize the fulfilment of the above. The storm that was to culminate on and touching the 3rd reached this locality Sunday night. They will observe how well the storm periods blended together and they will also appreciate the fact that the cool wave came from the north this Friday morning, September the 9th, as Hicks said it would. The editor of the Record has been a reader and close observer of Hicks for years and would not do without his almanac for $100 a year.

That we greatly appreciate such testimonials from our brother editors—and there are hundreds of them—goes without saying. We wish every editor on the American continent might make the same test of our forecasts. We want no fulsome praise, nor do we wish any credit where none is due. But we do desire, for the sake of the truth, and the welfare of mankind, to astonish everywhere and for all coming time, the correctness and value of the great work to which we are devoting our whole life and substance. It is with this only object in view, that we are asking the cooperation of our brothers of the tripod and press.—Rev. Irl R. Hicks.

St. Louis, October 14th.

Mrs. J. B. Elliott, as matron of ceremonies, looked extremely well in a medish gown of Copenhagen blue satin with baby Irish yoke and sleeves and trimmed with gold and blue passementerie. She wore a large black velvet picture hat with handsome plumes.

The tea table, which was centred with a shower of roses in a cut glass bowl, around which was a ring of smilax, was presided over by Mrs. MacFarlane and Mrs. Winslow. Mrs. MacFarlane wearing a pretty gown of grey silk crepe de chine, trimmed with lace and a black and white hat, and Mrs. Winslow in grey satin with black trimmings and black hat with white plumes.

Mrs. Hess, in a green crepe de chine, trimmed with green satin and wearing a black beaver hat, cut the teas. The Misses Fraser, in pink and white lingerie gowns were efficient assistants.

SPORTING NOTES

A letter from Lindsay says: "In competition for a prize W. McCarty broke all records on the local bowling alleys. He rolled 711 for three games on three different alleys. The high single score was 289.

The two other games were 270 and 199.

The championship season ended in all three rugby unions on Saturday and the records make interesting reading.

Varsity was the only team to finish with a clean record, winning all but the first game of the season by a wide margin. McGill and Queen's tied for second place, with the Montrealers showing superior form both in attack and defence. Varsity scored more points than any other team in Canada and had fewer scored against them.

T.A.A.C. won five out of their six games, their only defeat being by St Michael's in the first game of the season. Dundas outscored the league winners, but had the advantage of playing two games against Parkdale, the weak team in the union. However, Dundas showed themselves, next to Varsity, the best scoring team in Canada.

Hamilton won the Interprovincial series with four victories and two defeats, with Argonauts and Ottawa tied for second place, and Montreal, the best scoring team in the union, in last place. The Tigers, as a matter of fact, were the poorest scorers of the four teams, but had the best defence, which won for them the championship. The Argonauts had the weakest defence in the union, and, with the exception of Parkdale and Ottawa College, the weakest in Canada. Father Fallon's team had 213 points scored against them and only made 18 themselves, which was even worse than Parkdale, who scored 25 against 113 made by opponents.

GENERAL ELECTION BEFORE CHRISTMAS IS A CERTAINTY

Premier Agrees to Send His Measure to the Lords on Condition that No Delay is Made in Handling It.

PLAYING FOR TIME

London, Nov. 16.—A general election before Christmas is a practical certainty, but the steps whereby this will be brought about are still unknown. The King is evidently taking an active part in the crisis, and his Majesty's influence may have an important bearing on the situation.

It was announced last night that the Government will accede to Lord Lansdowne's demand to have the veto bill submitted to the House of Lords, on condition that no dilatory tactics are employed for the mere purpose of gaining time. As it cannot be supposed that the Lords would accept the bill, this move is not likely to have much effect on the general situation.

Premier Asquith's official statement will not be presented to Parliament until Friday, in deference to Mr. Balfour, who has an engagement to address an important political meeting at Nottingham on Thursday.

An indication of the Unionist policy comes with the publication of the resolution which Austen Chamberlain, after a consultation with Mr. Balfour and Lord Lansdowne, will submit to the Unionist conference at Glasgow on Nov. 25. These resolutions concede that the possession of a peerage should no longer of itself give the right to sit in the House of Lords, and welcome any reasonable proposals which will increase the efficiency of the House of Lords by the addition of life peers, or representatives elected for a term of years from those outside the peerage. At the same time the resolutions maintain that when the two Houses disagree on vital issues, it is the people alone who have the right to decide between them.

Is It a Bluff?

London, Nov. 16.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—In the House of Lords Monday evening Lord Lansdowne sprang a surprise by calling upon the Government to submit the Parliament bill for the decision of Parliament without delay. This will add to the difficulties of the Cabinet, who meet to-day. Rumors are flying about that the House of Lords is ready to accept the Government's plan, with modifications, but in several quarters, especially in the Ministerial ranks, it is described as a mere sham, or at most an attempt to postpone the election. The Parliament bill has been read once in the Commons.

Lord Rosebery enquired what has become of his proposals for the reform of the Upper House. Lord Crewe promised to make a statement to-day.

After consultation with Mr. Balfour, Lord Lansdowne's statement in the House of Lords that "Some of us are not without hope that, although this particular conference has been unproductive of a definite conclusion, another conference may be held which will be more successful."

The News hints plainly that Asquith is experiencing difficulty in obtaining from the crown guarantees that his veto policy would be rendered effective if the Ministerialists are returned to power.

The principal Liberal agents are practically unanimous for an immediate fight.

BLONDIN ON TRIAL

Dying Dr. Empey Had Miss Wood Give Him Morphia and Strychnine Before He Made the Statement Accusing Blondin of Deliberate Murder — Judge's Decision Is Held Over Until To-day.

L'Original, Ont., Nov. 16.—An endeavor by the defence to have the ante-mortem statement of Dr. W. Empey of Vars, with whose murder Albert Blondin of the same place is charged, declared inadmissable as evidence, was the chief point in the trial of the latter, which opened here yesterday morning before Justice Britton of Toronto. The statement was laid over till to-day for further authority as to its legality.

E. Meredith, K.C., for the prosecution, in addressing the jury, gave an indication of the course the crown's case would take when he emphasized the fact that the prisoner's wife was working at Dr. Empey's place on the day the doctor was shot, and that this was the first time she had been there for a year and a half. He laid great stress on the doctor's dying statement in which he said that Blondin had deliberately raised the gun and fired at him, and that it was not an accident.

Evidence was then given by Dr. McDougal of Russell, one of the medical attendants of the deceased, and Coroner Boyle of Casselman, the first of which said that Dr. Empey had been clear in mind previous to his death.

That Blondin had summoned Dr. Empey, saying that he was ill, and that he was cleaning his gun before the doctor came was stated by Louis Grosloulis, son-in-law of the defendant. After hearing a shot upstairs, he assisted Dr. Empey, wounded, from the house and then fled with his own and the prisoner's family, as he considered the killer was crazy.

Dr. Empey had made a verbal statement to the same effect to Rev. Jas. Cormack, Presbyterian minister, stated the latter when called. He also gave evidence, which was supported by Mr. and Mrs. L. Feltery, in whose house Dr. Empey died, by Miss Lindwood, a friend, and by Miss Mary Empey, sister, to the effect that Dr. Empey had caused Miss Wood to administer two hypodermic doses of morphine and one of strychnine shortly before making his last statement as to the shooting.

The question of the admissability of this statement was then deferred till to-day on the objection of Mr. Lemieux, for the defendant, though the defence later almost nullified their partial success, when Mr. Lemieux questioned a statement made by Dr. Empey in his dying declaration, although, if this statement were proven incorrect, it might affect the correctness of the whole declaration of Dr. Empey. It would also mean the admission of the latter as evidence, so the matter was let drop.

He will be assisted by George E. McCrossan, barrister, of Vancouver, as counsel.

MISSION OF CANADA
Is To Preserve Peace THROUGHOUT THE WORLD

Rev. Dr. J. A. Macdonald's Address Read at Banquet Although Globe Editor Is Prevented by Illness From Being Present — Hon. Mr. King and Hon. Adam Bell of Nova Scotia Among Speakers.

New York, Nov. 16.—International peace, with incidental reference to tariff matters, was the topic of interest at the annual banquet at the New York Canadian Club. Among the guests was Hon. W. L. M. King of Ottawa.

Dr. J. A. Macdonald of Toronto, it was announced, was unable, owing to illness, to attend, but his address on "Canada in the Anglo-Saxon Fraternity," was read by J. F. MacKay, president of the late Toronto Canadian Club.

Hon. Mackenzie King could see only one danger to the celebration of the centenary of the peace movement that some individual or society would try to usurp it all and create friction. Already he had heard of several proposal for adequately commemorating the centenary. To his mind, it was remarkable that Canada and the U.S. had been enabled to amicably settle all disputes between them, and the moral, he believed, was that there was a waning of the war spirit throughout the world.

Hon. Adam Bell of Nova Scotia showed some independence. Canada, he said, desired to be friendly with the republic, but did not intend to surrender any of her rights to assert her interest at any time. An Anglo-Saxon alliance would ensure the peace of the world.

In Dr. Macdonald's address, he said:

"And to our friends in the United States we give full assurance that while we rejoice to recognize how much of what is best in our life we have in common with them, yet our nationalities are distinct, and the great lakes and the forty-ninth parallel will continue to divide the sovereignities of the Union Jack and the Stars and Stripes. If there are still in the United States any who dream of annexation, Canadians would disturb their dreams with words of truth and soberness. Annexation is dead, and if it ever were a living issue in Canada your tariff laws would have killed it. We desire friendly relations and just trade agreements. We will buy with you, sell with you, talk with you, walk with you, eat with you, drink with you, pray with you, but we will not join your republic or follow your flag.

"Canada's part is that of peace-keeper. She stands for peace, not for her own sake alone, but for the sake of the Anglo-Saxon ideal, and for the world's sake. She will not even consider the possibility of war in the Anglo-Saxon family. The military man who talks of arsenals and fortifications on the great lakes we mock at and laugh out of court. We repudiate as a guilty fallacy the notion that in peace we should prepare for war. Canada's maxim is: In peace prepare for more peace. This century of peace along the international boundary is the pledge and the prelude of an enduring peace more vital, more helpful, more beneficial to both nations and to the world than as yet has been dreamed."

Expect Fifty Per Cent Increase.

Washington, Nov. 16.—Contemplating the adoption of some of the United States Government's census-taking methods in connection with the next census, the Canadian Government has sent to Washington E. S. McPhail of the census bureau of Canada, to consult with Director Durand regarding the operations of the American bureau. The two officials have been in conference for two days.

Mr. McPhail said that, according to official estimates, the next Canadian census, which will be taken in June 1911, will show a population of about 8,000,000. This would be an increase of 2,700,000, or about 50 per cent. over the figures of 1901.

"We hope," said Mr. McPhail, "that a large percentage of the increase will be shown on account of American immigration."

Sir Hugh Graham Denies Rumor.

Glasgow, Nov. 16.—Sir Hugh Graham, speaking to a representative of the Canadian Associated Press, said the report that he is to succeed Lord Strathcona, Canada's High Commissioner, is absurd. He pointed out that there was no vacancy in the commissionership, and stated that Canadians hoped that Lord Strathcona will remain in office for years to come.

Mother Leaped From Window.

New York, Nov. 16.—Ten minutes after reaching St. Catharines Hospital in Brooklyn, suffering with two broken legs she had received jumping from the third storey of her home, while it was on fire yesterday, Mrs. Ray Schustermann of 203 Moore street, gave birth to a baby boy. The child is a healthy youngster, but the mother will likely die.

Kind Comment.

London, Nov. 16.—Referring to comments by The Montreal Herald and The Daily Witness on speeches of Sir George Doughty and Sir William Grantham, The Chronicle says it is curious that any newspaper in Canada should suppose anyone in this country pays the slightest attention to what these two gallant knights may say.

Just Canadian Winners.

Dublin, Nov. 16.—The corporation passed unanimously a resolution approving of the proposed Parliamentary bill to facilitate the establishment of an Irish-Canadian service from Galway to Halifax.

With and Without

In the matter of Education, those who have had the privileges of a liberal education would not be without its advantages. Many who have not a liberal education, like many who need glasses, do not realize their lack of ability to earn a livelihood, the lack of enjoyments, etc. We frequently have persons remark: "Oh, if I had but known that such comfort and clear vision were possible, I would have had these glasses long ago. I would not be without them for many times their price."

Rescued From Death.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Nov. 16.—Rescued from a horrible death last night, an unknown man owes his life to Immigration Inspector Prentice. Upon alighting from a car at the foot of Simcoe street, Prentice saw the man lying within a foot of the brink of the precipice, having a sheer drop of over 150 feet to the rocks at the water's edge.

As Prentice watched the man, the latter began rolling towards the precipice's brink. Hurdling the iron railing that runs along the river bank, Prentice caught the man's coat in time to save him from rolling to instant, horrible death.

The man was taken to police headquarters, but was in a stupor, the police say, from drink, unable to speak. The only thing found on him that would give a clue to his identity was the return portion of a ticket from this city to Hamilton.

Grande Ligne, Que., Jan. 2nd, 1910.

My wife was troubled for three years with Eczema on the hands, which made her hands almost useless. The doctor gave her several ointments to use, none of which had any effect. He also advised her to wear rubber gloves (she wore out three pairs).

I persuaded her, as a last resort, to try "Fruit-a-tives." The effect was marvellous. Her hands are now cured. We both attribute our present good health to "Fruit-a-tives."

CHAPTER XXVII.

FRIEND OR ENEMY

There came no summons from Rowchester, and I dined alone. I must have dozed over my after-dinner cigarette, for at first that soft rapping seemed to come to me from a long way off. Then I sat up in my chair with a start. My cigarette had burnt out, my coffee was cold. I had been asleep, and outside some one was knocking at my front door.

I had sent Grooton to the village with letters, and I was alone in the place. I sprang from my chair just as the handle of the door was turned and a woman stepped quietly in. She was wrapped from head to foot in a long cloak and she was thickly veiled. But I knew her at once. It was Mrs. Smith-Lessing.

My first impulse was one of anger. It seemed to me that she was taking advantage of the sympathy which Ray's brutality during our last interview had forced from me. I spoke to her coldly, almost angrily.

"Mrs. Smith-Lessing," I said, "I regret that I cannot receive you here. My position just now does not allow me to receive visitors."

She simply raised her veil and sank into the nearest chair. I was staggered when I saw her face. It was positively haggard, and her eyes were burning. She looked at me almost with horror.

"I had to come," she said. "I could not keep away a moment longer. Tell me the truth, Guy Ducaine. The truth, mind!" she repeated, fearfully.

"What do you mean?" I asked, bewildered. "I do not understand you."

"Tell me the truth about that man who came to see you on the seventh of January."

I shook my head.

"I have nothing to tell you," I said firmly. "When I found him on the marshes he was dead. I did not hear till afterwards that he had ever asked for me."

"This is the truth?" she asked eagerly.

"It is the truth," I answered.

I could see the relief shine in her face. She was still anxious, however.

"Is it true," she asked, "that you told a girl in the village, Blanche Moyat, to keep secret the fact that this man inquired in the village for the way to your cottage?"

"That also is true," I admitted. "She did not tell me until afterwards and I saw no purpose in publishing the fact that the man had been on his way to see me."

"You have been very foolish," she said. "You have quarrelled with the girl. She is telling this against you, and there will be trouble."

"I cannot help it," I answered. "I never spoke to the man. I saw nothing of him until I found him dead."

"Guy," she cried, "this is an awful thing. I am not sure, but I believe that the man was your father!"

As often as the thought had come to me I had thrust it away. This time, however, there was no escape. The whole hideous scene spread itself out again before my eyes. I saw the doubled-up body, limp and nerveless. I felt again the thrill of horror with which one looks for the first time on death. The mockery of the sunlight filling the air, gleaming far and wide upon the creek-riven marshes and wet sands, the singing of the birds, the slow tramp of the waggon horses. All these things went to fill up that one terrible picture. I looked at the woman opposite to me, and in her face was some reflection of the horror which I as surely felt.

"For your sake," she murmured, "we must find out how he met with his death."

"The verdict was 'found drowned'" I murmured.

"People will change their opinion now," she answered. "Besides you and I know that he was not drowned."

"You are sure of that?" I asked.

"Quite," she answered. "He had letters with him, I know, and papers for you. Besides, he carried always with him a number of trifles by which he could have been identified. When he was searched at the police station his pockets were empty. He had been robbed, Guy, he had, as I have had, one unflinching, relentless enemy. Tell me, was Colonel Ray in Braster at the time?"

"No," I answered hoarsely. "I cannot tell you. I will have no more to do with it. The matter is over—let it rest."

"But my poor boy," she said quietly, "it will not be allowed to rest. Can't you see that this girl's statement does away with the theory that he was washed up from the sea? He met with his death there on the sands. He left Braster to visit you, and he was found within a few yards of your cottage dead, and with marks of violence upon him. You will be suspected, perhaps charged. It is inevitable. Now tell me the truth. Was Mostyn Ray in Braster at the time?"

"He lectured that night in the village," I answered.

Her eyes gleamed with a strange fire.

"I knew it!" she exclaimed. "I have him at last, then. I saw him falter when I spoke of your father. Guy, I will save you, but I would give the rest of my days to bring this home to Mostyn Ray."

I shook my head.

"You shall never do it," I declared. "There might be suspicion, but there will never be any proof. If there was any murder done at all, it was done without witnesses."

"We shall see about that," she muttered. "There is what you call circumstantial evidence. It has hanged people before now."

We remained silent for several moments. All this time she was watching me.

"Guy," she said softly, "you are very much like what he was—at your age."

Her cloak had fallen back. She was wearing a black evening gown with a string of pearls around her neck. The excitement had given her a faint colour, and something like tears softened her eyes as she looked across at me. But the more I looked at her the more anxious I was to see her no more. Her words reminded me of the past. I remembered that it was she who had been my father's evil genius, she who had brought this terrible disgrace upon him, and this cloud over my own life. I rose to my feet.

"I do not wish to ask for any favours from you," I said, "but I will ask you to remember that if you are seen here I shall certainly lose my post."

"What does it matter?" she answered contemptuously. "I am not a rich woman, Guy, but I know how to earn money. Mostyn Ray would not believe it, perhaps, but I loved your father. Yours has been a miserable little life. Come with me, and I promise that I will show you how to make it great. You have no relatives or any ties. I promise you that I will be a model stepmother."

I looked at her bewildered.

"It is not possible for me to do any thing of the sort," I told her. "I do not wish to seem unkind, but nothing in this world would induce me to consider such a thing for a moment. I have chosen my life and the manner of it. Do you think that I can ever forget that you and my father between you broke my mother's heart, and made it necessary for me to be brought up without friends, ashamed of my name and of my history? One does not forget these things. I bear you no ill-will, but I wish that you would go away."

She sat there quite quietly, listening to me.

"Guy," she said, when I had finished, "all that you speak of happened many years ago. There is forgiveness for everybody, isn't there? You and I are almost alone in the world. I want to be your friend. You might find me a more powerful one than you think. Try me. I will make your future mine. You shall have your own way in all things. I know the hills and the valleys of life, the underneath and the matchless places. If you accept my offer you will never regret it. I can be a faithful friend or a relentless enemy. Between you and me, Guy, there can be no middle course. I want to be your friend. Don't make me your enemy."

The woman puzzled me. She had every appearance of being in earnest. Yet the things which she proposed were absurd.

"This is folly," I answered her. "I cannot count if anything else. Do you suppose that I want to creep through life at a woman's apron-strings? I am old enough, and strong enough, I hope, to think and act for myself. My career is my own, to make or to mar. I do not wish for enmity from any one, but your friendship I cannot accept. Our ways lie apart—a long way apart."

"Do not be too sure of that," she said quietly. "I think that you and I may come together again very soon, and it is possible that you may need my help."

"All that I need now," I answered impatiently, "is your absence."

She rose at once from her chair.

"Very well," she said, "I will go. Only let me warn you that I am a persistent woman. I think that it will not be very long before you will see things differently. Will you shake hands with me, Guy?"

Her small white fingers came hesitatingly out from under her cloak. I did not stop to think of what my action might commit me, whether indeed it was seemly that I should accept any measure of friendship from this woman. I took her hand and held it for a moment in mine.

"You cannot go back alone," I said, doubtfully, as I opened the door.

"I have a servant waiting close by," she answered, "and I am not at all afraid. Think over what I have said to you—and good-bye."

She drew her cloak around her and flitted away into the darkness.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

A WOMAN'S TONGUE.

Grooton returned a few minutes later from the village. He begged the favour of a few words with me. He was a man of impressive features and singular quietness of demeanour. Yet it was obvious that something had happened to disturb him.

"I think it only right, sir, that you should know of the reports which are circulating in the neighbourhood," he said, fixing his dark grave eyes respectfully upon me. "I called for a few minutes at the inn, and made it my business to listen."

"Do these reports concern me, Grooton?" I asked.

"They do, sir."

"Go ahead, then," I told him.

"They refer also, sir," he said, "to the man who was found dead near the cottage where you used to live in January last. He was supposed to have been washed up from the sea, but it has recently been stated that he was seen, on the evening of the day before his body was found, in the village, and it is also stated that he inquired from a certain person as to the whereabouts of your cottage. He set out with the intention of calling upon you, and he was found dead in the morning by you, sir, within a hundred yards of where you were living."

"Anything else, Grooton?"

"There is a lot of foolish talk, sir. He is said to have been a relative of yours with whom you were not on good terms, and the young lady who has just given this information to the police through her father states that she has remained silent up to now at your request."

"I am supposed, then," I said, "to be concerned in this fellow's death?"

"I have heard that opinion openly expressed, sir," Grooton assented, respectfully.

I nodded.

"Thank you, Grooton," I said. "I shall be prepared then for anything that may happen. If you hear anything further let me know."

"I shall not fail to do so, sir," he answered.

He bowed and withdrew. Then as I lit my pipe and resumed my seat it suddenly occurred to me that the man who was chiefly concerned in this matter should at least be warned. I sat down at my desk and wrote to Ray. I had scarcely finished when I heard footsteps outside, followed by an imperious knocking at my front door. I opened it at once. The Duke and Lady Angela entered. I saw at once from her disturbed expression that something had happened.

The Duke wore a long cape over his dinner clothes and he had evidently walked fast. He looked at me sharply as I rose to my feet.

In Dread Of Piles

Many Believe That Nothing Short of the Surgeon's Knife Will Effect Cure. They Do Not Know

The agony caused by the intense itching, the depressing and debilitating effect on the system, the dread lest a surgical operation might be necessary—these are the things which make piles or hemorrhoids so distressing.

The doctors have been recommending surgical operations as the only cure. But the surgical operation, with all its dangers and expense and pain, does not usually effect a lasting cure.

Many a case has been cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment after the surgical operation had failed. Here is a case which doctors gave up.

Mr. J. Mawer, Roden, Man., writes; "Dr. Chase's Ointment is a wonderful preparation. I had itching piles for over six years, and though I tried two doctors' prescriptions and used many other preparations could not obtain much benefit. The doctor told me there was no cure for me, and that I would have to undergo an operation.

"I bought a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment and was completely cured in one week. As this was six months ago and there has been no return of the old trouble, I believe that the cure is a permanent one."

One thing certain, Dr. Chase's Ointment will bring you relief from the dreadful itching and burning almost as soon as applied.

To make the cure thorough and lasting it is only necessary for you to keep up the treatment regularly and persistently. Don't be satisfied with relief. Dr. Chase's Ointment will cure completely if you will do your part. 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

To those who suffer sickness, to those who want to be well, we say let us buy a 50-cent bottle of Psychine from your druggist and give it to you free to prove.

The white corpuscles of the blood—the Phagocytes, as they are known scientifically—are the policemen or the scavengers of the body.

Not a germ of disease can invade the body anywhere but these white corpuscles get after it. And, if they are strong enough or in sufficient numbers, they devour it.

If they're not strong enough or in sufficient numbers, then the invading army of disease germs triumphs and disease holds the body.

Any preparation that strengthens these white corpuscles or that increases their number, will not only preserve health, but will build up its defences so strongly that contagion or infection are impossible.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on Varicose Veins. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I've tried several specialists, all of whom found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skilful. I wrote them and got THE NEW METHOD TREATMENT. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $12 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $21 and never loose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment."

Curious Way of Cooling Water.

The average native woman in the interior of Nicaragua may appear enervated and listless, but her method of cooling water is strenuous indeed. She fills a half gallon earthenware jar about two-thirds full. The jar is made of baked clay and, not being glazed, is partially porous, so that it soon becomes moist on the outside. By means of two leathern straps firmly attached to the neck of the jar the woman causes the same to rotate swiftly in the air. The mouth is wide open, but the centrifugal motion keeps the water from flying out. The endurance shown by the Nicaraguan women of the poorer class in this form of calisthenics is said to be marvelous. When, in the opinion of the operator, the water is sufficiently cooled she stops the movement by a dexterous twist of her wrist and hands the jar to the person that has been waiting to quench his thirst. By this process tepid water can be reduced to the temperature of a very cool mountain spring.—New York Press.

An Unmanned Lightship.

There is stationed off the island of Islay, on the west coast of Scotland, at the Otter rock an interesting lightship. It is unmanned, yet it can be relied on to display the warning light to guide the mariner on this dangerous coast. It is a very ingeniously constructed vessel and the only one of its kind. In its two steel tanks sufficient gas can be stored to supply the vessel for several months. Experiments have shown that the light may be depended upon to burn continuously for months at a time. The approximate duration of the light can always be predetermined, and there is no danger whatever of the light being extinguished by wind or spray. The light is visible at a distance of from eight to twelve miles. The lightship also has a bell, which is made to ring automatically by means of an ingenious device that utilizes the gas as it passes from the tanks to the lantern to work the bell clapper.—Harper's Weekly.

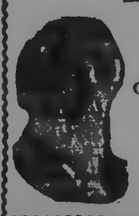
PEOPLE'S PULPIT.



Sermon by CHARLES T. RUSSELL Pastor Brooklyn Tabernacle.

"What Manner of Man Is This?"

Even the Winds and the Waves Obey Him?"

On the Atlantic, Nov. 13, Pastor Russell of the Brooklyn Tabernacle is homeward bound. He declares that he greatly enjoyed his visit to Great Britain, where he preached in twelve of the principle cities, including three Sundays in London. He greatly admired the reverential substrata of religious thought in Britain. Whether or not the people are really more holy than their brethren in the United States and Canada, they are, he says, as a rule, more reverential in their demeanor—in their attitude toward Divine things.

Pastor Russell considers public thought in Great Britain to be at least twenty years behind that of the States in respect to the Bible as a Divine revelation. This is much in their favor, he says. The Evolution theory and so-called Higher Criticism of the Bible, have, he says, wrought great havoc amongst the clergy and more educated people of America. He finds in Great Britain the same destructive sentiments at work, but they have not yet reached the masses with such force and poisoning power. Faith in God and in the Bible as his Word Pastor Russell has specially sought to inculcate. He feels greatly encouraged and hopes to see his friends and the public of Great Britain soon again, as they request.

His love for our British cousins has not, however, diminished his love and interest in God's people of America. If Americans are less reverential it may also be said that many of them are more independent and more courageous in their convictions respecting the Truth. The British friends should, he thinks, cultivate an independence of thought; while American Christians, losing none of their courage, should cultivate a spirit of reverence for God, for his Word and for all holy things.

Pastor Russell is enjoying his usual good health and continues his literary work on the sea, as on the land. A representative of the American Press Association and a stenographer accompany him. Pastor Russell's address for to-day was from the following text:

"What manner of man is this? For even the winds and the waves obey him."—Matthew viii. 27.

This text is taken from the Gospel narrative of the storm on the Sea of Galilee, during which Jesus was asleep in the hinder part of the vessel, until the sturdy seamen, appalled by the storm, cried to him, Master, carest thou not that we perish? Then the Saviour arose and rebuked the storm and there was a great calm. When the fishermen disciples beheld this they said, What kind of person is this that even the winds and the sea obey him!

The speaker declared that although more than eighteen centuries had passed, the same question is going the rounds of most civilized peoples of the world—"What manner of man is this?" Some of the best thinkers and noblest hearts of all nationalities, Jew and Gentile, agree that Jesus of Nazareth was a most wonderful man. It is still agreed, as in the days of his presence, that "never man spake as this man!" Some, indeed, called him a deceiver. Others said that he was under the control of evil spirits. Others, going to the opposite extreme, declared that this great Jew was Jehovah himself, who, for the time, was masquerading as a man.

Pastor Russell contends that the greatest of all Jews told the truth about himself, as well as about other matters. When he prayed to the Father with strong cryings and tears in Gethsemane (Hebrews v, 7) he was not shamming. He was not perpetrating a fraud and deceiving his disciples then and since.

We have great sympathy for the fellow-countrymen of Jesus who, failing to understand him, caused his execution, considering him a menace to their institutions. His wonderful works, his wonderful words of life, of which it is recorded that the public declared, "never man spake like this man," and in general his wonderful personality, seemed really incongruous with his general demeanor. Not claiming to be Jehovah, not claiming to be his own Father, as some now teach, but, on the contrary, declaring, "My Father is greater than I," he nevertheless claimed a special relationship to God; and this he demonstrated by such miracles as the one of our lesson. Had he done and said these things as a member of one of the popular sects of his day, he would have been reverenced. Had he joined in with the Pharisees and winked at their interpreting the Law in one way for the people and in another manner for themselves, he would have received much honor from the rich and the poor, the learned and the ignorant. But he antagonized all these by his humility in mingling with the common people, accepting some of them as his special disciples and sending them out as his representatives. This specially branded him as foolish in the eyes of the worldly-wise. This specially discredited him, not only as a man and a teacher, but particularly as one who claimed to be the Messiah, the King of glory who was to set up an Empire. We can well see why worldly-wise people of that day or this day would consider such a person a fraud, a pretender, a deceiver. Appearances were against him.

Jesus declared that the Father sent him and that he delighted to come in obedience to Jehovah's will, to be his agent and servant in the outworking of a great plan for human redemption. Those who deny all of this, and who have awakened so much confusion amongst Christians, and have made the Gospel of Christ impossible to the Jew, should give an account of themselves and explain by what authority they contradicted the Great Teacher—"the Father is greater than I." And when they claim that the death of Jesus was merely a fatee, and that he as Jehovah merely stepped out of the body of Jesus and perpetrated a fraud and pretended to be dead and aroused his disciples so to think and so to teach, and pretended later to be raised from the dead—those who thus teach and who thus confuse the minds of all Christendom and Jewry should explain away, if they can, the plain statement of the Apostle that God raised up Jesus from the dead by his own power on the third day.

Picture the Great Teacher walking with his twelve Apostles, a nondescript crowd of those who heard him gladly—not many great, not many learned, not many rich, not many noble. Hear him telling them—those who acknowledge themselves to be ignorant and unlearned (Acts iv, 13) that, if faithful to him, he would "grant them to sit with him in his Throne" "judging the twelve tribes of Israel." The statement surely seemed fraudulent, and he had not the heart to condemn the Jews who so misinterpreted him. St. Peter did not condemn them, but distinctly said, I wot, brethren, that in ignorence ye crucified the Prince of Life, as did also your rulers (Acts iii, 15-17).

Can we wonder that the learned Jews of that day were confused? They did, indeed, hear of his miracles—his recovering of sight to the blind and of strength to the withered hand of the impotent man; and, in the case of Lazarus, at least, they had demonstration of his power over the dead. They perceived that these miracles were having an influence upon the masses—that they detracted from their own esteem amongst the people. They knew that many of Jesus' sayings were wonderfully wise and that his criticisms of their own inconsistencies were remarkably sharp. Yet withal, they said, we know that he is a fraud, because of his peculiar claim to be the Messiah and the Son of God. This claim of his discountenances all of his teachings and mighty works. It cannot be true that he is the Messiah that our nation has waited for these more than sixteen centuries. God would surely send Messiah a sufficiency of demonstration of glory and power to convince the most intelligent of our nation, the Scribes and Pharisees and Priests. What they all dissent from, repudiate and denounce, must be false.

The Jewish wise men of eighteen centuries ago concluded that a man who set the masses agog with anticipation of himself as the Messiah-King, yet was without an army and without financial backing for a campaign, would present their nation to the Romans in a ludicrous light. As a result they might have taken from them, at the word of the Emperor, the civil and religious privileges and rights they were enjoying. They took counsel and determined that in the interests of the peace of the nation this golden-tongued miracle-worker should either be exposed as a fraud or be killed. They tried first to expose him by trapping him in his language in the presence of his followers and the multitude. But his intellect was keener than theirs and the thrusts they made at him rebounded to their own discomfort and established his own standing in the estimation of his followers and in the eyes of the people. One of these efforts to show up the hollowness of his claims and their fraudulency and to discourage his followers is worthy of particular notice, as it furnishes us the key to the sentiment of the rulers and also the key to the real facts of the case which those rulers failed to discern.

The influential Jews said, Let us question this fraudulent Messiah respecting his pretentions, not with any hope of correcting him, but with a views to opening the eyes of his followers to the weakness and fallacy of his teachings. Then they will see the hollowness of the hopes they are entertaining and their foolishness in leaving their various avocations to become his followers, in the hope of sitting with him on his Throne. They will see that he had no prospect of ever securing a Throne and that they are merely deluded by him in such expectations. They inquired of him, When will your Kingdom appear? How long will it be before you sit upon your throne and have your followers with you in the Throne? How long before this Messianic Kingdom will rule in Palestine and extend from its borders to the ends of the earth? After you hae answered us these questions we will ask you others respecting your financial support and resources — your own qualifications, and your subordinate officers; the arms for your soldiers and the supplies necessary for such a world-campaign as you are about to begin, according to your teachings.

The Great Teacher's brief answer entirely silenced every objection. His questions, had these men been "Israelites indeed," would have been so deeply impressed upon them that they would have followed up the matter with an entirely different line of questioning than at first contemplated. But they were insincere. Hence when their questions, intended to entrap the Teacher and Master, were answered and foiled they merely acknowledged their defeat by their silence. The answer was not, as imperfectly translated in our Common Version—The Kingdom of heaven is within you, hypocritical Pharisees, but, My Kingdom, the Kingdom of heaven, of which I am the King, will not appear at all. It will be an invisible Kingdom—it comes not with observation or outward show. Ye shall neither say, Lo, it is here, nor, Lo, it is there; for it will be everywhere in the midst of you, amongst you, invisible but all-powerful (Luke xvii, 20-23).

Truly, what manner of man was this, and what manner of message and Kingdom was his, and what manner of people anything the Jews had ever expected! Can we wonder that only a comparatively small proportion of them were in the heart attitude to receive the message respecting a Spiritual Kingdom? We cannot wonder! Even his most intimate disciples did not grasp the depth of his teaching until, after his death and resurrection, then, at Pentecost, received the special enlightenment needed for the servant and handmaidens class (v. 20).

Then understood they the true depth of the teaching of him who spake as never man spake. Then they comprehended that he was the only begotten Son of God, who, in obedience to the Divine program for Israel and the world, had left the heavenly courts and glory of the spirit nature and became flesh. "The man Christ Jesus" (I. Timothy ii, v). Then they understood, not only that he was a perfect man, but that, through the anointing of the holy Spirit which came upon him at baptism, he was indeed God's Anointed, the antitypical Priest, antitypical Prophet and antitypical King—not that he was these in the flesh, but that the new spirit nature, begotten in him through that anointing, was perfected in the resurrection, and that it is the glorified Christ on the spirit plane who will accomplish all the great things predicted through the prophets, blessing all Israel and all nations, in God's due time. Then they understood the meaning of the Master's words to the Roman Governor, My kingdom is not of this Age; if it were, then my servants would fight for me and I should not be delivered to death. Then they perceived that his kingdom will be not the less real and powerful, but the more so, because a heavenly one, a spiritual one, which, in due time, in the Age to come, will operate through the nation of Israel, just as was originally promised and expected.

The Apostles discerned that the hopes of their nation were not blasted, not destroyed, but will all have fulfillment, though the time of fulfilling was deferred. They saw that in order to make the Messianic blessing as great as God intended that it should be—world-wide and unto eternal life—it was necessary that a great sacrifice for sins should be made—a sacrifice typed for centuries in Israel's Atonement Day sacrifices—a sacrifice in two parts. These two parts are shown in Israel's Atonement Day—the bullock of the sin-offering and the Lord's goat of the sin-offering. Jesus himself fulfilled the first of these, the merit of which has been applicable to the saintly few of Jews and Gentiles who have, during this Gospel Age, made a full consecration to walk in the Redeemer's footsteps. The secondary part of the sacrifice, the offering of the goat, pictures the sacrificing company of the Lord's faithful disciples throughout this Age. These, under cover of his righteousness, suffer with him sacrificially.

Their reward is to be a share with the Redeemer on the heavenly, spirit plane, participating in his glory, honor and immortality and in his great work of dispensing the Messianic blessing to Israel and through Israel to the world.

Surely, neither Jew nor Gentile can object to the Divine arrangement by which so great blessings are about to come to the whole world. Israel and the world in general have no part in these spiritual blessings. Nor do they generally desire that gift. The blessing that is for them is restitution to human perfection—to all that was lost in Adam. The restitution blessings of Messiah's reign will embrace not only humanity, but also all of their interests, including the earth, which shall become Paradise restored, the glorious home of Israel alone; for be it noted, the Divine arrangement is that all who will ever receive blessings under Messiah's reign must receive it as Israelites, since the New Covenant is to be made with Israel.

How ashamed will all men be when the "times of restitution" mentioned by St. Peter (Acts iii, 19-23) shall be ushered in! How astounded all will be at the goodness of God and his faithfulness in respect to all his promises! How the eyes of all humanity will look back to the days of Jesus in the flesh, when he appeared amongst men to lay a foundation for his glorious Messianic Kingdom by offering himself in sacrifice for the sins of all the people, that thereby he might purge from sin all who ever will come to the Father through him, and will thus have the right to restore the willing and obedient to full perfection and to destroy the rebellious in the Second Death. Ah, then all will know, as never before, the force of the words of our text, What manner of man is this? They will know him as having been when a man, The Sent of God. They will know him as the now Highly Exalted One, far above men and angels, rewarded with the very highest reward which Jehovah could give to his Beloved Son, in whom he was well pleased and by whose stripes Israel and we all shall be healed.

"A black pearl," he said, "and a beautifully shaped one. Yes, it must be very valuable."

"What a dreadful thing," exclaimed Merrion.

"What shall I do—of course? I know what I must do! I must go instantly to the Rectory with it. But what can I say? How explain my folly?"

He felt instinctively that he was talking to a friend who might be trusted not to misunderstand him, so he went straight on, speaking in answer to Lord Crampton's look of surprise and inquiry.

"It is that pin which has made me lame; I felt it first in the music-room at the Rectory. So, of course, it belongs to some one there.

"Why did you not take it out at once," said Lord Crampton, very naturally, "and save yourself so much pain and all this trouble."

"My accursed pride would not let me!" exclaimed Merrion, a flush rising in his white face. "It has caused me endless trouble, and now it has caused me this."

"What do you mean?" asked Lord Crampton. "What can your pride have to do with it?"

Merrion said nothing. A servant came in, carrying a tray and set some dishes on the table. As soon as he was gone and they were alone again, Lord Crampton said: "You really have excited my curiosity—do tell me what your pride had to do with this matter. The greatest hero ever born would not mind owning the pain of it if a pin ran into his foot."

Merrion made no answer, and seemed to find lunch an impossibility. He was completely absorbed in contemplating the situation he found himself in, and wondering how to get out of it.

"The fact is," he said suddenly, "nothing can save me now from appearing ridiculous."

The tone in which he said this was so desperate that Lord Crampton laughed more heartily and naturally than he had laughed for years.

"Well, that is truly a dreadful position," he said. What can you mean? Why on earth didn't you take out the pin when you felt it?"

"That is what the Ogilvys will, of course, ask me," said Merrion, in the most tragic tone; "it wouldn't have mattered if they hadn't seen that it hurt."

"Why!"—cried Lord Crampton, beginning to repeat his question, and growing so excited that Merrion got quite alarmed lest he should make himself ill. He was obliged to satisfy him. There was but one way to do it—he drew back and lifted his foot.

"Good heavens!" exclaimed Lord Crampton, who had been surrounded with luxury all his life and had never seen such a shoe before.

"But why—" he began and stopped. The situation startled him. Then he leaned forward and put his slender, nervous hand on Merrion's.

"Come, dear fellow," he said, "tell me the whole truth. I want to understand. Don't shut me out—you are like a locked cupboard—you don't let anyone look into your life not even me, to whom it would be such a pleasure."

"It couldn't be that!" exclaimed Merrion. "Oh, no it couldn't be a pleasure to you. Yes, the door is locked—and it is better locked" but urged by the pressure of the nervous hand still kept on his, and impelled by a great longing to speak which made him inconsistent without being aware of it, he at once began to pour out his story. How from the earliest hour that he could remember, from the moment when he had first drawn breath, as it seemed to him, music had been the passion which had been his very life. He had been unable to live as reasonable beings live, from the sheer impelling for him to remain in the work first obtained for him, with great difficulty. His father had succeeded in getting him a clerkship in a bank. The work, the hours of confinement in entirely uncongenial surroundings, the craving of music, all were unbearable—and he simply left it, and left the town with a travelling opera. It killed his father who was very ill at the time, and without strength to face what looked to him like a disgrace; and his mother was left absolutely in want. He worked hard, and sent her money regularly; in a comparatively short time he was first violin in the orchestra of a London theatre, and soon after he reached that position he began to play at concerts, and his wonderful talent attracted attention so that he received invitations from a distance, such as the one which had brought him to Riddlestone. And then came the passion—the craving that seized him as drunkenness seizes its victim—he must compose! an opera was there before his mental eyes, in his soul, tangible to his inner consciousness; he must put it upon paper. He knew it was there, he was absolutely confident of his ultimate success, it only meant work and freedom to work. He threw up his post, refused all offers or engagements and simply shut himself up to work. He had just received some large fees which kept both himself and his mother for a time. This was spent, and both were facing sheer starvation, when Pearl Ogilvy insisted on having lessons from him. On these lessons mother and son had lived ever since—but only by the son denying himself the bare necessaries of life. And things were worse than they had ever been—his mother had been ill and had been obliged to have a doctor and had got behind with her rent. "I won't let it come between me and my work. I shall have finished it in another month, and then it will be all right."

"My dear fellow!" said Lord Crampton, "why even then there may be months or even years before you get it tried!"

"I know! I know!" cried Merrion, "but don't remind me of that—I won't think about that. And it won't matter—directly the work is finished I'll go into an orchestra again, and then the mother will soon be all right. Bless her! she has always believed in me and always been willing to bear anything for the sake of my work. And I'm afraid—very much afraid—she has had to bear more than I have. The doctor wrote to me when she was ill. He said she had caught a cold and that he believed it was from want of necessary warmth. I have to looks upon me as a sort of villian. What an extraordinary tale this must seem to you!" he suddenly said in a different tone, looking round the beautiful room.

"A very interesting one," said Lord Crampton, "let us have some lunch now. I am quite tired. I will think it over and tell you what to do about the pearl. I will make a plan—I am good at such things."

"There's no getting out of the fact that I must appear ridiculous," said Merrion gloomily, "or else tell the whole truth and I can't do that to the Ogilvys. You are different."

"Thank you," said Lord Crampton. "Well, I have thought out a plan already. We will do up the pin, and send a servant over with it. You shall write a short note and simply say you have found the pin since leaving the Rectory and think it must belong to someone there."

"But they are sure to ask me how I found it."

"Put off your next lesson till the whole incident is forgotten. You can easily find some excuse to do that. Go and see your mother."

"I can't," said Merrion, "I haven't—"

Something in Lord Crampton's eye forbade his finishing the sentence.

"I am going to buy the opera," said Lord Crampton. "I will have it tried now, even before you have finished it. If I believe in it I will take a theatre for it. Good Heavens! what it will be to have an interest like that in life! I shall do it."

And that was how it happened that Lord Crampton, afterwards the Marquis of Riddlestone, was a great power in the musical world, and from his invalid couch in his country house organized and financed some of the greatest musical ventures of his day, helped and guided by the genius he introduced to that same world.

His plan was carried out. The pin and the note were sent by a servant from the Castle to the Rectory. Pearl, radiant and happy, fastened the recovered jewel into her white dress—and the whole matter was forgotten in other overwhelming interests. The next day another note came to say that Mr. Merrion had been called away, and asking her to postpone her lesson. He paid a flying visit to his mother and then went to do various errands for Lord Crampton.

The opera was produced and created great excitement. It brought a great deal to Lord Crampton and to the composer; immense pleasure to the first fame and success to the latter, who plunged into his work more profoundly than ever, composing fiercely—bringing out one work of genius after another. He no longer walked nearly barefoot, nor did his mother fall ill for need of a fire.

Family Cured of Eczema By Cuticura Remedies

"The Cuticura treatment has absolutely cured me and family of eczema which I, my wife and two-year-old child had for eight months. It started with small pimples on the head of my child which gradually broke out in sores, and it was not long before I and my wife got the same. Our heads were one mass of sores, we could not sleep and the itching was terrible. We suffered for eight months. We tried different kinds of ointments and medicine but it did us no good and soon it began to break out on our bodies until a friend who had the same trouble told me about Cuticura of which I used two sets of Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Resolvent, and I was surprised. After the first few days our heads began to heal and in two months we were absolutely cured of this terrible eczema."

A SMEAR OF PLASTER

A SHORT STORY

This is the experience Stringer gave me that afternoon, and I do not mean to use a story-teller's privilege in the narration of it. I will let Stringer take the floor and speak for himself. I cannot pretend to have reported him verbatim, but there is no need at least to embellish his facts, and I will keep as close to his manner of telling them as I can.

"You want the most dramatic thing I ever was in for? Well, to tell the honest truth, I don't quite know where to choose, but perhaps the Legge case will do as well as anything. I'm not at all surprised to hear you say you never heard of it. It's a very curious thing to notice in my profession, how some things get taken up by the newspapers, and have a tremendous sensation made about them, and how others which are really a great deal more interesting get passed over almost in silence. In the book of newspaper cuttings that I keep at home I've got just one little paragraph, about three inches long, about Cecil Balfour Legge and his wife, but if a clever journalist had got hold of the case he could have made columns out of it. It's ten to one that Legge's case might not have made into my mind, only, as it happens, I've got a reminder of it about me at this minute. Did you ever happen to see anything like this?"

Stringer produced from his pocket a small steel instrument, which I took at first sight for a pair of pliers, but when I came to examine it, I found it had actually the reverse action.

"I always had a bit of mechanical turn, and that's an invention of my own. If you get that into a crack of a door, and give just the least little bit of pressure on the handles, the door has got to be pretty soundly locked or barred if it doesn't fly. I had that little article with me on the day when the Legge case came practically to an end, and I happened to have it about me now because a pal of mine, who has gone in for electroplating in an amateur sort of way, volunteered to put a little coat of silver on it. I called for it this afternoon; and it brings back the whole business as plain as if it only happened yesterday. This man Legge was an American. He came from Albany, and he was a very well-bred well-educated man. I made his acquaintance by mere hazard one evening, when I was getting a chop at the Horseshoe Tavern at the bottom of the Tottenham Court Road. I forget now what set us talking to each other, but I took a fancy to him, and if I may say so, he seemed to take a fancy to me. We had a quite a long pow-wow that very first night, and I got to know him very well later on. We used to meet him from time to time for months before it occurred to me that there was the faintest chance in the world of my having to run him through ymnahds thmthm arf arf through my hands professionally. Of course, it's part of a detective's duty to hold his tongue about himself and his own business, and poor Legge had no more notion as to what I was than I had about the truth with regard to him.

"We got to be quite chummy together and one night we happened to be passing his lodgings and he asked me in.

"I should like to introduce you to my wife," says he, and he made some joke about my having been his excuse for late hours once or twice. That did not make me very much more willing to face the lady, but Legge was rather pressing, and I went in. I don't know that I ever took a greater fancy to a new acquaintance in my life than I did to that little woman. She was just as good as gold to look at—a pretty little creature, about thirty, I should guess, but with regular child-like ways, and a sort of an innocent trusting charm about her which took a hold on a man's fancy at once.

"There was one thing about Legge that I ought perhaps to have told you of already. He was very gay and chirpy and American and he was full of smart, snappy sayings, and on the whole you would call him a very happy-dispositioned fellow; but if ever the hand of Death was on a man, it was laid on him. You could see that he was marked out for it. He never grumbled all the time I knew him. I never heard him complain but once, and then he went as white as a ghost and very nearly fainted with a sudden spasm of pain. That was the time when I found out what was the matter with him. He was suffering from cancer, and he knew perfectly well that there was no cure for him in this world. He wanted looking after, poor chap, and at home it was pretty evident that he got what he wanted, for you never in all your days saw anything more devoted and gentle than that little woman's way with him.

"Now, mind you, you wouldn't think a police officer of my experience had got much sympathy left inside him, and there's no doubt at all about it. we live the kind of life that hardens a man and makes him very tough to other people's troubles; but speaking for myself I can tell you that I've wished more than once or twice that I knew another way of making as good a living as I've got over trapping my fellow creatures.

"When I was set on to poor Legge I felt real mean, but of course I'd got to do my duty. It came about in the oddest sort of way. He was a wonderfully spick and span sort of a Johnny, always looking as if he had just been taken out of a bandbox. It wasn't that he was what you'd call a dandy, but he was one of the neatest men I ever knew, always brushed and groomed to a nicety, and it was that as much as anything which made me notice very particularly one day that he had a smear of mud on his coat sleeve. It wasn't quite like mud either, it had dried white and hard, and I took hold of his sleeve between my thumb and finger to look at it.

"How did you come by that, Mr Legge?" said I.

"He looked down at his sleeve, and he fell into the queerest kind of confusion. He began to rub at 'the smear as I'd seen on his coat. It pretended to be awfully busy about it, but I could see that he was cruelly upset, and, of course, I hadn't the ghost of a notion why. We'd been lunching together that day, as we pretty often did at that time, and I asked one of the waiters in the place to bring a clothes brush. I was going to give Legge a helping hand but he put me off, and wouldn't let me touch him. He brushed and brushed until he had got rid of the last trace of the smear, and then he made some excuse for getting away, and left me. That was the beginning of the business. I didn't take much notice of it at the time, but I dropped in, on Legge's invitation, to smoke a pipe with him, a night or two later, and there, on the table cloth there was just such another smear as I'd seen on his coat. It wasn't on the top of the table cloth, but at the side, where the thing hung over; and I took a rather careful look at it. It was plaster of Paris, and there was no mistake about it. Now you can't follow a detective's business for any length of time without getting into a curious prying sort of way. You want to be at the bottom of dozens and scores of little things that an ordinary person wouldn't take any notice of at all. The habit of wanting to know the meaning of every little thing you come across seems to get into the blood, so to speak. And I began to ask myself what a man like Legge wanted to be messing about with plaster of Paris for. I'd always taken him for a man of independent means. He was never very flashy with his money, but he was fairly well provided, and seemed to be able to afford in a quiet way pretty well whatever he wanted. We'd been pretty familiar with each other, but he'd never dropped the least hint as to any sort of occupation, or even any little amateur work that might have explained that plaster of Paris.

"About a week after this I was sent for to the Yard, and my chief told me there was a whole mass of complaints coming in about the circulation of base money. There was a half-crown in circulation all over the country, and it was certainly the best imitation I ever saw of its kind in all my days. The old-fashioned false money was such duffing goods that you really wondered how anybody could be stupid enough to be imposed on. If you handed me a bad half-crown of that brand in the dark I should know what it was in a second by the mere feel of it between the thumb and finger. It had a greasy, sweaty kind of feel that you couldn't mistake for anything else in the world, and of course there wasn't a sign of a ring in it. If you threw it on a counter it fell just like a disc of lead. But the new stuff was altogether of another kind. It had a clean, bright look, it had a very good ring, and a very well-milled edge. And the only thing that really gave it away was its want of weight. It was considerably lighter than it ought to have been, and if you had a little handful of the coins it was quite easy to tell the difference between them and the right stuff. There was no clue of any sort, as to the place where this was being made, or as to who was putting it about, but I was told off specially to look into the matter, and of course I began to make enquiries. If I'd never seen those two smears of plaster of Paris I don't suppose that I should have thought at all of associating Legge with the business, for anybody may chance to have a single bad half-crown about him, and hundreds of people must have had them just about that time, for they had been put into circulation by the hundredweight. But poor Legge offered one of these half-crowns in my presence, and of course I spotted it in a jiffy. I was as familiar with the look of it, the color of it, and the sound of it as I was with my own face in a looking glass.

"I picked up the coin, had a glance at it, and remarked to Legge that it looked a bit off color. He was one of the last men in the world who ought ever to have gone in for a criminal life, for he was just as easily scared as a girl. He was all over nerves, and I dare say his suffering as he did helped to break him a good deal. He went all wrong about that half-crown. He tried actually to bluster about it, and to swear that the coin was a perfectly good one; but that was only put on to hide his confusion. He fished out a handful of good money, and he took up the half-crown he had tendered, and said he'd have it examined; but he was perfectly sure that I was wrong about it.

"You may be certain that I didn't like to admit as much to myself; but whether I liked it or no, I couldn't help making up my mind that Legge had tried to pass that coin with a guilty knowledge. I had never seen a trace of what I should have called meanness in the man, and he was one of the last people I should have thought of as being likely to stoop to such an act. I felt just as much grieved as if I had bowled out my own brother at the same game, and from that day to the end of the whole business we two felt a sort of a difference between us a kind of a coldness. He knew perfectly well that I believed him to have tried to pass a coin which he knew to be false, and his manner distinctly showed it. Of course, I changed my opinion of the man altogether, and even if nothing else had happened it would have been a pretty hard knock to our friendship.

"We did meet from time to time and now and then we'd exchange a word or two together, just by way of making believe, I suppose, that we didn't know what was really at the bottom of our own minds. And it was in the very same bar where I first met him that he found out, by accident, what my line of business was. Another acquaintance of his saw us talking together and came up and joined us. He was a blundering idiot of a fellow, and he began straightway to talk to me about my professional affairs, though I barely knew the man to speak to. But the very minute he let out what my business was, little Legge went like a corpse, and if I hadn't put my arms round him he'd have dropped to the floor. He shook me off with a strange anger, as it I had insulted him by laying a hand on him; but he quivered like an aspen leaf, and it wasn't until he had had two goes of neat brandy that he even began to pull himself together. I should have been a dull dog if I hadn't begun to think that there was something rather more than a little quisby about poor Legge. That half-crown had left a bad impression on me, and now his being so horribly upset at the discovery that I was an officer, had a very unpleasant look. He made it seem pretty clear that he wanted to have no more truck with me and, of course, I had to let him go.

"All this time I was following up the business of the false half-crowns and I had one chap under lock and key already on a charge of uttering. There was no mistake at all about his case, for he had a dozen of the pieces about him when he was taken into custody. But it brought us no nearer to the fount and origin. The man kept his own counsel, and refused to say anything which would implicate anybody. He might have saved his own bacon to a very considerable extent if he had cared to speak, but he stuck by his pals, and said never a word. All the time I was doing cease under my control I was worrying about Legge. I'd known the man very intimately indeed as I've told you already, but really I had no knowledge at all of his affairs. I didn't know how he put in his time. I didn't know who source he drew his income from, and I began to be nasty and suspicious in my mind about him. I kept on telling myself that I was attaching a downright ridiculous importance to that smear of plaster on Legge's sleeve, and that companion smear on the table cloth at his home. But I couldn't dissociate from him in my own mind the fact that plaster of Paris is used in the making up of the matrix for false coin, and though I hadn't any reason to suspect Legge of being up to that game, I might never have bowled him over if it hadn't been for that idea of getting such a hold upon me.

"There was a highly respectable tradesman who turned out to be mixed up with this job, and it cost me a good deal of trouble to get on to his trail; and just as I was growing tolerably certain that he was one of the men I wanted, I found out that Legge and he had a familiar knowledge of each other. I had been shadowing Legge already, nine-tenths hoping—to tell the solid truth that I should have to confess myself a fool for having taken the trouble. I didn't a bit want to prove the man guilty. I didn't. I think in my heart, erally believe that he was so. But I'd got to go into the thing, and there really seemed to be a sort of fate in the way in which I was forced as it were to fasten a watch on that man on such an absurdly slender ground. But the puzzle began to fit in when I found out that Legge and my Holborn tradesman were as thick together as they proved to be. The man was using a respectable and legitimate business as a shelter for this nefarious trade, and it was his business to disseminate the coin. He passed none of it himself, but he sold it in the bulk to professional smashers, who carried it all over the three kingdoms, and some of it even on to the Continent.

"There were comings and goings between the tradesman's shop and Legge's lodgings; and it soon became clear that the false coin was being made by Legge, and that this was his source of income. Then a very curious thing came out. He professed to be a mere lodger, and there was a woman in charge of the house, of whom he had always spoken to me as his landlady. There were four or five other lodgers in the house, but Legge was really the sole tenant, and all these men were his confederates. They had the completest fit-out of a that was ever seen. But how they plant in the upper rooms of the house had carried on their operations so long without exciting the suspicion even of the neighbors is more than I can understand.

"Well, the time came when I had to make my descent on poor old Legge, and I never liked a job less in all my experience. The thought of that poor little woman fairly got hold of me. Mind you, there was no room for the shadow of a doubt that she knew all about the business. She couldn't have lived in that house without knowing what was going on, and it ever there had been a question the sequel put it out of existence. I had the house surrounded, and I went in with a sergeant and two men. Directly we presented ourselves at the door, the landlady, as they called her, made a frantic bolt upstairs, shrieking 'Police! Police!' and calling out that the house was raided. I was after her in a second, and caught her before she reached the head of the stairs. But a door banged, and I heard the key turn in the lock in Legge's sitting-room. I went to the door, and I knocked on it with this little implement you see in my hand this minute; and I heard Mrs. Legge ask who was there. I told her who I was by name, and she said some ridiculous excited thing about not being able to see me at that time of the night. I called to her in the Queen's name to open, and just as I spoke, bang! bang! went two shots behind the door. I didn't know what this might mean, but I lost no time, you may be sure. In went this into the crack of the door; with a turn of the hand I burst the lock open, and in I went. There was poor Legge stone dead, with a bullet hole right in the middle of his forehead; and there was Mrs. Legge huddled in an armchair with a smoking revolver lying by her feet. The room was full of smoke, and the shots and cries had alarmed the gang upstairs. They showed no fight, but just came away like sheep. It was evident at the very first sight that poor Legge's earthly account was closed, but it wasn't by any means so certain about the little woman. She had shot herself in the breast, evidently having hoped to reach the heart. But she was quite conscious when I raised her—she even made shift to talk a little. 'That's my doing,' she said. 'Cecil never guessed I had it in my mind; but I have been ready every minute of every hour of every day for years. It was better for him to meet his end like that, than to go and linger out a suffering life like his in prison. I swore to him years ago that nothing should ever part us, and I've kept my word.'

"There was the end of the Legge case, and it was one of the surprises of my lifetime. Whenever I meet a man who sets up to be a judge of women I make up my mind that he's a fool; and no man ever lived, not Solomon himself, who will tell what a woman's equal to. You'd no more have pictured that golden-haired, blue-eyed, sad faced child of a woman being worked up to a deed like that than if she had been a baby. I don't pretend that it's a Christian sentiment but I don't mind telling you that when the first shock was over, and I began to think about it, I felt glad the poor little thing had found the resolution to take that dreadful way out of her husband's trouble and her own."

RECEIVE PROPERTY

Mr. Greenslade, village carpenter at Hatherton, near Tiverton, and his wife, have received news of a legacy of valuable house property in Bristol from an old woman named Mrs. Brown, a neighbour of theirs whom they befriended, believing her to be in poor circumstances.

The above clipping was taken from the Daily Mail Over-Seas edition, and the Mr. Greenslade referred to is a first cousin of Mr. W. A. Greenslade, 149 King street.

ASSESSMENT.

1906	1907	1908	1909
1,831,000	3,374,000	3,064,000	5,022,900

Increase for one year, 37 per cent.; increase for four years, 208 per cent.

The city has always been conservative in its assessment figures, usually 75 to 80 per cent. of real value. Since 1906 assessment, real estate has appreciated in value from 25 to 100 per cent. This fact and the extent of the building operations in 1909 ($1,268,215) leads us to believe that the 1910 assessment will reach from eight to nine million dollars.

BUILDING PERMITS.

1906	1907	1908	1909
$250,000	$250,00	$365,495	$1,268,215

Increase in one year, 246 per cent.; increase in four years, 407 per cent.

No accurate records kept prior to 1906. Decrease in 1907 due to money stringency. Operations of 1910 likely to exceed figures.

These Lots are located adjoining the site for the Episcopalian College. 440 yards north, lots were sold by auction by the City of Lethbridge for $800. READ THE FOLLOWING LETTERS:

OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY TREAS.
Lethbridge, Alta.

This is to certify that lots sold by the City of Lethbridge in the Queen Victoria Sub-Division on the Thirtieth day of May, 1910, brought the sum of $700 to $500 per lot, in four equal instalments, one on day of execution, the balance payable in six, twelve and eighteen months at 6 per cent. interest.

(Signed)
Secretary Treasurer.

(Originals can be seen at 40 Victoria St. It is well here to mention that $75,000 worth was put on the market and the whole sold within an hour and a half. This property is but a few steps away from River Heights. See letter next following.)

THE BANK OF TORONTO
Lethbridge, Alta, Aug. 12, 1910.

R. Bruce Scott, Esq.,
Nelson, B. C.

Dear Sir, In reference to your enquiry re River Heights, I am familiar with this property and would consider it one of the best purchases for investment in Lethbridge. It is in the vicinity of the new Victoria Park recently put on the market by this city, these lots realizing $500 and over at auction.

It is situated on Westminster Road, which at present is our best residential street, and in time will be the main business artery of the city. The lots are all high, dry and level and would make ideal sites for residences.

Yours truly,
F. McEACHERN.

THE MEANING OF FAITH

A teacher of a little country school that stood on the banks of a quiet stream, once wished to communicate to her pupils an idea of faith. While she was trying to explain the meaning of the word, a small covered boat glided along the stream in full view of the window. Seizing upon the incident for an illustration, she exclaimed:

"If I were to tell you there was a leg of mutton in that boat, you would believe it, wouldn't you, without ever seeing it yourselves?"

"Yes, ma'am," chorused the pupils.

"Well, that's faith," she told them, smiling.

The following day, in order to test their recollection of the lesson, she asked:

"What is faith?"

Shouted from all parts of the room came the ready answer:

"A leg of mutton in a boat."

KNEW HIS SHORTCOMINGS

"But—but I'm quite ten years older than you are!" gasped the astonished maiden. "You don't know what you are doing!"

"Oh, yes I do, Ethel!" responded the desperate youth, pouring with perspiration. "I'm trying to propose to you, and making an awfully poor job of it!"

HER FAVORITE COLOR

Waiter—Will the young lady have some blue points?

Miss Newrich—Yes, pale blue.

TURNED THE DEAF EAR

There was some speculation as to whether the instrument would benefit the old gentleman or not. One was holding the ear trumpet while another was explaining its use and showing old Mr. Borrows how to hold it to his ear.

"Say something to him through it, Joe," said one to the other.

Now, Joe had long waited for an opportunity to reach Mr. Borrows' ear; so, speaking very distinctly into the trumpet, he said:

"You've not paid me that sovereign you owe me yet, Mr. Borrows."

But the old gentleman put the instrument down, with disappointment on his face, and they could see it was a failure, even before he had time to say, "This thing's got a bit of good to me." And he sighed; but his sigh was not so deep as that which came from Joe.

HER ARGUMENT

Hubby (with irritation): "Why is it that you women always insist on having the last word?"

Wifey (calmly): "We don't. The only reason we get it is because we always have a dozen arguments left when you stupid men are all run out!"

THOUGHTFUL JOHNNIE

Father—A good man has a lot of enemies in this world, my son.

Kid—You ain't got any have you, father?

HIS SHIP WENT DOWN

The man with the bronzed face and the rolling eye was enthralling his friends when Mr. Button entered just in time to hear him say:

"And so my ship went down with all hands."

"Went down?" queried Mr. Button, excitedly; "but where were you?"

"I was in the captain's cabin at the time," said the bronzed one. "We sank, and scarcely a ripple was left to mark the spot."

"How sad!" said Mr. Button. "But I suppose you forced your way out of the cabin and managed to swim ashore? Or were you taken off by a passing vessel?"

"No, I wasn't," said the bronzed one; "I just stood where I was."

"Look here," said Mr. Button; "you say you were locked in a cabin and made no effort to escape, and yet here you are safe and sound before us? Is this a tale of the horse-marines?"

"Not exactly," said the salt; "it's a tale of the submarines. That was the sort of ship I was aboard."

MIGHT BE LUCKY

The mistress was giving Harriet the benefit of her advice and counsel touching a momentous step the latter contemplated.

"Of course, Harriet," said the lady of the house, "if you intend to get married, that's your own business; but you mustn't forget that marriage is a very serious matter."

"Yis, mum," said Harriet. "Yis, mum, I know 'tis, sometimes, mum. But mum, maybe I'll have better luck than you did, mum."

SECOND SIGHT

"A case of love at first sight, eh?"

"No, second sight. The first time he saw her he didn't know she was in [illegible]"

HASTINGS NEWS OF INTEREST

HASTINGS, NOV. 15.—A quiet wedding took place at the Manse, Hastings, on Wednesday, the contracting parties being Mr. George McKee, of Warkworth, and Miss M. Zufelt, of the same place. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. D. A. Thomson, pastor of the Presbyterian Church. Their friends here join in wishing them a long and prosperous wedded life. Mr. McKee is a nephew of Mr. Thos. McKee, town.

Some of the hunting parties have returned, but report game rather scarce.

Mr. Laing, of Toronto, is visiting friends in this vicinity, the guest of Mrs. H. Humphries.

The weather during the past week has been very disagreeable, a considerable amount of rain and snow having fallen, which materially affected the roads.

Rev. C. W. Barrett and Mrs. Barrett spent Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Beavis, and in the course of the evening baptized their infant son, Eric Porter.

The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was observed in the Methodist Church on Sunday morning, the Rev. C. W. Barrett officiating.

Mrs. Wm. Oakman has been visiting in Orillia.

Mr. Wm. O'Grady, of Yukon, is renewing old acquaintances in this district.

Rev. Mr. Digby, agent for the Bible Society, is spending a few weeks in town, and occupied the pulpit of the Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning and the Methodist pulpit in the evening.

The "Ladies' Aid" of the Methodist Church has secured the services of Rev. H. B. Kenny, of Belleville, who will preach at both services on Sunday, in connection with the anniversary. On Monday evening a fowl supper will be served in the Town Hall, after which the Rev. gentleman will deliver his popular lecture, "The Old and the New Woman."

The Rev. Mr. Barrett was in Dummer on Monday attending "quarterly board meeting" of that circuit, when important business was being discussed.

STRONGHEART STILL TRUE

Special to The Examiner:

APPLETON, WIS., NOV. 16.—James Strongheart, Muskogee, Okla., direct descendant of Sitting Bull and Rain-in-the-Face, graduate of Harvard University with the class of '96, and for two years member of the football squad, while prosecuting an investigation on the Oneida Indian reservation, near Appleton in the capacity of legal representative of the International Indian Rights Association, took as his bride Miss Leah Somers, daughter of the wealthiest Indian at Oneida.

Strongheart, after whom the principal character in a current play was written, is assistant counsellor for the Indian tribes in Oklahoma, and, although his social affiliations in his home city are entirely with the whites, he declares that Indians should not desert their race in matrimony. He met his bride a week before he married her.

TRIAL OF ALLEGED SPIES

Examiner Special.

LONDON, NOV. 16.—The British Foreign Office has applied to the German Government for permission to be represented at the trial early in December of the alleged British spies, Captain B. F. Trench, of the Royal Marines, and Lieutenant V. H. Brandon, of the Royal Navy, who are charged by the German authorities with espionage on the fortifications at Berkum.

Your Danger From Kidney Troubles

BEGINS WHEN YOUR BACK ACHES.

Backache is the first and the sure sign of kidney disease.

When the back aches or becomes weak it is a warning that the kidneys are affected in some way.

Next to the heart, the kidneys are, perhaps the most important organs in the body. It is no wonder then that if the kidneys are affected the whole system must be.

On the first sign of backache Doan's Kidney Pills should be taken. They go right to the seat of the trouble, heal the delicate membranes of the kidneys and make their action regular and natural.

Mr. E. J. Saulnier, Lake Annis, N.S., writes:—"I take a great deal of pleasure in telling you the benefit I have received from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. I was troubled with my kidneys for several years; my back was weak, I had terrible headaches, and was so restless I could not sleep at night. I commenced using Doan's Kidney Pills and in a very short time I was right and fit again."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c. per box or 3 for $1.25 at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

If ordering direct specify "Doan's."

GOVERNMENT TO BUILD.

Hudson Bay Railway Will Be a Public Undertaking.

Ottawa, Nov. 16.—It is officially announced that the Hudson Bay Railway is to be built and financed by the Government. It will be about 400 miles long, from a point on the Saskatchewan River (The Pas), near the mouth of Pasula and Carrot Rivers, through the valley of the Nelson River to York Factory. The Nelson River will supply abundance of electric motive power.

The Canadian Northern is already built to the Pas, and the G.T.P. have announced that they will do the same from some point on their system. But the Government will not give control of the road to either of these companies. It says in what is an official statement:

"The most ample provision has been made for financing the Hudson Bay Railway through its period of construction, and as one line is all that is necessary, it will be in the interest of all parties, including the people of Canada, to have only the one, which is to be constructed directly or indirectly by the Government. That should be made a first-class road in every respect, capable of accommodating all the traffic brought to it by all the lines of railway that private parties choose to bring into connection with it. Obviously there should be among these tributary lines the most perfect equality, and just as obviously this cannot be secured by having one company build and own the road and giving the others running powers over it. Some way must be found to avoid the complication that will be sure to result from any such arrangement."

It may be, however, that Mackenzie and Mann will get the construction of the road. They have already undertaken the contract for the first bridge across the Saskatchewan.

The Government will also undertake the construction of the docks, and it may be that the crop of 1912 will, some of it, go out this way.

Liability of Telegraph Companies.

Ottawa, Nov. 16.—The application of the various telegraph companies for the approval of their message forms was before the Railway Commission yesterday afternoon.

During the discussion a question arose as to the liability of a company for a time table, in transmitting a message. Up to the present time the telegraph companies have been liable for the cost only of an ordinary message in the event of a mistake being made, and for fifty times the amount in the case of a repeated message.

It was suggested by the board that a maximum penalty of $500 be fixed. The advisability of making the penalty $200 for an unrepeated and $400 for a repeated message was suggested. The board reserved decision.

Patten to Emulate Carnegie.

Chicago, Nov. 16.—"Judge men by men's standards and not by the bulge or lack of bulge in their wallets. A man should dispose of great wealth for the benefit of the community."

With these declarations as the keynote of his action, James A. Patten, retired king of the wheat pit, yesterday stands committed here to the giving away of the bulk of his millions for the betterment of humanity. It is believed he will do so largely through the Y.M.C.A.

The banquet at which Patten's declaration was made was held in celebration of a successful Y.M.C.A. campaign to raise $100,000. Of the amount Patten personally gave $25,000.

Will Not Be Tried.

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 16.—The retrial of Robin Cooper, charged with the murder of ex-U.S. Senator Cormack, was indefinitely postponed in the Criminal Court yesterday.

Mr. Cormack was shot to death on Nov. 9, 1908. Col. Duncan Cooper, his son Robin and John Sharp were arrested, charged with the crime. Sharp was acquitted, but the two Coopers were convicted and sentenced to 20 years each. Duncan Cooper was pardoned, and the State Supreme Court granted the younger man a re-trial.

Will Arbitrate.

Winnipeg, Nov. 16.—It is likely that determined efforts will be made by the city authorities to obtain a settlement of difficulties with the C.P.R. in connection with the stock yard here. By agreement made in 1882 with the company the city allowed exemption of taxation in perpetuity, provided that the railway would maintain adequate stock yards facilities. These have not been provided, and the city has lost hundreds of thousands of dollars in taxes. The dispute will be arbitrated.

Favor Tariff Reduction.

Winnipeg, Nov. 16.—There was not a dissenting vote when the Winnipeg Liberal Association passed their resolution in favor of a reduction in the Canadian tariff.

All the speakers were in favor of a lower tariff, differing only in their opinion as to the extent of the recommendation to be made.

Sinking Spells Every Few Days

"At the time I began taking Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy I was having sinking spells every few days. My hands and feet would get cold; I could scarcely breathe, and could feel myself gradually sinking away until I would be unconscious. Those about me could not tell there was life in me. After these spells I would be very weak and nervous, sleepless and without appetite; had neuralgia in my head and heart. After taking the remedy a short time all this disappeared and in a few weeks all the heart trouble was gone."

Mitchell Falls In Line.

Mitchell, Nov. 16.—The Niagara power bylaw was voted on yesterday, and carried by a majority of 195. A strong canvass was made against it by an ex-mayor, but he met with little encouragement, and our citizens are rejoicing to-day that they are now on the list for cheap power and cheap light.

To Mayor Campbell belongs special credit for the result. He placed the matter clearly before the electors, and being a progressive business man, they placed full confidence in him, and rallied to his support in carrying the bylaw.

Cement Comes Down.

Toronto, Nov. 16.—An announcement was made at a meeting of the directors of the Canadian Cement & Concrete Association by E. P. Jones, general manager of the Canada Cement Co., that an average reduction of ten cents per barrel would be made on the price of cement at various points throughout the Dominion. This reduction has been made possible through the economies effected by merging the largest cement plants in Canada.

Defences of the Canal.

Panama, Nov. 16.—President Taft started out for his first active inspection of the canal yesterday. Following his first day of conferences, it was reported that he would recommend in his next message to Congress that $2,000,000 be appropriated to begin works of defence.

Honor For Toronto Nurse.

New York, Nov. 16.—Miss Mary A. Smeeton, who graduated in 1908 from Toronto General Hospital, has been awarded one of the Isabel Hampton Robb scholarships at Teachers' College, Columbia University, where she has been taking the course in hospital economics.

Wanted to Sell Girl.

New York, Nov. 16.—When a Chinese merchant of this city offered $250 for a white girl under sixteen years, Irene Stuber, American wife of Tom Lee, a Chinaman, lured her 13-year-old sister to New York from Scranton, Pa., to sell her, according to the story told in court yesterday by the girl's mother. A missionary rescued the girl from a Chinese resort.

Tom Lee was sentenced to the penitentiary yesterday, and Irene Stuber was sent to the reformatory.

A Child Suicide.

Philadelphia, Nov. 16.—Grieving over the death of her mother who died when she was six years old, ten year-old Harriet Owens yesterday ended her life with her father's revolver. Her body was discovered lying beside a wreath, which had been taken from the coffin of her mother.

Lying nearby was a childish scrawl, which said: "Good-bye, papa. I am going to join mother, and I hope that God will forgive me."

Fumes Suffocated Him.

Trenton, Ont., Nov. 16.—George Blakeley, a man about 35 years old, was found dead yesterday morning in the Gilbert House sheds. It seems he went into the sheds about 12 or 1 o'clock, and going into a small office which the hostler uses, he lit a small oil stove, sat down and went to sleep. There was very little oil in the stove, and the fumes from the stove suffocated him.

Majority Climbing Down.

Quebec, Nov. 16.—A despatch from Drummondville says that the recount of the ballot boxes in the election of Drummond and Arthabasca resulted in the reducing of Mr. Gilbert's majority to 71, and three polls are still missing, the assistant returning officers having failed to make some essential contestations.

The official majority had been announced at over 200.

U.S. Fleet Reaches Britain.

London, Nov. 16.—The four United States battleships comprising the first division of the Atlantic fleet under Rear-Admiral Schroeder, passed the Isle of Wight yesterday morning, steaming towards the Thames River.

Australia Won't Accept.

Melbourne, Australia, Nov. 16—The Commonwealth yesterday decided not to accept the Canadian Government's proposal to renew the Vancouver-Australia mail service, with calls at Auckland and Sydney only.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Hogs 15c to 25c Lower at Buffalo—Cattle Easy.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—London and Liverpool cables quote American cattle weak, at 12½c to 13½c per lb. dressed weight; refrigerator beef, at 10c per lb.

GLASGOW, Nov. 15.—Edward Watson & Ritchie report 245 cattle landed from the Pretorian offered. Trade was fair at last week's quotations. Top cattle 14c, secondary 12c to 12½c. Bulls are showing badly and trade is not so good. Top 11½c to 12c. The secondary grade was cheaper owing to ranch cattle on offer at 11c per pound. The Parthenia has not yet arrived.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, Nov. 15.—The railways reported 175 carloads of live stock at the City Market, consisting of 3240 cattle, 807 hogs, 1850 sheep and lambs and 105 calves.

Exporters.

No export steers were on sale, consequently there were none sold at $6.25 per cwt. Thomas Connor reported to The World that he got about half a load of export bulls, 1400 to 1900 lbs. each, at $4 to $5 per cwt.

Butchers.

Geo. Rowntree bought during the two days 630 cattle for the Harris Abattoir Company—butchers' steers and heifers, $4.85 to $5.90; cows, $4.50 to $4.75; bulls, $3.50 to $4.50.

Stockers and Feeders.

Stockers and feeders were slow of sale compared with two weeks ago, and sold fully 25c to 30c per cwt. lower. Cattle that were selling for $3.50 and $3.40 two weeks ago sold to-day at $3 to $3.10.

Stockers were quoted to-day as low as $3.75 for the first time this season.

Milkers and Springers.

Trade in milkers and springers is still good, but not quite as brisk to-day as it has been. Prices ranged at from $50 to $80 each, and one sold at as low as $40.

Veal Calves.

One hundred and five calves, the majority of which were a skinny lot at best, sold at $3 to $7.50 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Wesley Dunn, who is the heaviest buyer of sheep and lambs at all times and seasons of the year, quoted sheep, ewes, at $4.50 to $4.85 per cwt., and rams at $3 to $3.50 per cwt.; lambs at $5.75 to $5.85 which shows that there was not much change in prices, but the market was weak at these quotations.

Hogs.

Not many hogs were reported on sale, and there seemed to be little enquiry for them.

Mr. Harris reported $7 for selects, fed and watered, and $6.65 to drovers, for hogs, f.o.b. cars at country points.

Disastrous Experiment.

Fort Monroe, Va., Nov. 16.—In an experiment to test the effect of an unconfined explosion of high explosive nitroglycerine, the monitor Puritan was badly damaged in Hampton Roads yesterday, after two charges of 200 pounds each had exploded, one against her after turret, and the other against her armor belt.

In a sinking condition the vessel was rushed to the Norfolk navy yard.

The first detonation and shock was plainly felt in Portsmouth, ten miles away. An hour later, with less shock apparently, another charge was exploded against the armor belt along the waterline of the ship.

The result of the test will have a bearing on the construction of future warships.

Car Workers Strike.

Amherst, N.S., Nov. 16.—One hundred men in the erecting shop of the Canada Car Co. went on a strike on account of a reduction in the wage schedule. The men are unorganized and have no union behind them, and, if they do not resume work this week, their places will be probably filled at once.

The company contends that the wages paid were unreasonably high. Only piecework ers are involved in this strike.

Reduced Liberal Majority.

Halifax, Nov. 16. A. E. Wall, Lib eral, was elected in the by-election in Digby yesterday for a seat in the local Legislature by a majority of 277 over W. L. Vanblaricom, Conservative. The seat was made vacant by the appointment of A. H. Gidney, one of the sitting members, to the office of collector of customs for the port of Digby. The Liberal majority at the last election was 547.

PETERBOROUGH WEDNESDAY NOVEMBER 16 1910

YOUNG WOMAN SHOT IN RESTAURANT AT ONE TIME LIVED IN PETERBOROUGH

Her Sister, Mrs. David Jones Resides at 199 Perry Street—Was Employed in Lock Works in This City—Lived Here Many Years.

IN CRITICAL CONDITION

Mrs. Bessie Brooks Jones, one of the women who was shot in the King street restaurant in Toronto on Monday afternoon of this week, is a former resident of this city, having resided there with her sister, Mrs. David Jones, at 199 Perry street, for a number of years. An Examiner reporter called on Mrs. Jones at her home this morning, the lady having only last night returned from the bedside of her sister, where she left her in a very critical condition. The injured woman, it was learned, lived here from childhood, until about two or three years ago, when she went to the Queen city and secured employment in the restaurant where she was shot. However, owing to ill health, she returned to Peterborough and this last time had only been in Toronto four months. While here she was employed in the Lock Works, and had a great many friends, who will learn with deep regret of her misfortune. Mrs. Jones of this city is the only near relative of the young woman, their parents having passed away some years ago. By a strange coincidence both sisters married men of the same name, that of Jones.

Referring to the affair, a despatch from Toronto says:

Writhing with pain caused by a bullet wound in her back just above her hip, Mrs. Georgia Carr, the child wife of John Carr, lies in the General Hospital in so serious a condition that a nurse watches her all the time.

Moaning pitifully as she fitfully slumbers on a cot in St. Michael's Hospital is Mrs. Bessie Jones, a chum of the other girl. She is suffering from a bullet wound in the right shoulder and breast.

Shaking as if palsied in a cell in the jail is James Shaw. He is charged with attempting to murder one of the girls and feloniously wounding the other. They were shot by him yesterday afternoon in an obscure little restaurant, known as "The American," at 233 King St. east, where all boarded, and the women worked as waitresses.

In custody Shaw is a pitiful sight. Slowly but surely the seriousness of his position is gradually being made clear, and as he sits rocking from side to side on his wooden bench he will stare at the little barred opening in his door and sigh continuously. His face has a vacant look and his eyes are set in an expressionless manner, and stare apparently without seeing.

He is of small stature, not five feet in height, with a mild manner. His light hair is long and shaggy, and he has a pronounced English accent. He speaks usually in a drawling manner, is thick set, with broad shoulders, ridiculously out of proportion to his size, while his head is exceptionally large.

This morning he was attired in an old brown suit, plentifully spattered with grease spots and stains, and a dark blue shirt open at the collar band. He also wore an English bowler cap, of dark green. His boots were the heavy serviceable kind worn by labourers.

The two girls are comely and Shaw desired to marry one of them, Miss Carr, although he had only known her for about a month. He had already suggested marriage to her mother, but was indignantly repudiated.

This was the Carr woman, and according to her mother, Mrs. M. Ockley, Shaw had caught hold of her arm one day and asked her how she would like to have him for a son-in-law. He was told that no man like him could marry her daughter.

Resented a Remark.

Shaw had dinner at the restaurant, about one o'clock, and stood near the entrance to his room at the rear of the dining room for some time. He was still standing there when Mrs. Carr sent a young waitress named Miss Gravel upstairs to get a cloth to wash cutlery. Shaw was blocking the stairway.

"You are not going upstairs," he said.

"Yes, I am," retorted Mrs. Jones, who was passing. "She is going to get me a cloth and mind your own business."

"Don't you dare to talk to me in that way," cried Shaw, white with anger, and shaking his fist at the girl.

"You go upstairs and stay there," she replied, turning away.

Shaw then turned and almost ran up the stairs. It appears that he went to the room of Thomas Forsyth, and breaking open his trunk secured his thirty-two calibre revolver, which was fully loaded. He then returned to his former position at the foot of the stairs.

As he reached the bottom he saw Mrs. Jones. He immediately fired at her and shot her through the

ENGLISH PAPER SUGGESTS A MONARCHICAL REVOLUTION

Examiner Special.

LONDON, ENG., NOV. 16.—Great Britain, or at any rate that part of Great Britain which reads the morning news, got a severe shock this morning, when they read a passionate editorial suggesting a monarchical revolution, as a result of the present political crisis. The article says in part: "In a survey of the critical possibilities of the political situation, one is compelled to take into consideration the practically inconceivable position that the Crown may ally itself with the House of Lords to prevent the legalizing of people's judgment. Such a move would mean a monarchical revolution added to Peers revolution, and in such facts the gravest happenings that country has met in centuries, are to be expected." This article is apparently inspired by the report that King George has refused the request to create enough Liberal peers to overwhelm the Tories in the upper house and pass the government legalization on vote proposals. While the Morning News is the only paper that came out quite so boldly this morning, there are others who see comment is along the line. Lord Lansdowne, Unionist leader in Lords, to-day demanded that the government introduce parliament bill immediately that adds to difficulties position. The king has arrived in London to-day.

THE GRAND TRUNK FLYER MET WITH ACCIDENT THIS MORNING

Axle Broke in Front Set of Driving Wheels, Causing a Breakdown---Might Have Been Very Serious if Train Had Been Going Fast or on a Down Grade.

What might have been a very serious accident occurred this morning to the Peterborough G. T. R. flyer, No. 19, which leaves here at 7.10. The train was running at a good rate of speed near Jackson Park, when the axle of the front set of driving wheels on the engine broke. The axle broke outside of the frame on the right side of the engine, allowing the right front driving wheel to run wild and as a consequence serious trouble followed. The driving shaft was wrenched off and other parts of the gearing were badly broken. A spoke was also broken out of the rear driving wheel.

It was very fortunate that the train was not running very fast, as this is an accident of common occurrence, and is one of the most dangerous to be contended with. In the majority of cases when the shaft comes off it flies upward and demolishes the cab, with the result that if the engineer is on his seat, he meets with, in almost every case, instant death.

In this morning's accident the shaft luckily went downward, smashed through the ties and buried itself in the ground. The engine was No. 2012 and was brought back to the engine house here. The train was cancelled for to-day. The parlour car was put on train No. 21.

Lindsay Man With A Thirst Gets Into Trouble

W. H. Jackson arrived in the city last night on the "flyer" and flew immediately to the nearest hotel, where he got "canned." He wandered about the street for a while in a pitiable plight, not knowing where to go, but at last he was safe in the arms of a policeman, who took him to the police station. This morning he appeared before his Worship Magistrate Dumble and pleaded guilty to the charge of being drunk and disorderly in a public place. He had $2.00 with him, just enough to take him back to Lindsay, where he said his home was, so he was allowed to go, on condition that he would leave on the 11.45 train. He promised and departed.

The little truant boy, who was the object of discussion at yesterday's session of the police court, appeared this morning. He promised that if his Worship would give him a chance he would go to school. He was let go, with the assurance that if he failed to carry out his promise he would be severely dealt with by the authorities.

Y. M. C. A. DEBATING CLUB ARRANGE A SCHEDULE

The Executive Committee of the Literary and Debating Club of the Y. M. C. A. met last evening, in the parlour of the Association. The object of the meeting was to draw up a schedule for the season. This was done and was of such a nature as to justify the members in feeling that the Club will have the best season's work in its history.

There will be a debate on the evening of Tuesday, Nov. 29th, when two of the best debaters in the Association will meet two others, who think that they are the best. It has not been decided yet who the contestants will be, but the members can depend upon hearing a good discussion.

One of the directors of the Association has presented a gold medal for competition in oratory. This has made it necessary to include in the schedule several nights which will be devoted to that very important line of literary work, public speaking.

The class in mechanical drawing will meet as usual this evening. This class is keeping up its attendance well. The students feel that they are improving their time as they could not do in any other way.

The Class in First Aid meets to-night under the leadership of Dr. MacPherson. Every member should be in his place.

"WHEN ALL HAS BEEN SAID" AT THE GRAND TO-NIGHT

The company presenting "When All Has Been Said" at the Grand Opera House this evening arrived in the city this morning with them a special carload of scenery. The production is under the management of Liebler and Company, and is under the management of Joe Weber. "Sister" and "The Man From Home" were seen here last year. Miss Emmy Stevens, who plays the leading feminine role, is a cousin of Mr. Hesse and supported that clever actress for eight years, after which she won fame for herself opposite to Mr. Arliss in "The Devil" and "Septimus." The presentation to-night should be one of the finest of the dramatic season.

CHILDREN PLAYED WITH MATCHES CAUSING FIRE

The brigade got a telephone call this afternoon at 2.10 to 541 Concession street. They responded promptly and by so doing prevented what might have been a bad fire. It was at the residence of Mr. Michael Murray. It appears that some children were playing with matches and set fire to the lace curtains. The fire spread rapidly and burned the window sill and frame and some furniture to the value of $25. The firemen were kept busy for a couple of hours.

The Cause of Colds

Good Advice Regarding the Prevention of Coughs and Colds

If people would only fortify and strengthen the system, the majority of cases of coughs, colds and pneumonia might be avoided. These troubles are frequently due to weakness, which produces a catarrhal condition of the mucous membrane, which is an internal skin of the body. When this skin is weakened it becomes easily infected with germs which cause many of the diseases to which flesh is heir. Healthy mucous membranes are essential safeguards of the body's general health.

We have a remedy which we honestly believe to be unsurpassed in excellence for the prevention of coughs, colds and all catarrhal conditions. It is the prescription of a famous physician, who has an enviable reputation of thirty years of cures gained through the use of this formula. We promise to make no charge for the medicine should it fail to do as we claim. We urge everybody who has need of such a medicine to try Rexall Mucu-Tone.

It stands to reason that we could not afford to make such statements and give our own personal guarantee to this remedy, if we were not prepared to prove the reasonableness our claim in every particular, and we see no reason why any one should hesitate to accept our offer and try it. We have two sizes of Rexall Mucu-Tone, prices 50 cents and $1.00. Sometimes a 50-cent bottle is sufficient to give marked relief. As a general thing the most chronic case is relieved with an average of three large bottles. You can obtain Rexall Remedies in Peterborough only at our store. The Rexall Store, McDermid and Jury, corner George and Charlotte streets.

ABUSED WIFE

Examiner Special.

LONDON, ONT., NOV. 16.—That he ill-treated and abused his seventeen-year-old wife, and mother of his baby so cruelly and unnaturally that the baby died, was the story told in court against James Bates, charged with causing the death of a child through neglect.

The annual meeting of the shareholders of the Peterboro' Golf and Country Club will be held on Saturday the 19th of November, 1910, at 8 o'clock p.m., in the Bank of Montreal Chambers, Water Street, for the purpose of receiving reports by the Officers, for the past year, election of officers and committees, for the coming year and for such other business as may properly come before the meeting.

A RECORD SALE

Rush at R. Fair & Co's This Morning Assumed Big Proportions

The store of R. Fair and Company this morning was the scene of a record rush, the attraction being some extraordinary bargains in dry goods. The press formed an irresistible force to the bystanders of the city and the result was that the store was being filled before the hour announced for the opening of the sale. The bargains were eagerly snapped up by the big crowd, which was one of the largest that has been seen at a similar event in some time. The sale will be continued for a couple of days.

SAN FRANCISCO FIREMAN LIKES PETERBOROUGH FIRE STATION AND EQUIPMENT

Capt. Ewing, an Experienced Fire-fighter in the City Today---Says that Peterborough Should Have a Chemical Engine--Is Useful in Extinguishing 75 Per Cent of Fires.

Captain Ewing of the San Francisco Fire Department, was in the city to-day paying Peterborough a visit after an absence of thirty-five years. Captain Ewing has relatives in Norwood and Warkworth whom he has been visiting. To-day he called upon Chief Howard of the local Department and inspected the hall and its equipment, after which he was taken on a trip around the city.

"I always hunt up the firemen when I visit a place," Captain Ewing remarked to an Examiner reporter. "I would rather be among firemen than among millionnaires".

"You have a splendid fire station here," he continued. "It compares favourably with any I have seen in its equipment and completeness. All you need here now is a chemical engine and I would advise your Council not to lose any time in getting one. Why, in San Francisco we put out seventy per cent of our fires with the chemical engine. Besides that, when you go to work with chemicals there is no damage done as is the case when you turn on the water, or the juice, as we generally call it".

From these remarks it can be seen that Capt. Ewing is an enthusiast on the subject of chemicals. He should know what he is talking about, too, because he is attached to the chemical department in San Francisco, and has had many years' experience as a fire fighter.

Capt. Ewing leaves to-night for Norwood, but intends to spend a week in Peterborough before leaving for his California home.

APPEAL TO BOARD OF TRADE TO INCREASE ITS MEMBERSHIP

Address of President Gillespie at Meeting Last Evening Organization of a Provincial Board of Trade Fully Discussed--Addresses on Technical Education--Another Meeting to be Held on Tuesday Evening Next.

The Provincial Board of Trade and Technical education were the subjects of discussion at the meeting of the local Board of Trade at the City Council last evening. A fairly representative gathering was present, the President, Ald. G. A. Gillespie being in the chair. The minutes of the last regular meeting were read and confirmed, and a couple of communications were received, after which Mr. Gillespie, who attended the meeting in Toronto of representatives from Boards of Trade in several cities and towns, for the purpose of organizing a Provincial Board, addressed the members as to what took place at this gathering. The President took up the constitution clause by clause, and explained that this united situation had as its "fundamental principle the interests of Canada, but more particularly those of the Province. Such subjects as "Reciprocity," the Deepening and Extending of the Welland Canal, "Municipal Government" and various other subjects, provincial in character, Mr. Gillespie said the meeting was very enthusiastic and everyone showed a deep interest. In fact, he said, that it was so enthusiastic that on returning to Peterborough, he decided to make the following appeal to the local Board:

President's Address.

Gentlemen:—As you are probably aware, the membership of the Peterborough Board of Trade does not exceed 70 members, and for a town of the industrial activity of Peterborough, this reflects an altogether surprising lack of interest in an organization that if enthusiastically supported, can be of great benefit not only to the manufacturing and commercial interests, but to all the component parts of the community. We all admit that there are numerous questions which are of vital importance to Peterborough, but which owing to lack of initiative on the part of any group of individuals have not been given the prominence or study that they deserve.

A Board of Trade which is not representative of the whole body of citizens is a most logical source from which questions of public interest and matters of civic necessity should emanate and the government body of any town or city. The Board of Trade as a means of forming the public sentiment on any question under discussion if it wishes to do so, and the Board of Trade, through its various committees, could be the media of intimation to the Council of any legislation of a desirable character. It is a matter of common knowledge that the Ontario Legislature is swifter understood that any request to it in a deputation on the part of the general public in order to study and analyze the message by-law.

I think you will all agree with me that the Board of Trade is not confine its interests absolutely to questions of trade but could very properly direct its attention to all questions of public and civic interest for when matters have been ventilated, all manner acts have a direct bearing for good on the welfare of the interests business of others.

The Board of Trade through having no lack of qualification or numbers can view any question with the widest possible vision. For instance we recently have witnessed considerable agitation in the public press regarding a question in which the Board of Trade can very beneficially interest itself, and through open discussion can determine upon the merits and demerits of such a measure and I am sure that you will agree with me, gentlemen, that there is hardly any question that comes up in which the Board of Trade as a whole, and the members individually, are not directly interested.

To be efficient, the Board should embrace among its members, representatives from all classes of the community, professional, industrial commercial trading, etc., and it appears to me that in a city the size of ours that 70 members is altogether a disproportionately small representation, and I would like to propose that we make a determined effort to bring the membership up to 200 members. This should be by no means a difficult task. I have here a list which includes, the manufacturing and jobbing, the retail and the professional people who are not members of the Board of Trade. There are 31 manufacturing concerns who for one reason or another are not represented in this body 120 retail stores, and 74 gentlemen belonging to the professions, which certainly should be interested in Board of Trade work.

I would, therefore, like to suggest that a committee be formed and a large committee, to deal with the question of increasing the membership. If the proper enthusiasm could be stimulated among the members it should not be a difficult matter for each member to bring in two others. However, the method of increasing the membership, I think could be very properly left to the committee that you appoint for this purpose.

Another reason that I neglected to mention for the bringing of the membership up to the 200 mark, is that we should endeavour to place ourselves in a position to be a prominent a figure in the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade as possible.

The Discussion.

Mr. D. W. Dumble thought the organization of a Provincial Board of Trade is more in the right direction. Such an organization would present the local board's opinion on broad questions as the opinion of the country as a whole. It would give weight to the opinion of local boards on matters of Provincial or Dominion interest. The motion of this organization, however, should not be confined to one. There was room for amendment regarding the proposed voting power of local boards being restricted to the number of its representatives personally present. For instance questions may arise when the adoption of a resolution regarding broad measures by a local board should have proper weight in the Provincial Association and such local board's vote should not be limited to the number of representatives present, but by the voting power given to the local board.

Mr. Gill spoke in support of the remarks in Mr. Dumble's opinion. Many questions of Provincial interest require the consideration of local boards through a central body, such as a Provincial Board of Trade.

According to the membership of the local Board of Trade Peterborough with its roll of 70, was entitled to five representatives on the Provincial organization. With a membership of 200 Peterborough would be privileged to send eight representatives to the central body.

Mr. F. D. Kerr intimated that representatives might be sent to Toronto quite frequently would be expected to pay their own expenses.

The chairman thought that such ex-

Arthur Blondin, Charged With Murder, Says His Gun Went Off as He Was Cleaning It—Prisoner Testifies

SYMPATHY FROM JURY

Examiner Special.

L'ORIGNAL, ONT., NOV. 16.—That he killed Doctor Empey accidentally as he was cleaning his gun when the Doctor came to see him. This was the story tearfully and pathetically told by Arthur Blondin on trial for murder, when he was called to the witness box in his own defence this morning. Blondin said the gun was discharged from some unaccountable reason. The evidence of others regarding his previous confession was admitted. It is plain the jury is showing a great deal of sympathy for the prisoner.

BIG FIRE IN MONTREAL

Examiner Special.

MONTREAL, NOV. 16.—Fire, fanned by a strong wind, destroyed the Samour window and door factory on Sanguinet street at seven o'clock this morning. The blaze swept the whole block of more than a dozen houses and turned fifteen families out in the street in scanty attire. The damage will amount to about two hundred thousand. Large stocks of planed lumber and household furniture were burned. There was great excitement during the progress of the fire. It is reported that several were burned to death, but it is not known definitely that anybody is missing.

UNLOADING BARGE

The water in the river has gone down about two feet in the last week so that the scow loaded with wood belonging to the Peterborough Fuel and Cartage Co. at the Wolfe Street Wharf, can be unloaded. Some time ago the scow broke in the centre and sank at the wharf and the wood could not be conveniently unloaded until this morning. A gang of men are now busily engaged getting the wood off the scow.

STOMACH DISTRESS AND DYSPEPSIA GO

Makes Your Out-of-order Stomach Feel Fine in Five Minutes

As there is often some one in your trouble, why don't you keep some family who suffers an attack of Indigestion or some form of Stomach Diapepsin in the house handy?

This harmless blessing will digest anything you can eat without the slightest discomfort, and overcome a sour, gassy Stomach five minutes after.

Tell your pharmacist to let you read the formula plainly printed on these 50-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will readily see why it makes Indigestion, Sour Stomach, Heartburn and other distress go in five minutes, and relieve at once such miseries as Belching of Gas, Eructation of sour, undigested food, nausea, Headaches, Dizziness, Constipation and other Stomach disorders.

Some folk have tried so long to find relief from Indigestion and Dyspepsia or an out-of-order stomach with the common everyday cures advertised that they have about made up their minds that they have something else wrong, or believe there is a case of Nervousness, Gastritis, Catarrh of the Stomach or Cancer.

There no doubt, is a serious mistake. Your real trouble is, what you eat does not digest; instead, it ferments and sours, turns to acid. Gas and Stomach poison, which putrefy in the digestive tract and intestines, and besides, poison the breath with nauseous odours.

A hearty appetite with thorough digestion, and without the slightest discomfort or misery of the Stomach, is waiting for you as soon as you decide to try Pape's Diapepsin.

A GREAT FLEET.

The Examiner has pleasure in acknowledging the receipt, in good order, of an advance copy of the Fleet Calendar of the C. P. R. for 1911. It is called the "Fleet" Calendar, with very good cause. The upper part of the calendar, which is 20 x 27 inches in size, is occupied by a mounted picture of the C. P. R. fleet, which consists of sixty-seven steamships, divided among the Atlantic service, the Transoceanic service, the Great Lakes service, the British Columbia Coast, Lake and River service, and the Pacific service. This is in addition to the sixteen thousand miles of railway, owned and operated by perhaps, the greatest transportation corporation, under one management, in the world. The growth and development of this company, which is, to a great extent, the measure and cause of the growth and development of Canada, are one of the features of the past quarter century.

The steamers of the C. P. R. transportation branch of its service must represent an expenditure of many millions of dollars. Where were these vessels built? Not in Canada, as should be done. This suggests a question which affords one strong justification for a Canadian navy. The ships of the Canadian navy are to be built in Canada, when the docks and ship yards provided for and now under consideration, are built. In the beginning, and before this is done, we have had to depend on British yards. But with our shipyards fitted to build war ships, what is to prevent this demonstration of Canada's ability to build ships for war purposes, to emphasize the practibility of, and stimulate the enterprise of, building ships in Canada for commercial purposes? We have, or can produce, all the material required in shipbuilding. And the industry, once established, would find ample outlet for its greatest imaginable capacity. The fleet of the C. P. R. of sixty-seven ships, the numerous steamers of the twenty odd Canadian steamship lines, to which are to be added the steamers of the Grand Trunk Pacific, will not last always—will have to be renewed and added to. All that is needed to build all these ships in Canada, and thus establish a very important new industry is to do it. We've got the material and we can furnish the workmen and the skill in time. We have made a beginning in a small way. We have built splendid steamers and staunch—staunch enough to run the St. Lawrence rapids—for the river and lakes' services; and there is no reason why we cannot undertake greater things. At first the cost may be greater; but with experience we may overcome this objection and compete successfully with other countries, which, like us, had to make beginnings. Half a century ago Britain was little, if any, advanced over Canada at the present time in the capacity for building war ships such as the developments of the science have produced, and are producing today. A shipbuilding industry in Canada may come slowly, but it is something that could well be adopted as an aim and an ambition to be worked up to and worked out.

ANOTHER STEP IN CIVIC PROGRESS.

The want of a public-spirited and progressive civic policy is not by any means confined to Peterborough. The Toronto News says:

At the city hall it is hardly recognized that we have ceased to be a town and have become a great city. Only a few years hence Toronto will have a population of five hundred thousand and our whole future policy should now be settled. We should have a general plan of city improvement and city extension, with gardens, playgrounds, attractive avenues, convenient transportation and building restrictions which would make overcrowding forever impossible.

There is sound sense in what the News says and in a general way the remarks apply forcibly, in spirit, to Peterborough. Our whole future policy, so far as can be foreseen, should now be settled.

At our City Hall it does not seem to be recognized that "we have ceased to be a town and have become a city," with city possibilities. If the eyes at our city hall administrators could, or would see, beyond the noses of their owners they would recognize that in respect of the course of civic administration and in the matter of a live, progressive policy, we have not advanced beyond the village stage. The best minds among our civic representatives seem to find no more serious occupation than the bum-drum of routine administration. The barest work necessary to keep things going some way or any way, seems to engage the full attention of our legislators. Little things arouse great energy and interest, but large productive questions seem to be left severely alone.

As the News points out in relation to Toronto, so in relation to Peterborough there are many things we have not that we might have, and must have if we are to advance beyond the town stage, or even village stage. As pointed out in these columns recently, we are, by the munificence of benefactors of the city, saved from the necessity of providing parks, except one or two, that may yet come, a hospital, and other things. We are well provided with educational institutions, but we have no city buildings that would do credit to a live town. Even Cobourg, with less than third of our population, has handsome and creditable civic buildings, and other places of less population and importance than Peterborough have public buildings worthy of themselves.

Our own city buildings on Simcoe street are, to say the least, shamefully short of what we should have and could have without any burdensome expense. The means to provide a new site and new buildings could practically be secured by the removal of the present market to a new site already owned by the city, only a stone's cast from the present market square but not so valuable for any other purpose as for a market place. Two sides of the square now vacant could be sold or leased for building purposes, and the proceeds devoted to providing a new city hall. It seems folly, when the problem of providing shops for merchants seems to be becoming acute, to have land with a value in the neighbourhood of $300 or $400 per foot, practically lying waste, or at the best, only used four of five hours each of two days in the week for the sale of potatoes and hay; especially when other property valuable only for such purposes, and which cost the city practically nothing, is available. Especially when we need a new city hall, whose erection can be easily financed by the conversion of the market square to commercial purpose of a more extensive kind than it is at present used for. Two sides of the square are now built upon and the other two sides could be built upon and inclose a spacious court to be approached by an archway. This proposal should meet with the approval of our merchants for reasons they themselves can appreciate, as well as of citizens generally, and seems to be in every way practicable. Will our city fathers, as well as the citizens generally, feel it their duty to give some attention to this subject as one of the steps towards the placing of Peterborough in a position she is well qualified, and, with proper and progressive administration, can be made to hold in the sisterhood of Ontario cities?

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Toronto boasts of progress, but one item in the menu of results of the year's improvement campaign — ninety-miles of wooden Hydro-Electric poles erected — is not a very striking evidence of advanced ideas in the way of civic improvement!

The honour of "K.C." seems, says the Toronto Star, to be prized highly in England, probably because it is so seldom conferred. A Manchester man was recently given the distinction, and a leading paper published the picture of the citizen who had "become a K.C." giving the event as much prominence as if the gentleman had been raised to the peerage. In Ontario K.C.'s are almost as common as issuers of marriage licenses.

Toronto boasts, with good cause, of the triumph of generosity in raising more than $600,000 for the Y. M. C. A. But it must cede the laurels for first place to Vancouver, British Columbia which has raised a like amount for a similar purpose. But Vancouver's claim to the palm lies in the fact that the population of Vancouver is 80,000, while that of Toronto is 330,000. Toronto's offertory to the Y. M. C. A. was equivalent to about $2.00 per head, while that of Vancouver was four times greater relatively—about $8.00 per head; the rich publican and the widow with the mite.

A MISCHIEVOUS SUGGESTION.

(Toronto Star.)

The Rev. D. A. Cameron in a sermon preached in the First Baptist Church, Ottawa, is reported as saying:

The sooner we get a big navy to keep Quebec in order, the better for the Dominion. For some years past we have been hearing murmurs of disloyalty from Quebec. Then recently, upon an election day, there came the lightning flash and the thunder clap which revealed a startling condition of affairs."

Let us hope Mr. Cameron was misunderstood. We do not need a navy to keep Quebec in order. Quebec has shown no symptom of disorder. Certain electors in Drummond and Arthabaska exercised their right under the constitution to vote against the naval policy of the Government. The remedy is for those who approve of the naval policy of the Government to support them by their votes when the time comes. It is most mischievous and dangerous to suggest that the armed forces of the Dominion are to be used to coerce the people of Quebec in the exercise of the franchise. If we want to popularize the navy in Quebec, we must describe it as the defender, not the assailant, of the liberties of the people.

EDITORS ARE WATCHING.

The editorial below is taken from the Honesdale Pa., Independent, of August 31st. Our thanks are hereby expressed to the editor, Benjamin F. Haines, for his clear and truthful statement of the facts. We have asked our brother editors all over America to compare the weekly 'long range' forecasts" of the weather bureau, with our forecasts, printed a year in advance, and we are gratified to see that they are taking the matter up, all over the country. Our brethren of the tripod will please understand that this is not an ill-humoured fling at the weather bureau, but it is a fair and honourable effort to find the truth on this great and vital subject of storm and weather. Read this:

Hicks and the government weather bureau agreed on weather forecasts for last week, the only difference being that the St. Louis man foretold meteorological conditions a year ahead and Uncle Sam's weather man had to wait until the change of atmosphere began somewhere up in the "Rockies." For the week of the 25th Hicks said there would "certainly be boreal winds from the north and a general change to unseasonable cold weather over most parts of the inland states." When the cold wave started, the government bureau wired over the country that it was coming, a fact Hicks foretold in both his Almanac for 1910 and his Word and Works for August. Yet there are those who would discredit this great and comparatively accurate weather forecaster.

From the Oklahoma Record, of September 9th, we reprint from a full column editorial, the extracts following:

Those short-range weather prognosticators at Washington amuse us considerably. By the aid of the telegraph they can manage to crawl in a few hours ahead of a storm or radical change in the weather, while Mr. Hicks gives the information as fully months in advance. In proof of this we submit the following as printed in Hicks' almanac last November. * * *

The editor of the Record then quotes our forecasts, which had been printed in our 1910 Almanac a year in advance, showing his readers the truth and fairness of his criticism, closing his editorial in the following strong words:

Now all of our readers will recognize the fulfilment of the above. The storm that was to culminate on and touching the 3rd reached this locality Sunday night. They will observe how well the storm periods blended together and they will also appreciate the fact that the cool wave came from the north this Friday morning, September the 9th, as Hicks said it would. The editor of the Record has been a reader and close observer of Hicks for years and would not do without his almanac for $100 a year.

That we greatly appreciate such testimonials from our brother editors — and there are hundreds of them — goes without saying. We wish every editor on the American continent might make the same test of our forecasts. We want no fulsome praise, nor do we wish any credit where none is due. But we do desire, for the sake of the truth, and the welfare of mankind, to establish everywhere and for all coming time, the correctness and value of the great work to which we are devoting our whole life and substance. It is with this only object in view, that we are asking the cooperation of our brothers of the tripod and press.—Rev. Irl R. Hicks.

THE CITY OF LETHBRIDGE

Lethbridge is situated at the mouth of the Crow's Nest Pass, with which it has direct railroad connections, and for which it is the natural distributing point. Here are located the large lumber camps and coal mines of the Kootenay district. In the first 250 miles there is a pay roll in the Pass of over one million dollars ($1,000,000) per month; this is in addition to the city pay roll, which is over two hundred thousand dollars ($200,000) per month.

Freedom Of Action And Responsibility In Relation To Imperial Considerations

"We perceive the whole movement shaping itself, in the British way—the way of custom and practice rather than of law or written constitution—towards a working unity. The question before us during the next few years will be whether we can give definite form and binding force to this practical tendency or whether the better plan is still to trust to the free will and good will of the different communities. The granting of self-governing institutions to different communities in the Empire is, so far from being a separatist or disloyalist movement, an essential condition of effective Imperial unity."

The foregoing, from a recent article in the Westminster Gazette, may be taken as accurately stating the general ground of present day controversy, not only for Great Britain, but for Canada, and perhaps other of the Dominions as well.

No doubt there is a strong sentiment in England in favour of a binding arrangement. For a very long time, at least, England would be the predominant partner in such an arrangement, and its principal beneficiary. Indeed the open and aggressive movement for reorganization of the Empire on the basis of an organic union, economic, military and political, starts from the supposed need of saving England from being outclassed by visible rivals. People who feel this way about it, and there is no doubt they feel strongly, are for reducing everything to terms of "British," by which, as the Westminster shrewdly observes, they universally mean "English." If, comments the Westminster, there had been no toleration for any nationality but the English, which is what the Tories mean when they say "British," "we should have had no Empire, and as little peace in Wales or Scotland as in Ireland. The whole problem either of an Empire or a United Kingdom is to find scope and place under one system of government for diverse nationalities and national sentiments."

The bearing of this very sound statement of the case upon our Canadian part of the problem is very easy to discern. We are confronted, in this case of the navy, and in other recent developments, with the same problem an earlier generation had to solve in relation to the civil government. Are we to be our own masters, or are we not? Is it better for Great Britain to frankly concede that we ought to be, or, by holding on to a share of the control over a branch of the Canadian service, to keep open a controversy over where the control is and where it ought to be?

In Canada, it is clear enough, there can be only one issue from such a controversy. Parliament, which is master of its revenues, must be master of an institution supported out of those revenues. If there is any doubt about where the control lies, that is where the answer will have to be looked for. The Canadian navy will grow just as fast as the Canadian Parliament provides the money for its construction and upkeep, and no faster, and Parliament will provide the money if it is satisfied with the reality of its control, and not otherwise.

On this side of the Atlantic, as well as on the other, there are two opinions as to what is best for the future. There are those whose convictions are strongly in favour of "definite form and binding force"; there are those who think the better plan is still "to trust to the free will and good will of the different communities." And between these two there arises, as between the same two sets of opinion in the struggle for Responsible Government, the old, old argument as to whether the encouragement of the Canadian national spirit involves a "separatist and disloyalist movement" (the very words Mr. Roger's hurls at Sir Wilfrid), or whether it is "an essential condition of effective Imperial unity," which is what Mr. Graham preached all through the west, and wherever he has spoken since he came back. There is the whole issue, and what turns the scale in favour of the autonomist side is that the spirit of British political institutions permeates our society. Now the spirit of British institutions is self-government, responsible government. England, Scotland, Ireland, each in their several ways and with varying degrees of success, have taught the world that political freedom is the greatest of all blessings. We only take the faith as it has been handed down to us. We would be unworthy if we did not. The mother countries would be false to their own ideals if they wished it otherwise.

POST CARD COLUMN

To the Editor of the Examiner

Dear Sir,—Will you kindly tell me why the local Board of Trade does not get busy in discussing or working for something that is of importance to the city. They spent a lot of time last night talking about Technical Education. It is a good thing, no doubt, but the Government has appointed a Royal Commission to investigate the subject and there seems no reason for our Board spending an evening on it when there are so many other things of more local importance that they could at least talk about. Surely they can do more to justify their existence than passing resolutions upon a subject that the Government has in hand already. Is it a Board of Trade or a debating society? The general public would like to know.

Yours truly,
"An Opponent of Talk Feasts"

Keep the Upward Draft Open . . .

Human nature is like the fire in the open grate. When everything is clear how it glows with comfort and inspiration. How our castles rise to ambition's height. But when the fire and our lives become clogged with ashes, how cheerless the view. Keep the upward draft open.

Do you ever notice how the face of a dear, sainted mother shines when it reflects the rare sweet light that glows beyond the hills of time? A great preacher once said that this was a grander benediction than he could pronounce.

There is no such thing as secret thought. All thoughts write themselves on the face.

BUILDING PERMITS

Although the total investment as compared with the previous month is somewhat less pronounced, the building returns for September, submitted to Construction from twenty-two important centres, registers an average gain of 27 per cent. over the corresponding period of 1909. Taking into consideration the extraordinary strides that have been made throughout the spring and summer seasons, the advance noted is not only in itself satisfactory, but is a pretty good indication that nothing other than an active condition will obtain for the remainder of the year.

In the cities reporting, the aggregate total for permits issued amounted to $8,696,128, as compared with $5,251,291 for the same month last year, and in many cases the figures reflect a most prosperous condition of affairs. Of the five losses noted, three occur in Ontario; viz., Ottawa, 6 per cent.; Peterborough, 52 per cent; and Port Arthur, 81 per cent. Despite these reverses, however, the Province in general forged ahead substantially. Toronto's total of $1,332,625, representing a gain of 27 per cent., is by far the largest total registered in the Dominion, while Brantford's phenomenal advance of 403 per cent. in the second highest increase per cent. attained. London is also substantially ahead with a gain of 171, and an excellent showing was made at Hamilton and Fort William, which exceeded last year's figures for the month by 16 and 7 per cent. in order named. In all these cases the amounts noted are of gratifying proportions. Again, Windsor is ahead by a gain of 117 per cent. and Berlin comes to the fore with an advance of 75 per cent., while Kingston, which does not send in comparative figures, reports activities to the extent of $17,576.

The largest proportionate growth for the month, however, was experienced in the Manitoba town of Brandon, whose mighty onward march reflects itself in a gain of 664 per cent. Work amounting to $437,675 was undertaken as against $57,200 in the same month in 1909. Winnipeg, of the same province, registers $804,400, and thus managed to slightly top its corresponding figures. Other Western increases are noted in the case of Prince Albert and Regina, which over-reach their last year total to the extent of 112 and 295 per cent. respectively. Calgary also witnessed a high state of development, and Victoria made a gain of 41 per cent. Calgary's advance of 186 per cent. represents $489,895 more in new buildings than was undertaken in the previous September. Edmonton and Vancouver, however, were behind for the month, although Vancouver's loss is so infinitesimal as to practically amount to nothing, while Edmonton's decrease, which was 68 per cent., can be ascribed to the fact that improvements for the month were principally of a residential nature.

In the Eastern portion of the Dominion, Montreal, Sydney, and St. John all turned the month to good account. Montreal's total of $3,3..,... representing a gain of 59 per cent., shows an investment that was only surpassed in one instance. Sydney and St. John increases are 37 and 8 per cent. in relative order.

Notwithstanding the lateness of the season, a large amount of prospective work is reported from many sections, and unless severe weather interferes with present plans, operations will be continued at a brisk pace up to the end of the year.

THE DISPATCHER AT ERIE.

He Had the Makings of a Hero In Him.

By HADLEY F. FREEMAN.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

"Sarah, I have finished Harvard, and my father will obtain for me the second vice presidency of the Great Central lines. You know I love you and you only. Will you marry me?"

"Henry," she said, "let us not discuss it here. Come with me into the conservatory." Once seated there, Henry, impetuous and quick tempered, burst out: "Sarah, you would not refuse me? Have you deceived me? Do you love another? Would you"—

"Henry," she interrupted, "be quiet. I love no one but you, but I will never marry a man who has not proved his ability."

"But I do not need"—

"Do not need! True, not now, but if a crash should come or your father should die what would you do? What could you do? What work have you ever done? Do something to prove your ability."

"Sarah, you are right. I have never done anything. I have been quite useless, but I will show my worth."

The effect on Henry was remarkable. The next day bright and early started toward the big roundhouse. He entered his father's private office. The older Sherlock greeted his son with a pleasant "Good morning."

"Dad," Henry stammered, "I want to talk things over with you."

"What's wrong now?"

"Everything."

"And in particular?"

"Sarah won't marry me until I do something."

"And you intend"—

"To throw up the vice presidency, start in at the bottom and work up."

"Very well. When do you wish to begin?"

"Tomorrow."

"All right. I'll see to the job."

That night his father said quietly: "Report to the dispatcher at Erie, O. Leave here at 2:30 a. m. It's fortunate for you that telegraphy was one of your youthful whims. Just as soon as you learn the job you will be given a responsible berth."

"Good night," said Henry and turned in.

And the next morning found him on his way from New York to Erie without having seen Sarah. Happy in the thought that he was to prove himself, he spent most of his trip composing a letter to her telling all and explaining his departure without seeing her.

The next afternoon he reached Erie tired and sleepy. From supper he went directly to bed in the home of one of the dispatchers, where he had secured room and board, and at 8 the next morning he began work.

He soon found that train dispatching was not easy. During the first weeks of his work he was assisted and watched by the dispatcher whose place he was to take. Then began the night shift. As far as population was concerned, Erie was hardly on the map, but as a railroad point it was most important. It was a division point of consequence, as several branches of the main line converged there.

Henry was given complete charge of a branch which boasted but four trains, so it was easy for him to take care of the wire and the train sheets.

How could he keep awake? The station with its cozy fire was almost homelike except for the feeling of loneliness.

He worked on, continually cheered by his letters from home and Sarah and by his own satisfaction at doing something well. And the first pay day—could the bank hold his first four weeks' wages, his $30? Then he was given a really important desk.

But soon he began to be discouraged. Nothing happened. There seemed to be no way to prove himself. And then the test came.

In the middle of February came probably the meanest and most severe storm ever known to that region. The rain, chilled by the lower air and falling on the colder objects below, froze and formed one continuous ice sheet enveloping everything below. Down went trees, fences, wires and bridges—work, work night and day for the repair gangs.

With the wires down, the railroads resorted to the old schedule system of dispatching. But trains were late and the tracks slippery. After six hours of herculean labor a single line was run along the afflicted district of the Great Central lines and limited communication resumed.

On the night of the 16th Henry was sitting drowsily by his little stove. In these dreams was he engrossed when suddenly and unexpected came the call for Erie—Er. et. Answering, Sherlock received the awful message: "Rocky cut bridge down and the National limited has passed here. Signed, Springdale."

Springdale was the first night station east of Erie and thirty-two miles away. Rocky cut was a mile and a half from Erie in the same direction and spanned by an old wooden railroad bridge. What should he do? Quickly he thought and quickly formed his plan.

On went his hat, coat and gloves, and out the door he tore and rushed toward the big roundhouse. On a nearby siding with steam up stood a switch engine, into which he sprang after opening the switch on to the main track.

He pulled the reverse lever and backed out of the siding on to the main track. With all possible haste he reset the switch, re-entered the cab and opened wide the throttle.

Never before had he gone so fast, never before had he attempted to run alone. In fact, his largest experience in running had been acquired on his father's private train. Now he seemed to stand still. Yet the cut soon opened before him. He braced himself, jammed on both brakes, and as the engine stopped on the edge of the bank he swung to the ground, slipped on the ice and snow and finally sank down in a heap.

He tried to rise. He could use but one foot—he had broken his ankle. How, with only one leg, could he cross the river? Yet he crawled down to the edge, hoping to make his way over on the ice. But the river, contrary to his expectations, was open. He wavered, almost backed out, then thought of Sarah and his opportunity—and plunged into the icy flood.

Hindered by his useless leg, he seemed to make but little progress. Would he never reach the other side? He was fast becoming exhausted when he struck firm ground and crawled out of the water. Painfully he made his way up to a section shanty, where were kept torpedoes for just such an emergency. He grasped several and hurried as fast as possible up the track. He must give the warning far enough from the bridge to allow the racing train time to stop.

And now his iron constitution, which won him collegiate sporting fame, served him well.

But he must go faster. He had but little time. He tried to walk on his broken leg, but it would not support him. He must crawl again. Oh, if he could only run, even for a minute or two! But hark! Even now in the distance he hears the whistle of the approaching train. Disappointed, he stops his mad race and fixes the torpedoes securely to the track.

Now he waits, but not for long. The train reels around the curve. Suppose the torpedoes should fail! But his fears are groundless. As the train passes, one torpedo after another explodes with a deafening roar, the brakes are slammed on, the engine and coaches groan, creak and come to a standstill! The train is saved!

Exhausted and no longer upheld by the intense excitement, he sank down unconscious. In this condition he was found by the trainmen. From letters in his pockets his identity was established and became known throughout the train. "Henry Sherlock!" cried a young woman who rushed out of a car.

She hurried down the track to where they were taking the unconscious man into a sleeper and immediately assumed command. After he had been carefully placed in a berth she sought to soothe him with endearing words and loving caresses. In the meantime a brakeman went through the car for a surgeon. One speedily came, and together they set the broken ankle, bound it and made splints to hold it in position.

Again the doctor examined the man and then shook his head ominously.

"He has developed pneumonia and will need the most careful nursing."

"Oh!" cried Sarah.

"He had best be taken to a hospital as soon as possible. Will you attend to it?"

The limited was detoured over another railroad, and when they reached Toledo, the first large city, Henry, still unconscious, was removed from the train and carried to a hospital.

With her father and mother Sarah had been on her way to California. After the accident she refused to go further, but determined to stay in Toledo with friends. Brave she tried to be, yet the strain was terrible. It was because of her he had gone away. If he were to die it would be her fault! Thus she worried. Would he never recover?

Then on a sunny and summer-like day in early March, with the warm breeze blowing through the window, the recovering patient was allowed to see one visitor.

"Whom shall it be?" [illegible]

"Sarah—Miss Greene."

And when she rushed into the room and to the bedside, weak though he was, he was strong enough to clasp her tightly to him, while he asked the unnecessary question about his ability and was answered by the dearest girl in the world with a look, a kiss and the one word "Yes."

It Has Sense.

THE RETORT COURTEOUS.

An Editorial Reply Which Was Sharp and Beyond the Libel Law.

There are a great many varieties of the "retort courteous," even though no one has ever taken the trouble to classify them. The repartee of the cultured wit is often so subtle that it appears pointless to the man whose methods are those of a heavy-weight. The retort of the skilled Parliamentarian differs greatly from that of the professor in an academic debate. There are many other types, but standing all alone in a place by itself is the retort of the newspaper of the small town.

A very good example of the way in which these editors go for one another appeared a short time ago in an Ontario paper. It was a weekly published in one of those small towns which has a rival community a few miles away. They hate one another with a deadly enmity, but for the sake of economy they occasionally work together and use the same electric power house and the same private telephone system. It is unnecessary to add that the town which gets its telephone service from the other village spends considerable time passing criticisms upon their treatment and the management of the company. The bickerings over these things have become chronic.

One week the paper came out with an article which occupied the most conspicuous portion of the front page and gave the telephone service a severe raking over the coals. The editor had a personal grievance which he made the text of his editorial. His wife had been left at home alone one evening, and a drunken man got on the verandah by mistake. The lady attempted to call the police but could not get "central." In lurid colors and with emotional ability which characterizes a country newspaper, the editor described his wife's state of mind. He proved that the telephone company was responsible for the pitiful condition of nervousness in which the lady was eventually found.

It was confidently expected that the paper in the neighboring town would come back with an attack upon the electric light system. The next issue was eagerly secured, but it contained only one short reference to the incident, printed in large letters. The editor remarked, "We are greatly surprised that Mrs. Scribe should be disturbed by the sound of a drunken man on her verandah."

A Bard at Eighty-One.

St. Stanley Larkin of Moose Jaw has made public some interesting facts. He has an uncle in England, eighty-one years of age, and a bard with royal recognition. Old Mr. Larkin was much affected by the death of King Edward. He sat down and expressed his condolence in verse. The poetic tribute was widely quoted in England:

"Edward, the Great Peacemaker,"
Thus will he e'er be known.
Of realms on which the sun ne'er sets
The King of peace he alone.

Then raise the Royal Standard,
Unfurl it to the breeze,
The olive branch' its message,
To all the lands and seas.

And may the Almighty Ruler,
Whom kings and realms adore,
To our great noble Edward,
Grant peace for evermore."

Mr. Larkin, sr., received the following letter from Buckingham Palace:

"Miss Knollys is commanded by Queen Alexandra to thank Mr. Larkin for his kind sympathy and touching tribute."

The Human Riddle.

One of the strangest problems of our inexplicable nature is the choice of evil and the rejection of good, even after long experience has proved that misery and evil are synonymous. Virtue, it is true, does not always exempt from sorrow, but crime must ever be wretchedness. Hope loses its balm, and fear acquires a keener sting. The present is anxiety, the past remorse, the future is despair, and yet the wayward man drinks the bitter cup when the sweet is offered to him and launches his boat upon an angry sea, where storms attend his course and shipwreck terminates his voyage, rather than glide down the smooth current of a tranquil stream where peace pilots him on the way and happiness waits him on the shore.—Exchange.

The Term "Bully."

The term bully in the days of Shakespeare had quite a different meaning from that which it has at present, being an expression of endearment and good fellowship. Some suppose that the word, when it is used in approval, is derived from the Dutch boel or German buhle, which stands for the English lover. The harsher use of the word is, however, to be traced to bellow, the root of bull, with a significance of noisy blustering.

"THE SURFACE OF THE SUN" AN INTERESTING ADDRESS

Peterborough Centre of the Royal Astronomical Society Had an Enjoyable Meeting Last Evening.

VALUABLE INFORMATION

The local branch of the Royal Astronomical Society held a meeting in the lecture room of the Collegiate Institute last evening, when Rev. Dr. Marsh, of Sprineville, gave a very interesting and educative address on "The Surface of the Sun."

Mr. H. P. Collier, president of the Society, presided, and Dr. Marsh read the minutes of last meeting, after which the chairman made a few introductory remarks. He stated that the telescope which had been presented to the Society by Hon. J. R. Stratton, would be loaned upon request, to the members of the Society. However, he said that it was at present spoken for by three individuals for the first three months, but any person who wished to have the use of one could borrow the telescope which had been loaned to the Society by the Government. The chairman also made the announcement that this evening at 8 o'clock there will be an eclipse of the moon.

Dr. Marsh was then introduced, and began his talk about the surface of the sun. His remarks were illustrated by the lantern slides.

In discussing the sun said the speaker, we must discuss it from two standpoints. First, as a dominating body, giving light and heat to the planets, and secondly, as a typical star. When we look into the sky at night, we see stars. Planets have no light of their own, but stars have, and that is the difference between them. The sun is our dominating body. When I say a typical star, I mean the sun, and there are thousands of suns with light of their own.

At this point of his address the canvas was drawn up and Doctor Marsh made a few diagrams on the blackboard to illustrate his points. Continuing, he said: "Some people say that the astronomers know very little about the heavenly bodies. It is comparatively true; but, at the same time, it is marvellous what they really do know. I am not speaking of my own knowledge, of course, as being widespread, but I am speaking of astronomers in general. What are the problems of the sun? There are a great number of problems—the size, the interior, the size, the mass of the sun, its source of heat and the great problem, its chemical constitution, what is it made of? Now, I am going to tell you of the sun and some of its component parts. Measurements are very difficult, because we do not know where to start to measure. But measurements are made from the photosphere. There is a dusk veil surrounding the sun, and that is why it looks like a bowl of rice, or an egg shell. Then there is the reversing layer, which is outside of that. There are three surrounding coats of the sun. The photosphere the dusk veil and the reversing layer. Then comes the chromosphere. The great corona is only seen when the shadow of the moon exactly blots out the photosphere.

I will now describe the separate parts before mentioned, said the Rev. Dr. Marsh. The photosphere looks like a person's brain, or an egg shell, or a bowl of sugar. These little specks are about 600 miles across, and are sub-divided into little particles, about 100 miles across. There is only about one-fifth of the sun covered with these and they may be seen on the sun just before rain. The sun appears to us to be brighter in the centre and darker toward the edge. It is because of the dusky veil. It is just like the moon rising, because you are looking through more atmosphere when the moon is rising than when it gets up, and it makes it appear larger. It is just the same with the sun, looking at the edge you are looking through more atmosphere than when looking straight at the centre.

Then there are sun spots. Nine theories have been given regarding the cause of sunspots. Theories have been given to the effect that the sun is a planet and the spots are clouds floating across it. And others claim that they are caused by bodies falling on the sun. Many heavenly bodies fall to the earth, and that is how they get the theory that bodies fall on the sun just the same. I have a theory myself, which I believe to be nearer right than any I have heard, and I think all astronomers will agree with me.

Dr. Marsh here explained the cause of the northern lights. He said that where there are sunspots there are magnetic disturbances, which often extend to the earth so that we see the Aurora Borealis. We see them in the north because we are closer to the north than to the south, said the speaker. If we were further south we would see them in the south. These sun spots have a duration of from one day to eighteen months. Spots near the equator of the sun rotate more rapidly than those further north or south. The sun is not a solid body, but is continually changing. I will not speak of the reversing layer to-night. It would take too long, and I have been speaking an hour now. I will say a few words about the chromosphere. It is composed of metals, not found upon our earth. The chromosphere is often from nine to ten thousand miles in thickness. Then there are the forest fires of the sun. These cannot be seen with the naked eye, but are very interesting and can be seen with the telescope. The greatest fire known on the sun, reached a height of 400,000 miles.

Dr. Marsh then made a few closing remarks, after which the chairman moved a vote of thanks to the speaker for his useful information, which was duly seconded, and the meeting ended.

LIQUID CURES ECZEMA WHERE SALVES FAIL

In regard to skin diseases, medical authorities are now agreed on this:

Don't imprison the disease germs in your skin by the use of greasy salves, and thus encourage them to multiply. A true cure of all eczematous diseases can be brought about only by using the healing agents in the form of a liquid.

WASH THE GERMS OUT.

A simple wash. A compound of Oil of Wintergreen, Thymol, and other ingredients as combined in the D.D.D. Prescription. This penetrates to the disease germs and destroys them, then soothes and heals the skin as nothing else has ever done.

A trial bottle will start the cure, and give you instant relief. Write for it to-day to the D.D.D. Laboratories, Dept P E., 39 Colborne street, Toronto.

Sold by McDermid and Jury, druggists; also Payne's drug store.

LEAVING FOR ENGLAND

Friends of Mrs. E. J. Naish Wish Her Son Voyage at an Enjoyable Gathering

A number of friends gathered last night at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. F. Hensley, 488 George street, to bid farewell to Mrs. E. J. Naish and daughter Gladys, who sail for England on Friday morning on the "Corsican" to visit Mrs. Naish's parents in Reading Berks. Mr Ernest Stanley was present with his phonograph and gave some beautiful selections, and a most pleasant time was spent and dainty refreshments were served, which added to the enjoyment of the evening. Mr and Mrs. Tuzzey and children, Mrs. Wells and her two sons, and Miss Lottie Northcott will be fellow passengers of Mrs Naish on the trip.

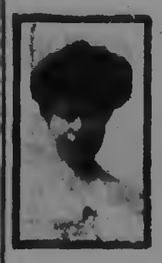
THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

If the government ever feels that it would like a mother and daughter to get an opening in its secret service department, I can recommend two women who are qualified for the position by a long course of home training.

I don't know that there is an examination for spies, but if there is, the fine tooth comb inspection of the neighbourhood which these two women carry on daily from their living room window, certainly ought to make them able to pass with flying colours.

I made a call at their home the other day and this is a sample of the conversation.



Please punctuate scantily with a few general remarks and liberally with glances at the window.

"Oh, mother look out the window quick and see if you think that's a new coat Ruth Blakely has on or her old caracul trimmed up with lynx."

"Lucy, do you know who that man going by with Madge Holbrook is? Is he the one she went to the theatre with on Wednesday? No, that one was light haired. This must be another one. My dear, this is the fifth man we have seen that girl with since she got back from her vacation. I think it's positively scandalous. I don't see why her mother doesn't forbid her to make such a show of herself."

"There goes Mrs. Norton off to her "New Thought" lecture. Yes, she goes every Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and stays so late that her husband often has to get his own supper."

"If that isn't the Holbrook's maid starting out all dressed up. It isn't her afternoon off, either. I don't see how Mrs. Holbrook can let her gad so. Why, she had two afternoons and two evenings last week. Mrs. Holbrook spoils her terribly."

"My dear, do you know who that girl is going down the other side of the street with the brown corduroy suit on. She came out of the Blakely's, I think. She is one I never saw before."

Pause, while the two ladies stare the luckless stranger out of sight, taking in every detail of her costume. I am sure if you should call and ask them to-day, they could tell you whether she wore button boots or laced and just how much the plumes on her hat cost and whether her puffs were really her own or "made in Germany."

"There's the doctor's automobile at Mrs. Rice's. My dear, that's the fifth time this week and yet Mrs. Rice isn't even sick abed. I always used to like her, but I certainly don't think this looks well. The doctor is such a fascinating man and Mr. Rice is away so much. Really, someone ought to warn him. You don't believe Mrs. Rice could do anything wrong. Oh, my dear, you haven't seen as much of the world as I have."

No, I haven't, thank goodness, and I trust I never shall. At least not the way she sees it.

I happened to visit elsewhere in the neighbourhood and I know how the people who live within eyeshot of that argus-eyed window, actually skulk out of their back doors sometimes to avoid its scrutiny.

I know how they even plan their goings and comings so that "Mrs. M. and Lucy won't see me and try to find out what I'm doing."

Not because they are doing anything wrong, but merely because they resent this perpetual spying.

I think these people are foolish. In allowing themselves to be disturbed by the two spy-women's littleness of mind, they place themselves almost on the same level.

I think they should good-naturedly ignore the scrutiny instead of actually letting it influence their actions.

But as for the spy-women themselves—well, I'm just sorry for them.

Don't you think it must be terrible to have so few real interests, so few resources within yourselves that you are reduced to perpetually spying upon your neighbours for food for thought?

I do.

Funeral Of Staff Sergeant Sharp Held Yesterday Under Military Auspices

With military ceremony appropriate as a mark of respect to a man who had been a comrade in arms for many years the remains of Staff Sergeant Samuel C. Sharpe of the 57th Regiment, were escorted to their last resting place in Little Lake cemetery yesterday afternoon. The funeral cortege participated in by members of the 57th Regiment and the 24th Field Battery, and headed by a firing party of twenty and the bands of the Regiment, was an imposing one, and many hundreds of citizens lined the streets as it passed by.

A brief, but impressive, service was conducted at the residence on College street by Rev. Mr. Couch, pastor of George Street Methodist church, during which Major Canon Davidson, chaplain of the 57th Regiment, expressed the sorrow and grief of the officers and men of the Rangers at the death of their comrade.

The body was then placed on a gun carriage, in charge of the 24th Field Battery, while a bugler sounded the last post and the firing party reversed their rifles. The cortege was then drawn up and headed by the firing party, proceeded to the cemetery, with the band playing the Dead March in Saul. Following the bands was the gun-carriage with the body, the casket being draped with the Union Jack, with the dead soldier's sword and uniform placed on top. The remainder of the Regiment and a detachment of the 24th Field Battery followed, while next in the line were the members of the old Volunteer Fire Brigade, with whom the deceased had worked side by side on many occasions. Carriages containing the mourners and members of the Oddfellows came next, while a procession of citizens in carriages formed the rear guard of the long procession.

At the cemetery the burial service was conducted by Major Davidson, the Chaplain of the Regiment, and after the body had been lowered into the grave the firing party fired three volleys, while "The Last Post" was sounded by Bugler Spenceley.

The pall-bearers were Quarter Master Sergt. Collins of the 24th Field Battery; Colour Sergts. Mitchell and Halpin of the 57th Regiment; Sergeants Batten of the 24th Field Battery, and Cottrell and Matchett of the 57th.

The 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons were represented in the funeral cortege.

HOW IT WOULD BE IF ALD. MORGAN HAD HIS WAY

The Curious Experience of a Would-be Purchaser in New York Who Tried to Buy Eggs by the Pound, but Who Found the Task Too Much For Him.

The following from the Grocers' Magazine is commended to the attention of Ald. Morgan:

Clement J. Driscoll, New York's sealer of weights and measures, who was apparently afraid to go before the New York Grocers' Association when asked to explain statements unfairly reflecting on grocers as a class, lately issued an order that eggs must hereafter be sold by the pound rather than the dozen.

"If Mr. Driscoll will go out and try to buy a pound of eggs," says L. J. Callanan, the New York grocer, "he'll find there isn't such a thing."

The Brooklyn Eagle, a daily paper, sent a reporter out to see if he could buy a pound of eggs. His experience is certainly an interesting one. Here it is, in part:

"How much per pound are your eggs?" asked the reporter of a Flushing Avenue marketman.

"We have no eggs by the pound."

"But the law says you must sell them that way."

"Does the law say that? Then the law is crazy," said the dealer, scornfully.

Two blocks down was a store presided over by a plump woman assisted by a pale girl.

"Give me a pound of eggs," said the reporter firmly.

The pale girl ceased chewing gum and dropped her jaw. She referred the question to her mother, evidently under the impression that an insult was intended.

"A pound of eggs?" said the plump proprietress. "Eggs is not in pounds. Tomattusses is in pounds and butter is in pounds. But milk comes in quarts, potatoes in pecks, and eggs has always been in dozens."

She said this kindly, as if wishing to humor a possible lunatic who might really have the price of a dozen eggs concealed about his person.

"Give me," said the reporter impressively, "give me one pound of eggs!"

It was too much for the pale girl and two youths with her. They retired into the rear, behind a rampart of barrels, and sat down on some boxes to giggle.

"Must it be so?" said the plump lady with melancholy. And then she went out on the sidewalk and called, "Heinie!"

Heinie, preceded by much red whiskers, entered.

"A pound of eggs?" said Heinie suspiciously. And then he reflected. He took a paper bag and a stub pencil and figured a few moments. "It can be done," he announced triumphantly.

The pound weight was put on the scales. Eight eggs were laid in the scoop arrangement. They weighed one ounce more than one pound.

"At 30 cents a dozen for this grade you can have it for 21 cents," said Heinie.

"But there is more than one pound," said the reporter. "I only want a pound."

Heinie took out a two-ounce egg. The seven then weighed one ounce less than a pound. Heinie figured some more on a paper bag. "Nineteen cents?" he asked inquiringly.

"I want one pound of eggs," said the reporter, "no more and no less. The law says I can have them. And I want them."

"You might cut the big eggs," suggested the proprietress to Heinie. It was evident that she wished to get rid of the insane customer as speedily as possible. It is well to humor such people.

"Cut it then," said the reporter.

"If the egg is cut," said Heinie, "what remains is of no use to me. I will cut it if you say so, but you must pay for the whole of the cut egg."

"I wish a pound of eggs," said the reporter again. "One pound, no more, no less. And I want to know why I can't have it."

Heinie reflected. Then he announced belligerently:

"You will please to step out of my store. Yes? I have no time for such as you."

"Fish is by the pound and so is prunes," said Mrs. Heinie decisively, as the reporter took Heinie's advice. "And berries is by the box. But eggs is by what the hen makes them for weight, and comes in the dozen or the each spiece."

"What does the hen know? Can she lay them to suit Driscoll, man? No! And we do not care if we do not get the trade of those lunatic asylums. Is it not so, Heinie?"

Wholesalers asked about the new order said it was ridiculous and one of two used strong language. "Driscoll will have to show us," they said.

Heinie and his wife were the only ones out of a dozen retailers called on who would even attempt to sell eggs by the pound.

Yet there are many retailers who think they ought to be sold by weight, and in at least one or two States the laws require it.

He then turned and fired at Mrs. Carr, who had her two months' old sister in her arms at the time, and shot her in the back. She staggered back, still clutching the child, and out into the street.

Mrs. Jones when seen within fifteen minutes after the affair, stated that she knew no reason for the shooting. "The only thing I can think of is that Georgina Carr had him put out last Saturday for being disorderly while drunk. He would not go at first, and then a policeman was called.

APPEAL TO BOARD OF TRADE

penses should be paid by the local board.

Mr. Peter Campbell, treasurer, here stated that the present condition of Peterborough Board's funds would not permit of such an expenditure. Two dollars a member per year from 70 members certainly would not permit of the board undertaking the maintenance of its representatives at Toronto, when called there in attendance at Provincial meetings.

Industrial Commissioner Dugan replied that that was all the more reason for increasing the membership.

Mr. F. D. Kerr characterized local Boards of Trade as disorganized bodies, generally speaking, and he thought the country somewhat overgoverned already. To give the Provincial Board of Trade the status of a mouthpiece of this Province would be, he thought, giving it false weight and false influence. The Board of Trade of Toronto was very large and would be able to meet there readily in full strength on any question, and outweigh the views of other representatives of the Province. The Peterborough Board of Trade, if active and energetic, could be very useful in local affairs. But he could not see that any beneficial result would accrue from disorganized local bodies sending representatives to Toronto, and voicing their opinions as the views of the whole Province. As to the expense in connection with the proposition, he said that such money could better be spent at home on matters of local importthan expended in the maintenance of representatives at the Provincial meetings.

Mr. O'Connell did not agree with Mr. Kerr. He said that great Provincial questions would have to be dealt with at Toronto by a Provincial Board of Trade or not dealt with at all. He did not take the expense seriously and thought it would not be necessary to send five representatives to Toronto, but one or two only.

Mr. Dumble contended that Mr. Kerr was taking a wrong view of the question. The Provincial Board would not deal with local matters, but broad measures only. Still he thought the constitution should be more fully considered before definitely endorsed, and before the local board affiliated with the new organization. Under the provision of the present constitution Toronto could swamp the whole Province by its voting power and its numerical influence.

It was moved by Mr. O'Connell and seconded by Ald. Bradburn, that a committee be named to consider the constitution of the Ontario Associated Board of Trade, and report any suggested changes at a meeting to be called for next Tuesday evening. The motion carried. Messrs. Gillespie, O'Connell and Dumble were named as the committee, with power to add to their number.

Technical Education.

Mr. J. E. Hodgson, B.A., of the Collegiate staff, spoke on technical education. It was a subject, he said, that demanded attention, on account of its close relationship to industrial interests. The object of technical education was to give the man employed in industrial concerns, some assistance. To take up the question of technical education, it was necessary to consider the organization of industries and their requirements. "How can we make this education meet the requirements of the business and practical sides of manufacturing?" he asked. Taking first the business side, a knowledge of shop arithmetic would be helpful, and for those higher up in business life, a knowledge of bookkeeping and business forms. Then on the practical side, a knowledge of mechanical drawing would be of great assistance. In the manufacture of anything, plans have first to be drawn. Then a pattern is made, and taken to skilled men who turn out the desired article. Mr. E. G. Patterson, Superintendent of the C. G. E., Mr. Hodgson stated, told him that nine-tenths of the men in that factory would be helped by a study of mechanical drawing. Men who could not understand a plan were at a great disadvantage. He believed that great attention should be paid to manual training in the schools. The study of electricity would also be of benefit to the practical man. The industrial and commercial value of it was only beginning to be realized. The work of the construction of a dynamo, the units of power, and transmission, would prove very helpful studies. The speaker said that there was very little apple being done along the line of applied chemistry, but a knowledge of chemistry, as applied to industry, he believed, would be of assistance. To get the best results training should be offered. A man devoting two hours each week to the study of mechanical drawing, would become efficient at the end of forty weeks.

Mr. Hagerman, teacher of manual training in the city schools, was the next speaker. He stated that manual training in the Public schools was carried on, along educational lines. It created an industrial intelligence. Mr. Hagerman went on to explain the system of manual training as carried out here, and suggested [illegible] of books that ought to be on the shelves of the Public library, in relation to manual training.

A vote of thanks was moved the speakers of the evening, after which the proceedings terminated.

HAD GREAT LUCK

WARSAW, NOV. 16—With the close of the deer hunting season come the reports of the "luck" of the different camps. Probably the hunter to be most congratulated and certainly the most deserving in this locality, is Mr. Alex Motts, who was successful in felling a monster buck, weighing in the neighbourhood of 225 pounds. The Messrs. Tedford returned on Saturday with the legal number for each member of the party of four. Mr. J. H. Payne, who returned home on Saturday, reports his party of nine men had seven deer and a fox when he left. Other parties have been equally successful.

LOVE IN AUTO LESSONS

Special wire to The Examiner:

MILWAUKEE, WIS., NOV. 16. Edward Zabele, a chauffeur, three weeks ago took an automobile to Rhinelander as a birthday gift to Miss Ethel Robbins from her father, a wealthy lumberman.

Zabele was instructed to teach the young woman how to run the car. The lesson went further, and a day or so ago the pair came to Milwaukee and were married.

Then came an ultimatum to the bride that she give up her husband or leave her father's home. She decided to remain with her husband.

The latter's employers have promised, it is said, to give the chauffeur a promotion. He gave up a college course to get a start in the automobile business.

GOSPEL HALL NOTES.

The meetings held at the Gospel Hall are increasing in power. Last night Mr. Walker spoke on David's accession to the throne of Israel. A type of Christ risen. David sends for his enemies that he might show the kindness of God to them. So God sent His Son to bear away the sins of His enemies. Sinners are helpless to save themselves and God brings them into His house of love, and all who receive Jesus Christ by faith in His blood are thus made to sit with Christ in the glory. Mr. McMurdo closed with an eloquent and heart-touching appeal to Christians to get revived and pray for all Christians of all companies, no matter who or what they call themselves and in this way blessing would follow to the unsaved.

COLLEGE TEAMS WILL BE HERE FOR GAME SATURDAY

Peterborough Will See the Intermediate Inter-Collegiate Final---Varsity Wanted the Game for Next Week but Soldiers Held Out for Saturday and Won Their Point.

Royal Military College of Kingston and Varsity Seconds of Toronto will play the final game for the championship of the intermediate Inter-Collegiate Rugby Union here on Saturday afternoon at Riverside Park. The Toronto Collegians wanted to play to-day or a week from to-day at Port Hope, but Peterborough was more central and R. M. C. pleaded examinations as a reason for playing on Saturday and won their point. The two teams are tied, each having won its home game and Saturday's match will be the sporting event of the season in Peterborough, as it will give local people a glimpse of first-class Rugby. There is very little difference between the game played by the intermediate college teams and the form shown by the seniors, and many of those playing for Varsity Seconds this year will be on the senior line-up next season. There will undoubtedly be a good crowd on hand to see the battle Saturday. The announcement last night that the game was likely to be played here, aroused a great deal of interest and the match is being generally discussed among the fans.

Prospects For The City Hockey League This Year

The annual meeting of the City Hockey League will be called next week for the election of officers and the transaction of other preparatory business. It is perhaps early to discuss the prospects [illegible] at this present juncture, but it looks as if there will be [illegible] this season. It is not expected that Keene will be in [illegible] this year. Ray McDougall, their big captain and cover-point, who did much good work for the Peterborough Intermediate O. H. A. team of winter, has been transferred to [illegible] and his absence will leave a big gap in the ranks. The Strathcona, last year's champions, the West Ends and the T. A. S. will likely have [illegible] again this winter and a fourth team may be forthcoming before the ice gets here.

T. A. A. C. Should Give Varsity A Good Game

The first game in the Canadian Rugby Union championship series will be played on Saturday in Toronto with Varsity, the Inter-Collegiate champions, and Toronto Amateur Athletic Club, the champions of the O. R. F. U. as the opposing team. The game is regarded by the majority of fans as an easy win for Varsity. The Collegians will, undoubtedly win, but the T. A. A. C., unless they show a bad attack of stage fright will give Coach Griffiths' machine a busy afternoon. The T. A. A. C. team, like the Varsity aggregation, is composed, for the most part, of men who learned the game in the schools and colleges, and they know the fine points. They have a good back division and a fast, heavy wing line, and may provide Varsity with more strenuous opposition than most of the critics seem to expect.

GOVERNOR-GENERAL REFERS TO TARIFF QUESTION IN SPEECH FROM THRONE

Parliament Opened This Morning With Customary Pageantry—"My Government Hope That at an Early Date Without any Sacrifice of Canada's Interests an Arrangement May be Made to Permit Admission of Many Products of Dominion into United States on Satisfactory Terms."

Special Wire to the Examiner.

OTTAWA, NOV. 17.—With all the customary pageantry, reminiscent of stirring days in old London, the third session of Canada's eleventh parliament was opened this morning with a great military and social display. As his Excellency the Governor General drove to the Parliament Buildings, escorted by a detachment of the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards, guns from Nepean Point boomed out their royal salute. Governor General's foot guards lined up on streets and presented arms.

In the speech from the throne His Excellency referred to the prosperity of the country despite the fact that crops in some portions of the west had been poor. The chief feature of the speech, however, was the reference to the tariff question, which said. While recognizing the importance of Canadian home trade and the value of a market for our staples in the United Kingdom My government feel that they should avail themselves of every opportunity to promote friendly commercial relations with British colonies and foreign countries.

The desirability of more equitable tariff arrangements between the United States and Canada has been felt on this side of the border. We have bought largely from them, but they have bought less from us in return. It is gratifying to note that a more liberal policy is now favoured by the neighbouring country. While no conclusions have been reached the free discussions which have taken place, encourage my government to hope that at an early date without any sacrifice of Canada's interests, an arrangement may be made to permit the admission of many products of the Dominion into United States, on satisfactory terms." On the whole the speech on the tariff was very diplomatically worded, and while friendly to reciprocity to a certain extent, showed a tender regard for the feelings of protectionists.

THROWN FROM BUGGY AND BADLY INJURED

A bad runaway accident occurred at noon to-day, resulting in Mr Chas. Gordon being rather seriously injured and his buggy being smashed almost beyond repair. Mr. Gordon was driving home at the noon hour and at the corner of Lake and Crescent Streets, he met the repair wagon of the Street Railway Company, at which his horse took fright. The animal became so frightened that it got beyond control. It bolted at a maddening pace down the street, throwing Mr. Gordon from the vehicle and leaving the outfit, except the shafts, badly damaged on the side of the road. The animal had not been caught at the time of going to press, it apparently making straight for the Country. Mr. Gordon sustained painful injuries; being bruised about the head and body. Dr. McNulty was called and attended him. He will be unable to leave the house for a few days. The vehicle was left in a bad shape and it is doubtless if it can be repaired.

"TOO MUCH OF A GOOD FELLOW WITH MY FRIENDS"

Special Wire to the Examiner.

NEW YORK, NOV. 17.—"I was too much of a good fellow with my friends". This was the statement of Charles Belling, a director of the Bronx Bank, charged in the police court this morning with the theft of nearly four thousand dollars. He said he used the money to help a friend who was in the hole. Belling was strong in society, although his wife was an invalid. He appeared heart broken at the disgrace of his position today.

Traded A $2,000 Farm For A Violin That Was Worth $3.00

Examiner Special.

CHICAGO, NOV. 16.—Carrying a carefully wrapped bundle in both arms and mumbling excitedly to herself, "I've got it," a little old woman stepped nervously into the violin department of Lyon & Healy yesterday.

Five minutes later she was carried to a car, moaning hysterically. What she believed to be a genuine Hopf violin, an almost priceless instrument, proved to be a fiddle not worth $3. She had been swindled, she said, out of her home, a farm worth $2,000 bought with her life's savings.

The woman was Mrs. J. M. Lightner, of Paris, Mo. She told a pathetic story to the officers of the firm. Early in July, she said, she was approached by a man giving the name of N. M. Ewing. He said that he was searching for a rare Hopf violin for which, he asserted, the company would pay $5,000. A confederate giving the name of Price then appeared in Monroe, Mo., with the instrument, and Mrs. Lightner hunted him up and bought the violin.

ELLIOT'S STORE NEWS

Quality is Always the Final Test

A nice box or a free country do not guarantee fine goods or a free citizen Though both are highly desirable. Our government, no matter how bad or good it is, is just what we are fitted for ; it is an expression of ourselves. The quality of goods and men is always the final test. Do you notice that in some sections we are very primitive yet. In some places we are not yet fitted for a free government. Some great political boss has only to hold up his hand and we run with eager enthusiasm and servile obedience to carry him around on our necks, and the joke of it all is, we think that we select him, we think that we are free. Quality is always the final test, whether for citizenship, service or goods. Here is some quality we are delighted to tell you about.

The quiet dignity of a Stylish Skirt always impresses the onlooker. We represent the most noted dress-skirt factory in America, from coast to coast, their skirts are known for their stylish and correct fit, their beauty of finish and high quality. Every Skirt is all wool, stitched with silk thoroughly shrunken. Their range is so wide you get a great choice in styles and materials. We show all the new Voiles, Parisiennes, Chevrons, Serges, Panamas, Silks etc. Let us show them to you, it will be a pleasure to us and interesting to you. They have instructions to ship to us every week, in this way we keep right up to date, and their prices are lower than you pay for ordinary styles. No charge for alterations.

(By E. Phillips Oppenheim.)

"Mr. Ducaine," he said, "I have come to ask you to explain the sudden departure of my son for abroad."

I was taken aback, and I dare say I showed it.

"I have already told Lady Angela —all that I know," I said.

"My daughter's story," the Duke answered, "is incoherent. It tells me only enough to make me sure that something is being concealed."

I glanced at Lady Angela. She was nodding white and trembled.

"I have told my father," she said, "all that I know."

"Then I must discover the rest for myself," the Duke replied. "I know that Blenavon is uncertain and unstable to a degree. When I heard that he had left for the continent, I was not particularly surprised or interested. I have only just discovered the manner of his leaving. It puts an entirely different complexion upon the affair. I understand that he left with Colonel Ray without luggage or explanations of any sort. His own servant had no warning, and was left behind. My daughter informs me that such information as she has she gained from you. I require you to supplement it."

"I am afraid that the only person who can enlighten you further, sir, is Colonel Ray," I answered. "I understood you to say, I believe, that he would be here shortly."

"I insist upon it," the Duke said, sternly. "That you tell me what you know at once and without further prevarication."

I was in a dilemma from which there seemed to be no escape. Lady Angela had seated herself in my easy chair and was keeping her face averted from me. The Duke stood between us.

"I know very little, sir, except what I overheard," I declared. "Colonel Ray was, I believe, responsible for Lord Blenavon's abrupt departure, and I would rather that your information came from him."

"Colonel Ray is not here, and you are," the Duke answered. "Remember that I am no trifler with words. I have said that I insist. I repeat it!"

There seemed to be no escape for me. Lady Angela remained silent, the Duke was plainly insistent. I did not dare to trifle with him.

"Very good, your Grace," I said. "I will tell you what I know. It dates from last Monday, when you will remember that I was in London to attend a meeting of the Council."

"Go on!"

"I returned here by the last train, bringing with me the notes and instructions taken at that meeting. Outside Braster Grange an attack was made upon me, evidently with the intention of securing these. I escaped, with the assistance of Colonel Ray, who had come down from London by the same train unknown to me."

"Well?"

"The attack was made from the grounds of Braster Grange. It seems that Lord Blenavon spent the night there. The next morning Colonel Ray insisted upon my accompanying him to Braster Grange. Lord Blenavon was still there, and we saw him. He was suffering from wounds such as in the darkness I had inflicted upon my assailant of the night before."

It seemed to me that even then the Duke would not, or could not, understand. His brows were knitted into a heavy frown, and he was evidently following my story with close attention. But exactly where I was going to lead, he seemed to have no idea.

"The tenant of Braster Grange," I continued, is a Mrs. Smith-Lessing, who Colonel Ray has told me is a servant of the French secret police. I am afraid that Lord Blenavon has been a good deal under her influence."

Then the Duke blazed out, which was very much what I expected from him. Horror, amazement and scornful disbelief were all expressed in his transfigured face and angry words.

Blenavon- My son! The confederate of a French spy! What nonsense! Who dares to suggest such a thing? Angela—I—I beg your pardon."

He stopped short, making an effort to regain his self-control. He continued in a more collected manner, but his voice still shook with inexpressible scorn.

"Angela," he said, turning to her, "is it within your knowledge that Blenavon had any acquaintance with this person?"

I think that her face might very well have answered him very white it was, and very sorrowful.

"Blenavon met Mrs. Smith-Lessing, I believe, at Bordighera," she said. "I have seen them together several times."

"Here?" the Duke asked sharply.

"Yes, I have seen them riding on the sands, and Blenavon dined there on the night—Mr. Ducaine has been up king of."

"Blenavon is a fool!" the Duke said. "This is to my mind convincing proof that he was ignorant of the woman's antecedents. At the worst he probably regarded her as an ordinary adventuress. As for the rest, I look upon it as the most extraordinary mare's nest which the mind of man could possibly conceive. Do you mean to tell me, Mr. Ducaine, that Colonel Ray went so far as to charge Blenavon to his face with being in league with this person?"

"He certainly did, sir."

"And Blenavon? Oh, Ray is mad! stark mad!"

"Your son denied it, sir," I answered.

"Denied it! Of course he did. What followed?"

"Colonel Ray was very forcible and very imperative, sir," I answered. "He insisted upon Lord Blenavon leaving England at once."

A Mother's Sacrifice

Made in Kindness is Often an Injustice to Herself and to Her Family.

It is a common thing for mothers to sacrifice comfort, strength and sometimes life itself, for her family. So common, indeed, that little notice is taken of it.

If anyone else is tired or weak or sick, mother waits on them. But there is no time for mother to be sick or to get the much-needed rest. So she neglects her ailments until she gets beyond the reach of human aid.

This is an injustice to herself and to her family. Health must be preserved. It is a mother's duty to herself and to those about her.

Dr Chase's Nerve Food will restore you. It makes new, rich blood. It creates new nerve force. The feelings of weakness and fatigue cannot long exists when this restorative treatment is used. It sharpens the appetite, improves digestion and removes the cause of headaches.

You cannot get well in a day. Nature's cures are gradual and lasting. Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food works hand in hand with Nature by supplying the elements which go to build up the system.

Mrs. H. A. Laynes, nurse, Philipsburg, Que., writes: "I was all run down and could not do my own work Everything I ate made me sick. In nursing others I had seen the good results of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food and resolved to try it. As a result of this treatment I have gained ten pounds, do my own work alone, and feel like an entirely different person."

LECTURE WAS ENTERTAINING

Examiner Special.

APSLEY, NOV. 16.—A very interesting lecture was given in the Parish Hall, on the evening of Nov. 9th. The title of the lecture was "Under Two Flags," The British Boer War, and was delivered by Mr. Woodhouse who served as officer for the British in that war. Mr. Woodhouse has travelled widely, having been stationed at the following British stations: Gibraltar, Malta, India, Malacca and South Africa. Mr. Woodhouse appeared in the khaki uniform of the English officer and delivered a part of his lecture, telling of all his experiences in the forepart of the war, dwelling on the many sad scenes of the partings of loved ones, but as every soldier was endowed with a true British spirit, nothing could stay their onward march to the front. He then left, during which time Mrs. T. Levoir sang a song in good voice. When he reappeared he presented quite a comical sight, as he was clad in his suit that he fought in during the war. They were in a rather tattered condition. The second part of the lecture was most interesting. He told of many narrow escapes he had but it was God's wish to spare his life when his comradeswere shot down all around him. At one time his helmet was shot off and at another time a bullet grazed his face. Many events he narrated were very pathetic and many amusing. After the lecture Mr. and Mrs. Woodhouse favoured the audience with a duet to mandolin accompaniment. Mr. Woodhouse sounded the different bugle calls and also played Sherman's march to the sea, on the cornet. The meeting was brought to a close by the singing of the national anthem.

JOKE ENDS IN ROMANCE

Special to The Examiner.

ANDERSON, IND., NOV. 16.—The wedding of Clyde M. Boughter, aged twenty-four, of Ashland, Ohio, and Miss Hazel Chew, of this city, was the culmination of a romance that began in a matchbox.

Boughter, who is employed in a match factory at Ashland, found the name of Miss Chew written on the inside of a box made in a local factory, where Miss Chew was employed. He wrote to Miss Chew, and the correspondence that followed resulted in the wedding.

Boughter had not seen his bride until he arrived for the wedding. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Chew, of this city.

"Pneumonia"

Pneumonia is nothing more or less than "Lung Fever," or as it used to be called, "Inflammation of the Lungs" and the results come entirely from a local source such as taking a violent cold.

There is more or less difficulty in breathing: a cough, at first dry, but soon accompanied by raising a thick, sticky, rusty-colored matter, composed of a mixture of phlegm and blood.

There is only one way to prevent Pneumonia, and that is to cure the cold just as soon as it appears. Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup will do this quickly and effectively.

Mrs. G. W. Bowman, Pattullo, Ont., writes: "Three years ago I caught a cold which ended in a severe attack of Pneumonia. Since that time, at the beginning of each winter, I seem to catch cold very easily. I have been so hoarse that I was unable to speak loud enough to be heard across the room. Last winter, however, a friend advised me to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, saying it had helped her. I bought a bottle and before it was half used I was completely cured. I also find it a good medicine for the children when they have colds."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; the price 25 cents.

For Business Use

There are a great many places and occasions when the possibility of getting extra heat immediately effects an economy by decreasing the discomfort of the worker. In the office, in the early morning or late at night, before or after the steamheat is on, it is of importance to have extra heat. In the builder's outside office, in the shipping room, in the checker's shack, on exposed lofts, in railroad stations, in studios, the

Has automatic-locking flame spreader, which prevents the wick from being turned high enough to smoke, and is easy to remove and drop back so that the wick can be cleaned in an instant.

It has a cool handle and a damper top. An indicator always shows the amount of oil in the font. The filler-cap it is put in like a cork in a bottle, and is attached to the font by a chain.

The burner body or gallery cannot become wedged, because of a new device in construction, and consequently, it can always be easily unscrewed in an instant for rewicking.

The Perfection Oil Heater is finished in Japan or nickel. It is strong, durable, well made, built for service, yet light and ornamental.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

Will all the kind folks who contributed suggestions for the benefit of my shy lady, please consider themselves heartily thanked both by her and me.

I couldn't use all of your letters because some of them duplicated the subject, but I enjoyed them all very much.

It was so pleasant, you see, to hear you folks speak and know you were still there. Every once in a while I have a terrible wonder if I am playing to an empty house. If there could be such a thing as a blind and deaf actor who, because of his infirmity, would have no way of knowing how large and how well pleased his audiences were I think he'd feel the way I sometimes do.

And if after the play some of his audience should come up and grasp him by the hand to let him know they had sat through the play and had enjoyed it, I think he'd feel the way I do when I receive letters from you folks.

I had the pleasure of being a witness to a very charming little incident this noon.

A pretty young girl who came out of a restaurant just ahead of me, slipped up to a big cart horse which stood by the curbing, and shyly offered him a couple of lumps of sugar. The big creature mumbled the sugar up out of her hand with something as near delighted surprise as a horse could show, and the girl stroked his big nose for a moment and then passed on.

Such a little thing to do but such a sweet one.

And that isn't meant for a pun by any means.

I think it's people who have time for little kindnesses like that who make the account of the world's joys and sorrows show a credit on the joy side.

Are you one of them?

"While you were writing about how a man hates to smell perfumery on a woman," queried the masculine man who occasionally does me the honour to read my humble feminine fancies, "why didn't you say something about gasoline?"

"Yes, that's what I mean—gasoline Don't you know there's lots of women have that smell hanging over them all the time. Anything to do with automobiles? No, I suppose it's from having things cleaned. That's what they tell me, anyhow. I don't know much about that. All I know is that sometimes after I dance, or even just shake hands with a woman, my hands will smell of gasoline the rest of the evening. Infernal, I call it. You hear girls talking about getting the smell of tobacco from dancing with a man who smokes. Now I put it up to you if tobacco isn't a much more decent smell than gasoline?"

Reminds me of the hero of a magazine story I read the other day. He found my lady's white glove lying on the table and in true chivalric style pressed it passionately to his lips.

But modern cleaning methods were evidently too much for chivalry, for his most unchivalric comment was. "It smelled of gasoline."

Those of us who are not millionaires must of necessity rile ourselves to the cleaner's occasionally. But I do not think that means we need smell of gasoline.

For the sake of chivalry and incidentally common decency, instead of laying the cleansed waists or gloves promptly in the drawer where they will accept up everything else and incidentally take upon themselves a half-sachet half-gasoline odour, that is worse than straight gasoline, why not make it an invariable practice to hang them for a day or two in the fresh air?

Seems to me that is a bit of trouble that would bring in good six per interest in results.

WOMAN IS KILLED

Confused by Oncoming Automobiles She Gets in the Way of a Taxicab and is Dead When Picked Up

DRIVER BREAKS DOWN

NEW YORK, NOV. 15.—While on her way to cash two money orders last evening about 6 o'clock, Mrs. Louise Anderson, sixty-five years old, of No. 8 West Sixty-fourth Street, was knocked down by a taxicab and killed just after she had turned into Broadway.

The taxi belonged to the Melvin Stable Company of No. 57 Irving Place, and was driven by Joseph Kenny, of No. 151 Rutledge Street, Brooklyn. Kenny was going north on Broadway to answer a call at the Hotel Ansonia.

Near Sixty-fourth Street he said he saw Mrs. Anderson about to cross the street. He sounded the horn, and she hastened her steps and got by him. But another automobile happened to be coming up behind Kenny and was about to pass him. The old lady, seeing the second machine, became confused and stepped back. Kenny swerved, but Mrs. Anderson ran in front of the taxi. The mudguard caught her and knocked her down against the curb.

Kenny lifted her into the taxi. At Fifty-sixth Street he met Patrolman Radigan and inquired for the nearest hospital. Radigan opened the cab door and found the woman dead.

Mrs. Anderson was identified by the money orders in her handbag. She lived with Mrs. M. Motley at No 8 West Sixty-fourth Street. Mrs. Motley was too overcome by the accident to tell anything about her last night.

At the West Sixty-eighth Street station, Kenny broke down and wept when Dr. Dotsford of the Flower Hospital told him the woman was dead. He was paroled to appear at the West Side Court this morning.

THE GIFT OF HUMOUR

Is Enjoyed to the Fullest Extent by Miss Jessie Alexander

Speaking of Miss Jessie Alexander, the favourite Canadian reader, who is to give a recital in the Conservatory of Music hall to-morrow night, assisted by Miss Pringle, soprano soloist, and the Conservatory orchestra, the Brooklyn Eagle says:

"Humour predominates in the work of Miss Jessie Alexander, who doubtless realizes that the average audience likes fun and she gives them what they like."

But Miss Alexander's reason for her choice of subjects lies deeper than that of merely giving the public what they like. It is her conviction that humour of the right kind is a wholesome element, an antidote to some of the morbid and sordid influences of this work-a-day world.

DRINK AMONG WOMEN NOT ON THE INCREASE

Says President of the National Women's Christian Temperance Movement---Cigarette Smoking is Not Gaining in Favour Either.

BALTIMORE, NOV. 16.—The annual convention of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union assembled here to-day at the Lyric, with delegates present from all parts of the United States, Canada, and British Columbia. Of chief interest at the opening session was the annual address of the President, Mrs. Lillian M. Stevens. She said in part:

"We are sometimes told that drink among women is on the increase. It can hardly be so among the outcasts and lower classes, for it is largely drink which has brought them where they are. Alcoholic beverages cannot justly, even among women, be called a class drink, for alcohol in the costly wine glass is as deadly and dangerous as it is in the dingy whisky mug.

LITTLE CIGARETTE SUCKING

"We are sometimes told that there is much cigarette smoking among women. In the course of my travels in England and America I have never seen a woman with a cigarette in her mouth except in certain localities in New Mexico, where the surroundings were not at all pleasant to contemplate. There is reason to believe that some women in England do smoke cigarettes and we are told that there are some in America of like habit. I have seen now and then a woman in a hovel smoking a pipe.

"I am glad that the National and World's W. C. T. U. has a Department of Anti-Narcotics, and I am happy in believing that the number of women who smoke cigarettes in elegant homes or who smoke tobacco in any form in the tramp lodging house are very few in this country."

Referring to the "white slave" traffic, the speaker reviewed recent Federal, State and city attempts to stifle it, and continued:

"It matters little whether the traffic is 'organised' or not. The fact that it exists in New York and elsewhere is sufficient to arouse humanity loving people. Without any exaggeration it is appalling enough to arouse the most apathetic, and investigations in some cities have revealed that even little girls in their infancy are sold into these dens of infamy."

Mrs Stevens vigorously recommended an amendment to the Federal Constitution prohibiting polygamy and giving to Congress power to enforce such prohibition by suitable legislation.

The Jeffries-Johnson prize fight came in for its share of criticism, and Mrs. Stevens urged adoption of the bill now pending in Congress prohibiting the interstate transportation of fight pictures.

SHOULDN'T TOAST PRESIDENT

The American people should frown on the proposal of drinking the President's health in an alcoholic beverage, in the W. C. T. U. President's opinion. She said:

"Quite recently our daily papers have had somewhat to say relative to the reported statement of Mr Whitelaw Reid, Ambassador to Great Britain, in which he advocates the adoption in this country of the custom of drinking a toast to our President in the same form that Great Britain's people drink to the health of their King. The President of the United States is entitled to as much good cheer and good health as the king or queen of any country, but we should condemn any custom which called for the use of wine or other alcoholic liquor, and it surely would be out of place to drink to President Taft in alcoholic liquor, since on public occasions he has himself so splendidly set to the young men of this nation the example of total abstinence. Ambassador Reid did not suggest the kind of drink to be used."

BIG DOCKET AT THE POLICE COURT TO-DAY

Mr. and Mrs. Clarke Charged With Keeping a Disorderly House and Many People are Called as Inmates or Frequenters---Clarke Goes to Gaol and Some Fines are Handed Out.

Mr. Chas. Cresswell was charged in the police court this morning with keeping his daughter home from school. He pleaded that his wife was ill and that she had no one to help her, so had to keep the little girl at home. His Worship, however, did not care to take any excuses, and ordered the little girl to go to school this afternoon. A fine of $5.00, to be repaid in ten days, was placed on Mr. Cresswell.

Chas. Clarke, of 389 Aylmer street, and his wife, were charged with keeping a disorderly house. Both pleaded guilty. Florence Flynders, Pearl Wright, Sophia Longo, Jane Clark, Sarah Crouter and Minnie Longo, pleaded guilty to a charge of being inmates of the house.

Albert Crouter and Sarah Crouter, his wife, Fred Brooks, Roy Wright, Ralph Wright, Thos. Clark, aged 74, James Wilson and Harry Flynders pleaded guilty to being frequenters.

Harry LaFave, Patrick Coursey, Matthew Robinson and Albert Wright pleaded guilty to a charge of being frequenters.

The evidence was then taken. The police have been watching the place for some time and made discoveries which justified the raid. It appears that a dance took place at the house last night and intoxicating drinks were served.

Coursey's case was dealt with first. He stated that the accused was his brother-in-law and that he simply goes to see him. He said he went to the party last night and when he knocked at the door, F. C. Newhall opened it and pulled him in, before he had a chance to walk in. He was discharged.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark were again called. Much evidence was heard, nearly all of which went very hard against the prisoner. "Have you any money to pay a fine?" asked the magistrate. They replied that they hadn't.

"I am going to take every one of your children away from you," continued the magistrate; "you are not fit to bring them up right." The Children's Aid Society will take care of the two older children, but the little three months' old child will have to be looked after."

"Chas' Clark," said the Magistrate "I will send you to gaol for three months. Mrs. Clark, I will fine you $20.00, and if you can't pay it you will go to gaol for 20 days."

Mrs Clark said that she worked and kept the children last summer, while her husband served a term in prison.

"Thomas Clark, you are an old man. I am ashamed of you. I will discharge you though, for you don't seem to have any place to go." and the Worship.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Crouter were next called. Much evidence was taken and the magistrate heavily sentenced them with a warning.

James Wilson placed on fifty $10.00 or 30 days," said his Worship.

Brock Wright and his wife, Pearl, were called, and after telling their story were discharged. Albert Wright was called next and discharged.

Roy Wright was next called and after the evidence was taken, His Worship imposed a fine of $5.00 or 30 days in gaol.

Fred Brooks said that he came from Lindsay and was merely attending the party. He was discharged.

Harry Flynders and his housekeeper, who reside in East City, were called. Harry's housekeeper takes the name of Florence Flynders. His wife left him and is now in Toronto. His Worship discharged them with a warning.

Mrs Longo stated that she was at the party in answer to an invitation and knew nothing of its reputation. She was discharged.

Minnie Longo and Frank Longo were also discharged.

Matthew Robinson stated that he came here from Newmarket about 3 weeks ago and did not know anything about the place. He was discharged with a warning.

A number of the prisoners who pleaded guilty at the beginning changed their plea, as they stated that they misunderstood the charge.

POOR BOY IS LUCKY

Special to The Examiner.

ELDORA, IOWA, NOV. 16.—Francis W. Cowles a poor and homeless youth from New York, who has developed natural talents while attending Ellsworth College, at Iowa Falls, will come into possession of a fortune of $30,000 left to him by Mrs. Dora Bolander, a former Iowa Falls woman. In the District Court Judge Wright ordered a verdict for Cowles on the contest made by Mrs. Bolander's relatives to break her will.

Mrs. Bolander was a childless widow, and when she removed from Ackley to Iowa Falls in 1909 she applied to Ellsworth College for a student who would be worthy of help and a home and who could be useful about the house. Cowles, who had come from New York, and was working his way through college, was recommended to her. Two months before her death she made a will, giving to Cowles the bulk of her estate.

Cowles is still attending college, where he expects to complete his education.

THE ADVICE OF A FRIEND

Given to Those Who Need It

San Francisco, Cal.—"To anyone who is run down or who needs a good blood purifier, I want to recommend Vinol the great cod liver and iron tonic. I was run down, feeling badly and only weighed about 140 pounds. I took a course of Vinol: it purified my blood, gave me a fine appetite, and built me right up. Now I am well and strong, weigh 175 pounds, and, in fact, never felt better in my life." John S. Charles, 3264 17th St., San Francisco, Cal. (We guarantee this testimonial to be genuine.)

Vinol is a delicious combination of the health-giving properties of the cod's liver, with the grease eliminated, and tonic iron added, blended in a mild medicinal wine.

If your blood is poor, or sluggish, your appetite poor, your digestion weak or your vitality not up to the standard, or if you are suffering from chronic coughs, colds or bronchial troubles, try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you. It could not do what all these people claim it did for them if it was not honest. McDermid and Jury, corner George and Charlotte streets; also Payne's drug store, corner George and Simcoe street.

JOAQUIN MILLER MAY READ HIS OBITUARY

OAKLAND, CAL., NOV. 16.—Joaquin Miller, the venerable Scribe-hard, sitting alone in his retreat near Redwood peak, may now have the distinction of reading what eminent scholars will think of his work when he is cremated in the stone pyre he himself built and his ashes are scattered on his beloved hillsides. This privilege comes to him between the de luxe covers of a work entitled "The Drama" published by English and Eastern critics. Miller's obituary, which declares him dead since 1902, is written in volume twenty of that history, which has reached private subscribers on this coast.

The essential facts of the poet's biography are inscribed in the "historical perfect" tense. They recite that the author's true name was "originally Cincinnatus Hiner Miller"; that "he was a miner and adventurer," and "for years lived with Modoc Indians."

"In 1860," reads one illuminating paragraph, "he returned to civilized life, started a newspaper, and, on short acquaintance, married a contributor from whom he was afterwards divorced.

"In 1870 he went to England, where his vigorous and passionate descriptions of the life and scenery of the Pacific coast won him many admirers.

"Afterward," concludes the biography, "he lived as a hermit in California until his death in 1902. America has hardly done justice to this peculiar product of its soil."

There is no mention of such poems by Miller as that written in his hillside eyrie:

Here let me dwell till some fair star
Stoop earthward and shall beckon me,
For surely Godland lies not far
From these Greek-heights and this great sea.

While Miller's verse has been scant in the last years, yet he has given utterance to his muse occasionally and proof of his living. He is still waiting for the star to stoop. English critics and Eastern historiographers to the contrary notwithstanding.

MUSIC AND DRAMA

WHEN ALL HAS BEEN SAID.

Weak from an ethical standpoint, but strong in dramatic possibilities, of which full advantage was taken, "When All Has Been Said," based on Jackson D. Haag's story of American politics and finance, "That Which Never Dies," was presented under Liebler & Co.'s auspices at the Grand last night, and made a most favourable impression upon a fairly large audience. It is a clear, well-told story, with its characters cleanly defined and life-like, and is staged with accessories with which no fault could be found.

Briefly, the story is that William Gordon, a private banker, accepts nomination for Mayor on the prohibition ticket. A German baron, representing the breweries, tries to buy him off, and when that fails, applies pressure on the wife to force her to get her husband to withdraw from the winning fight. The baron discovers in her a woman with whom, as a young girl seven years before, he had eloped, but who fled from him when he failed to carry out his promise to marry her. He threatens to tell her husband of this episode, of which he is entirely ignorant, as he married his wife within a very short time after she fled from the baron, and after knowing her for only three weeks. She makes a confession to her husband, and just at the psychological moment their young son gets his arm broken, and the curtain descends as everything is ripe for a reconciliation.

The company was of more than average ability. Emily Stevens, as the erring wife, showed remarkable ability in her emotional role, displaying a remarkable restraint in scenes that in less capable hands would have been bathos instead of pathos. The only fault was a physical one, her voice being a little metallic in calibre. Charles Balsar had much demanded of him in the role of the banker candidate and gave a masterly delineation of the part. Seldom is a juvenile part presented with the ability displayed by Thomas Tobin, who took the important role of the young son of the Gordons. Gordon Woodward, as a breezy Irish physician, Frank Russell, as a hypocritical reformer, Joseph M. Sparks, as a saloon-keeper and ward-heeler, and Eugene Ormonde as the baron, all

WORK ON PUBLIC LIBRARY MUST BE RUSHED TO COMPLETION

Property Committee Says Work Must be Finished at Once or Penalties Will be Enforced.

HAVE HAD OVERTIME

The architects on the new Public Library have been instructed to see that the work on the building is completed at once, and if not done, it is the intention of the Council to enforce the penalties. That was the decision reached at a meeting of the Property committee last evening, at which there were present, Ald. Duncan, chairman, Mayor Morrow, Ald. Morgan, Batten, Graham, Metheral and Bradburn. Rutherford Bros. were to have been at the meeting last evening, but did not appear. The architects on the library were present. The chairman asked Mr. Belcher what had been done to remedy the defective columns in front of the building. Mr. Belcher stated that he had written the contractors in regard to the matter, but had never received any reply.

Ald. Bradburn thought that if the contractors didn't show enough interest to be present, the city could keep back some of the money until the work of making the pilasters right, was done. Mayor Morrow said that the building should not be accepted until the pilasters were made right. They spoiled the whole building.

It was pointed out that all the contracts in connection with the building were six months over the time. The Library Board is anxious to get into the building as soon as possible. Mr. Belcher thought that the building should be ready for occupation in a fortnight's time.

The chairman of the Property committee, the chairman of the Library Board, and the architects were authorized to purchase the mantles and grates for the new library.

Mayor Morrow moved, seconded by Ald Morgan, that the chairman of the Public Library Board and the Property committee prepare lists of what is required for the Library in the way of stacks, tables and chairs and then ask for tenders for them.

The request of R Sheehy to have the rent of the lot he had from the city reduced was brought up. It was decided to allow Mr. Sheehy the lot at a rental of $1.50 per month, dating from the first of December.

SURE SIGNS

Of Kidney Trouble

If your back is constantly aching and if you experience dull shooting pains, your kidneys are out of order. If your urine is thick and cloudy or your passages frequent, scanty and painful, your kidneys and bladder are out of order. Neglect quickly brings on rheumatism, diabetes, lumbago, sciatica and etc.

Mrs. John Wagner of 110 Hollis St., Halifax, N. S., says: "Dull shooting pains would catch me across the small part of my back and extend into my shoulder and neck, often causing me to suffer with severe headaches and spells of dizziness. Spots would dazzle before my eyes and everything would turn black. I would fall to the floor and be unable to get up again without assistance. A friend told me of Booth's Kidney Pills and I began their use. The first box gave me relief and I am now well and strong."

ENJOYABLE AT HOME

A most enjoyable "At Home" was held under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus in the new T. A. .B. Hall, Simcoe street, last evening. About eighty couples were present and a delightful time was spent in dancing to excellent music supplied by the Grand Opera House orchestra. A dainty supper was served by Mr. Potvin, who catered most acceptably for the occasion. The committee in charge are to be congratulated upon the great success of the event.

BRILLIANT AT-HOME AND DANCE

Yesterday afternoon, Mrs. J. R. Stratton gave a large and delightful at-home at the Conservatory of Music Hall, to signalize the debut of her niece, Miss Alberta Gooding. The Hall, for the occasion, was transformed into a fairy land by the profuse and beautiful decorations. The walls were tapestried with flags, the triple colours of the Union Jack blending and contrasting with charming effect. The ceiling decorations consisted of streamers of red, white and blue bunting extending from the corners and sides converging in the centre and intertwisted with them were festoons of variecoloured electric lights; and similar lights sprang out from among the clustered flags on the walls. Palms were the chief motive of the floral decorations of the drawing room part of the Hall, and an orchestra walled in by ferns, furnished music during the evening. Over the dais that constituted the tea room was suspended an electric "welcome" transparency. Massed on tables, glowed the abundant flowers sent by the debutante's friends.

Mrs. Stratton, assisted by her niece, received the throng of beautifully gowned guests. Mrs. Stratton wore a gown of black panne velvet with handsome garniture of jet, diamond and pearl ornaments, very large white panne hat faced with black velvet and white willow plumes; her bouquet was of white chrysanthemums. The debutante was charming in a gown of shell pink satin with overdress of crystal net, trimmed with pearls, a bandeau of pearls binding her hair and with a bouquet of pink orchids and lilies of the valley. The centre of attraction of the tea room at the west end of the Hall, was the beautiful tea table, with its splendid floral trophies in artistic grouping. The centre piece was a magnificent pyramid of Richmond roses, glowing like crimson fire in the setting of asparagus green. Resting on the burnished snow of the damask, a loosely twisted rope of broad scarlet ribbon ruled in the base of the mound of flowers and, from its peak, lines of scarlet held by ribbon drooped in festoons to the gold baskets at the corners of the table, piled high with Richmond roses, blent with smilax which, overflowing the edge of the table, rippled downward, an emerald net work, with roses caught in its meshes, against the glistening back ground of snowy linen. The whole was a fine example in conception and execution of refined taste and womanly skill. The floral parasol effect at the crest of the centrepiece, was an unique and fetching fancy and provoked warm admiration from the ladies.

The flowers for the table decorations were the gift to Miss Gooding of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Fox, Toronto; and their delightfully effective arrangement, represented the artistic "gift" of Mrs. Fox.

Mrs. T. F. Matthews and Mrs. A. H. Stratton presided over the tea and coffee urns, and the guests were served gracefully and daintily by Mrs. Claude Fox, Toronto, and a charming bevy of former college chums and schoolmates of the debutante: Miss F. Stevely, London, Miss Iona Heintzman, Toronto, Miss McFaul, Collingwood, Miss Muriel Rogers and Miss Muriel Burritt, city.

The dance, given by Hon. and Mrs. Stratton, that followed the At Home, was a delightful companion success to that delightful and successful function. There was a large attendance of guests, beautifully gowned as to the ladies. With excellent dance music, provided by Fralick's orchestra, Toronto; with a perfect floor, in an atmosphere subtle with the scent of flowers, dancing was a delight. Excellent refreshments were served by Coleman Bros., and nothing was lacking to make the dance, in the matter of individual enjoyment, mise en scene, and social eclat, one of the most successful ever given in Peterborough.

FOUND QUICK CURE AFTER EIGHT YEARS

Dodd's Kidney Pills Triumph Where Belts and Plasters Fail

Moses Sherwood, a long sufferer from Backache, found permanent relief in one box of the Great Canadian Kidney Remedy, Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Pondiac, King's Co., N.B., Nov. 16.—(Special.)—After suffering for eight years, while all the time the remedy was right at hand, Mr. Moses Sherwood, a well known farmer living near here, tried Dodd's Kidney Pills and is now as well as ever he was in his life.

Mr. Sherwood's experience is similar to that of thousands of other natives of New Brunswick. "About eight years ago I hurt my back from lifting heavies," he states. "I used liniments and plasters and wore a wide belt. In two years my trouble had developed into Kidney disease.

"My back was so sore I could not lift any weight, when reading a Dodd's Almanac led me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. Before the first box was finished my backache was gone and I have never been troubled with it since."

Belts and plasters may give temporary relief in cases of Backache or Rheumatism, but the only way to cure them is to go to the seat of the trouble. Cure the Kidneys and the Backache or Rheumatism will disappear. Dodd's Kidney Pills never fail to cure the Kidneys.

"Music Fashions Cannot be Determined by Printer's Ink," Declares the March King—"The Public Demands the Kind of Music it Likes Best."

A COMING TREAT

"Music fashions cannot be determined by printers' ink," declared John Philip Sousa, a few days ago, to a representative for an American publication. "The public, in the end, will demand the kind of music it likes best, and not what the critics and writers say ought to be most popular." Mr Sousa is right. He usually is. He has studied the tastes and wishes of the Canadian and American public for many years and his present position and the success he has had indicates that he has learned the secret of pleasing his hearers. In discussing the phase of the likes or dislikes of the people for music Sousa said "What we want to do is to get folks interested in good music through the medium of music of less aesthetic value than the complex compositions which cannot be understood by those who have heard but little good music. You cannot give them Debussey and Strauss at first, and expect them to like it; but because a man cannot understand either of these composers is no reason why he should be musically excommunicated. I have no sympathy for those who would build a Chinese wall around good music and keep out all those who honestly confess that they don't understand it.

"It isn't necessary to provide for the musically uninitiated music that is trite and cheap. Such music will always exist for the simple reason from no music whatever to music that there will always be a certain class of people who must evolve that is worth while through music which requires but little taste or musical intelligence to understand. But they can all be developed as experience is proving. It means only patience and going at it in the right way."

Sousa and his Band will appear at The Grand next Tuesday, Nov. 22. The seat sale opens Saturday morning.

"An Evening With Tennyson" At St. Alphonsus Lyceum

Friday will be Tennyson's night at the Ladies' Literary. It will be an evening with Tennyson in the full sense, every item on the programme being from Tennyson or about Tennyson. Miss M A. O'Connell will read a short paper on "Tennyson, the man and the poet," and eleven others will contribute to the evening's enjoyment. All the old favorites, such as "Crossing the Bar" and "Sweet and Low" are included, and the other songs, readings, and recitations have been very carefully selected with a view to giving a comprehensive picture of this greatest of our modern poets. In drawing up the programme the directors of the Society have certainly kept their word to "go" one better at each meeting and we hope that a very large audience will reward their efforts.

By-law Will Have To Be Changed To Permit Grafton & Co's Sign

At a meeting of the Board of Works last evening at which there were present, Ald. Hicks, in the chair, Ald. Metheral, Graham, Duncan and Duffus and Mayor Morrow, the request of the Grafton Clothing Co. to place an illuminated sign out over the street was again taken up. Mr. Conway, manager of the local store, was present. He stated that the sign would be an illumination to the street. In other cities the signs extend out over the street. He hoped the Council would see fit to change the by-law to permit of the erection of the sign. He suggested that they be allowed to put the sign up for a year on trial. The company would be willing to pay a fee.

The chairman said that the only way it could be permitted was to change the by-law. Overhead signs involved a lot of danger.

Ald. Duffus said that he would like to see these illuminated signs go up if it could be arranged that the firm erecting them would assume all responsibility in the event of accidents. Ald. Duffus moved, seconded by Ald. Duncan, that the City Engineer report to the Board as to illuminated signs and as to those having signs up who have not yet paid their fees.

Ald. Graham moved, seconded by Ald. Metheral that the sewers of Inverlea and Smith streets, be started at once.

Ald. Morgan asked that gravel be placed on Concession street near the canal bridge. It was left to the engineer to look after.

Many Children Have Been Helped This Week As Result Of Tag Day

The generous response of the people to the work of the Children's Aid Society on Saturday has been the means of great assistance to the officers during this present week. Six children have been looked after this week, that previous to Saturday could not be helped, owing to the lack of funds. Six have been made wards of the Society this week, two having been placed in the Shelter, and four others have been placed in homes.

St. Andrew's Congregation Extends Call To London Pastor

At a largely attended congregation meeting of St. Andrew's Church last evening, it was decided to extend a call to Rev. James Rollins, of London, Ont. Three names were considered but the vote resulted in a large majority for Mr. Rollins, and the call was made unanimous. The chair at last night's meeting was occupied by Rev. Mr. Thompson of Hastings, Moderator of the Presbytery. The congregation of St. Andrew's has been hearing ministers since the middle of September. Rev. Mr. Rollins preached in St. Andrew's Church last Sunday and his discourses were much enjoyed.

Another New Star Is Discovered At Harvard Halley's Comet Seen

Rev. Dr. Marsh, of Springville, has received a telegram from Harvard College Observatory, Cambridge, Mass., as follows:

"Telegram has been received at this observatory from Capt. T. L. DeWitt Verder, superintendent of the United States Naval Observatory stating that on Nov. 14th he saw Cerulli's Comet in right ascension, 3 hours, 39 min. 27 secs. and declination plus 8 degrees, 9 mins. 11 secs. The comet is visible to astronomers through a small telescope."

A telegram has also been received from the Harvard College Observatory from Professor Frost, director of Yerkes Observatory, stating that Halley's Comet was observed by Prof. Barnard on Nov. 11 at right ascension 12 hours, 4 mins. 21 secs. and declination minus 14 degrees, 54 mins. 15 secs. Magnitude 11.

"A New Star in Sagittarius."

From an examination of the photographs of Harvard Maps of the Sky, Miss A. J. Cannon has discovered that a new star appeared in Sagittarius on August 10, 1899. Its approximate position was 18 hours, 12 mins. and declination minus 25 degrees 14 mins. A photograph taken on August 9, 1899, shows no trace of the object, although the adjacent stars of the magnitude of 11.5 are seen. The outburst was very sudden as in the photograph taken next evening, August 10, 1899, the Nova, or new star, is a conspicuous object with the magnitude of 8.5. The light faded rapidly from magnitude 8.6 on August 25, 1899 to 10.5 on Oct. 13, 1899. After that the decrease was more gradual. The last photograph in which the new star is visible was taken in October, 1901, when the star was very faint in the 13th magnitude. This is the third new star that has been discovered at Harvard in the past six weeks.

REPORTS ARE CONFLICTING

Many Stories Come Out of Astapova —First Were to the Effect That Inflammation In His Lung Was Spreading, But Later It Was Reported That He Had Passed Through Worst of Illness.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 17.—The report of the death of Count Leo Tolstoi at Astapova was received here Tuesday night by the various news-papers at 4 agencies. The Novoe Vremya's Moscow correspondent first telegraphed that Tolstoi was dead, but at an early hour yesterday he sent a further despatch, saying that a message had been received from Astapova that Tolstoi was living, and that the crisis of the disease had been passed.

At 4.15 yesterday morning, The Vestnik News Agency reported that the death of Tolstoi was not confirmed.

The reports emananating from Astapova, where Tolstoi has been lying with a high fever for two days, have been conflicting throughout. The official diagnosis, as given by the attending physicians Tuesday night, was that Tolstoi was suffering from an inflammation of the lower lobe of the left lung, but that no immediate danger threatened. His heart action at that time was said to be good, and his temperature practically normal.

Only the day before, according to the doctor's Tolstoi's temperature was 104 and he was in a delirious state.

On Wednesday the attending physicians confirmed the original diagnosis, but added that the inflammation was spreading, and that the condition of the patient was critical, although not hopeless. His temperature during the night rose to 103.84, and he had an attack of bleeding from the lungs. Some time later it was reported that his temperature had fallen to 98.6. Then came the report of his death and finally a message from Astapova, that he had successfully passed the crisis of the disease.

TO COOPERATE

Grain Growers of Saskatchewan Will Send Delegates to Ottawa.

Saskatoon, Nov. 17.—The executive of the Provincial Grain Growers' Association held a session here, at which E. A. Partridge outlined the co-operative system, whereby farmers would eliminate local stores and middlemen.

A motion was offered to impress federal members with the grain growers' attitude on public ownership, and operation of the Hudson Bay Railway, cold storage, elevators and other questions are to be taken up as early as possible and legislated upon. It was finally decided that delegates from the various constituencies should go to Ottawa, to wait on their members and have them declare themselves in the House on all these topics, and that in future elections the grain growers would vote only for those men whom they could rely upon to uphold the western farmers' views at Ottawa.

Partridge also brought up a new proposition regarding Hudson Bay Railway. As the leader of the Government was opposed to Government ownership and operation of the road, Partridge thought that as an alternative scheme, a co-operative farmers' company should be formed, to secure a charter, and build and operate the road. Five hundred farmers might put up $10 each, when articles of incorporation could be drawn, and application made for a charter. This idea caught the audience so thoroughly, that a motion was passed unanimously endorsing the scheme, and five men came forward with $10 each, to show their earnestness, and others intimated their intention of doing the same.

Dismissed His Ship.

Portsmouth, Eng., Nov. 17—A court-martial yesterday found Captain Fitzherbert of the British armored cruiser Bedford guilty of negligently stranding his ship, and sentenced him to dismissal from his vessel, and to be severely reprimanded.

Traveler For Quarter Century.

Brockville, Nov. 17.—Robert Powell a veteran commercial traveler in Ontario and Quebec for over a quarter of a century, died here at the age of 66, following a nervous breakdown which brought on apoplexy. His wife, one son and two daughters survive.

Palpitation of The Heart.

When the heart begins to beat irregularly or intermittently, palpitate and throb, skip beats, beats fast for a time, then go slow as to seem almost to stop, it causes great anxiety and alarm.

The least excitement or exertion seems to affect it.

Many people are kept in a state of morbid fear of death, become weak, worn and miserable, through this unnatural action of the heart.

To all such sufferers Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills can give prompt and permanent relief.

Mrs. John Thompson, Mill Cove, N.B., writes:—"Just a few lines to let you know what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me. I have been troubled with weakness and palpitation of the heart; would have severe choking spells, and could scarcely lie down at all. I tried many remedies but got none to answer my case like your pills did. I can recommend them highly to all suffering with Heart and nerve trouble."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. per box or 3 boxes for $1.25 at all dealers or will be mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Household Economy

How to Have the Best Cough Syrup and Save $2, by Making It at Home.

Cough medicines, as a rule, contain a large quantity of plain syrup. If you take two cups of granulated sugar, add one cup of warm water, and stir about 2 minutes, you have as good syrup as money could buy.

If you will then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a 16 oz. bottle, and fill it up with the Sugar Syrup, you will have as much cough syrup as you could buy ready-made for $2.50. It keeps perfectly.

And you will find it the best cough syrup you ever used—even in whooping cough. You can feel it take hold—usually stops the most severe cough in 24 hours. It is just laxative enough, has a good tonic effect and taste is pleasant. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

It is a splendid remedy, too, for hoarseness, asthma, chest pains, etc.

Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in guaiacol and all the healing pine elements. No other preparation will work in this formula.

This recipe for making cough remedy with Pinex and Sugar Syrup is now used and prized in thousands of homes in the United States and Canada. The plan has often been imitated but never successfully.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

READY FOR OPENING

Death of King Edward VII., Arrival of Warships and Two or Three Projected Bills Will Be Touched On —Conservative Appoint Sam Sharpe Ontario Whip — Hon. G. E. Foster to Retain Place.

Ottawa, Nov. 17.—The speeches from the throne to-day, at the opening of Parliament, will not contain a great deal of notice of prospective legislation.

After the usual reference to the bounties bestowed by Providence, the death of the King will come in for a sympathetic paragraph. The arrival of the warships Niobe and Rainbow will be mentioned, as implementing the legislation of last session.

The Hudson Bay Railway, the deepening of the Welland Canal and Mr. Fisher's copyright act will be referred to.

Regarding the bill creating a commission to regulate international freight between Canada and the United States, it was stated last night that, as such would be of no avail without similar legislation on the part of Congress, Mr. Graham will take up the matter with the Washington authorities, with a view to arranging a conventional treaty respecting this traffic.

Major Sam Sharpe of North Ontario was offered the position of Ontario whip of the Conservative party by Mr. Borden, and accepted. Major Sharpe has only been a member of Parliament for about two years, but he is already one of the most effective men in the House. He has done excellent work in the public accounts committee. He is a youth, as politicians go.

George H. Perley, the chief Conservative whip, stated last night that there would be no change in the sitting of the members. Therefore Hon. Geo. E. Foster will occupy his old place on Mr. Borden's left hand.

Usually there is a caucus of the party on the Friday after the opening of the House, but this session the caucus will be delayed until next week, when all the members will be present. Mr. Borden's program, therefore, will not be ratified until that event.

The debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne will not begin until Monday, and no idea has been formed yet as to how long it will last. Probably, however, it will occupy most of the week.

A Mysterious Murder.

Rochester, Nov. 17. Although the police have three men in custody as suspects in the case of George A. Schuchart, aged 50, who was shot down in his grocery store in this city, about 10 o'clock Tuesday night, they are in reality at sea. Schuchart was closing the store, while his wife was preparing a luncheon in their apartments upstairs. She heard the shots, ran to the kitchen, jumped through the window to the roof and called to her mother, who lived next door. She then went back and ran downstairs. On the way down she met a neighbor, who told her Mr. Schuchart was lying on the sidewalk and that he had a fit. She told him of the shooting. The neighbor and another man carried the grocer upstairs, and he died, just as a priest concluded administering the last rites of the church.

Although the police were quickly on the scene, they found only a gray wool cap and a blue bandanna handkerchief. The store was in confusion, the cash drawer being pulled out, while evidences of a struggle were to be seen on every side.

There was a rumor of a woman in the case and the fact that there was no robbery of the cash drawer, although it was open, and that a large sum of money remained untouched in the man's pockets, when it was generally a known fact that he carried large sums, is given as supporting this theory.

Fielding Leaves For South.

Ottawa, Nov. 17.—Hon. W. S. Fielding left yesterday for Montreal. From there he will proceed to New York, and thence south. Mr. Fielding has not decided just how he will spend the six weeks' holiday he has decided on taking, but he will probably travel around a bit. Point Comfort, Virginia, may be his first objective point after New York.

LORDS ARE WAKING UP

Rumor Is Current In the Lobbies of the British Parliament That King George Has Refused to Create a Majority of Liberal Peers—Mr. Asquith's Last Move Is Described as a Checkmate.

London, Nov. 17.—Pending Premier Asquith's official statement before Parliament on Friday, small hope is entertained of clearing up the involved situation, which has now resulted from the sudden change introduced by Lord Lansdowne's call for the veto bill. The feature which stands out in the present position of the parties is that the House of Lords finally has awakened to the absolute necessity of undertaking self-reform. The Radical leaders view this late repentance with the utmost suspicion, and it remains to be seen whether it will eventuate in an agreement, which the abortive veto conference failed to achieve.

The Parliamentary lobbies yesterday were full of rumors of all kinds—that the King has refused to give the Prime Minister guarantees to increase the number of peers sufficient for the Government's purposes in reforming the House of Lords; that the Ministry would resign; that another party conference would be held.

Nothing definite, however, is known, beyond the fact that all preparations are going on for a general election, and best informed opinion last night believed that, as the Government declines to accept any amendments to the veto bill, Lord Lansdowne, who consulted with Mr. Balfour and other leaders, will either decline to proceed with the bill, or the House of Lords will reject it on the second reading on Monday, and that the dissolution of Parliament will be announced next week.

Lord Rosebery, in the House of Lords yesterday, after declaring that the House stood in a very grave position, announced his intention to ask for facilities for the discussion of his plan for the reform of the House. It is believed that the Lords will proceed immediately with debates on this question.

After meetings of the Privy Council and the Cabinet yesterday afternoon, the Earl of Crewe introduced the veto bill in the House of Lords, where it passed its first reading.

The Morning News, in a serious review of the situation, says:

"In a survey of the theoretical possibilities of the political situation, one is compelled to take into consideration the practically inconceivable proposition that the crown may ally itself with the House of Lords to prevent the legalizing of the people's judgment. Such a move would mean a monarchical revolution, added to the peers' revolution, and in such an event the gravest happenings that the country has noted in centuries are to be expected."

A Checkmate.

London, Nov. 17.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Tuesday Lord Lansdowne called a check to the Government; yesterday the Government got out of the difficulty and replied with a checkmate. In the House of Lords Lord Crewe, responding to Lansdowne's polite demand for the Parliament bill promised it on "take it or leave it" terms. The Government was "willing and anxious to put the bill down for discussion, but were not prepared to accept any amendment on it."

Lansdowne said this was reducing the thing to a farce, and claimed that, because the conference failed, it was no reason that Parliament should be deprived of the opportunity of dealing with these tremendous problems.

Lansdowne declared emphatically for reform of the Upper House. He said it should be reduced in numbers, and no peer should sit purely by hereditary right. The House should be reinforced from outside by nomination or election. The Commons should be reasonably supreme in finance.

Lord Crewe wished for an early date for the second reading of the Parliament bill, and Lansdowne replied that if there were no suggestions for its improvement, and the bill should be accepted, perhaps no great advantage would accrue from its discussion. He would confer with his friends on the point.

Eventually the bill was read a first time. It was decided to discuss Rosebery's reform resolutions to-day.

The date now fixed for dissolution is the 25th, and Asquith's statement on Friday is awaited with intense interest.

Fear Wolverine Is Lost.

Selkirk, Man., Nov. 17.—No definite news has yet been received of the steamer Wolverine, now missing three weeks, and it is feared that the vessel has been wrecked on Lake Winnipeg, and all on board lost.

She carried a crew of 16 and 66 passengers. There is a remote chance that the passengers are marooned some place and may be weeks in getting out. A number of vessels are known to be frozen in, but there is no word of the Wolverine.

Sir Eldon Gorst to Be Elevated.

London, Nov. 17.—Rumors are gaining strength in Cairo concerning the possible departure of Sir Eldon Gorst, owing to an impending change in Egyptian policy on the part of the British Government.

It is asserted, says The Standard correspondent, that the British agent will receive a peerage and go in a diplomatic capacity either to Brussels or to Washington.

Opposition Convention.

Regina, Nov. 17.—Hon. F. W. G. Haultain yesterday morning announced that he would call a convention of the provincial opposition party, to be held probably in Regina after the close of the session in January or February, when important political questions will be discussed. He declined to make any comment on the report of the election commission at the present time.

ONE MAN DYING

Italian at the Soo Is Slashed In Twenty Places.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Nov. 17.—Vencerji Topetto, an Italian, is in a dying condition at the General Hospital, and two of his companions, Francesio Francorsois and Attiels Stormelli, are also suffering from minor wounds, as the result of a stabbing affray which took place in the Italian quarters Tuesday night at eleven o'clock.

It appears that Topetto was the prime factor in the affair, the others being on the defensive. Topetto, according to Dr. J. P. Gimby, who arrived on the scene about fifteen minutes after the knifing took place, had sixteen to twenty knife wounds on his body. His breast was slashed from shoulder to shoulder, and there was a wound under the arm, from which the breath of the man escaped when he attempted to breathe. His abdomen was cut in such a manner that his intestines protruded, and the doctor was compelled to remove a portion of the stomach. Dr. Gimby stated yesterday morning, that in his opinion, Topetto had no chance of life.

The stabbing took place at the home of E. Palumbo, who conducts a boarding house in a lane leading from Superior street. It appears that Topetto arrived in the house Tuesday night shortly before 11 o'clock. Those who participated in the affair say that he was under the influence of liquor. He immediately created a disturbance, and proceeding upstairs, got the other men out of bed. The melee followed. Francorsois and Stormelli both admitted that they used knives when the man became untuly.

Dr. Gimby was the first to arrive on the scene, and he had applied his needle to some of the wounds of the men when the police made their appearance. According to statements made by the men at the hospital, there was no cause for the stabbing outside of the trouble which occurred Tuesday night.

Liquor Is Banned.

Toronto, Nov. 17.—From now on no liquor may be placed upon the refreshment tables of secret, fraternal or other societies without making the individual members liable to prosecution for breaking the liquor license act. This is the view taken by the Ontario License Department of a recent decision in the courts, and yesterday definite action was taken by the department upon the case in point. Some weeks ago the caretakers of one or more of the public buildings were warned that the must be careful in permitting the consumption of liquor, but they had no idea that the order meant the barring of intoxicants from the refreshment tables of secret societies.

A second circular was sent out yesterday to the caretakers of all the public buildings (about one hundred in number) in Toronto defining clearly the law upon the point.

The department is acting upon a decision given by Judge Widdifield at Owen Sound in the case of Beckett v. Cahoon, and is of far-reaching importance, for it will have the effect of stopping the supply of liquors by fraternal and other societies to the membership.

The case was tried at Owen Sound, and was an appeal from the decision of the magistrate, who dismissed the case. His honor ruled that a room in which eight men were found drinking came within the act, and a conviction and fine were recorded.

Rotten State of Affairs.

New York, Nov. 17.—Meat so decayed that it has to be sprayed with sulphuric acid to conceal its condition, is being sold daily to the public, is one of the disclosures made yesterday by the municipal authorities investigation into general food conditions here. Candy that has been treated with sulphurous acid to prevent stickiness is sold to children, it was also developed.

Investigation of bakeries shows that in over fifty concerns rotten eggs were used in the making of all kinds of cakes.

An interesting event took place at the home of Rev. Robert Pogue, pastor of St. Paul's Church, yesterday afternoon, when Mr. John T. WEDDING BELLS.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. G. W. Henderson, assisted by Rev. Mr. Cragg, of Lakefield. The wedding took place in the beautifully decorated drawing room. The bride was given away by her father, and took her place at the side of the groom to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by the bride's sister, Miss Ella Higgins. The bride was very prettily attired in a gown of cream crepe de chene, with veil and orange blossoms. She carried white chrysanthemums. The bride and groom were unattended. After the ceremony and hearty congratulations had been bestowed on the young couple the guests sat down to an excellent repast. WAITING PATIENTLY FOR THE RESURRECTION OF CYRUS TEED Colony in Southern Florida Believes that Koresh Will Rise from Tomb in Four Years.

STORY LIKE ROMANCE

Examiner Special.

ST. AUGUSTINE, NOV 16th.—Although many of their members have become discouraged, the Koreshan colony here is waiting patiently for the resurrection of its Messiah, Koresh Cyrus Teed, now dead two years. Most of the families who obeyed are prepared to wait three years longer for the rising of the remarkable man.

The story of Dr. Teed's death and of the ten thousand faithful waiting for the Messiah to prove his truth and come forth, is told by Henry D. Silverfriend, vice-president of the Koreshan University of the United States. Dr. Teed died, Mr. Silverfriend says, from a disease caused by a blow on the head, in February, 1908.

"I watched his body," said Silverfriend, "while it remained unburied, and I observed the expectant transformation in progress. There was a change of color in our Messiah's wrists. I, and others, observed strong passions of the body. Some of our party doubted if Dr Teed was dead. Our local physician declared he was only in a trance. We sent to Chicago for a physician, who declared that our Messiah was really dead.

"After days of suspense we buried the body on Estero Island, in the Gulf, in a zinc box. The tomb was of concrete.

"In the presence of hundreds of our faith, we buried our Messiah and hermetically sealed the tomb. Hundreds of believers came to Estero to await the resurrection.

LEFT IN GLOOM

"The loss of our Messiah left us in the deepest gloom. A strange spirit came over the Unity. Three factions were formed. One that Dr. Teed was dead and would never rise. Another took the view that Teed had failed in his estimate of himself. The third faction believed he would rise glorified. They believed the tomb was like his alchemic laboratory, and that he was transforming himself into immortality.

"The strain of waiting was great and many of our faith became hopeless. At length Emil Fisher believed that as two years had elapsed since the death of Teed it would be right to look into the tomb. He felt that we had been too long hoping against hope that Dr. Teed would break through the concrete tomb and show himself in the splendor of a Christ resurrected.

"Fisher had no sooner put hands on the tomb than he swooned. Several persons had accompanied him at a distance. He came at them a raving maniac. It was necessary to bind him.

"We hurried him to Jacksonville in charge of the Sheriff of Lee County, but when they were preparing to leave Jacksonville for the asylum at Chattahoochee, Fisher died.

"Professor George Hussay, instructor to the colony, was not dismayed at Fisher's death, and determined to go to the tomb also. Hussay was a man of great intelligence.

"He wished to know if any change was taking place in the body. He began to unseal the tomb when he, too, was stricken with madness. We were able to get him as far as the asylum, but he had hardly been admitted before he died.

"The faith of the Unity was restored by these manifestations. Everything about the tomb, too, has been a marvel. The Koresh held himself to be a reincarnation of Cyrus the Great. His tomb, we find, exactly resembles that of Cyrus, only it was built of concrete instead of marble. And though the blocks were not ordered for the tomb the number was just sufficient.

"The strange spirt that came over our people following the death of Dr. Teed is due, as we hold, to obsession —that is, a possession by evil spirits. The insanity of Hussay and Fisher we construe as nothing more than this possession of them by evil spirits and their subsequent death was but the promise of destruction which these spirits set out to accomplish because these men had transgressed the faith and lost credence in the power of the Messiah to rise from the dead."

FORESEES A NEW CONDITION

Dr. Silverfriend believes that out of the agony which ended the lives of Hussay and Fisher will come a new condition of faith among all his people, and that the day is not distant when the superiority of the Koreshan faith will have been established among a large number of the American people.

The Koreshans have a prosperous colony on the co-operative plan in Florida and are blessed with this world's goods, believe not only in the transmutation of metals, but in the change of matter into spirit, and hold that instead of living on the outside of the globe we are really on the inside. The world is concave, not convex.

Cyrus Teed was naturally a remarkable man. Physically there was not much to note about him, until he began to speak. He was undersized and clean shaven, and might have been taken for a mild-mannered clergyman. But when his small dark eyes began to shine as he talked, when he fixed his audience with an almost hypnotic stare, then it became evident that he was an extraordinary man.

His power over people was enormous. It is told of him that once in California he rose to speak before an assembly not well disposed toward him and that in an hour he had collected from them $60,000. Among his followers he was given reverence that amounted to awe. Living every day with his flock he managed to keep them persuaded, no matter what he did, that he was what he called "Theoanthropos," the God-man, the sinless one.

His career was as varied as is usual in the case of men of this sort. Born in Walton, Delaware County, N.Y., in 1839, he was educated in Utica.

He had a laboratory and spent hours in weird experiments. He tried to practise in Utica, Binghampton and Brooklyn, but with little success.

A wealthy German left him a tract of land in Florida, and somehow he became possessed of more land in Bristol, Tenn. Money was plentiful in "heaven" those days. The Koreshans established a woodworking plant on the Bristol property and conducted their affairs with a marked degree of worldly wisdom.

Koresh Teed was a shrewd and able person. Men of learning had discovered so many things that were startling and revolutionary that it was not hard for him, dealing with people of small education, to go a step further and be believed.

Won Race From Arctic To See Dying Father

Examiner Special.

ATLANTIC CITY, NOV. 15.—Wilson Potter has won his long race from White Horse, Alaska, to Atlantic City to reach the bedside of his father Col. Thomas Potter, before death parted them.

Young Potter arrived this afternoon, was met at the train by his mother in an automobile and taken to the Potter residence, No. 401 Oriental Avenue. Delighted to see his son, the millionaire manufacturer is improved to-night and physicians and relatives are encouraged.

Tears dimmed the eyes of the old man and his only son as they clasped hands at the bedside. Wilson told of his fear that trains and steamers would fail to get him here in time to see his father alive and was overjoyed to find his condition improved.

Chance played a big part in the finding of the young man. Wilson and his party ran short of supplies out in the wilds and went into White Horse, a town on the very edge of civilization, for more. The party remained over for a day, and on Oct. 28th, just as they were packing up to leave, the message telling of Col. Potter's critical condition reached his son.

Young Potter immediately changed his plans, gave up the hunting expedition, and started for home. The train on which he travelled to Skagway from White Horse was stalled by heavy snowstorms. The delay caused the anxious traveller to miss his boat at Skagway by three hours and six minutes. He waited three days before the next steamer sailed.

Arriving at Vancouver he sped across the country by the fastest trains, arriving in Philadelphia this morning. Reassuring messages were flashed to him at various points en route by relatives. A wire this morning told him of his father's improved condition and he remained over at his home in Chestnut Hill until noon, getting in Atlantic City at 1.35 o'clock.

Steals In, Awakens His Sweetheart, Shoots Himself

Special to The Examiner:

PHILADELPHIA, NOV. 15.—Threatening to make his act a double tragedy if she made any outcry, Harry Mander, twenty-four, son of a wealthy West Philadelphia contractor, sat at the foot of the bed on which his sweetheart, Miss Anna Meumeister, was lying early to-day, and put a bullet through his head. He died two hours later.

Mander's act is said to have been due to the opposition of his own parents and of Miss Meumeister's mother, with whom she lives at No. 916 North Twenty-sixth Street, to his attentions to the girl. Once before, meeting his sweetheart on the street, he is said to have threatened to kill her if she repulsed his suit, and her mother forbade him the house.

The young man left his home, No. 5,461 Cedar Avenue, long before daylight this morning, went to the girl's house and prowled about until she saw Mrs. Meumeister leave home on an errand. Then he entered and went in. She was sleeping, but his footsteps awakened her.

"DON'T MAKE ANY NOISE"

Putting his hand upon her head as she tried to raise herself in bed, he exclaimed:

"I'm going to shoot myself. Don't shout or make any noise, or I'll kill you, too."

Then Miss Meumeister saw that her sweetheart had a revolver. Unable to scream, she remained recumbent while Mander seated himself on the bed, where his figure was outlined in the mirror of a chiffonier. With his left hand pressed across her mouth, Mander pointed the revolver to the side of his head with his right hand and pulled the trigger.

With the discharge of the weapon he fell across the body of his sweetheart. Mrs. Meumeister, who had returned from her errand, and her son-in-law, Ernest Schaffy, who occupies part of the house, heard the shot and found the young woman striving to succour the unconscious man.

Letters and post cards, addressed to relatives and friends, were found in Mander's pockets. He had killed himself for love, he had written. A poem, written by James B. Gentry, the former actor, recently pardoned after serving a long term in prison for the murder of Madge Yorke, was also found in his pockets. This was entitled "Good Advice," and advised its readers to avoid the world's alluring pitfalls and to remember the old saying, "We're never too old to learn."

DEVOTED TO EACH OTHER

Mander and Miss Meumeister had been mutually attached for four years, their courtship having begun when he acted as best man at the wedding of Miss Meumeister's sister to Ernest Schaffy. Anna was bridesmaid. Since that time until a little over a week ago Mander had been a frequent caller at the Meumeister home, and the couple were greatly devoted to each other. In fact it had been whispered among their friends that they would soon be married, but Miss Meumeister's mother and Mander's parents alike opposed the match. Neither family to-day would disclose the reason.

$18,000,000 TUNNEL

GENEVA, NOV. 12.—More than 3,000 workmen are engaged, under high pressure, in pushing forward the $18,000,000 tunnel which a Swiss syndicate is boring through the Alps. It extends from Kandersteg, in the Bernese Oberland, under the Lotschen Pass, nearly, but not quite, under the Balmhorn, to Goppenstein, on the way to Brieg, the Simplon and Italy.

When the tunnel is pierced, the time from London to Northern Italy, by way of Switzerland, will be shortened by five hours. The laborers are mostly Italians, of whom 1,400 in charge of Swiss engineers are boring on this side, and a still larger number are boring on the Brigue side. In five months it is expected the two forces will meet.

The first trains are to run in 1912, it is hoped. The capital for the huge undertaking has been chiefly subscribed by the Swiss of the Canton of Berne.

The Lotschenberg tunnel, for so it is to be known, is 4,054 feet above sea level at its highest point. It is slightly more than nine miles long—not quite as long as the St. Gothard, which is 9¼ miles. The Simplon tunnel is 12¼ miles in length. The Lotschenberg tunnel has a grade of only 7 metres per 1,000 metres, is 9 yards wide, and 19¼ feet high. More than 900 men are working in the tunnel itself. They get what are considered extraordinary wages—$2 a day, and out of the colony of 3,000 the village of Kandersteg is getting rich from the sale of wine and other supplies. The doctors, too, are busy, and theirs are the only motor cars allowed in the valley.

Fifty-five lives have been lost in the construction of the Lotschenberg tunnel. Two miles of the bore are ready for the rails. The tunnel has gone four miles into the mountain from this side. The temperature is 77 degrees. The tunnel on the south side of the mountain is warmer, owing to the hot rocks encountered in digging. Most of the recent boring is through granite. Several ambulances are always inside the tunnel waiting for calls. Besides the fifty-five killed, several hundred men have been injured. The entire work is in charge of Swiss engineers.

"THE BETRAYAL"

(By E. Phillips Oppenheim.)

"Well?"

"Lord Blenavon consented to do so, sir," I said quietly.

I saw the veins in the Duke's forehead stand out like whipcord. He began a sentence and left it unfinished. He was in that condition when words are impotent.

"Can you tell me, Mr. Ducaine," he asked, "what possible argument Colonel Ray could have made use of to induce my son to consent to this extraordinary proceeding?"

"I know no more about the matter, your Grace," I answered. "Perhaps Lord Blenavon felt that his intimacy with Mrs. Smith-Leasing had compromised him—that appearances were against him—"

"Pshaw!" the Duke interrupted. "Blenavon's intrigues are foolish enough, but they are beside the mark. I want to know what further argument or inducement Colonel Ray used. I understand neither why Ray desired to get rid of my son, nor why my son obeyed his ridiculous request."

"Colonel Ray will doubtless have some further explanation to offer you, sir," I said.

"He had better," the Duke answered, grimly. "I shall wire him to come here at once. With your permission, Mr. Ducaine, I will sit down for a moment. This affair has shaken me.

Indeed, as the excitement passed away, I could see that he was looking ill and worn. Lady Angela made him take the easy chair, and he accepted a liqueur glass full of brandy which I poured out. He remained for several minutes sipping it and looking thoughtfully into the fire. He seemed to me to have aged by a dozen years. The brisk alertness of his manner had all departed. He was an old man, limp and querulous.

"This unfortunate affair, Mr. Ducaine," he said, looking up at last, "remains of course between ourselves and Ray—and the woman."

"It is unnecessary for you to ask me that, sir," I answered quietly. "Colonel Ray will doubtless have some explanation. He is a man of vigorous temper, and I fancy that Lord Blenavon was not quite himself."

The Duke rose to his feet.

"If you are ready, Angela," he said, "we will not detain Mr. Ducaine further."

"You will allow me to walk with you to the house, sir," I begged.

He shook his head.

"I am quite recovered, I thank you," he said. "My daughter will give me her arm."

I let them out myself and held the lamp over my head to light them on their way. With slow, uncertain steps, and leaning heavily upon Lady Angela's arm, I watched him disappear in the blackness of the plantation.

CHAPTER XXIX.

THE LINK IN THE CHAIN.

Practically for three days and three nights the Council sat continually. There was no pretence now at recreation, no other guests. We worked, all of us, from the Duke downwards, unflaggingly and with very little respite. When at last the end came, my padlocked notebook, with its hundreds of pages of hieroglyphics, held the principal material for three schemes of coast defence, each one considered separately and supported by a mass of detail as to transport, commissariat and many minor points.

The principal members of the Council departed by special train early on Monday morning. I myself, a little dizzy and hot-eyed, walked across the park an hour after dawn, and flung myself upon my bed with a deep sigh of relief. Before I had closed my eyes, however, Grooton appeared with apologies for his dishabille.

"I have been up to the house twice sir," he said, "but they would not let me see you or even send in a message. I thought it only right to let you know at once, sir, that the police have been here rummaging about. They had what they called a search warrant. I came up to the house immediately, but I could not induce any of the servants to bring word in to you. Mr. Jesson, the Duke's own man, told me that it was as much as his place was worth to allow any one to enter the library."

"All right, Grooton," I muttered. "Hang the police!"

I believe he said something else, but I never heard it. I was already fast asleep.

* * * * * *

About mid-day I was awakened by the dazzling sunshine which seemed to fill the room. I called for a bath, dressed, and made an excellent breakfast. Then I brought out my notebook and prepared for work. I had scarcely dipped my pen in the ink, however, when a shadow darkened the window. I looked up quickly. It was Ray.

He entered without knocking, and I saw at once that he was in a strange condition. He scarcely greeted me, but sank into my easy chair, and drawing out his pipe began to fill it. Then I saw, too, what I had never seen before. His fingers were shaking.

"Ray," he said, "have you any wine?"

"The Duke sent me some claret, I answered. "Will that do?"

"Ay."

I summoned Grooton and ordered the wine and some biscuits. Ray was a man who ate and drank sparingly. Yet he filled a tumbler and drank it straight off.

"You and I," he remarked, "are the only two who sat the whole show out. It was a grind, wasn't it?"

"It was," I answered, "but I have slept, and I feel none the worse for it. Lord Chelsford carried us on splendidly. There is solid work here," I said; "something worth the planning."

I touched my notebook almost affectionately, for the work was fascinating now that it had attained coherent form. Ray smoked on and said nothing for several minutes. Then he looked up at me.

"Have you a spare bedroom, Ducaine?"

"One or two," I answered. "They are not all furnished but one at any rate is decent."

"Will you put me up for a day—perhaps two?"

"Of course," I answered, but—"

He answered my unspoken question.

"The Duke has turned me out," he said grimly. "Who would have suspected the old man of such folly? He believes in Blenavon. I told him the plain truth, and he told me that I was a liar."

"I thought that he would be difficult to convince," I remarked.

"He has all the magnificent pigheadedness of his race," Ray answered. "Blenavon is Blenavon, and he can do no wrong. He would summon him home again, but unfortunately the young man himself is no fool. He will not come. You told Lady Angela?"

"Everything."

"She believed you?"

"I think that she did," I answered. His face softened.

"The Duke showed me from the door himself," he said. "You will not object to my sending a note to Lady Angela by your servant?"

"Make whatever use of him you choose," I answered. "There are pen and ink and notepaper upon the table."

Then I settled down to my work. Ray wrote his note, and went upstairs to sleep. In an hour's time he was down again. There were black rims under his eyes and I could see at once that he had had no rest. Grooton had brought his bag from the house, and a note from Lady Angela. He read it with unchanging face, and placed it carefully in his breast coat-pocket.

"I am off to the village to send some telegrams," he said, "and afterwards I shall go on for a walk."

"What about lunch?" I asked glancing at the clock.

"None for me," he answered. "Some ten at four o'clock, if I may have it. I will be back by then."

He swung off, and I was thankful, for my work demanded my whole attention and very careful thought. At a few minutes after four he returned and Grooton brought us some tea. Directly we were alone Ray looked across at me with a black frown upon his face.

"You know what they are saying in the village about you, young man?"

"I can guess," I answered.

"Who is this girl, Blanche Moyat?"

"A farmer's daughter," I answered. "It seems that I paid her too much or too little attention, I am not sure which. At any rate, she has an imaginary grievance against me, and this is the result."

"She tells the truth?"

"I have not heard her story," I answered, "but it is true that I encouraged her to suppress the fact that she had seen the man in the village, and that he had asked for me."

"What folly!"

"Perhaps," I answered. "You see, I thought that a verdict of 'found drowned' would save trouble."

"This accursed woman at the Grange is in it, I know," Ray remarked, slowly filling his pipe. "I wonder if she knew that I was about? That would give her a zest for the job."

"She knows that you were at Brassler at the time," I said. "It was the night of your lecture."

Ray began to blow out dense clouds of smoke.

"We're safe," he said thoughtfully, "both of us. There's just a link in the chain missing."

"The police have been here with a warrant in search of that link," I remarked.

"They'll never find it, for it's in my pocket," he remarked grimly.

"Colonel Ray," I said, suddenly nerving myself to risk his anger, "there is a question which I must ask you."

I saw his lips come firmly together. He neither encouraged nor checked me.

"Who was that man?"

"You are better ignorant."

"Was it my father?"

If he did not answer my question, it at least seemed to suggest something to him.

"Has that woman been here?" he asked.

"Yes."

"She believes that it was your father?"

"She does".

He removed his pipe from his teeth and looked at it thoughtfully.

"Ah!" he said.

"You have not answered my question," I reminded him.

"Nor am I going to," he replied, coolly. "You know already as much as is good for you."

He rose and threw open the door of my cottage. For several moments he stood bareheaded, looking up towards the house, looking and listening. He glanced at his watch, and walked several times backwards and forwards from the edge of the cliff to my door. Then he came in for his hat and stick.

"I am going down to the sea," he said. "If Lady Angela comes, will you call me? I shall not be out of hearing."

"You are expecting her?" I asked, looking down at my work.

"Yes. It was necessary for me to see her somewhere, so I asked her to come here. Perhaps the Duke has found out and stopped her. Anyhow call me if she comes."

He stepped outside, and I heard him scrambling down the cliff. I set my teeth and turned to my work. It was a hard thing to have my little room, with its store of memories, turned into a meeting-place for these two. I at least would take care to be far enough away. And then I began wondering whether she would come. I was still wondering when I heard her footsteps.

When You Feel Cross
DR. CHASE'S
KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

And Are Easily Worried and Irritated, Chances Are That the Liver is Not Right and You Need

Life is too short to be cross and grouchy. You not only make yourself miserable, but also those about you.

Don't blame others. Blame yourself for not keeping the liver right.

When healthy and active the liver filters the poisonous bile from the blood and passes it into the intestines, where it aids the process of digestion and keeps the bowels regular.

But when the liver balks the whole system becomes clogged with a mass of fermenting fowl, which gives rise to gas on the stomach, belching of wind, pains about the heart, and a multitude of annoying symptoms which accompany indigestion and constipation.

There is nothing in the world which will more promptly afford you relief than Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills. This statement is true. A trial will convince you. This medicine acts definitely and directly on the liver and bowels and cleanses the whole digestive and excretory system.

Mr. Theo. Bedard, Lac aux Sables, Portneuf county, Que., writes:—"I have found Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills the best treatment obtainable for indigestion and impure blood. They cured me of indigestion, from which I suffered for four years.

"This certificate is given without solicitation, so that others may not waste their money buying medicines of no value when they can get Dr. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills, which I am convinced are the best."

MERRELL AND MEREDITH

CLOTHIERS, 378 GEORGE

A VOLUME OF TRAVEL

He had been spending the evening with friends—very friendly friends. In fact, they had got more and more friendly as the evening wore on. Finally, he wended his way home in an affectionate frame of mind, but he new he was late, and he also knew that he would be called upon to account for his lateness.

Very quietly he entered his abode, turned up the reading-light in the library, and settled himself as if perusing a massive, leather-bound volume. A moment later, according to expectations, his wife entered.

"George," she exclaimed, "what are you doing?"

"Ah," he returned carefully, "I didn't feel like turning in when I first came home, and I've been reading some favorite passages from this sterling old work."

"Well," snapped the wife "it's getting late now, George! Shut up that writing-case, and come to bed!"

HIS FIRST WORDS

Lessons were nearly over.

All the village Sunday schoolmistress wanted now to impress upon the village Sunday-school children before they broke up for the day was the meaning of saying grace before and after meals.

Her eye lit on the vicar's daughter.

"Now, Alice," said the teacher, "I want you to tell me the first thing your father says when he sits down to table?"

Alice spoke up promptly.

"Please, miss," she answered, "he says 'Go slow on the bacon, kids! It's twenty-five cents a pound!'"

RATHER HARD

Welsh Wag to Gipsy (who was viewing his transparent nag)—"I say, how much for the horse?"

Gipsy—"Twenty pounds, mister."

Welsh Wag—"I did not ask its weight, but its price."

CHEAP AT THE PRICE

Irate Citizen—"How much do you make with that organ?"

Organ Grinder—"About ten cents de block."

Irate Citizen—"Well, here's a dollar. Move up ten blocks!"

DEPENDED ON THE KIND

Little Harold had been spelling out the war news.

"Pa," said he, "what is an engagement?"

"That depends, my son," the father answered. "In a military sense it is a battle, but in the matrimonial sense it is only a preliminary skirmish."

WHY HE SUFFERED

"How sad that man looks," sighed Mrs. Tibbets. "Poor fellow, he has loved and lost."

"More likely," responded Tibbets, "he's loved and got her."

ENCOURAGING

Softly—"By Jove, old fellow, when a man's in love he begins to think that his eyes are open for the first time!"

Sympathising Friend — "Yes, and when it's all over he sometimes has the same sensation."

NOT PARLIAMENTARY

"Can't you settle this bill to-day, sir?" asked a tailor of a delinquent M.P.

"No, Snip, it wouldn't be Parliamentary. I've merely glanced over it, you know, and I can't pass a bill until after its third reading."

A SEVERE TEST

Mrs. Newrich (who has advertised for a pianist)—"So you are the music teacher that answered my advertisement?"

Pianist—"Yes, ma'am."

Mrs. Newrich—"Well, sit down there and play a couple of duets so that I can see what you can do."

Her Face and Body Were Litterly Covered With "BOILS."

Burdock Blood Bitters Cured Them.

Mrs. John H. King, Johnston, N.B., writes:—"Last summer I was very much troubled with boils, and my face and body were literally covered with them. A friend advised me to take Burdock Blood Bitters. I got three bottles, and before I had taken all the first one my boils began to go away. I had just taken a few doses out of the last one when they all disappeared. My husband has also used Burdock Blood Bitters with much benefit."

Boils in themselves are not a danger, but trouble, but still, at the same time, are very painful. They are caused entirely by bad blood, and to get rid of them it is necessary to put the blood in good condition, and for this purpose there is nothing to equal that old and tried remedy, Burdock Blood Bitters.

UNEARTHED A KING'S COFFIN

What is Supposed to be Edward I.'s Sarcophagus Has Been Exposed

A month ago a large sarcophagus was unearthed at a spot near the Edwardian walls, and not far from the castle of the Plantagenet at Berwick-on-Tweed, and in a letter which he has addressed to the Dean of Westminster, the Rev. James King, an authority on such subjects, gives various reasons for his belief that the sarcophagus was the temporary resting place of the body of Edward I after his death, near Carlisle, until his final burial in Westminster Abbey a year later.

Mr. King supports his theory with these facts: The coffin, which is made of one block of hard sandstone, is 6 feet 8 inches long, and Edward I. was nicknamed "Longshanks"; the royal initials "E. I." (Edwardus Primus) indicate the tradition of the age when they were inscribed in the reign of Queen Elizabeth; the coffin was found near the surface, which seems to indicate a mere temporary resting place; no lid has been found, probably for the reason that if it rested immediately below the floor of St. Mary's Church, the coffin would be covered with a flat slab.

BUDGET AND ART

Land Tax Said to be Forcing Families to Sell Treasures

The gradual depletion of English art collections to the advantage of America is deplored by a writer in The Gentlewoman, of London, Eng., who predicts that the new land taxes will considerably accelerate the process.

Many old county families, who have been hard hit by Chancellor Lloyd George's taxation scheme, are deciding to sell some of their art treasures that have been handed down from generation to generation. Next season's sales at the London auction rooms are likely to be even richer in old family possessions of great value than were those of the past year.

It is expected that the greater part of the treasures disposed of will find their way to America, in accordance with the movement that began some years ago, and is annually increasing.

The migration of beautiful and interesting things from old English manor houses to Fifth avenue, New York, is one of the most striking signs of the times.

BANDITS IN ITALY

The Country Swarms with Highwaymen Who Have Perpetrated Some Awful Murders

The country round about Milan is infested with robbers to such an extent that the Italian government has appropriated large sums of money for rewards to those who give information leading to the capture and prosecution of these mountain robbers.

Scantiness in crops has added countless hungry peasants to the already too numerous bandits who have made travel in Italy such an unsafe undertaking. Passengers in the coaches which ply between the city and the smaller towns have often been held up and relieved of their valuables, while the wealthier members of the party were sometimes held for ransom.

Word has come from Naples that the city fathers have issued orders that a large number of carrabinieri shall patrol the country side to avert a repetition of the Pavara outrage last week.

This murderous outbreak was perpetrated by a band of Sicilian brigands disguised as carrabinieri, who, after raiding a large farm at Canicatti, whose owners refused to pay tribute, imprisoned the farm hands in a barn, together with the owner's family. The robbers were about to retreat with all the livestock, when, in the hope of attracting some outside help, the farmer fired a revolver. The brigands in a rage opened the barn door and poured a volley of musketry upon the defenceless women and children who were huddled in a corner of the structure, killing four.

EXIT THE ZOUAVE

The Picturesque Uniform Does Not Conform to Modern Ideas

No more Zouaves! The most picturesque uniform in the French Army has been condemned by a War Department devoid of sentiment. In future the gallant "Zouzou" will not captivate the feminine eye with his saucy red fez, little bolero jacket, baggy red breeches and white gaiters.

All this bravery is doomed because it is regarded by the "powers that be" as too unpractical and expensive for modern war conditions. The collarless bolero "begins and ends too suddenly for health," so the transmogrified Zouave is to have a tunic of normal length of the cavalry pattern. He will also wear plain knickerbockers and gaiters, and his fez will be smaller, blue instead of red, while the size of the tassel will be reduced.

In ordering this change, the War Department has obviously not consulted the girls of France, who are indignant at the transformation of their favorite Zouaves into something like the ordinary linesman.

GRAFTING A CHEEK

A Remarkable Operation Performed in a London Hospital

The final stage in the operation of making a new cheek for a patient at Guy's Hospital from the skin of his arm has been completed.

The patient had a large part of his right cheek and upper jaw cut away in the removal of a growth six years ago. A flap of skin was partly detached from the right arm and made to cover the sunken part of the cheek by stitching it to the side of the nose and mouth. To keep the skin flap, which drew its blood supply from its remaining attachment to the arm, in place, the arm had to be bent over the head and fixed in a plaster cast in that position.

In the eighteen days since the skin flap was sewn to the side of the face enough new blood vessels have sprung up between it and the underlying tissues to render the blood supply from the arm vessels no longer necessary. The last operation, therefore, consisted of removing the plaster cast, cutting the flap away from its remaining attachment to the arm, and fitting it into position over the rest of the denuded area on the face.

No stitches were needed, the antiseptic dressings applied and the new firm attachments to the nose holding the flap in position. The arm wound was also treated antiseptically, the arm, somewhat stiff, but apparently none the worse for being fixed so long in such a cramped position, being laid comfortably at the patient's side.

In another eight days it is expected that the flap will have taken firm root, new cells springing up from the two opposed raw surfaces and knitting them into one. Little scar will be left to show that practically the whole of the right cheek is composed of skin tissues removed bodily from the right arm.

WHY WHIPSHIRE?

Government Rip Van Winkles would seem to have their uses after all. A letter addressed from London to Whipshire Devon, has been delivered without delay at Tiverton, where, 100 years ago, rogues and vagabonds were whipped round the town at the tail of a cart. Hence the name Whipshire, which is almost unknown to the present generation.

WILL TOUR COLONIES

The Famous Sheffield Choir Will Make a World-Circling Trip

The Sheffield Choir, numbering 200 singers, will start from Glasgow on the Allan Line steamer Grampian on March 17, 1911, for a six months' tour of the colonies. Dr Charles Harriss, who is acting as conductor with Dr. Coward, was in Sheffield recently and addressed the members of the Sheffield Musical Union on the arrangements for the tour. He has spent two or three years going round the colonies planning the details of this big undertaking, and is full of enthusiasm over the welcome he has received as representative of the choir throughout the Overseas Dominions. Sir Edward Elgar will accompany the party. The singers will sail from Vancouver for Australia and New Zealand, calling at Honolulu and Fiji. In Australasia their coming is awaited with eagerness, and abundant hospitality will be shown them. The programme includes a week's stay in Melbourne and Sydney. From Perth a specially chartered steamer will convey them to Capetown, and in their journey through South Africa they will have a special train which they will also use as a hotel. General Botha, on behalf of the whole of South Africa, has sent a cordial message of welcome. The Colonial Governors-General, Premiers and mayors, on all hands, have expressed the utmost pleasure in the visit of the choir to their respective countries. One hundred rehearsals will take place before the singers depart. The soloists so far chosen are Miss Jennie Taggart and Lady Norah Noel (daughter of the Earl of Gainsborough), sopranos; Miss Gertrude Lonsdale, contralto; Mr. Henry Turnpenny and Mr. Wilfred Virgo, tenors; Mr. Robert Charlesworth, baritone; and Mr. Robert Chignell, bass-baritone. The tour will conclude on September 30th.

THE DIVINE SARAH

Mme. Sarah Bernhardt is so delighted with her present visit to London that she has arranged to return in the autumn of next year with a varied repertoire and for a longer period.

"MUD and Dirt Up to the Knees, Money the Rest of the Way," Says a Native, and Then He Proceeds to Point Out the New Idea and Its Progress.

BY EDWARD HUNGERFORD

(Copyright, 1910, by the New York Herald Co. All rights reserved.)

A MAN slipped into a strange city for the first time at eventide. In the morning he awoke in an hotel room. It was very dark and he fumbled across the room to the electric switch. In the sudden radiance that followed he sputtered at himself for having awakened so early—for he was a man fond of his lazy sleep in the morning. He fumbled in his pockets and found his watch. Ten minutes to nine, it said to him.

"Stopped," said the man, half aloud. "I forgot to wind it once again."

But the watch had not stopped. Insecure in his own mind, he lifted it to his ear. It was ticking briskly. The man was perplexed. He went to the window and peeped out from it. A great office building was gaily alight—a strange performance for before dawn of a September morning. He looked down into the street. Two long files of brightly lighted cars were passing through the street, one up, the other down. The glistening pavements were peopled, the stores were brightly lighted—the man glanced at his watch again. Three minutes of nine it told him this time.

He smiled as he gazed down into that busy street.

"This is Pittsburg," he said.

Later that day that same man stood in another window—of a tall skyscraper this time—and again gazed down. In the hollow below him there was a seething chaos. There were smoke and fog and dirt there, through these—showing ever and ever so faintly—tall, artificial cliffs, punctured with row upon row of windows brightly lighted at midday. From the narrow gorges between these towering cliffs came the rustle and the rattle of much traffic. It came to the man in waves of indefinite sound.

The man lifted his gaze and saw beyond these artificial cliffs, mountains—real mountains—towering, with houses upon their crests, and steep inclined railways climbing their precipitous sides. In these houses there were more lights burning at midday. Below them were great stacks—row upon row upon row of them, too—and the black smoke that poured up was pierced now and then and again by bright tongues of flames—the radiance of furnaces that glowed throughout the night and day.

"We're mud and dirt up to the knees—and money all the rest of the way," said the owner of that office.

He was a native of the city. He came to the window and pointed to one of the rivers—a yellow brown mirrored surface, scarcely glistening under leaden clouds, but bearing long tows by the dozen—coal barges, conveyed by dirty stern wheeled steamboats.

"There is one of the busiest harbors in the world," said the townsman. "A harbor that in tonnage compares with Liverpool and even your own blessed New York."

The New York man laughed at the harbor. It reminded him quite definitely of Newtown Creek—that sunny waterway along which the trains used to pass in the days when Thirty-fourth street ferry was the gateway to Long Island.

"We have tonnage in this district," said the man who was not ashamed of his city, "and that is no idle dream. You won't believe it when I tell you that the freight tonnage of this pippin of a town equals that of New York, Chicago and San Francisco put together—while you can put in one or two foreign capitals for good measure. It's solemn truth. If you don't believe it and if you won't believe our barkeepmaster, look at the lines of freight cars for forty miles out on every trunk line railroad that gets in here—this is the real gathering ground for all the freight rolling stock of this big land."

But the New York man only looked out again upon the city in stark darkness at the middle of the day.

"This is Pittsburg," he said once again.

Not Unlike New York.

In a general way Pittsburg has a situation not unlike that of the great metropolis of the continent. For New York's East River substitute the Monongahela, for the Hudson the Allegheny, and let the Ohio, beginning its long course at the Point, Pittsburg's Battery, represent the two harbors of New York. Then you begin to get the rough resemblance. To the south of the Monongahela, Pittsburg's Brooklyn is Birmingham, set under the half day shadows of the towering cliffs of Mount Washington, Allegheny—now a part of Greater Pittsburg and semi-officially known as the north side—corresponds in location with Jersey City.

And the problems that have beset Pittsburg in her growth have been almost the very problems that from the first have hampered the growth of metropolitan New York. If her rivers have been no such stupendous affairs as have been those of this city, the overpowering hills and mountains that close in upon her on every side have presented barriers of equal magnitude. To conquer them has been the labor of many tunnels, of steel, inclined railroads, the like of which is not to be seen in any other great city in America. It has been no easy conquest.

As a result of all this, the growth of the city has been uneven and erratic. Down on the narrow spit of flat land at the junction of the two rivers that go to make the Ohio—a location exactly corresponding with Manhattan Island below the City Hall and of even less area—is the business centre of the place—wholesale and retail stores, banks, office buildings, railroad passenger terminals, hotels, theatres and the like. The same causes that made the skyscraper a necessity in New York city have worked a like necessity in Pittsburg.

So it has come to pass that no one lives in Pittsburg itself, unless under absolute compulsion. The suburbs present housing facilities for the better part of its folk—Sewickley and East Liberty vie in favor, and there are dozens of smaller communities that crowd close upon those two social successes. "We can never get a decent census figure," growls the Pittsburg man, as he contemplates the size of these outlying boroughs that go to make his city strong in everything save in the popular competitive feature of population.

and experts are now at work planning a subway system to aid both the steam roads and the overworked surface trolley lines. At best it is no sinecure to operate the trolley cars of Pittsburg. Combined with narrow streets, uptown and downtown, are the fearful slopes of the great hills. It takes big cars to climb those slopes, and when the New York man sees those big cars for the first time he looks twice. They are chariots of steel, not much smaller than those that daily thread our own blessed subway, and when they come to you they make you think of locomotives. The trucks are equipped with heavy driving rods, precisely like those of a locomotive. The heavy cut itself gives a sense of strength and hill capability. But the company staggers twice daily under a traffic that is far beyond its facilities—and it staggers under its political burdens.

For it is as much as your very life is worth to "talk back" to a Pittsburg car conductor. The conductor is an arm of the big political machine that holds that Western Pennsylvania town in the very hollow of its ample hand. The conductors get their jobs through their Aldermen, and they hold them through their Aldermen. So if a New York man forgets that he is 440 miles from Broadway and gets to asserting his mind to the man that runs the car let him look out for trouble. Chances are nine to one that he will be hauled up before a Magistrate for breaking the peace, and that another arm of the political machine will come down hard upon him.

A Man Who Got Angry.

A man, born in Pittsburg, once made a protest to a conductor of a car coming across from Allegheny. The passenger was in the right and the conductor knew it. But the conductor answered [illegible] with a volley of profanity. If that thing happened in New York the conductor's job would not have been worth the formality of a resignation. In Pittsburg a bystander warned the passenger and he saved himself arrest by keeping his mouth shut and getting off the car.

But the Pittsburg man had not lost quite his sense of justice, and he hurried to a certain high officer of the street railroad company. When he came to the company's offices he was ushered in in high state, for it so happened that the born Pittsburg man was a director of that very corporation. It so happens that street railroad directors do not ride—like their steam railroad brethren—on passes, and the conductor did not know that he was playing tip-flap with his job.

"You'll have to fire that man," said the director in ending his complaint. "If that had happened at the Duquesne I'd a punched him in the head."

The big operating man looked at his director and smiled what the lady novelists call a sweet, sad smile.

"Sorry, Ben," said he, "but I know that man. He's one of Alderman X——'s men, and if we fired him X—— would hang us up on a half a dozen things."

Do you wonder in face of such a state of things that transit relief comes rather slowly to Pittsburg?

Pittsburg men have been trying to worm their way out of their difficulties for about a century and a half now, for it was 1758 that saw a permanent settlement started there at the junction of the three great rivers. Before that had been the memorable fight and defeat of Braddock—not far from where more recently Mr. Frick and Mr. Carnegie have been engaged in a rivalry as to which could erect the higher skyscraper and most effectually block out the front façade of the exquisitely beautiful Allegheny county Court House that H. H. Richardson designed a score of years ago. At Braddock's defeat George Washington fought, and it was no less a prophetic mind than that of the Father of His Country which foresaw and prophesied that Pittsburg, with proper transportation facilities, would become one of the master cities of the country.

To-day, when Pittsburg men grow nervous in one of their chronic fits of agitation—generally started by some upstart city such as Chicago or Duluth proclaiming herself the future centre of the steel industry—she gains comfort from the sayings of two Presidents—General Washington, as just quoted, and Judge E. H. Gary, at the head of the United States Steel Corporation—who went out there within the month with the foreign guests of the Iron and Steel Institute and told the Pittsburg men to be of good cheer—the centre of the steel industry was irrevocably fixed within their community. After that they breathed more easily, and fell to a new pride in the contemplation of a traffic in a twelvemonth that reached to the enormous total of 160,000,000 tons.

Philadelphia stands at the extreme east end of Pennsylvania; Pittsburg is the western gateway of the Keystone State. Yet two peas in a pod were never half as different. Philadelphia stands for conservatism, Pittsburg for progress. While Philadelphia was climbing to the zenith of her power and influence through the first three-quarters of the last century and reaching her apotheosis in the great Centennial, Pittsburg was quiet under her smoke umbrellas, experimenting with that strange metal which men called steel. In the day dreams Philadelphia enjoyed in 1876 Pittsburg was forgotten.

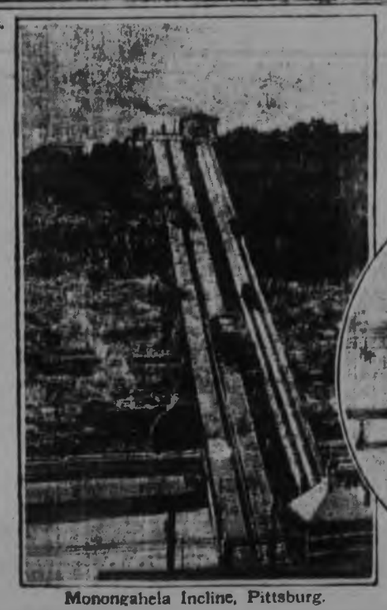
The Philadelphia Lady.

"I suppose the Pennsylvania Railroad must have some place to end at," said a lady from Hicorhouse square, when her attention was called to the city at the junction of the three rivers. And in the next year that lady and many other ladies of the staunch old Quaker town were holding up their hands in holy horror at the news from Pittsburg. Great riots, the bloodiest that had ever been known, were marking the railroad strike there why, in a single day the rioters had burned the great Union Station, every other railroad structure and every car in the place. That was bad advertising for a town that had none too many friends.

But Pittsburg was finding herself—she is still in that fascinating process of development. For word was oking out from the rough mountains of Western Pennsylvania that a little group of Scotchmen led by a shrewd ironmaster whom [illegible] folk were already calling "Mr. Carnegie" had made steel an economic structural possibility. In this day, when wood has become a luxury, steel is coming into its own, and Pittsburg is to-day the most metropolitan city between New York and Chicago.

But she is still finding herself. The Survey, financed by Mrs. Russell Sage and equipped with some of the ablest and fairest minded social workers in America, has called sharp attention to her shortcomings. The Survey did its work thoroughly, and it was not the work of a minute or a day or a week or a month. When its report was ready Pittsburg smarted. It was the sort of smarting that goes before a cure.

Much has been done already. The man who went to Pittsburg as recently as ten years ago carried away some pretty definite memories of antiquated railroad stations and inferior hotel facilities. He remembered that in Liberty and in Penn avenues—two of the chief shopping streets in the city—long trails of freight cars were constantly being shifted by dirty switch engines in among the trolley cars, while further up those same avenues the Fort Wayne railroad tracks formed two of the nastiest grade crossings in America. When a fine new hotel was finally built away out



Monongahela Incline, Pittsburg.

Forks of the Ohio.

Fifth avenue he could sit on its porch and face Pittsburg's famous farm. The Schenley farm stretched over the hill and far away. Its barns were sharply silhouetted upon the horizon, rail rig zag fences ran up and down the slopes and sometimes one could see cattle outlined against the sky edge.

The farm was a sore point in Pittsburg's development. It occupied a tract somewhat similar in location to that of Central Park in Manhattan, and the struggling, growing town crawled its way around the obstacle slowly. Then grew many miles east once again. Resentment gathered against the farm, and finally a bill was slipped through at Harrisburg imposing double taxes on property held by persons residing out of the United States, a distinct slap at the Schenley estate. When the estate protested word was carried overseas to it that if a good part of the farm were dedicated to the city as a park that bill would be withdrawn.

So Pittsburg gained it, splendid newspark, and a site for one of the finest civic centres in America. The farm has begun to disappear, the University of Pittsburg is already [illegible] last undeveloped slope for an American Acropolis—at least put Athens to the pace. The new athletic club, the Ritz Carlton development of the Howe, Scheiber [illegible] great Soldiers' Memorial Hall which Allegheny county has just finished, the green grandeur Carnegie Institute, the graceful, twin spired Cathedral, are all going toward the making of this fine, new civic centre, and Pittsburg being Pittsburg and the Pirates social heroes, Forbes Field the finest baseball park in all this land—a wizardry of steel and glass and concrete—is a distinctive feature of this improvement.

The freight trains are gone from the downtown shopping streets, and the two wicked grade crossings disappeared when the Pennsylvania built its splendid new Union Station. Other fine railroad terminals and new hotels have added to the comfort of the stranger. They are beginning in a faint way to give transfers on the trolley cars, and there is promise that some day wayfarers will not be taxed a penny every time they walk across the bridges that bind the heart of the city.

A New York girl who has been living in Pittsburg for the last four years complained that she never had seen but two sunsets there. There is hope for that girl. If the Chamber of Commerce keeps hard at its anti-smoke campaign she may yet stand on the Point and down the muddy Ohio is something that dimly resembles the glorious dying of the day, as one sees it from the heights of New York city's Riverside Drive.

A keen eyed man sat in an easy chair in the luxury of the Duquesne Club and face the New York man.

"Are we so bad?" he demanded. "You New York men like to paint us that way. You judge us falsely. You think that when you come here you are going to see a sort of a modern Sodo, bowing to all the gods of money and the gods of the high tariff. You think you are going to fairly reel in a wide open town, in the full significance of the phrase, and what do you see?

"You see a pretty solid sort of Scotch Presbyterian town, where you can't even get shaved in your hotel on Sunday, to say nothing of buying a drink. And as for shows, you can't buy you way into a concert here on Sunday. Why, some of the elders at my kirk have even looked askance at Mr. Carnegie for the free recitals that he gives Sunday afternoons in that splendid hall of the Institute.

"There's your real Pittsburg, and some of the boys have chafed a bit under all the restraint that they've had to and gone to the wicked city for a little fling and a little advertising. Is that any just reason why it all should be charged against Pittsburg? Pittsburg has enough troubles of her own, without borrowing any additional ones.

"The trouble is we've been making too much money to notice much about the boys, or give proper attention to some pretty vital civic problems—that's why the politicians cropped up in the city councils. It's the fate of the almighty dollar, New Yorker—why Mr Carnegie made about a hundred of millionaires within a single twenty four hours—can you think of any worse blow for an average low

"He took some of us, who had been waiting for him a long time and got us into the bushes, some for an eighth interest, others for a sixteenth, even a thirty second. That was great and we appreciated it, but it kept us fairly right on ready mon for a while, even though Frick and Mellon were toying [illegible] with an offer of a hundred million dollars for the bonds of the steel company. I tell you I was rich no only money myself, and wondering if I could get down on my house rent of $1,200 a year and get my wife to keep two hired girls instead of three, when you know what happened. Carnegie himself took up the bonds at a cold two hundred million dollars. Within a week I was in New York talking with an architect about building a new house for the ages and getting passage [illegible] to Europe."

Into the Slums.

"We're going down into the slums," he said. "I can show you a single block where thirteen different languages are spoken. They're now Pittsburg taking up one another's burdens—something of that sort they call it. It's queer, and you get used to it, and when you do get used to it it makes you feel like getting up on the roof and crowing that Pittsburg's going to be the greatest city on earth and not just greatest in tonnage or in debits."

"That's why we are listening to that idea of a civic centre out by Schenley Park; that's why we put Andrew Carnegie on the back when we know that he is giving us the best of pictures and a music in America; that's why Frick is holding back with his horse pasture there in front of Carnegie's Institute to build something bigger and better. Don't you get the idea now of the bigger and the better Pittsburg?"

The limousine stopped and the ironmaster beckoned a much whiskered Russian to it.

"Here's a real anarchist," he said, "but he's one of my protégés. He speaks down in a dirty hall in Liberty avenue, near the Wabash terminal, and he rather roasts us directors, but he's for the new Pittsburg and he's for it strong—so we come together after a fashion."

The Russian, who was a teacher, came close to the big automobile and pointed to a woman of his own people—a woman wretchedly poor, who dwelt in one of the hovels which to-day are Pittsburg's greatest shame.

"She's reading Byron," he said, quietly, "and she has been in America less than six months. She says that there is a magnificent comparison between Byron and Tolstoy."

That reminded the ironmaster of an incident.

"After that bad time in 1907," he said, "I chanced into one of Mr. Carnegie's libraries and the librarian complained to me of the way the books were being ruined. Their pages were being scratched and filled with rust and fine shavings. I had an idea on that myself. I went back to our own mill. It was pretty dull there, and I was dodging the forlorn place as much as I could. But we were sitting out a gang from the men who were waiting at our doors every morning for work, and even then we were carrying twice as many men as we really needed. I went around back of the furnaces, and there were the library books—the men were reading them in the long shifts."

"They weren't reading fiction?" asked the New Yorker.

"One of them spoke to me. He was only getting three days a week. 'Mr. Carnegie can give the books,' was his quiet observation, 'and the money with which to buy them. But we need more than money. Can't he ever give us the leisure to read them without it costing us the money for our food.'

"That, New Yorker, that from the mouth of one of those of the new Pittsburg, is the answer to your question."

THE DEAD SEA

Entertaining Facts About the Remarkable Sheet of Water

In many ways the Dead Sea, in Palestine, can claim the distinction of being the most remarkable sheet of water on the face of the globe. Although known by name to everyone, only twice in modern times has anyone attempted to make any systematic study of this historic region.

Indeed, its banks are seldom visited, and many of the ravines and mountains that skirt its shores are said to be virtually unexplored territory. This account, therefore, of a week spent upon the waters of this little-known lake is of more than passing interest.

The subject acquires an added value from the fact that the Turkish Government recently granted a concession for the exploitation of the minerals in the Dead Sea basin, a sum of £70,000, it is said, being paid for the rights. It is well known that the finest and purest bitumen is obtained here, as well as sulphur, copper, marble, etc. Then experts have declared that there are evidences of coal and oil in the region.

The Dead Sea is some forty-seven miles long, and about ten miles wide at its greatest breadth. Curiously enough, it lies 1,300 feet below the level of the Mediterranean. Many ridiculous stories are told about this sheet of water, even in Palestine itself. For instance, people will tell you in Jerusalem that it is impossible to swim in its waters, and that no animal or vegetable can exist near its shores. While it is true that fish cannot live in the lake, birds may frequently be seen, in certain places, flying over its surface.

As for swimming, the excessive buoyancy of the water merely renders it difficult to make much headway, but swimming is both feasible and refreshing. Among the party on the exploring vessel, which numbered eleven, there were several who could not swim, yet in the evening they often ventured into the water, and floated about on their backs. What one has to be careful about is not to get the water into the eyes.

Indeed, did Palestine belong to any other power but Turkey, probably the northern shore of the lake would be a popular bathing station. No doubt its chloride of magnesia which enters so largely into the composition of the water, would be found to have medicinal and curative properties. The water is certainly very dense, containing twenty-three per cent. of solid matter, and, is, bulk for bulk, heavier than the human body.

How dense it is may be realized from the following table: In a ton of water from the Caspian Sea there are 11 lbs. of salt; in the Baltic, 18 lbs.; in the Black Sea, 36 lbs.; in the Atlantic, 31 lbs.; in the English Channel, 72 lbs.; in the Mediterranean, 85 lbs. in the Red Sea, 93 lbs.; and in the Dead Sea, 187 lbs.

It has generally been believed that this famous inland sea is decreasing in size, but the reverse is the case.

WOULD NOT FOLLOW HIM

Chedomir Milkovitch, a Belgrade policeman, committed suicide after his sweetheart had informed him she could not leave her shop long enough to follow him on his new beat.

A NEAT EXCUSE

The colonel of a certain regiment, who was very strict on his young officers, was continually inspecting their rooms to see if everything were tidy and also to see if he could find fault the room of an officer who was noted the room of an officer, who was noted for his wit. He had nearly finished his inspection, when he noticed a cob web in one of the corners, and thought to himself, "Now, I have got him."

"What does this mean?" asked the colonel.

The young officer coolly replied "We always keep one in case a man cuts his finger."

THE CHILDREN AT THE GATE

I say that the world is bitter-sweet,
And its fortunes come too late;
But twilight falls with the pattering feet
Of the children at the gate.
And I know whatever my toil may be,
Their arms in the evening will necklace me!

I say that the world has stormy skies,
And faintly the sad stars shine;
But night brings stars when the children's eyes
Look tenderly into mine.
And I know, whatever my toil may be,
Those eyes are welcoming lights to me!

CALLS IT "WHUSKY"

A group of Scotch lawyers were met convivially at an Ayrshire inn one cold evening in December. The conversation turned upon pronunciation.

"Now, I," said one of the barristers, "always say 'neether,' while John, here, says 'nyether.' What do you say, Sandy?"

The hot tipple had made Sandy doze, and at the sudden question he roused and replied, "I? Oh, I say whusky."

BEAUTY v. USE

For the seventeenth time in three years the microscopic South African State had undergone a change of administration, and the new potentate, President Casper the three hundred and second, had summoned an artist, and was ordering new designs for all the official uniforms.

"I want something striking," he declared—"something showy, even. My people are impressed by such things. I have here some sketches I made myself. Look them over, and be guided by these ideas as far as possible."

The artist examined them carefully. They were gorgeous affairs. Green coats vied with crimson vests in brilliancy, orange-colored trousers with scarves of Cambridge blue. All the colors of the rainbow were here.

"Ah!" he said, turning the pages. "This is evidently for the navy, this for the army, this for the—this—what is this for, with the long plume on the three-cornered hat, the bright-yellow dress trimmed with purple and—"

"That," explained the president gravely, "is for the secret police!"

HAD HIS DOUBTS

At a rural council meeting in the North of Ireland a burning question as to unfair taxation was being discussed with much vigor. One member, who was justifying the impositibn of the tax, ejaculated during the course of the debate, "Until we get to Heaven someone must suffer."

"Well, gentlemen," replied the genial chairman, "we'd better adjourn discussion of the matter until we get there."

"But, Mr. Chairman," retorted the wag of the board, with a merry twinkle in his eye, "would you have a quorum?"

The dispute was amicably settled.

PREPARING FOR THE FRAY

The dilapidated costermongress, with the worried look on her face and the "Football Evening News" in her hand, walked up to the meat-stall, and began turning over the stray pieces of meat labelled, "All choice."

"Wodjer want nah, missus?" inquired the butcher.

"Piece er beef," responded the lady.

"When you was 'aggin' for the mutton 'arf an hour ago," objected the man of meat, "yer told me as 'ow yer couldn't eat beef!"

"No more I carn't!" snapped the costermongress. "But I reckon I shall want a bit all the same to put on a black eye. My 'usband went an' backed Chelsea this mornin', an' I see by the piper they lorst!"

TOO GREAT A TEST

The parlormaid entered Miss Anniline's dressing-room as that young lady sat before the glass putting on the last few dabs of powder.

"Oh, Miss Aniline," she said, "both them young gents you're engaged to is in the sitting-room, and they seem to have found out as you've been false to both, and it looks as if there's going to be a row."

"Goodness me, Matilda," exclaimed the startled fair one, "whatever shall I do?"

Matilda thought for a moment and then answered:

"I know, miss. I'll go and tell them you're crying your eyes out because your father's lost all his money; and you can keep the one who stays."

Matilda departed, and in a short time returned with a blank look on her face.

"Well," inquired the young lady, "which?"

"Please, miss," returned the maid, "they've both gone."

VARIETY THE SPICE OF LIFE

A statesman dined with a minister, and amused himself by talking with the minister's small boy.

"Look here, Joe," he said, "I've a question to ask you about your father."

"All right," said Joe.

"I want to know if your father doesn't preach the same sermon twice sometimes?"

"Yes, I think he does," Joe replied, with just a little twinkle; "but the second time he always hollers in different places from what he did the first time."

ANOTHER LEAD

Mother—"What! Fighting again! Such a black eye! If you'd only follow the lead of the minister's little boy—"

Tommy—"Aw, I did try to follow his lead, but he led again with his left, an' that's where he hitted me."

ONE TRADE BARRED

Repeated mistakes as to the exact meaning of the words "mine" and "thine" had at last met with the usual reward, and Sam Hoskinson found himself in jail.

"Of course," the chief warder exclaimed, "now that you're here you'll have to work, much as it is against your principles; but there's one thing about it, you can choose your own trade."

"Can I?" said Sam; "well, that's good news. I suppose I can work at my own trade?"

"Certainly. What is your trade?"

"Well, I'm an aeronaut!"

HAD KIDNEY TROUBLE.

COULD NOT CROSS THE FLOOR PAIN WAS SO GREAT.

Miss Hazel Hess, Winchester Springs, Ont., writes: "I was troubled with my kidneys for five years. They were so bad, at times, I could not cross the floor for the pain. The doctor could not do me any good and a friend advised me to use Doan's Kidney Pills. I bought six boxes and now I have been cured for over four years. I will recommend them to every sufferer."

No woman can be strong and healthy unless the kidneys are well. When the kidneys are ill, the whole body is ill, for the poisons which the kidneys ought to filter out of the blood are left in the system. Then how important it must be to see to it that this system of sewerage be not clogged up.

Doan's Kidney Pills are a purely vegetable medicine, realizing quick, permanent relief, without any after ill effects. A medicine that will absolutely cure backache and all forms of kidney and bladder trouble.

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c. per box or 3 for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

If ordering direct specify "Doan's."

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

The right use of money is to accomplish what you wish with it."—Mary Lyon, founder of Mt. Holyoke.

Do you know I wish I were clever enough to edit a woman's dictionary containing some of the words that the feminine sex seems to need to have defined.

"Extravagance and economy," for instance.

On a little fifty-mile train trip that I took yesterday, I counted four women on the train wearing white gloves.

They were not dressed expensively—you could have bought every stitch any one of them had on, from negligee to pumps, and from skin to coat, for a hundred dollars, and yet, were I a man with a moderate income looking for a reasonably economical wife, these are the sort of women I would at once place as impossible.

Why?

Because, using the word in its right meaning, I consider that those white gloves represented more extravagance than far larger expenditures, a twenty dollar willow plume or eight dollar shoes, for instance.

For my idea of sartorial extravagance is not, as so many women consider it, just spending a lot of money on your clothes. Nor do I think economy conversely is spending very little money.

I think extravagance is spending your money without getting good value for it, and economy is the converse.

To sum it up in Mary Lyon's words:

"The right use of money is to accomplish what you wish with it."

White gloves cost more than dark gloves in initial outlay, in greater fragility, and in cleansing expense whether of time or money.

Used for everyday wear, on a train or shopping excursion, they are both bad taste and unattractive, because even if they are perfectly fresh when they are put on they will be badly soiled by the time they are taken off.

Presumably those women spent more money to clothe themselves in white gloves in order to look extra well. They most emphatically did not accomplish what they wished with their outlay. Therefore, I call them extravagant.

I'm not writing all this to inveigh against the habit of wearing white gloves on all occasions. I have no especial grudge against white gloves. I simply take them as typical of the hundred and one little ways in which the American woman, especially that class of her who can least afford it, is extravagant.

She buys fragile and delicately coloured materials for everyday wear; she buys ultra styles in cheap grade when she ought to buy a two season style in a better grade; she purchases elaborate and unsuitable accessories, such as white gloves and fragile furs.

As a consequence she looks well dressed for a brief time and very poorly dressed for a long time. She is spending her money to be well dressed and because of her lack of judgment she fails of her object.

And that's what I call extravagance, money spent without judgment. Don't you?

And don't you think it would be a grand idea if this kind of women could have Mary Lyon's definition pasted over their dressers, or, better still, printed on their pay envelopes.

"The right use of money is to accomplish what you wish with it."

100 GUNS ARE USED IN HUNT FOR HIGHWAYMEN

Examiner Special.

GREAT BARRINGTON, MASS., NOV. 15.—The borders of the great oval wild rice and marsh grass between South Egremont and Sheffield are lighted fantastically to-night by torches in the hands of 500 men, while through the 200-acre swamp, other men armed with rifles are trudging. For somewhere in the swamp are four men with $7,000 and a bunch of cheques totalling $5,000 that they took this afternoon at the point of rifles from Paymaster R. J. Hines of the construction company that is building the trolley line, bordering the swamp, from Great Barrington to Canaan, Conn.

Every road leading from the place of the crime is guarded. The robbers backed into the swamp after they took the money from the paymaster's party, which was at luncheon in the woods. Therefore the searchers feel sure the fugitives have not had time to get out.

STARTED WITH $9,000

Six hundred men and one hundred teams are employed on that section of the trolley right of way and are paid every fortnight. This morning Hines and his party with $9,000 and cheques representing $6,000 in two valises, left Great Barrington in an auto. In the party were C. A. Robinson, the general superintendent of the company, Deputy Sheriff Truesdale, who was armed, and John Cronin, chauffeur.

At South Egremont a gang of the workers was paid. That reduced the cash to $7,000 and the cheques to $5,000. The party then walked along the trolley route, leaving the auto behind. Hines carried one valise, the Deputy Sheriff the other.

"Here's a good place to eat lunch," said somebody when they reached a dense clump of woods. Hines and Truesdale sat on a gravel pile with valises close at hand and the luncheon baskets were passed around. All the men had keen appetites. They did not watch the woods or the swamp.

A RUDE AWAKENING

No one in the party could have told just from what point intruders came, but a voice brought their thoughts rudely back from appetites.

"After you've eaten just pass over the money," it said coldly.

The party looked up and saw, masked, four men, with rifles whose common aim was the luncheon group.

"Well, they've got the drop on me," said the Deputy Sheriff.

Nobody else said anything, but two valises were passed politely to the robbers. Then the four backed off gradually toward the swamp while the paymaster's group, with the luncheon baskets at their feet, sat with hands above their heads. Just before three of the men disappeared in the swamp they fired a couple of shots apiece, but apparently with no intention of hitting the luncheon party. One man remained in sight at the edge of the swamp for a few minutes. Then he too vanished.

GOT IN ACTION TOO LATE

As the green curtain of the edge of the swamp swung together at his going the paymaster and his party started into action. They ran to the swamp, but the wind was moving the mass of slender plants about so that even if they had had rifles there would have been a dozen false trails.

Nobody had any appetite for the remnant of the luncheon and back to South Egremont the party went. The authorities of all the surrounding towns were informed by telephones and posses were gathered together. But no trace of the robbers was found. The searchers might have passed within ten feet of the fugitives and not have known it.

WINTER FAIR AT OTTAWA

The Winter Fair at Ottawa is a growing concern. All departments were well represented last year. The seed exhibits always attract considerable attention; the management has provided a roomy and advantageous position for showing them. This year there should be a special effort on the part of farmers who have seed to sell or advertise to be on hand with their exhibits as per prize list. A prize list may be had by applying to D. T. Elderkin, the secretary-treasurer, whose address is Parliament Buildings, Toronto, at present, but for a month or more before the exhibition will be Ottawa, Ont.

The number of grain exhibitors is increasing each year. There is still room for more. There is all the more honour to win out in a close competition. Good prizes are offered in the 13 sections, viz., first, $5.00; second, $3.00; third, $2.00; and fourth, $1.00.

There are two specials as well, the Bate Cup for the best exhibit of white oats, two bushels, together with sheaf; and one for Renfrew exhibitors of oats by the President of the show, Mr G. White, M.P.

Ottawa Valley farmers should not let the western men come here and win all the prizes. They should be prepared to show that Eastern Ontario can grow as good grain as Western Ontario. It is a splendid chance for the western men to show up samples of corn, clover and alsike seed, although no prizes are offered for red clover and alsike. There should be. If lots are sent down it will be an incentive for the grain committee to recommend a place for them. Exhibitors should carefully read Rule 5, where it says that all exhibits must be representative of a certain lot held at home for sale.

LT. COL. HALLIDAY HONOURED BY OFFICERS OF THE REGIMENT ON HIS RETIREMENT FROM SERVICE

Surgeon of the 57th Presented With a Handsome Piece of Plate at a Dinner in His Honour in the Armories Last Night.

WITHDRAWAL IS REGRETTED

The Officers' Mess of the 57th Regiment in the armories was the scene of an interesting event last evening, when the retirement of Lieut.-Col. J. T. I. Halliday, M.D. from the regiment, after twenty years service as surgeon, was marked by a most enjoyable dinner under the auspices of Lieut.-Col. Stevenson and the officers of the regiment, during the course of which Lieut.-Col. Halliday was presented with a beautiful piece of plate suitably engraved. The occasion was one in which pleasure at being present with such a congenial gathering was mingled with regret at the fact that it meant the retirement of an officer who holds the highest possible position in the respect and affection of his brothers in arms. The key note of the speeches which followed the repast was an expression of sorrow at Lt.-Col. Halliday's retirement, interwoven with the hope that he might still honour the officers with his presence as frequently as possible.

Almost every officer of the Regiment was present. Major Clegg, the president of the Mess, acted very efficiently as toast master and had on his left Lt.-Col. Stevenson, the commanding officer. Major Hayes, Mess Secretary, was vice-chairman.

The catering arrangements were in charge of Mr. T. H. Hooper, who provided a most excellent repast, splendidly served and which was attacked with military precision and zest.

Band Gave Programme.

While this important item was receiving its proper attention the band of the Regiment under the direction of Mr. Gliddon rendered a most enjoyable programme, which was greatly appreciated by the officers. The numbers were as follows:

March, "Farewell of the Gladiator." Fuzick

Selection, Reminiscenses of England Godfrey

Descriptive, Dance of the Skeletons

Medley, Popular Song ..... Remick

Patriotic Selection, "Under the British Flag" ..... Winterbottom

Euphonium Solo, "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep" (with variations) .....

Bandsman Cronk

March, Kansas Two Step ..... Pryor

In commencing the second part of the programme the toast master read messages of regret at their inability to be present from Capt. H. A. Morrow and Capt. K. C. Lech.

The toast to the King was heartily honoured, the gathering singing the national anthem with accompaniments by the band.

Lt.-Col. Miller was called upon for a recitation and gave that favourite of the South African war, "Glencoe," with the spirit and earnestness that have made this number famous among the members of the Mess. Capt. W. H. Claxton gave a song that was greatly enjoyed the gathering harmonizing in the chorus.

The Presentation.

Lt.-Col. Stevenson, commanding officer of the Regiment, proposed the toast to the guest of the evening, Lt.-Col. Halliday. In so doing he compared that officer to the family physician who is with us when we come into the world, looks after our early days and when we have reached man's estate, stands between us and the ills that trouble us. He felt that he could safely refer to Lt.-Col. Halliday as the family physician of the 57th Regiment. For twenty years he had been among them with his kindly and genial manner, his helpful way and his broad common sense. The many trips enjoyed by the regiment would have been socially much less successful had it not been for his presence. As president of the Mess committee and presiding at their social functions, Lt.-Col. Halliday had been of invaluable assistance. As a mark of the respect and esteem of the officers he asked Lt.-Col. Halliday to accept the piece of plate and assured him that its weight was caused by its being loaded down with the good wishes of the officers.

The toast was honoured amid great enthusiasm with the singing of "He's A Jolly Good Fellow" and three cheers and a tiger.

Lt.-Col. Halliday's Reply.

In reply Lt.-Col. Halliday remarked that the kindness of his brother officers had overwhelmed him. When he had been invited to be present at a social gathering the idea of a presentation had not occurred to him. It was scarcely possible for him to find words in which to express his thanks but he felt from his heart the deep obligation he was under to the officers of the Regiment. In his twenty years' service he had never experienced anything but kindness from the men, non-commissioned officers and officers of the 57th. He had always felt it a privilege to wear the

"IT IS USELESS TO CONTINUE THE FARCE LONGER" SAYS PREMIER ASQUITH

Special wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, NOV. 18.—"It is useless to continue the farce longer," were the Premier's opening words, as he arose to address the House of Commons to-day. His manner was definite and made it plain that the Liberals were determined that the people should be given the right to say whether the Lords were to be retained as part of the British Legislature system. He continued that to reform House and at the same time to retain its right to veto any necessary legislature, was simply to make a farce of the government. The suggestions of compromise that have been made have not been for interests of all the people. The Government has a distinct programme planned and it will be carried out. The Cabinet has discussed all the suggestions of compromise and has decided that none of them are feasible. It has, therefore, recommended to King George that Parliament be dissolved.

The announcement was received with loud cheering from the benches of the Liberal members. After the session adjourned they hurried to congratulate the members of the Cabinet, and then started the machinery of election working. The news that the break had come, and that the compromise proposals have been rejected was given to the House of Lords. Lord Crewe, leader of the Liberals, says it is possible that all hereditary members believed that the announcement meant an end of their career in the public life of the empire.

The last general elections were held only ten months ago, the issue being the Lloyd budget. The result was not conclusive as it did not give the Liberals a working majority without the aid of Nationalists. The members elected were as follows: Unionists 253, Liberals 275 Labourites 40, Nationalists 82.

FIRE AT THE C. G. E. WORKS LAST NIGHT

$3,000 Damage is Done by a Blaze in the Pattern Shop, Resulting From a Short Circuit—Chief Damage From Water

MIGHT HAVE BEEN SERIOUS

A rather serious fire occurred at the C. G. E. works last night, about 8.40. It was in the pattern department and originated in one of the motor boxes. There are two switches to these boxes and the power switch had been left on while the operating switch was shut off, thus forming a short circuit. The alarm was sent in to the fire hall by telephone and the brigade responded promptly. When they arrived on the scene the dense smoke, which was coming from the fire made things look serious, but the men soon had two streams playing in the building. The employes of the department also had the company's own fire protection system working, and although it did good work in putting out the fire, it caused much damage by water, as it could not be shut off promptly. It required strenuous efforts for one solid hour to extinguish the blaze, and it speaks well for the brigade that the firemen were able to keep it from spreading to the other departments. The pattern department is situated in the west corner of the main machine building, but so thoroughly was the fire kept under control that at no time was there any danger of it spreading from the department in which it originated.

Very little damage was done by the fire, but the water caused considerable damage to the machines and materials. The total damage is estimated at $3,000.00.

WILL SUBMIT BY-LAW TO THE PEOPLE

A meeting of the Manufacturers' Committee was held yesterday afternoon, there being present, Ald. Gillespie in the chair, Mayor Morrow, Ald. Bradburn, Duffus and Industrial Commissioner Duggan.

The form of agreement for a street franchise, for the conveyance of natural gas to consumers, passed a couple of months ago in Mr. Carlew's favour, was read in the presence of Mr. R. H. Leary, who was acting in Mr. Dittman's interests. Some slight amendment was agreed upon, and the committee decided, on motion of Mayor Morrow and Ald. Bradburn, to submit a by-law to the ratepayers at the January election, providing Mr. Dittman forwards a deposit of $250 to pay the expenses connected with such by-law.

By the terms of the agreement referred to, Mr. Dittman must, as soon as possible—not later than March, 1911, commence and continue boring for gas, and within one year from date of agreement spend at least $6,000 in such operations. Should drilling be abandoned or suspended for two consecutive months, then the agreement will become null and void. Gas must be supplied to consumers within two years' time. The maximum charges for natural gas were fixed by agreement at 50 cents per 1000 cubic feet for domestic consumption, and 25 cents per 1,000 cubic feet for manufacturing purposes. The street franchise is for twenty years.

MORE MONEY REQUIRED FOR CHIMES FUND IF DESIRED RESULT IS TO BE REACHED

Rev. Canon Davidson Gives Some Interesting Information Concerning the Prospect---What is Aimed at---Eleven Bells at Least are Required.

Peterboorugh, Nov 18th, '10.

To the Editor:

Sir,—Some statement seems to be called for in regard to present condition of the Chimes project. Through the wide generosity of some fifteen hundred present and past citizens, we have now a subscription list of a little over $5,100, of which $4,400 stands to the credit of the fund in the Bank. With this sum we could purchase at once and install a Chime of ten good bells. This would be quite sufficient for church purposes, and be a good ordinary chime of about the same character as several in Ontario and better than some others.

But in the public interest we are unwilling to order any ordinary chime unless compelled to do so. Our Peterborough bells will be unique as given by the community generally, and one of the objects accordingly will be to play those national and other airs which unite us as a community and thereby to foster patriotism and national and civic sentiment. This feature, which under the circumstances seems so very important, will require eleven bells at least, while one or two more would be a valuable addition.

In the early stages of this big movement it was not necessary, nor was it possible, to set the exact sum required, and even now it is impossible to calculate exactly the cost of the tower work and incidentals, but as far as we can see, $5,600 will obtain and install eleven bells from 3,000 or 2,600 lbs up to 5,500 or 5,270 lbs, according to the different tenders. We have no funds or guarantee on which to fall back, so either we must order a Chime which would be disappointing to many as not having the required range, or the order must be delayed until further support be forthcoming.

If the required sum seems large, we have to realize that it is no longer than the cost in other cities which have obtained this boon. Though the cost has been quickly forgotten, the great public asset remains.

In Cobourg $5,000 was paid in connection with a much smaller chime. In Petrolia over $6,000 and in Stratford $9,000 for Chime and clock. In these and most cases the cost has been borne by a comparative few, in Petrolia and in Woodstock by one patriotic citizen. Now that we Peterborough people are doing this thing in such a united and happy fashion, is it not well that we should at least attempt the very best that is possible.

The committee are carefully scanning the situation and if the limit of public support is shown to have been reached they will expend the money already so generously given as well as they can, even though the results be below the mark set. In the meanwhile we are making no uncomfortable appeal, but merely state the present position, on the chance that some other public spirited citizens may add to and render more effective what their fellow citizens have already done.

The bulk of this great work having been accomplished, there is certainly a striking opportunity now to finish it in such a way that instead of being anything ordinary, it will distinguish our city and be a pride and joy to all citizens.

Yours faithfully,
J. C. Davidson.

Three Months In Gaol For Theft Of Watch Albert Hutt Sentenced

Albert Hatt, who appeared in the police court on Nov. 11th, charged with stealing a watch from the home of Mr. Richard O'Rourke, with whom he was boarding, came before Magistrate Dumble this morning for sentence. Mr. Basil Hall appeared for the defendant and explained to his Worship how it was that Hutt did not return the watch, but the magistrate failed to see the virtuous part of it. He said that Hutt had boarded with the people until he had run a bill of $60, and not being contented with their hospitality in allowing him to stay without paying it, he went and stole the watch. This mode of returning thanks apparently did not suit the magistrate and he gave Hutt three months in the county gaol with hard labour.

The sentence meted out to Chas. Clarke and his wife yesterday morning was altered somewhat. Clark's term in gaol was reduced from three months to thirty days, and his wife will keep him company for the same length of time.

Bandsman Miller Receives His Long Service Medal

An interesting event took place at the Armories last night when Bandsman Fred Miller, son of Lieut.-Col. Miller was presented with the long-service medal, signifying that he had served twenty years in the Canadian militia. The presentation was made by Lt.-Col. Stevenson, commanding officer of the Regiment, who referred in terms of high praise to Bandsman Miller's services to the Regiment.

Lt.-Col. Halliday took advantage of the occasion to express his appreciation of the 57th Band. During all their trips they had felt proud of the band, and of the fact that the Regiment had a band second to few if any regiments in the Dominion.

A musical act that is going big at the Royal theatre just now is that of Black and LaRue, two clever musicians who are delighting the audiences at every performance. No better musical team has been seen in Peterborough in many months than this same pair. Mr. Black performs brilliantly on the euphonium and violin, Mr. LaRue gives a cornet solo in superior fashion and the team get a lot of harmony out of a trombone duet. With a little bright comedy by Mr. LaRue the act is a hit from beginning to end.

SIGNIFICANT SILENCE.

There is something wretchedly mean about some of the Conservative opportunists on this naval question, says the Montreal Witness. The same men who, a year ago, were watching eagerly for signs of lack of loyalty on the part of the Premier, and who, indeed, did subject every one of his utterances to false insinuations on this head, are now prepared to make it and help an anti-naval cry in the other provinces. The farmers of Ontario, it is held, can be aroused against the expenditure, and instead of the attack of the Bourassa party helping set Wilfrid Laurier with those who shall stand by him under all the circumstances, it is to be made the means of a general adoption of Bourassaism. The silence of Mr. Borden is certainly significant, and Mr. Bourassa announces that the campaign he and Mr. Monk have inaugurated is to be carried into Ontario. What will evolve from the several manoeuvrings, including that of Mr. Foster at Toronto, where he said that if Sir Wilfrid Laurier were in opposition he would be saying the same things as Mr. Bourassa? It will probably be some new patent kind of imperialism, similar to that which the protectionists adopted several years ago, when they argued that it was time for the Mother Country to be "doing something" for Canada. The new imperialists will doubtless argue that Canada should be "doing nothing" for the Mother Country. Those two attitudes would be consistent, but they are not consistent with Mr. Bourassa's proposal when the naval bill was under discussion. If Mr. Borden was in earnest then he should speak out now on the principle that Canada owed and owes a duty to the Mother Country in the matter of defence.

FIGURES THAT TELL STORIES.

(Toronto Star)

For many years the live stock men and the dairy interests led every other class of exporters, and Canada was known abroad as a great producer of butter and cheese. But the pictures show that the development of the West has taken this dairy leadership away, and brought the agriculturist into the front rank of exporters, and now our export reputation rests on wheat. This change has taken place within five years, and the contest has been mainly between wheat and cheese. In 1905, the ration of wheat exports to cheese exports was $12,000,000 to $20,000,000, but in 1906 the ratio was $34,000,000 for wheat to $24,000,000 for cheese. In 1907, wheat and cheese were about equal with $22,000,000 each of exports, but in 1908 and since exports of wheat have left those of cheese far in the rear, and from that year exports of agriculture have held first place. It will be noticed that exports of agricultural products have trebled in five years, while those of animals and animal produce have declined by about $10,000,000. The magnificent harvests in the West, which last year brought Canada into fifth place among the world's wheat producers, account for the former condition while our increasing population accounts largely for the decrease in exports—though not in production—of animal products, chief among which are butter and cheese.

GOOD POLITICS AND PATRIOTISM

(Montreal Herald.)

The Montreal Gazette sees with "other, larger eyes" than do its Conservative contemporaries in Toronto. It realizes the fact — palpable, one would think, and yet overlooked in certain Toronto newspaper offices — that a national party, to be successful, must be national, not sectional. The Toronto News has been arguing that Borden should be given a majority that would make him independent of Quebec in other words, preaching the pernicious doctrine that the country be divided on racial lines. From within its own party ranks comes the answer. The Gazette this morning says:

"The session of Parliament which opens to-day may have important results on the future of the political parties represented in its membership. It may try the Opposition even more than the Government. The leaders of the Opposition will need all their vigour and prudence if they are to avoid wrecking their hopes on the shoals of political narrowness, prejudice of local self-interest. A party that would win the confidence of the majority of the people of Canada needs to be as broad as the country. Its policy should be for all sections and its dependence on the common sense and intelligence of men of good will. And the words of those who undertake to speak for it, while firm for what they consider the right, should not give needless offence to those who take a different view, or be so shaped as to admit of distortion by their opponents to the injury of the whole party.

"The opportunity for the kind of Conservatives that hurt their party in the elections of 1908 to repeat their work is again presenting itself. The Eucharistic Congress which in Montreal where it was held, helped Protestants and Catholics to understand and respect each other, in other places excited cranks and extremist. The naval policy which because of the phancy of ministers was thrust on the country before opinion had been prepared for it, has assumed a phase that may make it a sectional as well as a political and financial issue. In these two matters lie the possibilities of grave mischief, that can be avoided only by the whole of the Conservative party remembering its record and its work and showing it to be so big and broad that all men of good will may stand on its platform, whatever their faith, whatever their origin. The majority of the Conservative party, in Parliament and in the country, is Protestant. It should remember that it is of the essence of Protestantism that a man shall be free to worship as his conscience dictates. It should extend to all what it claims for itself.

"In the matter of the navy, or the beginning of the navy, the case is simple. Provision for the protection of the country is a necessity of the world's conditions. It would have to be made and paid for no matter what Canada's political affiliations. It is something to be regarded as a duty, not as a matter of hurrah or political profit or partizan zeal. And there is no difference in principle between defence by sea and defence by land. If these things are forgotten in the discussions of the next few months, and any important section of the Opposition sets aside its wholesome party traditions to join in what seems to be a big noise, then again a promising chance of success will be thrown away."

This is good politics and patriotism combined. The Little Canadians will be the men who, to beat Laurier, will set English against French; who, to beat Laurier, will ignore the fact that naval defence is a national duty; who, to beat Laurier, will wittingly wreck the first attempt of Canada to take a share of the responsibility for Imperial defence.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Hon. W. S. Fielding, Minister of Finance, is to take a holiday on account of impaired health. Overwork is given as the cause. And we may well believe it, for he has been a tireless and fruitful worker. Mr. Fielding is not alone in being overworked; the revenue returns have been working overtime, as shown by the largest revenue in the history of the Dominion and a surplus of more than 20 million dollars.

Annual Review Of The Naval Equipment Of Chief Powers

THE WORLD'S NAVIES.

(Manitoba Free Press.)

The Navy League Annual for 1910-11, bears date October 21 last, Trafalgar Day. This yearly publication, as all the world knows, is the organ of the advanced naval party in Great Britain, and is the most authoritative volume published in regard to the development of the navies of the world. This year's Annual (published by John Murray) contains more than three hundred pages, and a considerable proportion of its total bulk consists of the statistics of sea power, set forth in the greatest detail, giving exhaustive information in regard to the displacement, speed, armament, and all other matters of importance in the case of every one of the world's navies, with numerous views and plans.

Each year, as the editor of the Navy League Annual notes in his introductory remarks, brings more startling advances than the year before. In February of the present year the keel was laid down for a battleship of no fewer than 32,000 tons displacement. This is the only warship of 30,000 tons' displacement on the stocks anywhere in the world. It is the Rio de Janeiro, and is one of the three Dreadnoughts now under construction in the establishments of Messrs. Armstrong, Whitworth & Co., and Vickers, Sons & Maxim, in Great Britain, for one of the minor naval powers, namely, Brazil. Next in size comes the British Dreadnought, New Zealand II., of 28,500 tons. In the list of twenty-seven British Dreadnoughts, afloat or on the stocks, there are eleven which are of greater than 22,000 tons' displacement of any of the seventeen German Dreadnoughts, afloat or on the stocks, including the four planned to be begun this year, but not begun. The United States, France, Russia and Argentine also have Dreadnoughts under construction to exceed 22,000 tons' displacement; two of the United States battleships, to be launched in June, 1913, will have 27,000 tons' displacement, namely, the Texas and the Nevada, and two of the Argentine battleships, to be finished in 1912, namely, the Moreno, and the Rivadavia, will have 27,940 tons' displacement each.

Among the naval developments of the present year the leading place which completely dominates the 12-inch gun, long accepted as the ideal primary armament for capital ships, has been superseded by weapons of superior calibre — a fact of the highest importance in connection with the overwhelming superiority of Great Britain in sea power now under construction. The other notable developments for the present year, apart from the evidence which aerial craft have given of their coming utility in war both on land and on sea, are the approach of the displacement of steam as the propulsive power of warships, great and small, the increase of the effective range of torpedoes to four miles, and the fact that France is building two submarines of close upon 1,000 tons' displacement each.

So great is the importance of the success of the British Admiralty's experiments with the 13 1-2 inch gun, which completely dominates the 12-inch gun, that the German naval authorities deemed to postpone the laying down of the Dreadnoughts planned for this year, which were to have 12-inch guns as their heaviest weapons. They will have to undergo a considerable change in construction. The comparison of British and German battleships of this type, if one studies it out in the tables of statistics in the Navy League Annual, shows that in displacement, speed, horse power, and main and secondary armament, the British vessels completely outclass the German. Of the German battleships of the Nassau, or early Dreadnought, type, afloat, the editor of the Navy League Annual says that they present an attempt to "place a quart of fighting value into a pint of displacement," and, further, that the writer has full information as to the value placed upon them in German and naval circles, "and the fear is expressed there with much reason—that, should the German public realize how mediocre are these four monster ships, their enthusiasm for a big navy will evaporate in the annoyance felt at the ineptitude of their constructive department." They are, he says, thinly armoured; they are cramped internally, and their armament is still adapted to their general strength.

The number of Dreadnought units to be complete by March 30, 1914, is set forth in the Navy League Annual as follows: British, 27, plus those to be added by next year's programme; Germany, 21; United States, 10; France, 7; Russia, Austria, and Italy, 4 each; Brazil, 3; Argentine, Spain, and Turkey, 2 each, and Chili 1. The editor of the Navy League Annual would like to see the British superiority still greater. He would like to see a large margin allowed for possible delays in construction, owing to strikes and other causes, the acceleration of foreign programmes, loss of ships by accident, or the purchase of first class units from such nations as Brazil, Argentine, Chili, or Turkey by continental rivals. Still he finds comfort remembering that "in 1906 the pessimists insisted that a period of great danger would be reached in mid-1909, last year 1912 was to be the time of direst stress; now it is to be the summer of 1913, something or other, therefore, always crops up from time to time which leads the expert or critic periodically to revise his estimate." He writes: "We are safe to-day, safe next year, and fairly safe the year after; but he sincerely trusts that "when another twelve months has elapsed, the general public under advice from those in the know will have cast their fears forward to the spring of 1915, the real period to cause disquietude." At the same time he dwells on the fact that "delay in commencement brings improvement in designs and general efficiency."

The summaries for the four leading powers in March next show of battleships and armored cruisers, 94 British of a total of 1,332,730 tons; 42 United States, of 574,799 tons; 41 French, of 457,444 tons; and 36 German, of 445,804; of protected cruisers, 39 British of 190,470 tons; 32 German, of 113,598 tons; 11 Japanese, of 46,213 tons; and 10 United States, of 33,937 tons; and of torpedo craft, 283 French, 205 British, 154 Russian, and 106 German.

Quality is Always the Final Test

A nice box or a free country do not guarantee fine goods or a free citizen Though both are highly desirable. Our government, no matter how bad or good it is, is just what we are fitted for ; it is as expression of ourselves. The quality of goods and men is always the final test. Do you notice that in some sections we are very primitive yet. In some places we are not yet fitted for a free government. Some great political boss has only to hold up his hand and we run with eager enthusiasm and servile obedience to carry him around on our necks, and the joke of it all is, we think that we select him, we think that we are free. Quality is always the final test, whether for citizenship, service or goods. Here is some quality we are delighted to tell you about.

The quiet dignity of a Stylish Skirt always impresses the onlooker. We represent the most noted dress-skirt factory in America, from coast to coast, their skirts are known for their stylish and correct fit, their beauty of finish and high quality. Every Skirt is all wool, stitched with silk thoroughly shrunken. Their range is so wide you get a great choice in styles and materials. We show all the new Voiles, Parisiennes, Chevrons, Serges, Panamas, Silks etc. Let us show them to you, it will be a pleasure to us and interesting to you. They have instructions to ship to us every week, in this way we keep right up to date, and their prices are lower than you pay for ordinary styles. No charge for alterations.

YOUNG JAKE'S MAMMA

A Short Story.

By G. B Burgin. All Rights Reserved

I.

The one impediment to Miss Elmira Swan's happiness in this world was her respected parent, "Old Man" Swan. "Old Man" need not have been an impediment had he shown a little tact; but he was not tactful by nature, and, when logic failed him, always had recourse to his shot-gun—a weapon which carried eleven buckshot of a peculiarly penetrating power. Naturally, when young men came to woo Miss Swan, they found it a little irksome to make a circuitous approach to the house behind the cover of adjacent trees, with the prospect of being stalked by Old Man, who had a phenomenally keen sense of hearing and never disguised his annoyance. Indeed, the list of casualties to the young men of Four Corners was beginning to be rather serious. Out of deference to the memories of his own youth, Old Man never put in a full charge of powder on these occasions; but he did insert enough to make the buckshot winged messengers of disaster to the loverlorn youths who attempted to interview Miss Swan. Young Jake had been particularly unlucky, for Old Man had winged him once and smitten him elsewhere on a dark night when he had aimed somewhat at random. In spite of these wounds, however, Young Jake persevered. He did not mind being shot at by Old Man provided he could win a kiss from Elmira. What he did object to was the dutiful attitude of Elmira, who seemed to think that the question was a personal one between him and her father, although, after Young Jake's most recent escape from the parental shot-gun, her views had become considerably modified. The next evening she approached the subject to her father, and awaited his reply with a firmness born of mingled love and exasperation.

"You wants to get married! Whaffor?" demanded Old Man. "Me not bein' a marryin' sort of man. I reckon as you've got to wait till the breath's gone out of my body afore you connubialise. I'm good—with care—for another twenty year, and by that time you'll be old enuff to know your own mind. If Young Jake or an yof them durned Four Cornerites ain't got patience to wait, that's their look-out. They're givin' me heaps of worry, and wastin' a lot of ammunition. Me bein' an Elder, too, it goes agin the grain to remonstrate with 'em. I did orter kill 'em outright and put an end to this yer foolishness. It kinder takes my thoughts off religion."

Elmira's blue eyes looked at him quizzically. "You was sorter allowin', Pap, to keep me here at this children of Gideon business for the next twenty years?"

"That's so," said Old Man, with the air of one who did not intend to argue with his offspring. "That's so, Elmiry."

"You did orter marry agin," said Elmira thoughtfully. "Thar's Young Jake's mother. She's just the kind of woman you'd like. Pretty as a picture, and a quiet enuff sort of woman when she gets her own way."

"Wal, I reckon she'll have to wait a bit afore she gits it with me," said Old Man thoughtfully, shaving off some tobacco from the cake which he carried in his pocket, and leisurely preparing to fill his pipe. "Them little firebugs is kinder pretty whirlin' up and down to-night, Elmiry."

"I didn't come out on this yer verandah to talk about firebugs, Pap," said Elmira, with decision. "An dI'd like you to catch on to the fact, I've been a pretty good child to you as children go. Thar's never a time when you've come home full from the village as I ain't set up for you and pulled your boots off when you couldn't see to pull 'em off for yourself, but wanted to go to bed in 'em; thar's never a time when I ain't comforted you when you thought the devil was throwin' you in your spiritual wrastlins; thar's never a time hwen I ain't stuck to you through thick and thin, and gone up to the village to get buckshot"—she gave a gulp in her pretty throat—"for you to fire into—into friends of mine."

"I reckon you was allers pretty spry at doin' things," said Old Man, complacently. "All along of the way I reared you, Elmiry, all along of the way I reared you. Train t child to fetch her Pap's buckshot, and when she grows up she will not go back on him, as the Scriptures say. Bu tyou're kinder trubblesome lately. I don't catch on, Elmiry, I don't catch on."

"hTen it's about time you did, Pap," said Elmira, her lovely blue eyes flashing. "I've had about enuff of this. I've put in twenty years of bondage lookin' arter you. Now, it's your turn."

"Turn and turn about's fair play, Elmiry," Old Man said, calmly. "How was you proposin' to run things?"

"Oh, I'm not proposin'," said Elmira, indignantly. "If I ain't greatly mistook, things is goin' to run themselves."

"In that case," Old Man rose leisurely, "I'd better git the gun loaded so's to be ready for 'em."

Look here, Pap," pleaded Elmira, her lovely hair glowing in the setting sun. "You're a bit rough, and I've sorter lost grip of you. You don't want me to marry because you'll have to hand over that money of mother's to me."

"Money bein' a temptation to you," said Old Man with a twinkle, "it did sorter occur to me to hold on to it as long as posserble."

"I'm tired of bein' preserved from temptation," said Elmira, with sudden spirit. "I'm goin' to rush in to it and marry Young Jake."

"Young Jake?"

"Yes, Young Jake," repeated Elmira, defiantly.

"Thar ain't much of him as I don't seem to have explored with the shot-gun," said Old Man thoughtfully. "I might have another go at him to make sure."

"You'd better not," said Elmira angrily. "I love him, and he thinks a heap of me. He's had the drop on you once or twice, but didn't draw for my sake."

"That's what I reckoned on," said Old Man calmly. "when I let fly at him, or he'd have got the buckshot higher up. You go and set supper, Elmiry, and drop this yer foolishness."

Elmira put her arms akimbo. "I s'pose, dad, you reckon you're a pretty decided sort of Elder?"

"If I ain't greatly mistook, that's juss so."

"And kindness ain't no good with you?"

"Juss stick to moral suasion and back it up with buckshot," said Old Man cheerfully. "If I was you, I'd git supper sot, Elmiry, and let bygones be bygones."

"I will if you'll let me marry Young Jake."

"Not much," said Old Man "He's too ornary."

"How about Eli Perkins?"

"Squints," said Old Man, briefly

"Or Jack Rogers?"

"Only one eye."

"Sam Marsten?"

"Folks do say as he's all he can do to keep his wooden leg goin', Elmiry." Old Man placidly retorted

"For the last time, Pap, will—you—let—me—marry—Young—Jake?"

"For the last time, Elmiry, no—I—won't." Old Man put his tobacco in his pocket with an air of finality.

Elmir awas aroused at last. "Every worm gits his turn if he waits long enuff," she said, angrily. "I've been a good girl to you, Pap, and you've made the most of it. Now, I'm the worm, and I'm goin' to turn."

"Turn away, Elmiry," said Old Man, placidly. "Turn away as long as you like, on'y sot supper first."

Elmira's heart was full. She went into the house as if to hide her tears.

Old Man chuckled. "Sorter trubblesome rearin' a family. Sorter trubblesome; but I've settled Young Jake for a bit, any way."

"You can laugh!" Elmira dashed out again onto the verandah, and wiped her lovely eyes. "You can laugh now, Pap. You'll be sorry for it afore mornin'."

"Let not the sun go down on your wrath," said Old Man, with unction. "Sot the supper, Elmiry. Sot the supper."

Elmira's pretty face clouded over again. "Have you anything agin Young Jake?"

"Not a durned thing."

"Then," said Elmira solemnly, "yous blood be upon your own head, Pap. Young Jake's mother has took up this affair, and she'll see it through."

"She allers was a personable kind of female," said Old Man.

"Well, you can't shoot her," retorted Elmira, with an air of triumph.

"N-no, I s'pose not, she lein' a personable kind of female," mused Old Man. "Go and sot the supper, Elmiry; go and sot the supper."

II.

In spite of his pretence of enjoyment, Old Man was manifestly ill at ease. His appetite suffered in consequence. Usually, he "wolfed" down his food with a celerity born of his desire to get out on the verandah again and continue that perennial "loaf" which constituted his idea of living. This evening, however, he ate slowly, with a measured deliberation which betokened deep thought. He had got into a groove, and it looked very much as if circumstances were conspiring with Young Jake and Elmira to get him out of it. And Old Man did not care for novelties. Elmira knew his habits, had a pretty taste in cooking, and was "as bright as a humming-bird and as busy as a bee."

Now, however, she sat opposite him, her pretty face clouded, making a pretence of eating, and pushed away her plate when she thought Old Man was not looking. Old Man suddenly noticed that she was growing thin, that her fine color was fitful, and that, in lieu of her usual sunny brightness of demeanour, she regarded him with anything but the cheerful respect due to an Elder. As a rule, Old Man enforced respect with the shot-gun. In this instance, however, his own familiar weapon was worse than useless.

If, from time to time, Old Man regarded Elmira apprehensively, there was no doubt taht Elmira gazed at him, when she thought that she was unobserved with certain misgivings. Once, she got up and went to the door, came back to her seat without any ostensible reason, and blushed deeply. Old Man noticed her confusion with distress. If Elmira continued to exhibit these symptoms of susceptibility, they might become chronic. Better put them down with a stern hand. But how?

Suddenly, Elmira's face brightened. "I've the first dish of wild strawberries this year, dad," she said, going to the pantry and coming back with the luscious little berries and a pitcher of cream. "Thar's about a quart. Just enuff for us both."

Old Man was pleased. "Me bein' an Elder, Elmiry," he said, pouring out the whole of the berries into an empty pie dish and drawing it to him. "it don't seem right as anybody else should sorter git ahead of me in the matter of berries." He added cream and sugar, and prepared to enjoy himself.

"Aren't you goin' to give me any?" asked Elmira, painfully aware of his selfishness. "Don't you—"

Old Man looked at her in pained astonishment "Me lein' kinder off my feet, you wouldn't expect me to throw away a chance like this! Remember I'm your perogenitor, Elmira, and repress your your carnal longings for teh fleshpots."

"Guess that's real pretty," said a ringing voice in the dorway (Old Man started as if he had been shot). "Real pretty; but if you touch one of those berries, Old Man, I'll feel it my duty to blow yonur sinful head off."

"W-w-what!" stammered Old Man, swinging his chair round in amazement. Then he swung it back again and, under his breath, muttered something unbecoming a middle-aged Elder.

A beautiful woman. Young Jake's mamma, stood in the doorway, carelessly holding a rifle in unpleasant proximity to the fringe of grey which was all htat remained of Old Man's once hyacinthe locks. There was a dancing light in her lustrous black eyes, as she nodded to Elmira. "You sit still, Elmira," she said. "Guess this ain't goin' off in your direction. Young Jake don't leave your poor old mother to run this show alone, but come in and make the most of yourself."

"I'm looking for that durned old shot-gun," said an anxious voice outside. "Ah, here she is," the voice continued, with a perceptible joyousness. "From the weight, ther's about half-a-pound of buckshot in her. My!" The speaker's voice became reminiscent. "It's a heavenly mercy he ain't outside stalkin' me agin. Got him safe, mother?"

"You bet I've him safe," said Young Jake's mamma. "Come in, Jake, and hold the bar'l close again the back of his neck till we've had them berries."

Young Jake entered like Agag, walking "delicately." Even in the act of holding his enemy's gun in his hand he seemed rather nervous. Old Man glared at him in impotent wrath.

"Get ahind him and fit it into the small of his back; it'll do him more good thar," said Young Jake's mamma, as she came round and kissed Elmira wi theffusion At the same time she prudently kept her rifle out of Old Man's reach.

"What are you doin' here?" growled Old Man, nearly breaking a bloodvessel as he felt the mussle of a shotgun poked into the small of his back. "Easy, Young Jake, easy. She might go off."

"If she did, guess you go with her," said Young Jake's mamma, severely. "What's your-manners, Old Man, as you don't ask me to sit down and have some berries? Guess I'm a whale at berries."

Elmira, and drew the dish away from Old Man. "Reckon thar's just enuff for me'n Elmira," she said, nonchalantly helping herself. "You can't have none, Jake. You'll git your share of sweets by'n bye.

Elmira hesitated.

"Just wade in baldheaded," said Young Jake's mamma. "I'd most made up my mind to let him off when he was lookin' at you sorter sorrowful like; but soon's I see him goin' to wolf down on them berries, I hardened my heart. Yes, Elmira, I'll take sugar with mine. Eat away. You needn't be afraid."

Old Man was passionately addicted to strawberries, especially those small, delicately-flavoured ones which owe nothing of their charm to civilisation, but grow wild in the bush. His mouth watered as he saw them disappear between the widow's pretty lips. He distrusted Young Jake. If the shot-gun went off by accident the results would be unpleasant. So he sat in moody silence, gnawing his finger-tips until the widow had finished her strawberries; Elmira seemed to have some difficulty in getting hers down. Her eyes were full of tears, she almost choked. oNt even the dancing light in Young Jake's blue orbs could re-assure her. She knew her parent to be a man of infinite resource and dreaded his next move.

When she had finished her strawberries the widow smiled. "Ain't enjoyed nothin' sweeter for years," she said; "but a pint each don't go far. Git that cream from the brindle with the one horn, Elmira?"

"I s'pose so," said the perplexed Elmira.

Young Jake's mamma leaned back in her chair with evident enjoyment, as she carelessly clutched her rifle barrel. "Idunno," she said reflectively, "as you wouldn't be the better for a wife to look after you. Old Man."

"I'm the best judge of that," snapped Old Man. "It don't seem sorter modest for permiskus females to come a throwin' out hints of—"

"What kind of females did you say, Old Man?" omniously demanded Young Jake's mamma "Let her go, Jake."

"I takes it back," said Old Man, with a shudder of apprehension.

"You bet," said Young Jake's mamma. "Sorter ready for a stroll, Old Man?"

"Whaffor?" not unnaturally asked Old Man.

"The Parson's waitin' to tie up Jake and Elmira, and I did reckon you'd like to be thar," said Young Jake's mamma, with the utmost self-possession.

"Anythin' else?" demanded Old Man, purple with apoplectic fury.

The widow considered. "Wal, now, Old Man, it'll be pretty lonesome for you when Elmira's down to hum." She fixed her beautiful black eyes reflectively upon him. "I've taken a fancy to that brindle's cream. Guess I'll marry you myself, Old Man. You, bein' an Elder, did orter to be better fixed up."

Old Man's remark at this proposal was not fit for publication; it was certainly uttered in bad faith.

"Ye-es, guess I'll do it; I'm tired of bein' a widder," said Young Jake's mamma. "Git up and dust. Take the gun out of his back, Jake, but keep it within a foot of him. Come on, Old Man. You can hold my gun, Elmira, while were gettin' married, and the nI'll do as much for you."

Old Man got up as one dazed. Slowly he walked down the village until he came to the Parson's. Young Jake and Elmira walking at a respectful distance behind. Young Jake was a good shot, and Old Man knew it. The Parson seemed surprised when Old Man faltered out a request for immediate nuptials; but Young Jake had a look in his eeys which forbade trifling.

When the brief ceremony was over which united Old Man to the widow, she sliped back to Elmira, took her gun and leaned it in a corner, then relieved Young Jake of Old Man's weapon. "It's your turn now," she said to that worthy. "You give thr bride away, Old Man, and be spry about it."

The short-sighted Parson was glad to see such becoming gravity on Old Man's countenance, although quite unconscious of the real cause. In a few minutes, Young Jake and Elmira were united in the bonds of holy matrimony. The Parson beamed at them expectantly.

"Guess you'd better pay up for both," said Young Jake's mamma, and Old Man—with reluctance—paid the fees.

Young Jake's mamma took Old Man by the arm. "I'll make suthin' of you yet—with care," she said cheerfully. "Good-night, Elmira. You and Jake can settle down to hum. I'll look arter Old Man till death do us part."

To judge from Old Man's sour expressions, he longed for immediate death, but before he got home a smile relaxed his iron features. "'Twas sorter lonesome," he admitted to his bride; "and thar's no denyin' you got the drop on me." He looked at the gun with reproach. "Guess I ain't no more use for her," he said, regretfully. Then dropped the weapon on the ground with an exclamation of surprise.

"What's the matter?" asked Young Jake's mamma, picking it up. "Anything broke?"

"'Taint loaded," said Old Man, with a sigh. "I was juss goin' to fix her up when Elmira started on Young Jake. "I'm durned sor—"

"What? asked Young Jake's mamma, surveying him with an irritible smile.

"Glad," said Old Man, tucking her arm in his.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

Two of the fastest and closest games of the season were played last night in the Intermediate Basketball League. The Burglars made good and stole the game from the Sawbones by one point; score, Burglars 20, Sawbones, 19. Referee, A. Fitzgerald.

The second game, between the Pirates and Rowdies was even closer, five minutes' overtime being played before the game was stored away in the Pirates' treasure box; score, Pirates 13, Rowdies 11. Referee, E. Hanwell.

In the Business Boys' League the Giants defeated the Victors, score 2 to 1. Dreadnoughts defaulted to Indians.

Collegiate games this afternoon and Senior games to-night.

There will be an excursion from Lindsay for the big football game Saturday, and the boys from the L. C. I. are coming down in force and have asked for a game of basketball with a team from the local Association Collegiate Gymnasium class. Physical Director Thompson has notified them that they will be accommodated with pleasure. A team to represent the local Collegiate class will be selected this afternoon. It is not known just what time the basketball game will start but it will likely be early, in order to let the visitors catch the 9.00 p.m. train.

A most successful game tournament for school boys has just been completed, after a very keen contest, which was for the individual championship of the section of the Boys' Department. Some sixteen boys took part, and many others handed in their entries for same just a little too late. However, these boys may start in the tournament for the team championship of the Department, which commences Friday next. New games have been added to the Department, and the winner of this tournament is W. Heaslip, won 10, lost 6; second place was taken by W. Long, won 9, lost 7; third place, H. Knapman, won 8, lost 8.

On Saturday night of this week a game tournament will be conducted for Business Boys. This will be for the individual champion of that section of the department, after which the two winners of the leagues will play off for the individual championship proper of the Boys' Department.

LT. COL. HALLIDAY HONOURED BY THE OFFICERS OF 57TH

uniform and to be an associate officer of the 57th. Looking back over the twenty years he could not find one feeling of regret; on the other hand there was nothing but kindness and good fellowship all the way through. He had always had the friendship of the officers and their help at all times. When he entered as surgeon he felt handicapped by the fact that he had not had any previous military training and since then he had always urged upon every Canadian to take advantage of his opportunities in the way of military education. When one considered the conditions here where every member of the Regiment from private up to Colonel, had to work for his living by the sweat of his brow or his brain they could not expect the Regiment to be perfect, but he felt sure that the officers had reason to be satisfied with what had been accomplished. The very name of the 57th was enough to make them proud. Lt.-Col. Halliday recalled the many pleasant gatherings that had taken place in the old drill shed during his connection with the regiment. "I have no words of farewell to say to you," he said in conclusion "I will always be with you in spirit and I hope frequently in presence."

Major (Canon) Davidson, chaplain of the Regiment, expressed his hearty endorsation of the tribute paid by the commanding officer to Lt.-Col. Halliday, and referred to the warm friendship that had always existed between that officer and the other members of the staff of the Regiment. In looking back upon the past one's heart was warmed by recollections of the old drill shed. It was full of warm memories to every officer and its accommodation while enough to provide a close bodily union resulted in a union of hearts as well. Major Davidson referred to some of the faces formerly seen there, among them those of Lt.-Col. Bell, Major Dennistoun and Capt. Morrow all three of whom had been faithful officers, whose splendid qualities would live long in their memories.

Major Eastwood, Quarter-master of the Regiment, in a neat speech expressed his feelings of regret at Lt.-Col. Halliday's retirement. In looking back over the history of the regiment, he said, there came to their memory men who appealed to him as worthy of emulation, whose traits of character were such as made one wish to follow their example. Among these he considered Major Dennistoun and the guest of the evening, Lt.-Col. Halliday. There had always been a sincere love and affection in his heart for the latter and he hoped that Lt.-Col Halliday might have many years to come among them, even if he had retired.

Captain A. W. MacPhey son contributed a song, "Drill Ye Tarriers, Drill" the gathering singing the rousing chorus with a vengeance.

The toast to "The Press" was proposed by Major Clegg and heartily honoured. Messrs. F. H. Dobbin for the Review and F. D. Craig for the Examiner, responded.

Capt. Watt favoured the gathering with a song in good voice and its rendition was greeted with prolonged applause.

The Babies of the Regiment.

Captain Walker, Adjutant of the Regiment proposed the next toast, that to "The Babies of the Regiment," coupling with it the names of Lieuts. Hall, Cameron, Lech and O'Brien. In doing so he referred to the different commanding officers of the Regiment during his connection therewith, paying a neat compliment to Lt.-Col Bell, Lt.-Col. Edwards, Lt.-Col. Miller and Lt.-Col. Stevenson Lt.-Col. Halliday's retirement, he said, meant a great loss to the regiment. In proposing the toast to the Babies he referred to them as "trailing clouds of glory."

The toast was honoured with enthusiasm amid the singing of "Rock-a-By-Baby."

Lieuts. Keith and Ross Cameron replied in neat speeches, expressing their intention to try to do their part in promoting the welfare of the Regiment. An impromptu toast by Major Bennett which was heartily honoured was the next feature. Major Bennett took advantage of the opportunity to express his regrets at Lt.-Col. Halliday's retirement.

The Ex-Officers.

Major Clegg proposed the health of the ex-officers of the 57th Regiment, and the toast was enthusiastically received.

In reply Lt.-Col Miller said that he had always felt proud to be a member of the 57th Regiment. He had felt proud when he first put on the scarlet uniform and became a member of the old No. 1 Infantry Company, and as he rose from corporal to sergeant and on through to the command of the regiment he had kept this feeling of pride. He still had the welfare of the Regiment at heart and when the 57th looked its best he felt his best. Lt.-Col. Miller told of the struggles of the Regiment during its early history and referred in eulogistic terms to the officers who had then commanded the local forces. They were a proud lot of men when they were installed in the old wooden drill shed, and the speaker remarked that there were most pleasant memories of that structure. The Government had now given the Regiment a splendid armories and they should show their appreciation by turning out the best regiment possible.

Captain Ritchie also replied to the toast, thanking the officers for the manner in which it had been honoured and referring to the pleasant associations he had when a member of the staff. His only regret was that he was now an ex-member.

The pleasant gathering was brought to a close by the singing of "The Bold Mariners" and "Auld Lang Syne" and the National Anthem.

GOOD ROADS AGITATION

To the Editor—The representative of a million farmers, the Hon. N. J. Bachelder, Master of the National Grange of the United States, is credited with working harder than any other man for good roads throughout the land. Speaking at the recent Convention in Cleveland, Mr. Bachelder pointed out clearly the growth of public sentiment in favor of better roads. "Where only a few years ago the discussions of measures for road improvement were confined to farm journals and weekly country papers," said he, "we now find the subject given prominence in our leading magazines, national journals, and influential newspapers. To the voices of the farmers demanding larger appropriations for improved roads, we now have added those of the manufacturers, merchants, and other business men, who realize that the prosperity of our country depends on the prosperity of our agricultural interests, and that better roads will do more to improve the welfare of the farmers, and indirectly the people as a whole, than any other reform. The agitation for good roads, originating with the farmers, and for a long time conducted almost entirely by them, has broadened out into a great movement."

"The problem of substituting a comprehensive system of improved roads for the dirty roads which constitute 90 per cent. of our highways, has been advanced beyond the stage of statements showing the benefits of good roads. Everybody knows that the great majority of our country roads are a disgrace to a people professing to be highly civilized. The real question is, therefore, not that of the advantages of good roads, but the practical question of securing the enactment of legislation providing the necessary funds for the work of road improvement and maintenance."

"It would seem, therefore, beyond question, that the most essential work for good roads at the present time is the creation of a public sentiment favorable to the desired legislation, and the organization of this sentiment so as to convince our legislators that their constituents are in earnest in demanding prompt action to provide the funds necessary to give us improved roads."

DESTRUCTION OF SAMPLES OF SEED

By instruction of the Hon. Minister of Agriculture a distribution is being made this season of samples of superior sorts of grain and potatoes to Canadian farmers for the improvement of seed. The stock for distribution has been secured mainly from the Experimental Farms at Indian Head, Sask., Brandon, Man., and Ottawa, Ont. The samples consist of oats, spring wheat, barley, field peas, Indian corn (for ensilage only), and potatoes. The quantity of oats sent is 4 lbs., and of wheat or barley 5 lbs., sufficient in each case to sow one-twentieth of an acre. The samples of Indian corn, peas and potatoes weigh 3 lbs. each. A quantity of each of the following varieties has been secured for this distribution:

OATS.—Banner, Abundance, Danish Island, Wide-Awake, Thousand Dollar, Improved Lagowo—all white varieties.

WHEAT.—Red varieties: Marquis and Early Red Fife (early beardless sorts of high baking strength), Red Fife (beardless), Preston and Huron (early, bearded). White varieties: White Fife (beardless), Bobs (early, beardless).

BARLEY.—Six-rowed: Mensury and Manchurian (a selection from Mensury. Two-rowed: Standwell and Invincible.

FIELD PEAS.—Arthur and Golden Vine.

INDIAN CORN (for ensilage).—Early sorts: Angel of Midnight, Compton's Early and Longfellow. Later varieties: Selected Leaming, Early Mastodon, and White Cap Yellow Dent.

POTATOES.—Early varieties: Rochester Rose, and Irish Cobbler. Medium to late varieties: Gold Coin, Carman No. 1, and Money Maker. The later varieties are, as a rule, more productive than the earlier kinds.

Only one sample can be sent to each applicant, hence if an individual receives a sample of oats he cannot also receive one of wheat, barley, peas, Indian corn or potatoes. Applications on printed cards or sheets, or lists of names from one individual, or applications for more than one sample for one household, cannot be entertained. The samples will be sent free of charge through the mail.

Applications should be addressed to the Dominion Cerealist, Experimental Farm, Ottawa, and may be sent in any time from the 1st of December to the 15th of February, after which the lists will be closed, so that the samples asked for may be sent out in good time. Applicants should mention the variety they prefer, with a second sort as an alternative. Applications will be filled in the order in which they are received, so long as the supply of seed lasts. Farmers are advised to apply early to avoid possible disappointment. Those applying for Indian corn or potatoes should bear in mind that the corn is not usually distributed until April, and that potatoes cannot be mailed until danger from frost in transit is over. No postage is required on mail matter addressed to the Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

Director of Experimental Farms

Lina Has the Agreement.

New York, Nov. 18.—Mme. Lina Cavalieri Chanler, wife of Robert Winthrop Chanler, is still in possession of the famous ante-nuptial agreement between them, and is not inclined to let go of it, it would appear from what the fair singer's brother Oreste Cavalieri, said when he arrived on the steamer George Washington from Europe yesterday.

"The Chanlers have made several propositions to my sister Lina," said he. "They want to get back that paper, that agreement. They don't care if she stays in Europe or comes to America, but they do want that agreement which the husband signed."

Told that there was a report that $25,000 had been sent abroad for which Sheriff Bob's wife was to promise that she would remain in Europe, he had only one word of comment: "Ridiculous." He said it would not surprise him if his sister left France for America about December first.

PETERBOROUGH ONE OF CLEANEST CITIES IN THE PROVINCE

The following letter, received by Chief Howard, from A. E. Stephenson, inspector for the London and Liverpool Fire Assurance Company, speaks for itself:

W. A. Howard, Esq.,
Chief of Fire Department,
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,—Your paper read before the convention of Fire Chiefs in Toronto on "The advantages of a clean town or city from a fire standpoint, and how to accomplish same," made instructive reading and I congratulate you on having been the first, so far as I know, to bring this important subject so prominently before your fellow fire chiefs of Ontario. I have had occasion many times during the past year to point out to the mayors of a number of towns in Ontario that I have visited, what the members of the police and fire department of Peterborough have accomplished during the past two years in keeping your city free from the accumulation of rubbish, etc. Peterborough is now considered generally as one of the cleanest cities in Ontario and it must be a source of gratification to the fire department and the members of the police force that they have been able to obtain such good results along this line by their mutual corporation.

Yours truly,
A. E. STEPHENSON,
Inspector.

The letter written not so much to Chief Howard, but to the citizens, is a matter of satisfaction and gratification and it is hoped it will be an encouragement to the merchants to keep their premises free from combustible rubbish in a manner that will continue to win the encomiums of such shrewd inspector as Mr. Stephenson. Such a report from him means much financially to the business men of the city and the fact that he has had occasion to call the attention of other town to what has been accomplished here, is a good advertisement for this city. The clean state of the city he has much to do with the substantial decrease in the insurance rate that was granted recently.

RECIPROCITY OCCUPIES LARGE PART OF SPEECH FROM THRONE

Government Outlines Its Policy —Death of King Referred to —Canada is Making Splendid Progress Industrially.

TARIFF THE BIG ISSUE

Ottawa, Nov. 18.—The formal opening of the third session of the eleventh Parliament of Canada took place yesterday amid auspicious surroundings. The clear, frosty air of the November day made dame fashion don her best attire. The scene within the newly-decorated chamber, after the Commoners had been called to the bar, was both brilliant and inspiring. The new scheme of decoration in the red chamber includes the coats of arms of the different provinces in an elaborated scroll design at the head of the pillars that support the arches of the galleries.

After the Commons had retired to their own chamber, the House did business for a few minutes, and then adjourned until Monday, when the speech from the throne will be discussed.

There was an interesting reference to the change among Conservative whips, carrying out the reorganization scheme, when Sir Wilfrid Laurier announced the personnel of the committee to select the standing committees of the House, the name of George Taylor, former chief Conservative whip, was included. Mr. Taylor immediately arose and asked that George H. Perley be submitted. While agreeing that this should be done, Sir Wilfrid regretted that Mr. Taylor should be retiring from the post he had occupied with such credit to himself and the Conservative party for twenty-five years. Mr. Taylor had been a good fighter, and as chief whip, had performed his duties to the satisfaction of both sides of the House.

R. L. Borden remarked that Mr. Taylor had rendered very eminent services to his party. While he was truly a good fighter and a fair fighter, he was yet as strong a Tory as was to be found in the Dominion of Canada. The Premier should not have used the past tense, for, said he, "The member for Leeds not only has been, but is, and will continue to be a good fighter."

Arthur Gilbert, the M.P. for Drummond and Arthabaska, will not take his seat on Monday, and it may even be later, as his election has not yet been gazetted.

The speech from the throne, as read by His Excellency, Earl Grey, was, in part, as follows:

Hon. Gentlemen of the Senate,
Gentlemen of the House of Commons

When I prorogued Parliament in the month of May last, I was about completing the term usually allotted to the office of Governor-General, but it has pleased His Majesty King George V. to continue me as his representative in Canada, and therefore it is my great pleasure again to greet you at the opening of this new session.

I meet you under the shadow of the calamity which has befallen this country and the whole British Empire, in the demise of our beloved sovereign, King Edward VII. His death is mourned, not only by his subjects the world over, but also by all civilized nations, who had learned to appreciate the many gifts and qualities which had earned for him the name of peacemaker, by which he will be known in history.

It is with great pleasure that I congratulate you on the ever growing prosperity of this favored land.

Trade and commerce are advancing in all directions with rapid strides. The total volume of imports and exports far exceed all previous records, and the growth of our industries and internal trade keeps pace with the development of our external commerce.

The conditions now existing over the whole country conclusively demonstrate that even with lesser production at some points, the vastness and variety of our resources ensure at all times a high degree of progress for the whole country.

Marked progress is being made in the construction of the National Transcontinental Railway, and a large quantity of grain is this season finding an outlet from the west to the great lakes over this new highway.

The construction of a line of railway to Hudson Bay, which has occupied the attention of the people for many years, has assumed practical shape. Already a contract has been awarded for the construction of bridge forming part of this railway across the Saskatchewan River at Pas Mission, and the work is now in progress. During the present session a measure will be laid before you providing for the prosecution and completion of this work with all possible speed.

While recognizing the importance of the Canadian home trade and the great value for our staples in the United Kingdom, my Government feel that they should fail themselves of every opportunity to promote friendly commercial relations with the British colonies and foreign countries, so that our surplus products may be admitted in the markets of those countries on the most favorable terms.

In pursuance of this policy commercial arrangements involving reductions of our customs duties have been made with Italy and Belgium, and a reduced schedule of duties has been granted to the Netherlands.

The desirability of more equitable tariff arrangements between the United States and Canada has long been felt on this side of the border. The commercial policy of the republic has not hitherto favored imports from Canada. We have bought largely from the United States, but they have bought much less from us in return. It is gratifying to find that a more liberal policy is favored by the neighboring country, and that the Government at Washington expresses a desire to establish better trade relations with the Dominion.

Following the negotiations which took place some months ago between the President of the United States and my Government, the results of which were at the time communicated to Parliament, a further conference between representatives of the two countries has been held at Ottawa. While no conclusions have been reached and no formal proposals made, the free discussion of the subject that has taken place encourages my Government to hope that at an early day, without any sacrifice of Canada's interests, an arrangement may be made which will admit many of the products of the Dominion into the United States on satisfactory terms.

A very careful enquiry into the conditions of trade and transportation between the British West Indies and Canada has been held by a royal commission appointed by his late Majesty, including among its members two of my Ministers. The report of the commission will be laid before you.

Bills will also be introduced respecting copyright, banks and banking, terminal elevators at the head of Lake Superior, and with regard to the investigation and betterment of industrial and labor conditions and other subjects.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

The accounts of the last year will be laid before you. The estimates for the coming fiscal year will be submitted for your approval at an early date.

Hon. Gentlemen of the Senate:
Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

These important subjects and all matters affecting the public interest I commend to your best consideration, and pray that divine providence may guide your deliberations.

Famous American Aviator Killed Preparing For A Glide

Denver, Col., Nov. 18.—With one wing tip of his machine crumpled like a piece of paper Ralph Johnstone, the brilliant young aviator, holder of the world's altitude record, yesterday dropped like a plummet from a height of five hundred feet into the inclosure at Overland Park aviation field, and was instantly killed.

When the spectators reached him, his body lay beneath the engine of the biplane, with the white planes, that had failed him in his time of need, wrapped about like a shroud.

Nearly every bone in his body was broken. Johnstone had gambled with death once too often, but he played the game to the end, fighting coolly and grimly to the last second to regain control of his broken machine. Fresh from his triumphs at Belmont Park, where he had broken the world's record for altitude with a flight of 9,714 feet, Johnstone attempted to give the thousands of spectators an extra thrill with his most daring feat, the spiral glide, which has made the Wright viators famous. The spectators got their thrill, but it cost Johnstone his life.

In the fatal flight Johnstone, after a few circuits of the course to gain height, headed toward the foothills. Still ascending, he swept back in a big circle, and, as he reached the north end of the enclosure, started his spiral glide. He was then at an altitude of about 800 feet. With his planes tilted at an angle of almost 90 degrees, he swooped down in a narrow circle, the aeroplane seeming to turn almost in its own length. As he started the second circle, the middle spur, which braces the left side of the lower plane, gave way, and the wing tips of both upper and lower planes folded up, as though they had been hinged. For a second Johnstone attempted to right the plane by warping the other wing tip. Then the horrified spectators saw the plane swerve like a wounded bird, and plunge straight toward the earth.

Reciprocity Delayed.

Washington, D.C., Nov. 18.—Experts here now admit that it is next to impossible to get any reciprocity agreement with Canada sanctioned at the short session of Congress, which meets next month.

Minister of Finance Fielding and his associate of the Customs, Hon. Wm. Paterson, are expected to come to Washington early in January to take up the final stage of negotiations for such a treaty.

It is said by tariff experts and negotiators that this conference will possibly last a fortnight. In this case it will be the first of February possibly before the matter is sanctioned by the President.

For the President to put the matter before Congress will likely require another week, and, with the inevitable causes of delay, it would be near the first of March or time for adjournment, before the matter could be sent to Congress.

The present delay in the conference is caused by the ill-health of Minister Fielding.

Death of Major Evans.

Ormonee, Ont., Nov. 18.—Major Jas. Evans died on Wednesday, after a long illness, at the age of 63. He was connected with the 45th battalion for many years, retiring with the rank of major. He was prominent in business and municipal affairs, and he is survived by his widow, six daughters and three sons.

To Locate Missing Boat.

Selkirk, Man., Nov. 18.—Manager Simpson of the Northern Fish Co. stated yesterday morning that the company had sent a party north to locate the missing steamer Wolverine. The party will drive from Gimli to Caybead Point. The owners do not think she has foundered.

Knocked Overboard.

Vineyard Haven, Mass., Nov. 18.—Captain R. M. Faulkner, skipper of the Nova Scotia schooner Virginian, was knocked overboard by the main boom and drowned in Vineyard Sound, off West Chop, yesterday.

Over Half Raised.

Winnipeg, Nov. 18.—Total subscriptions to the Y.M.C.A. fund reached $176,018 at 1.30 p.m. yesterday, or just over half the desired amount, which is set to be obtained by midnight Tuesday.

Not Guilty of Murder.

Montreal, Nov. 18.—In spite of a mass of evidence, none of which was conclusive, Judge Bazin was obliged to declare that Chevrier, Poculi and Derome could not be held on the charge of murdering the Michaud girl, so the trio were allowed to go on bail. The charge of abduction is still hanging over their heads. As the case now stands, the murder of Miss Michaud will probably go unavenged.

Kingston, Nov. 18.—In all probability the end of the year will see the county of Frontenac free from toll roads. There is but one now, that running between Kingston and Storrington Townships, and a bylaw for its purchase and abolition of tolls is before the county council this week.

Katalla, Alaska, Nov. 18.—All the passengers and crew of the wrecked steamer Portland arrived here safe yesterday afternoon. They are being housed in the local hotel, and the homes of citizens, and will proceed northward on the next steamer.

It was stated yesterday that D. M. Stewart, former general manager of the Sovereign Bank, Toronto, was thought to be one of the passengers.

ROSEBERY WOULD DIVIDE THE LORDS INTO THREE CLASSES

In Keenly Anticipated Speech He Outlines the Policy of the Unionist Party.

BALFOUR AT NOTTINGHAM

London, Nov. 18.—Politically, this was an uneventful day, with the exception of Arthur J. Balfour's speech at Nottingham, which was awaited with keen anticipation, as an exposition of the Unionists' election program. Declaring tariff reform to be the great constructive policy of the party, he pledged himself it would not increase the cost of living to the working classes. If there were such increase, he pledged the party to reduce indirect taxation on tea, sugar, etc., proportionately.

The Nationalists and Socialists, continued Mr. Balfour, were driving the Government into an attempt to destroy the constitution by the abolition of the Lords' power of veto. This he characterized as a revolution financed by American gold. If it was to such degradation that party Government had brought the country, then party Government had broken down.

"If we alter the constitution and the bidding of log rollers, who care nothing for our Empire," said Mr. Balfour, "we are not longer capable of self-government."

He appealed to every man to see that Britain should manage its own affairs. The Unionist leader spoke for an hour and a half, and had a magnificent reception.

It is evident, however, that, except on the question of reform of the House of Lords, on which the Unionist party is now firmly committed to Lord Rosebery's scheme, the Unionist platform stands the same as at the last general election in all its principal planks.

Mr. Balfour, while he referred only incidentally to the home rule question, sufficiently indicated that he was in as complete opposition to it as ever. Thus the Unionist election policy in the main will be to pit reform of the House of Lords against the Liberals' demand for the abolition of the veto power of the Lords.

The situation between the opposing forces last night appears less aggravated. The disposition on the part of the Liberal side is to give the peers a longer time to debate the veto bill, possibly even to the extent of admitting a reasonable amendment, provided this did not interfere with the principle of the bill.

The Standard in an editorial declares that there would be no constitutional crisis but for this American subsidizing of the Nationalists. "It is Redmond's, not Asquith's crisis," says the paper. "Redmond's patrons are not the poor, like Parnell's, but the affluent. It is the American business man, the American capitalist and millionaire who are financing the home rule party for purposes of their own. They do not love England, and they want to prevent the adoption of tariff reform."

In the House of Lords, sitting as a committee of the whole yesterday, the Earl of Rosebery moved a set of resolutions of last March, which have been accepted already by the Lords. His new resolutions, which were yesterday adopted without division, were:

(1) That the House of Lords shall consist of lords of parliament (a) chosen by the whole body of hereditary peers from among themselves, and by nomination by the crown; (b) those sitting by virtue of their offices and qualifications held by them; and (c) those chosen from outside.

(2) That the term of tenure of all lords of parliament shall be the same, except in the case of those sitting ex-officio, who will sit only so long as they hold the office, by reason of which they sit.

Speaking in support of his resolution, Lord Rosebery said that he believed that, on these principles, it would be possible to reform the Upper Chamber to a large extent, solve a great constitutional problem, and maintain the ancient constitution of the country without convulsions incident to a reform by general elections. In case of a disagreement between the two Houses the dispute should be settled, Rosebery said, by a joint conference, by referendum. There could be no question as to the choice of the country between a reformed House of Lords and the intolerable tyranny of a single chamber.

Lord Curzon strongly urged the adoption of the resolutions, as a practical and generous plan for a reformed Upper House, in which the hereditary element would not exercise a preponderance influence.

Baron Courtney thought the resolutions vague and illusory, and disagreed completely with the view of the Government that the constitutional conference having failed, it was impossible for Parliament to reach an agreement. He deplored that a threat had been made to take the matter out of the hands of Parliament, and to appeal to the man on the street.

Lord Lansdowne, having supported the resolutions on the ground that it was necessary to bring the Upper House into closer relations with the democracy, and the Earl of Crewe declaring that he would not vote against them, as he thought that a great deal might be said in favor of Lord Rosebery's propositions, the resolutions were carried without a division of the House.

Their Backs to the Wall.

London, Nov. 18.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—At Nottingham yesterday great enthusiasm characterized the proceedings of the meeting of the National Union of Conservative Associations. The Duke of Portland said the situation was most serious and momentous, the safety of the Empire hung in the balance, and they must fight with their backs to the wall; more than that, they must enter the enemy's territory. (Cheers.)

Henry Chaplin, M.P., said at present the country was being ruled by John Redmond, the sworn enemy of England, who with his pockets stuffed with the gold of foreign millionaires, aspired to dictate our destinies.

Ormsby Gore, M.P., said the only opposition to the colonial preference he had found in Canada was in a few recently arrived bothead Radicals and a few more Canadian cranks.

Will Recommend a Bishop.

Kingston, Nov. 18.—A meeting of Catholic bishops will be held here shortly, to recommend to His Holiness the Pope, a successor to Archbishop Gauthier. The papal bulls are expected Saturday. Archbishop Gauthier decided to remain in Kingston over the new year. Before leaving the congregation will present him with a purse of gold.

New Drydock.

Port Arthur, Nov. 18.—The western drydock and shipbuilding plant will be ready to receive boats for repair jobs in two weeks. Most of the shipbuilding plant has yet to be built, however, though several buildings are well on the way.

A Clean Man

Outside cleanliness is less than half the battle. A man can scrub himself a dozen times a day, and still be unclean. Get health means cleanliness not only outside, but inside. It means a clean stomach, clean bowels, clean blood, a clean liver, and clear, clean, healthy thoughts. The man who is clean in this way will look it and act it. He will work with energy and think clean, clear, healthy thoughts.

He will never be troubled with liver, lung, stomach or blood disorders. Dyspepsia and indigestion originate in unclean stomachs. Blood diseases are found where there is unclean blood. Consumption and bronchitis mean unclean lungs.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

prevents these diseases. It makes a man's insides clean and healthy. It cleans the digestive organs, makes pure, clean blood, and clean, healthy flesh.

It restores tone to the nervous system, and cures nervous exhaustion and prostration. It contains no alcohol or habit-forming drugs.

Constipation is the most common concomitant. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure it. They never gripe. Easy to take as candy.

SOLDIERS RUNNING MONSTER EXCURSION FOR TO-MORROW'S BIG RUGBY GAME

Cadets Get Permission From Commandant to Accompany Their Fourteen to Peterborough—Match Will be Event of Season.

BIG CROWD CERTAIN

The talk of Peterborough's sporting fraternity to-day is the Rugby game between Varsity Seconds and Royal Military College, which will be played to-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at Riverside Park, for the Intermediate Inter-Collegiate championship. With the Soldiers running a big excursion and a special train of rugby enthusiasts from Lindsay there will be no lack of excitement and the game will undoubtedly be the Rugby event of the season. The teams are typical specimens of college players, who play fast, clean Rugby all through, and the game will be well worth seeing.

The teams will line up as follows: Varsity — Back, Frith; left half, Wood; centre, Ramsay, Captain; right half, McKenzie; quarter, Campbell, scrimmage, Curtis, Gardner and Ferris; inside wings, Sifton, Taylor, middle wings, Dawson, Tripp; outside wings, Reid or Mulqueen and McDougall.

Royal Military College—Back, Galt; halves, K. Stewart, Robertson, Smith, quarter, Lawson; scrimmage, Irving, Young, J. Stewart; wings, Arnoldi, Sweeney, Roberts, Goldie, Lewis, Gwynne.

Big Excursion Coming.

Speaking of the excursion, which R. M. C. are running to Peterborough, the Kingston Whig says:

About the only local interest in football is now centred on R. M. C. who play Varsity II. in Peterborough on Saturday for the Intermediate I. C. R. F. U. championship. Kingston's only hope for a football championship is in R.M.C. and all local enthusiasts are dead anxious to see them win. That the Soldiers will acquit themselves nobly, and that this is the feeling of their supporters is evidenced by the extensive preparations which are being made to give the Cadets the heartiest support.

The Cadets themselves are overjoyed with the permission granted them by Commandant Crowe to attend the championship game between Varsity II. and R. M. C. at Peterborough on Saturday. Not in years have the soldiers' sporting aggregations been accompanied by any large number of supporters on their trips and the innovation is a welcome one both with the Cadets and their city friends. A special train will be run from here on Saturday morning and the Cadets will attend in a body, accompanied by their officers and other military supporters. Hundreds of Queen's students will also go along to cheer their erstwhile rivals on to victory. The Soldiers are in the pink of condition; their prospective line-up being the same as played last Saturday. They are perfectly agreeable to have Marty Walsh of Ottawa, as referee, and it is considered probable that Varsity will agree as Marty gave fine satisfaction here last week. It has been left to the Intercollegiate executive, however, to choose the officials.

The train will leave the city Grand Trunk station at 9 o'clock Saturday morning and arrangements are under progress for the accommodation of the largest crowd of football excursionists of the season. The train will go by way of Belleville, and will reach Peterborough at 12.30 o'clock, returning to leave at 7.30, arriving here about 11 o'clock.

Two Valuable New Cups Presented To The O.H.A. By Mr. J. Ross Robertson

The J. Ross Robertson Challenge Trophy, emblematic of the senior championship of the Ontario Hockey Association, has at last fitting companions for the honours in the intermediate and junior series.

Mr. Robertson has just received from London, England, two massive solid silver cups of beautiful design and workmanship, which he will at Saturday's O.H.A. meeting present to the association for the second and third series.

Fine Collection.

This gives the O.H.A. the finest collection of trophies in Canada. Indeed it is very doubtful whether any sporting organization in the world has anything better to offer its winners either in beauty or in intrinsic value.

The original J. Ross Robertson cup was, and is, decidedly the most artistic piece of silverware ever offered in this country for annual competition. No matter how fast the O. H. A. grows this trophy will be worth the winning.

For some years the cups for the intermediate and junior series have been outgrown. They were no longer abreast of the greatest hockey body on earth, and were only valued for what they represented.

Now these two series will have the added incentive of trophies worth striving after, apart altogether from the honours of the championships. They will, of course, be as the senior cup, held for the year only by the winners, and will thus be perpetual challenge cups.

Canadian Emblems.

These two latest and timely donations by Mr. Robertson were made by the same firm in London as turned out the senior trophy, and they were the silversmiths to her Majesty. The designs are Canadian through and through, with beautiful hockey scenes drawn expressly for them by our own Canadian artist, Owen Staples. The Canadian Beaver and the Maple Leaf are prominent on both trophies.

Mr. Robertson has not spared time, pains, or money in these two latest gifts, and the result is not only two magnificent trophies, fit companions for the J. Ross Robertson cup, but also a collection for the O. H. A that is certainly worthy of any organization.

It was but fitting that Mr. Robertson should crown the success of his years of unremitting efforts in making the O.H.A. the greatest amateur organization on earth by a donation of the finest set of trophies it was possible to buy.

Letter of Gift.

Mr. Robertson's letter to the O. H. A., donating the cups, is as follows:

Nov. 16, 1910.

L. B. Duff, Esq.
President Ontario Hockey Asso.,
Welland, Ont.

My Dear President,—As you are aware, years ago I gave the Robertson Cup for the senior championship in the association.

Last year the association decided to buy two cup, one for the intermediate championship, and one for the junior championship ,and I was requested by the sub-committee to make the purchase during my visit in England.

It occurred to me that the association might permit me to show my interest in the intermediate and junior series, as I had already tried to show my interest in the senior series. I would be grateful therefore, if you on behalf of the Ontario Hockey Association would accept these two cups which will complete the series of cups contested for in the three divisions of the O.H.A. championship contests.

I trust you will be able to gratify me in this matter as I would like my young fellow-countrymen who play in the divisions of the Ontario Hockey Association, to have some permanent memento of my association with the game, and some token of my interest in the future of the O. H. A.

Yours sincerely,
J. Ross Robertson.

HACKENSCHMIDT IN A HANDICAP MATCH

Examiner Special.

BUFFALO, NOV. 15.—The Russian Lion is there.

George Hackenschmidt made his second Buffalo appearance in four years last night before about 3,500 people in the Broadway arsenal and made good all the wonderful things that have been said of him as a wrestler. He was booked to throw three men in an hour. He threw them in 26 minutes 29 seconds. The first two were so easy there wasn't enough excitement to make any person in the audience breathe fast. But in the third bout there was enough splendid wrestling and fireworks to send the crowd home as pleased as any wrestling audience that ever left the arsenal.

The little man who made this exhibition possible was Maurice De Riaz, a French Swiss, who came here heralded as the man who made Zbysko do his utmost for a full hour in a handicap at Montreal a couple of weeks ago and at the finish was standing head and head with the giant Galician and giving as much as he was taking. Last night De Riaz made one of the most valiant struggles ever seen on a mat in Buffalo, or anywhere else, for that matter. He made Hackenschmidt's showing a success. Without him the audience would have seen a wrestling bear lay three victims down as if 'twere only a workout. De Riaz made it a real tryout.

De Riaz is a Hackenschmidt in miniature. He is wonderfully built, an almost exactly the same lines as the Lion, but on a smaller scale, and he has strength, too, in keeping with his appearance. He proved this when not once, but half a dozen times, he lifted Hackenschmidt with a "midships hold and slammed the Lion from behind. He broke some of the holds for which the Lion is famous and gave Mr. Hack a busy time of it. His showing was remarkable. Everyone went away with praise for the little fellow and with a desire to see him again. So much for De Riaz.

HACK A WONDERFUL MAN

Hackenschmidt showed up as a wonderful man, and when he tossed aside his white bathrobe and stood revealed to the crowd a chorus of "ahs" went up at the wonderful physique of the man. Hack was a little fat last night, but he shows the wonderful physical form which has won for him the name of the perfect wrestler. He is all that is said of him and more.

Hack's first victim was Leo Wroniecke, the giant Pole, who was substituted for Rosca, the football player. The latter suffered an injury in a game on Sunday and couldn't go on. Leo was a delectable entree for Hack and after mussing him a bit, the Lion rolled Leo over in 1 minute 22 seconds. Kid Arndt was next. The kid is a well built chap, but looked a pigmy beside the formidable Hackenschmidt. At the referee's call Hackenschmidt reached forward, pulled Arndt to him, turned him around and then seizing him beneath both arms, whirled with him like a top. The crowd was amazed, and hoped Hack wouldn't let go his hold in midair, for Arndt was surely booked for an aerial flight to the bleachers. But Hack had no such intention. Gently he allowed the kid to settle and when he did so knelt over him and pressed his shoulders to the mat. Time, 12 seconds. The crowd yelled and Hack elected to avail himself of five minutes' rest, patted many a time on the back as he strode to the dressing room.

Then came De Riaz and the real bout. The little fellow showed nothing of fear and really bored in on the big fellow. Hack was amused at first, but when the little fellow showed that he had strength as well as courage, Hackenschmidt went to work in earnest. He was first behind, catching the Frenchman and swinging to the rear. Immediately Hack tried to shove the little fellow's head down with his strength, but he couldn't budge it, and the crowd yelled while Hack surveyed his antagonist in mixed admiration and surprise. Several times Hack tried to shove the little fellow's head down by main strength but found that head set solidly on an unyielding neck. De Riaz early won the sympathy of the crowd and they yelled continually for him.

LION SHOWED VARIETY OF HOLDS

He tried all kinds of holds and in the first ten minutes gave as varied an exhibition of the upper body holds as is seen in an hour's wrestling. But the Frenchman either broke or wiggled away from them all. Perhaps Hack was seeking to learn just how much of his strength it would be necessary to use on the Frenchman. Each hold he clamped on with added earnestness, and each time the Frenchman found a way out. Finally Hack became a little perturbed and with a half-nelson pounded De Riaz' head with no gentleness on the padded floor. Suddenly De Riaz brought the crowd to a real frenzy by springing backward in a wriggling fashion and getting behind the big fellow. Hack exerted all his strength and stood up, but De Riaz promptly lifted him clear of the floor and threw him to his knees. Three times he did this, until, with the crowd standing and yelling its delight, the lion threw all his strength into a magnificent effort and De Riaz' hold, locked about the body, parted like an unwilling cable tugging against a strength too great.

Hack went to work like a real workman as fifteen minutes were sung out. He lifted De Riaz and slammed him, and, giving him no rest, put on combination after combination. These were chiefly laid on neck and head and for five minutes the courageous little Frenchie took a nasty mauling without a whimper. A hammerlock at this stage caused a groan to go up from the crowd, for they thought De Riaz was gone, but he rolled from side to side until Hack had difficulty keeping astride, and finally had to yield the hold to prevent rolling.

"Twenty minutes" was called with Hack working diligently and frantically on his opponent's arms and neck. He got a crossbar and half-nelson and tipped De Riaz to one shoulder, where he held him for a full minute. Then he reversed and allowed one arm to shoulder to the mat. De Riaz heaved and wriggled all about the mat, but Hack held that one shoulder and followed grimly.

WONDERFUL BRIDGE COULDN'T LAST

Working himself around so that he covered De Riaz' body with his own, he put his weight to the free shoulder and slowly forced it matward. De Riaz heaved and heaved, but his strength was taxed to the utmost. Suddenly he got his feet firmly planted and bridged. Bridged perfectly on head and heel he swung both shoulders clear, bearing Hack's entire weight, made doubly trying by the Russian's repeated heavings. Both Hack's hands were on De Riaz reluctant shoulders and each heave forced them closer to the canvas. De Riaz made a beautiful stand, but Hack's position was perfect. His weight and strength were directed at the point of weakest resistance. Twice, three times, the little Frenchman heaved, but Hackenschmidt sprawled against his sturdy chest and with a last feeble effort to dislodge the upper man, De Riaz succumbed, while the entire house waved their hats and shouted their praise for the beaten man and the wonderful wrestler who flattened him. The time was 24 minutes 25 seconds.

"A plucky man, a wonderful little man, a grand wrestler, too," said Hackenschmidt, breathlessly, as he patted De Riaz on the shoulder. In the dressing room he said more, warmly complimenting the little fellow on his strength, his cleverness, and his wrestling ability. There was no reluctant praise from Hack. He gave it freely and warmly.

"He's too big. Too great a man for me," said De Riaz. "But you bet I learn lots. Zbysko and Hackenschmidt in my first two matches. I have done enough. Yes? A man my own size I should like to wrestle now."

A NEW TEAM

The members of Sacred Heart T. A. S. have organized a hockey team with most encouraging prospects. They have plenty of material and should make a good showing in whatever league they decide to enter. It is just possible that they may place a team in the City League, but nothing definite has been decided. The following officers were elected:

Hon President—Rev. Dr. O'Brien.
President—Jas. Murray.
1st Vice-President—R Picard
Secretary-Treasurer—A. Letellier.
Manager—Wm. Grady.
Executive—Jas. Neary, Cyril Sullivan, Cal. Condon.

BUCK IRVING HAS NOT WAKENED UP YET

The following from the Toronto Globe from our old friend Buck Irving is amusing. The article Mr. Irving refers to was published in the hope of awakening him from his dream and showing him that there was no possibility of professional hockey in Peterborough but it does not seem to have had the desired effect.

Read Mr. Irving's letter:

Sporting Editor Globe: Concerning an article that appeared in The Globe this morning from Mr. R. M. Glover to the effect that Peterborough has not, nor will not, take any interest in the Eastern Ontario Hockey League, I would like through the valuable columns of your paper to say that Mr. Glover is badly mistaken, and his statement is very misleading. Mr. Meharry and others of Peterborough were the first to suggest the new league. If the citizens of Peterborough desire professional hockey they will most likely have it, even against the wishes of the said R. M. Glover. Messrs. Purser Bros. of Cobourg will decide as to the stand Cobourg takes, not Mr Scott. Thanking you for the valuable space in your paper.

N. E. Irving, Secretary, E.O.H.L.

AND THE EVENING AND THE MORNING WERE THE LAST DAY

A Short Story

Lieutenant Thorne and Trooper Smith found themselves stranded and helpless amongst the sand and scrub in the Eastern Soudan, a wilderness broken here and there by low bushes. The faint blast of a bugle, which drifted down to them on the evening air, intensified the solitude through the suggestion of safety beyond reach.

A few days earlier they were on a troopship at the mouth of the Red Sea. The 50th Hussars had completed their term of service in India, and were going home. They almost felt the strong salt of the English Channel smite their cheeks, and soften the stifling heat of the furnace. A signal from Aden arrested the rhythmic throb of the engines. The troops were paraded on deck to receive a message. Osman Digna had broken out again, and the improvised British force required to be strengthened. They were ordered to land at an open beach below Suakim to join in the attack on the Dervish villages. As history records, the action was fought successfully, and the Dervishes were scattered, for a while, to their mountain strongholds.

The cavalry had been searching the recesses of a valley, and were leisurely trotting back to camp in the afternoon with a flock of sheep as their only booty, when the alarm sounded; for the plain, a solitude when they crossed it in the morning, was now alive with skirmishers. The charge was given, and they swept twice through the bush; the enemy crouching under cover, cutting at the horses as they passed. It was difficult to find the elusive foe; more difficult and dangerous to discover the fallen bodies of their comrades, or, indeed, to satisfy themselves that the few riderless horses bolting around meant loss of life. In some instances the unhorsed trooper managed to recover his mount, or clambered behind another saddle. It was by chance that during the last effort to clear the bush Trooper Smith had lighted upon Lieutenant Thorne in a gully to which he had crawled for shelter when bruised and sprained by the fall of his horse. Smith dismounted, and whilst leaning over the young officer, suffered the rein to slip from his arm. His own horse, fidgetty and excited, broke away at once, and galloped after the tail of theforce.

It was wearing towards evening. There was no means of attracting attention without bringing a stray Dervish upon them, provided they were able to hide close for the night, the ground would be searched for the wounded in the morning.

The green, gold, and violets of the sky deepened to dark purple. With the passing of the sun the earth suddenly grew cold. The men drew closer to one another. They shared their biscuits, and emptied the officer's flask. It was dangerous for both of them to sleep. Only patience could serve, and they beguiled the long watch by talking in low tones.

"Deuced bad luck that 'Dandy' put his foe tin a hole when we were so nearly through the business, though it is always like that in war. A hundred bullets will dodge you, and you get pitched on your head on parade."

"Yes, sir," replied Smith, "but the luck is against the cavalry. These infantry fellows are picked up, but the horses sweep on so fast that you can never count your loss, and our poor chaps are left to die."

"Never mind, Smith, there are two of us. Meanwhile, don't 'Sir' me. We two are alone facing death. God knows how soon. We are just comrades, no more, no less. When we are back in camp, if you don't salute me, then I will have you brought to the drum head, you rascal."

"Very well. It is a bit rough on us both to be caught on the road home, and sent to fight savages who don't take prisoners, shout their gibberish prayers over the wounded and sick and stick 'em."

"The Colonel told us it was a great honour," put in Thorne slyly.

"Yes, and we all shouted for the Queen and the flag, but blame me if the women and children were not snivelling and crying when we got down below."

"Come, there is something in it, Smith, the honour and glory of it all."

"I suppose there is, but what does it come to. A square of silk or bunting crossed by bars of colors, and you would sell your soul for it, or soak it with your blood. My impression is, Lieutenant, we are not Christians at all at heart, but just the same as any idol fellow. I don't see much difference—one fights for an image, and another for a flag."

"It is not the bunting, Smith, as you very well know. See what is caught in the folds of that flag—the honour of the nation, the history of England. Think of it; planted in every part of the world; in arctic and torrid zone alike, the symbol of our little islands, and their laws, and—"

"Yes, I know all about it, sir, but just at present I would swap a great deal of the honour and glory for another quart of that muddy water they gave us at Trinkitat, with no more for drinking and washing before we had fought the enemy and captured the wells."

"Never mind, Smith, never mind; we will have a rare feast when we get back to camp. If there is a bottle to be had in all Suakim by Jove we will divide it, share and share alike, man."

"Go to blazes with you," cried Smith, pitching a pebble into the darkness.

"What's up there?" said his companion.

"Only one of those ferretty wild things which rummage after dead bodies; outlandish creatures made to match the fuzzy wuzzies, their friends. I thought I heard a muzzling movement; then I saw a pair of green eyes, but he has gone. They are awful cowards. Hark! hear him give tongue."

For a little while they were silent. In the abstract, it does not matter what becomes of us when we are once dead, but it is difficult to avoid contrasting the funeral march, and the final volley, with the tearing and crunching of the scavengers of the desert.

"I borrowed a florin from old Robinson. He'll be wild when he finds I don't come back to pay him." Smith chuckled softly to himself at the idea of Robinson's discomfiture.

"By the bye, Smith, that reminds me that I have a bet on 'Batswing' with Captain Bennett. If you survive just look out the paper, there's a good chap, when the Lincolnshire is run, you know. Ask the Colonel to be kind enough to collect the bet, or see it is paid, as the case may be. He's the right sort, and will interest himself, I know, in clearing up my affairs."

"It is hard upon us young ones to die in cold blood, even for the flag," continued Smith in a ruminating voice. "Get shot in action and you don't feel it."

"That's true," replied his companion. "Even if you linger, pain and fever will not leave you much thought for other people. There's my mother, Smith, think of her, not so very old too. I am her only son. She will mourn for me for years. She will wake in the night crying out, listening to the howl of these savages; hearing the whistle of the spear finishing with a thud. Ah! it will be worse for her than for me."

"Well, sir—Lieutenant, I mean—it has not come to that yet. We may be lucky enough to get off. At any rate we will take our fate together."

"No, no, old boy, you will stand by me to the morning, not a moment later. When it is light you get away. If you bring them back, all's well. If not, there are a dozen cartridges left, and there's my sword. I will face death standing, even on one leg. Tell them that I died game."

"I will never leave you, sir, but don't take it so much to heart. It will be a bad enough breakfast when

WEDDING BELLS

CAIN—YOUNG.

Wednesday morning at 8 o'clock a very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Mary's church, Lindsay, when Miss Margaret Loretta Cain, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Cain, was united in marriage to Mr. Robt Jas. Young, of Peterborough.

The nuptial mass was celebrated by Venerable Archdeacon Casey, who also performed the ceremony.

The bride was given away by her father, while the bridesmaid was Miss Minnie Cain, cousin of the bride. Mr. Jas. Cain assisted the groom.

The bride was handsomely attired in a blue travelling suit and black plumed hat.

The bridesmaid was gowned in a gray taupe suit and black hat with white feather. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome set of furs, and to the bridesmaid a beautiful ring with opals and amethysts, and to the groom, gold cuff links.

After the ceremony at the church the happy couple drove to the residence of the bride's parents where a wedding breakfast was partaken of and where they received the congratulations of those assembled.

The popularity of the bride was attested by the many beautiful presents she received.

Mr. and Mrs. Young left at noon on the C.P.R. for Toronto and points west. On their return they will reside at 533 Rogers street, East city. Mr. Young conducts an implement business here.

it comes; we don't want to cut it up into too many courses. Ah! it's a tighter place we are in than we expected when we started soldiering."

"We took it for better or worse, Smith, and we won't brag about it. It wasn't for the good of our country that we started, but to enjoy a jolly open life, eh! man. We were to get boon companionship; a bit of discipline; some excitement; a fine profession; with a dose of active service, and a reputable pensioned age. It has become grim earnest for us. If we have lost the stake we will keep our honour."

"Put it in your own way, sir, but I enlisted for a different reason. To tell the honest truth I quarrelled with my sweetheart, because she took up with a policeman. A pretty little slip of a girl she is too. When I had taken the 'shilling' to spite her, I found that the policeman was a married man, and it was all a mistake. She lives down Mile End; a dear little girl, chestnut hair, and grey blue eyes, with such a saucy turn of her head. Many a time I have bussed it up with her to Hyde Park on Sunday afternoon just to show her off amongst the swells, as neat and dapper a ladybird as any of them. I wrote her that we were coming home, and 'I was quite well as it left me, hoping that it would find her the same.' We are not great hands at letter writing, she and I, but she is honest and means to wait for me. I was looking to see her at Tilbury in the black hat with the tea rose—"

"Look here, Smith, this is my pocket-book, do you see—the tissue paper. There is a grey curl of hair; that is my mother's. Another, a black curl, that is somebody else's. Ask the Colonel to send them home with the photograph. No. 1 will take out the hair, and slip it under my shirt, but keep the portrait. I don't want the girl to be stared at by those grinning beasts. Never grieve, man, it will come all right somehow, somewhere else."

"That's all very well," grumbled the trooper, "but it's rather cold comfort. I should like to have had a mouthful of this world before trying the next. The chaplain read out that there was to be neither marriage or giving in marriage. Three little rooms for me down Mile End way, with geraniums in the window; the kettle just on the boil; Mary getting tea; the kiddies on the floor; but there—"

There was something like a choke in the Lieutenant's voice before he replied. "You and I don't look for crowns and tambourines, I t somehow I believe we shall have another chance, and be no worse off than if we hadn't enlisted and got shot, or stuck, before we were thirty."

Smith was quiet for a minute, and then said with an effort, "I ain't much good at the chaplain's talk, but I have tried to go straight. It's not hard to deal justly with the Colonel, God bless him, but to keep even with the sergeant is another matter. I haven't shirked orders; have buckled up the weaker lot, and prepared to face death like a man. Sometimes I have mistaken my conscience for my liver, but I don't set up as a model."

Thorne felt for his companion's arm in the dark, and caught at his wrist. "It is my mother who is about me in these moments, speaking to me as she did when I was a lad; her arms around my neck; her breath on my cheek. It is her prayer which is my religion. To Whom it goes I don't know; I was going to say I don't care, so long as she is praying for me."

"It is hard, sir, for a man with no learning to teach a gentleman like you, but it seems to me that there must be Somebody, somewhere, a source of it all, even of the love of our mothers and wives."

"It may be so," answered the other man, "or it may be all pure imagination; a God, the big shadow of a man like ourselves. Why should we make believe, it can do no good. What skill have we to find a pathway through those stars above us to another world? If so, where is it, where are the sign posts; how do we go?"

"Yes, sir, it is very puzzling. I have tried to puzzle it out by myself and got confused, but here we are, better than the horses we ride. Understanding those stars, measuring them and weighing them as I am told clever men do, it seems to me that it is as much a miracle for a man to have got into the world and to be as he is, as to get out of it again. At any rate something whispers to me—"

A breeze swept through the bushes behind them, and made them start. The cold of the night had laid its paralyzing hand upon their courage. The sprained ankle began to throb painfully, and Thorne caught his breath as he shifted his position.

"This is almost unendurable, waiting in this hole for death," he exclaimed. "Better go and face it at once. Leaning on your shoulder I could jump along a few paces at a time, and then rest. We might manage by tedious laps to get a mile nearer safety."

The other man grumbled a negative. "No. Our only chance is in lying close until somebody comes. If we were in the open we were bound to be discovered. If I were a stronger man I would carry you, but you are so much bigger than I. We could not make half a mile before morning."

"You are right, man, and the effort would use up your strength leaving nothing for the crisis."

They fell silent again, but the night spoke with a hundred voices. Shivering gasps of wind harried the trees and wandered away to be lost in the desert. There were low murmurs blending into a continuous hum as if the earth were crooning herself to sleep—lost in her own velocity. The stars, brilliant points, flashed and crackled in the heavens above them.

"Lieutenant, I know you will do something for me. I have no photographs, no locks of hair, but here you are. This is the last letter I had from her. I will just write on the back of it, 'God bless you and keep you always.' I said I'll write, but I must light up first."

"Don't be a fool," interposed Thorne, "the match will betray us."

"It's quite safe. I'll hold it in my cap so. Now I can see. There's nice handwriting for you:

'Yours with truest affection,
Anna Mary Green.'

"Here goes, 'God bless—'"

"Look out, Smith," said Thorne hoarsely, "there is someone moving around."

His companion nipped the match, and gripped the revolver. The two men listened for a moment. It was a sound like stalking footsteps. Once or twice it recurred, and then the darkness swallowed it.

As the night waned, sleep laid a soft heavy paw upon them. The nervous tension relaxed. Though they were still aware of their danger, the desire for the truce of unconsciousness overpowered alarm. Sleep they must for however short a time. They would lose themselves for a minute or two; droop against each other, or nod forward; revive to see the situation in a fog; blend reality with mirage; hear voices of their comrades talking to them; the clatter of the camp mess; men going about their work carelessly whistling. Then back with a start to the grim reality that the day was breaking. First a grey which blurred the darkness, then a struggle between life and death. The east suddenly flamed, a bath of pink; shafts of gold; an illumination answered by a shout from the newly risen earth. Hark! what sound is borne down upon the wind to them? The bugles again. Hope is fresh born; the day has put all things right. They looked up triumphantly to a sky fast deepening to its native blue.

Suddenly Smith cried out. "There are upon us, Lieutenant. Cover them with the revolver, so. Is your hand steady? Let me have it; the pain has worn you out. Mind the spears. See! that fellow behind has a blunderbuss. Here goes, I'll keep the two last cartridges; do they ever make prisoners?"

"Good heart, man," exclaimed Thorne.

"God help us," said the other.

* * * * *

"What now, Railton?" said the Colonel, looking up from the pile of boxes which served as a writing table.

The sergeant saluted. "We have found two of the missing."

"Where?" said the Colonel, laconically, deep in his report.

"In a shallow donga, close to where the cavalry charged," replied the sergeant.

"You will tell the General that I have brought the report as far as possible up to date," said the Colonel, turning to his companion, an officer lying back in a desk chair, smoking.

"That's all right," said the other. "Who are these poor beggars they have found?"

"Thorne, a promising young fellow, and one of the troopers—Smith; was not that his name?"

"Yes, sir; rather stubborn, but a good man for all that. We shall miss him. The Lieutenant would have gone to the top."

"Anything left upon them?" inquired the Colonel.

"Stripped to their shirts, of course," said the sergeant. "I found some hair in a bit of paper soaked with blood, and the other had torn up a letter; nothing else."

"Fortune of war," said the Colonel. "In the midst of life, you know. Warn your men, Railton; we have orders to retire upon Sunakim."

"Poor devils," said the officer who was waiting for the report. "It is the hardest lot of all to lie through the night, waiting for 'kingdom come.' By the bye, old Fairless is to join us next week; rare chap for stories. Do you remember that good chestnut of his about the sparrow served up for quail at the 'Drum and Tatters?'"

"We bury them at sundown," put in the sergeant.

"That's right; firing party, everything regular," said the Colonel, "but don't mark the grave; dig deep enough; run the soil down and litter the surface. . . . Yes, I remember Fairless very well."

A WONDERFUL MACHINE.

Calgary Man Claims to Be Mysterious Prairie Aviator.

Calgary, Nov. 18.—At last comes vindication for certain "seers" in Canada, who, for some time past have been made the butt of rude jokes because they claimed to have seen a mysterious airship which traveled with wonderful speed.

The mysterious machine, according to a man here, who as yet travels incog., is a reality, and in it he claims he has gone 100 miles in an hour. It is rather staggering to hear him tell of leaving a point near Calgary at 9 p.m. and reaching Portland, Ore., the following night an hour before the bells rang midnight.

The machine is equipped with a 90 horse-power, six-cylinder engine. The wings measure 27 1-2 feet from tip to tip, and from the nose to the tip of the tail the measurements is 32 feet. The machine will, it is believed, carry four passengers, though three is the largest number he has had in it so far.

Many improvements of a birdlike nature are incorporated in this latest invention. When the inventor makes his next machine it will have several pairs of wings. That is the way he will increase its carrying capacity, as well as by enlarging the wings. He declares it is capable of extension to at least six pairs of wings.

All the steering is done by a wheel like that of an automobile. The circular motion guides it sideways. The rear is set in a slot, and moving it backward and forward raises or lowers the machine. The speed is also governed from attachments on the steering wheel.

Wife and Son Convict Him.

New York, Nov. 18.—Lee P. Woodward, 43 years old, a college graduate, and a member of an old and honored Pennsylvania family, was sentenced yesterday to five years at Sing Sing, and adjudged a habitual criminal by Judge Malone of the General Sessions. It was an affidavit from Woodward's divorced wife that caused the judge to give the prisoner the limit for his offence. He has served several prison terms.

Last February, Woodward, who was then living at Columbus, N.J., passed a bad check for $99.

Mrs. Carrie Woodward, the man's former wife, said: "In my belief, he is beyond redemption. Nothing can induce him to lead an honest life. Our son, now 21 years old, joins me in appealing to you to inflict upon him such punishment as will, in your wisdom, relieve us and society from the menace of his presence. Our only daughter, who died at 16, told me on her deathbed that her father's conduct had broken her heart, and filled her life with shame, and that she did not care whether she lived or died."

A Brazilian Household Pet.

Brazilians train a snake called the giboia, as a rat catcher. It is fifteen feet long, is harmless to the human being, becomes quite a household pet, is lazy in the daytime, but at night roams about the house in quest of its prey—rats. These animals it promptly kills by twisting their necks. When Brazilians have to pass from room to room in the dark they first put on their slippers. It would not be pleasant to plant one's bare feet on a cold, slimy snake of that size.

Human Life Held Cheap.

Fort William, Nov. 19.—Giving as his opinion that human life is held as cheaply as that of cattle on the docks of Fort William and Port Arthur, Acting Mayor Rankin of Fort William yesterday announced his intention to inaugurate a campaign for a commission of enquiry, and the ultimate supervision of harbor by the Provincial Government.

The death rate in the two harbors for the past three years has been approximately two a month, largely due to falling from buckets and accidents on the package freight vessels.

Talked of Lynching.

Welland, Nov. 19.—Robert Bright, a negro resident of Fort Erie, Ont., is accused of attempting to hold up Mrs. Oakley of Bridgeburg. She was walking home from a neighbor's house and was attacked by the negro, it is alleged. Robbery is believed to have been his purpose. Bright was captured a few moments later by two men. A crowd of forty men assembled around the lock-up and talked of lynching.

Asquith Launches Britain Into Another Big Election

Government Has Advised His Majesty That the Present Parliament Should End and Liberals Will Throw the Veto Question Before the People.

London, Nov. 19.—Yesterday's brief sessions of the two Houses of Parliament are likely to prove to be the turning point in the history of the House of Lords as at present constituted.

The older Conservatives view the march of events with anxious concern, and are loudly lamenting the disappearance of the hereditary principle as the basis of the Upper Chamber; but, whatever may result, a second appeal to the nation arising from the struggle between the two houses, appears certain, as it does that henceforth lective and selective bases will enter into the constitution of the House of Lords.

Interest in the situation has now been transferred to the constituencies. The belief to-day is that the Lords will not attempt to pass the second reading of the veto bill on the conditions imposed by Premier Asquith.

Mr. Asquith will open the Liberal campaign with a speech at the National Liberal Club to-day, and in it he is expected to develop the Government's policy at length. All the other leaders are booked for speeches in quick succession.

It is the intention of the Government to pass the essential features of the budget, namely, the income tax, tea duty and sinking fund provisions; remove the pauper disqualification for old age pensions, and to dissolve Parliament on Nov. 28 should the Lords in the meantime reject the veto bill.

Presenting his program in the House of Commons yesterday, Premier Asquith said that he had hoped, up to the last moment, that the veto conference would reach a settlement. There never had been a more honest or more sustained attempt of men of strong and conflicting convictions to find a basis of agreement upon which to build a structure promising stability and endurance.

"The House," said the Premier, "will be prepared for my announcement that the Government has advised His Majesty when the work is accomplished to bring both this session and this Parliament to an end. It is useless to continue the farce longer. To reform the House of Lords and at the same time permit it to retain its right of veto of necessary legislation, is simply to make a farce of Government. The suggestions of compromise that have been made have not been for the interests of all of the people. The Government has a distinct program planned and that program is to be carried out.

"The Cabinet has discussed all of the suggestions of compromise and has decided that none of them is feasible. It has therefore recommended to King George that Parliament be dissolved on Nov. 28. It would be the idlest affectation to pretend any doubt as to what the real decision will be," he said, referring to the result of the general elections.

Pressed for a statement on the subject of guarantees from the crown, Premier Asquith said that his declaration of last April still represented the deliberate intentions of the Government.

"I decline now," he declared, "and shall continue to decline to make a statement regarding the advice which I may have given or hereafter may give. The King stands aloof from all our political and electoral controversies, and it is the duty of his subjects, as well as of his Ministers, to maintain secure his absolute detachment from the arena of party struggle."

The Liberals of the Lower House generally interpret Mr. Asquith's statement yesterday as indicating that he has obtained a conditional guarantee from the King.

The debate dragged on throughout the afternoon to an almost empty house. Mr. Redmond took no part in the discussion, but it is understood that the Nationalists fully approve the Government's proposals. Mr. Balfour declared the Premier's course "unprecedented and unconstitutional," and Barnes, a Labor party leader, said his party would not vote if a vote were taken.

Armand Lavergne Denies Use Of Racial Appeals In The Election

Spoke for the Nationalist Party Before Toronto Students Last Evening---Only Asks That Canada Preserve Her National Autonomy.

Toronto, Nov. 19.—Armand Lavergne, the mild young hero of French Canada, who has assisted in making Premiers tremble and Governments totter and constitutions shake to their parchment foundations, addressed the Varsity "Lit" last night in Convocation Hall, which was two-thirds filled for the occasion.

President Wilkie's introduction was punctuated with applause for the loyal students uttered and the praise of free speech, British rights and equal opportunities which he voiced.

Mr. Lavergne in the opening of his address deprecated the ordinary conception of the habitant as a simple, primitive creature, with home-spun cap on his head; who speaks a language which in France would be called patois, with a sprinkling of English words! and that the only ruler he knows is his parish priest, who will give him a seat in heaven if he pays his dues, and consign his heretic neighbor to a warmer place.

No purer or better immigrant came to any country. They were great explorers, Champlain, Marquette, La Salle and other travelers remaining as types, and the gentilhomme of the old regime was a good fighter who had learned to look on his conqueror as an equal.

"We think the best way to save the Empire, to upbuild the Empire, is to work for our own country. We think the only way to maintain the integrity of the Empire is to maintain the autonomy of its component parts.

"We think that this policy of Imperial relation, of taking part in every war, be it just or unjust, that Britain sees fit to undertake means a considerable change, and the people should be given an opportunity to express their opinions about it.

"We French-Canadians have no other country but the land of our love and the land of our hope," said Mr. Lavergne, speaking of the French connection.

But he thought that Britain acted as much for her own interests. She preferred her Anglo-Japanese alliance to the salvation of British Columbia for her own flesh and blood. Still he believed that they ought to defend the colonies of Great Britain.

"I myself, with my Nationalist reputation, belong to the militia of this country," he said. "But I think we should not jump blindfolded into the maelstorm of militarism. I think we can say we shall never be any cause of conflict for Great Britain. We think the Parliament of Canada should be put on an equal footing with the Parliament at Westminster. We should abide by the old British principle, 'no taxation without representation.' I see no way to that without decentralization. The best way of settlement is through the Imperial Conference."

"Our navy can be put to service outside Canada, and without the consent of Canada. This is an entire change of the constitution. I believe in a navy, if it is a Canadian navy. It should be under the control of the Canadian Parliament. It is quite different when it is under the Governor-General in council. If Parliament were not sitting it could be consulted in fifteen days. If the governor himself had power to send the fleet to war what was the good of consulting the Parliament afterwards?

"This was the position they had taken in Drummond and Arthabasca. They had spoken the same language, he asserted, "as he had just used.

"We did not need racial appeals in Drummond and Arthabasca. Common sense gave us the victory.

"But I want to make a full confession. Racial appeals have been made, but not by our side. It was by those who went among the parishes and said 'Vote for the navy and Imperial preference.

"I have in the course of my career appealed to my countrymen when I appealed to them to arise above party, and when my fellow-countrymen have been told that the English were narrow and I appealed to them not to accept such a view. I have appealed to them when I asked them to respect the rights and liberties of the English-speaking minority."

Suffragettes Reopen Hostilities Against The Government

London, Nov. 19.—The militant suffragettes reopened hostilities against the Government yesterday, and marching 1,000 strong on the Parliament buildings, gave the police a lively fight. The women, many of whom were placed under arrest, were led by Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst.

The suffragettes had determined, if possible, to force the police cordon about the House of Commons and, reaching Premier Asquith, to insist upon the introduction of a women's suffrage bill. The police, however, were too strongly entrenched, and the women who tried every means in their power to force the line were thrown back.

Repeatedly they retired breathless and dishevelled, only to have their places on the fighting line taken by reserves.

Before the House of Commons had adjourned for the day 108 suffragettes and supporters had been jailed. After the women had exhausted themselves all the arrests occurred with monotonous regularity. The women presented a sorry spectacle when the battle was over. The dresses of many were torn and their hair hung down. Hats, handbags and bits of feminine apparel and torn banners littered the ground.

Opposition Raising Question of Welcome to Catholic Prelates.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 19.—Emperor Nicholas yesterday had an audience with the procurator of the holy synod, M. Lukianoff, to whom he expressed the wish that Count Tolstoi be buried according to the orthodox rite, even if a reconciliation between the author and the church were not effected.

The holy synod has been discussing the question of rescinding the old decree of excommunication against Tolstoi. Premier Stolypin is urging the synod to lose no time in deciding the question one way or another. He points out the consequence of refusing Christian burial in some form.

The repudiation of his error on Tolstoi's part, however, is absolutely necessary before the synod can go against the canon law regarding excommunication. It is believed that the Bishop of Tamboff has gone to Astapova to ascertain the views on this point of Tolstoi, either from himself or his immediate friends.

The text of the telegram from the Metropolitan Antonius is as follows:

"Since the very first moment of your rupture with the church I incessantly prayed, and I pray now that God may restore you to the church. Possibly He is soon to summon you to the judgment seat. I implore in your sickness now to reconcile yourself with the church and the orthodox Russian people. May God bless you."

Count Tcherkoff and the other attendants decided not to submit the telegram to Tolstoi in his present condition.

It was learned that Tolstoi's condition was practically unchanged yesterday afternoon. Four physicians are making constant efforts to aid the heart, the weakness of which is the source of the chief danger. Other symptoms are said to be encouraging. The fever has disappeared, and the inflammation of the lungs has made slight progress since Thursday.

The novelist remains conscious, and although extremely weak, is cheerful and confident of ultimate recovery.

Fatally Crushed.

Chatham, Nov. 19.—Christopher Boyce, while moving his traction engine Thursday night, got under the boiler to make a repair. In some way the boiler fell on him and fatally crushed him.

DRIVEN TO WEDLOCK

And Handicapped by an Inheritance

By ADDISON HOWARD GIBSON

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Alf Bennett was sitting at his desk making up copy for the Chicago Times when the postman entered and carelessly tossed him a letter. Alf was somewhat new to the business, and his shabby suit and rusty shoes gave evidence that his checks, "like angels' visits," were few and far between. Yet in spite of this there was an open, honest expression on the man's face that inspired confidence.

He picked up the letter, tore it open and began reading:

Los Angeles, Cal., June 20, '01.

Dear Nephew: When you read this I shall be in my grave. My Arizona mines have brought me considerable wealth, and my lawyer will inform you that I have made you my heir, but on one condition—that you marry May Grayson, daughter of the man who gave his life to save mine when the Indians attacked the camp twelve years ago.

May is heart free as yet, and I have reason to believe you are the same.

My lawyer, F. B. Goodfriend, will arrange for you to meet her. Inclosed is a check for $100. Come to California immediately. Your uncle,

DANIEL T. ROCKWELL.

"Hang it!" he ejaculated as he surveyed the situation. "I'd like to know how it would seem to be a rich man. Of course anybody would. But why didn't he marry some nice woman himself and have a family of his own to leave his money to? That would have left me out entirely. But—oh, plague take that condition!"

Thinking there might be, after all, some qualifying clause in the will whereby this annoying feature could be avoided, he arrayed himself in a new suit, bought his ticket and left Chicago by an early train.

Arrived in Los Angeles, he immediately sought the office of F. B. Goodfriend and introduced himself as Alfred D. Bennett of Chicago, nephew of the late Daniel T. Rockwell.

"Glad to meet you, Mr. Bennett! Take a seat, and we will talk matters over."

"There is one feature of my uncle's will that gives me a good deal of annoyance," remarked the young man, seating himself near the lawyer.

"Which one is that?"

"The one obliging me to marry a girl I have never seen. It is perfectly ridiculous!"

The lawyer laughed till his fat sides shook. "Why, that's the best part of the whole will!"

"The worst part, you mean," said Alf desperately. "But isn't there any modifying clause? There surely must be."

"No, there is none until you have tried and failed to woo and win the lady of your uncle's choice."

"I don't suppose the young lady likes the situation any better than I do."

"I don't know that she does, but Miss Grayson had a daughter's love for your late uncle and humored all his vagaries," returned the lawyer, trying to hide his amusement at the young man's irritation.

"Look here, Bennett. Come and sit down and we'll talk business. I admit, if you please, the singularity of the condition though it seems more unaccountable to you than to me. But you would like the money your uncle has left? Now, frankly, wouldn't you?"

"Of course I would."

"That's honest, and I respect you for the admission. Now, listen. You have never met the girl. Who knows but an acquaintance may prove satisfactory to both? At any rate, you two must meet. The will specifies that. Miss Grayson is spending the summer with her aunt, who owns a large olive orchard about sixty miles from the city. I am an old friend of the family. Leave it all to me and I'll arrange a meeting. You can then tell whether the condition is entirely obnoxious or not. What do you say, young man?"

"I'll do as you advise," replied Alf, who, having cooled off, was making an effort to view the affair in a business light. "It won't do any harm to see the girl."

Three weeks later, Bennett took the morning express out of the city, bound for the little station sixty miles distant. Arriving there, he was disappointed to find no conveyance awaiting him and was just starting for the little hotel, the only one that the place could boast, when a buggy came rapidly up to the station platform and stopped.

The agent hurried out to meet the driver, who was a slender young girl, beautiful as a wild rose, with full dark eyes and a wealth of hair that seemed to reflect the warm sunshine.

"Did Mr. Bennett come on the train, do you know?" she inquired in a sweet, clear voice. "Mrs. Grayson sent me to meet her guest."

"I am Mr Bennett," said the traveler, stepping forward and lifting his hat to the fair driver.

"I have come to drive you to Mrs. Grayson's," returned the girl.

"Thank you." And he sprang in lightly and seated himself by her side. "Do you wish me to take the reins?" he asked.

"Oh, no, thank you! Billy objects to strangers," she replied.

"Too bad I have put you to the trouble of coming so far, though," said the young man, stealing a sidewise glance at the lovely face so close to his own.

"I don't mind the drive at all. Besides, I was almost obliged to come," she admitted with charming frankness. "I hope you are going to enjoy your visit, Mr. Bennett. I know mamma and May will do all they can to make your stay pleasant."

"So you are Miss Grayson also? I didn't know there were two Miss Graysons."

"Yes, two May Graysons. But I am commonly called Mazie to distinguish me from my more dignified Cousin May."

Two May Graysons! It was strange that Lawyer Goodfriend had not mentioned that fact to him before he came. "Mazie' She is a perfect little bundle of sweet mystery," thought Alf. "If the May Grayson referred to in the will is but half as bright and winsome as this girl by my side I won't find it such a hard matter to live up to that condition after all. And yet I don't know that I really want to live up to it now that I have seen Mazie."

Mr. Alfred Bennett found a very cordial welcome awaiting him at the pleasant home of Mrs. Grayson. May Grayson—the May—was a nice looking, stately girl of twenty-one, with a beautiful crown of nut brown hair and clear, expressive gray eyes. She was bright and intelligent, and he was forced to admit after an hour spent in her company that there was nothing of the mining camp style in her manners. He liked her very well, too, and might have fallen in love with her if he had not met Mazie first. Bright, merry Mazie! She charmed him more and more as days and weeks went by. And yet she studied to avoid him in every possible way, and she succeeded almost always in forcing him into the company of her cousin, thus escaping any marked attention he might wish to pay to herself.

But this scheming on her part did not lead young Bennett to bestow any warmer affection on Miss May. Ere long he made the discovery that his life would be an intolerable failure if he was obliged to live it without Mazie. The struggle between this love and the desire to gain possession of his deceased uncle's wealth was over, and as he arose one morning he announced to himself:

"May Grayson may have half the money and the orphan asylum the other half for all I care! I'll be true to the love that has crept into my heart. I'll marry Mazie if I can win her. With her by my side I shall be brave and strong enough to earn my own wealth."

Having thus decided in his own mind, the young man set out for a stroll through the pretty little meadow.

Suddenly he became upon a tiny figure in white. "Out for a morning constitutional, Mr. Bennett?" she inquired. "It is an ideal morning, as Cousin May would say."

"You are always thrusting 'Cousin May' at me," Alf returned, with some slight irritation. "But it is you I wish to speak with this 'ideal morning.' I am going to leave tonight, and I must say something to you before I go."

"We'd be sorry to have you leave us with anything burdening your mind, Mr. Bennett."

"You know, I suppose, why I came here?"

"I believe so," she said.

"Well, I want to inform you that the condition in my uncle's will can never be complied with now."

"Is that so?" came from her lips in feigned surprise. "It will be such a pity for you to lose the fortune."

"Yes, but I have learned that there is something better than riches. It is love, Marie. I cannot begin to tell you how tenderly I love you. I want you to be my wife."

"What! After all the attentions you have been showing Cousin May?"

"You are responsible for those attentions.' How else could it be when you persisted in throwing us together so often?"

"I think you are very fickle."

"No; I am very constant. I haven't ceased loving you a single minute since I first saw you. Can't you love me just a little, Mazie?"

"I'm afraid not."

"Won't you try to love me, dearest?"

"I don't need to try, Alf," she replied, looking up into his face with a shy smile.

"You sweet deceiver!" he cried, catching her in his arms and pressing her to his heart. "You were fooling me all the time."

"Yes, for, much as I was growing to love you, I resolved not to let you know," she said, freeing herself from his arms, "because, you see— Oh, there is Mr. Goodfriend!" she cried, rushing forward to greet the lawyer, who had come unannounced.

"Oh, I saw it all, children," he said, shaking hands first with Mazie, then with Alf. "I didn't cover my eyes. I came unexpectedly on the night express and got here in time for breakfast. Mrs. Grayson told me I'd find you both down by the meadow. I arrived in time to see that you two have come to an understanding."

"Yes, sir," said Alf decidedly. "I've concluded to enjoy love in a cottage with Mazie rather than take Miss Grayson with all my uncle's money."

"Love in a cottage! Oh, the refreshing youth!" And Goodfriend broke into a hearty laugh, in which Mazie could not help joining. "Pardon me, Bennett," said the lawyer, wiping the mirth shed tears from his eyes, "but you are the victim of your own blunder."

"Blunder? I don't understand you, sir," said Alf.

"Of course not!" And the lawyer went off into another convulsion of laughter. "This sprite, whom you took to be the daughter of Mrs. Grayson because of a pet way she has of calling her 'mamma,' is the true May Grayson referred to in your uncle's will."

One month later the "annoying condition" in the will was complied with.

HOW SKIN-TROUBLES HAVE BEEN CURED

A Remarkable Record of Itching, Burning, Disfiguring Eruptions Successfully Treated.

That those who have suffered long and hopelessly from eczema and other torturing, disfiguring eruptions of the skin and scalp and who have lost faith in all manner of treatment, may learn that there is one way to find immediate relief, the following remarkable series of condensed testimonials is published:

W. H. White, 312 E. Cabot St., Philadelphia: Knee to ankle a mass of eruption. Suffering simply indescribable for six long years. Had to scratch till blood ran and health was undermined from lack of sleep. Cuticura Remedies cured it without a mark.

Mrs. M. C. Maitland, Jasper, Ont.: Itchy rash on her baby's head when but three months old. It spread over entire body. Put mittens on him to prevent tearing skin. Reduced to a skeleton. One bath with Cuticura Soap and application of Cuticura Ointment soothed him to sleep. A single set cured him. Thinks child would have died but for Cuticura Remedies.

Mrs. Wm. Hunt, 250 Fairmount Ave., Newark, N. J.: Whole body a mass of raw, torturing eczema. Agony was beyond words. Hair all fell out and ears seemed ready to drop off. Clothing would stick to bleeding flesh. Hoped death would soon end fearful suffering. Cuticura Remedies cooled the itching, bleeding flesh at once and soon cured her.

Mme. J. B. Renaud, 277, Mentana St., Montreal: Treated by doctors 25 years for bad eczema on leg. It peeled from knee down; foot like raw flesh. Doctor advised cutting leg off. Decided to try Cuticura Remedies first. In two months' use of Cuticura Remedies she was cured.

Mrs. Nora Emmott, 26, Lena Gardens, Brook Green, London: Two little girls had dreadful scalp trouble that doctors called ringworm. Cried with intense itching. Hospital treatment gave frightful pain but did no good. Suffered three years, cured by three sets of Cuticura Soap and Ointment.

H. A. Kruskoff, 5714 Wabash Ave., Chicago: Itching eruption spread from hands to body. Literally tore his skin off in shreds. Doctors and remedies did no good. Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills stopped itching quickly and cured disease in three weeks.

Frank Gridley, 325 E. 43rd St., New York: In twenty-four hours he became raw from head to foot with a dreadful burning itch. Suffered agonies and could not lie down or sit up. Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment cured him in a single day.

Mrs. Kate Brougham, 200 Dewey St., Bennington, Vt.: Rash came on her baby's hand and soon turned to watery, crusted eczema over face, head and body. He was a fearful sight and all attempts at cure were fruitless. Vastly improved in a week by use of Cuticura Remedies and soon skin was clear and healthy.

O. J. Dance, 27, New Road, Brentford, England: Tortured for five years with bad skin disease. Attended hospital five months without success. Covered with eruption. No sleep nor rest. Felt like tearing himself to pieces with terrible itching. With first application of Cuticura Ointment was relieved and got good night's sleep. In a fortnight Cuticura Ointment cured him as if by magic.

Too Talkative.

The following story is told of the famous painter Makart: The artist was a very passionate chess player, but he did not like his adversary to utter a single word during the progress of a game. A stranger who was very anxious to get on intimate terms with the famous artist thought to be able to achieve his object by means of the royal game. After many tries he succeeded at last in getting an introduction to Makart, and one day the latter consented to play a game with him. Being well aware of the fact that his adversary was very much averse to any talk during the game, not a word was spoken, and even the word "check" was never spoken. All the stranger dared to do was to touch his adversary's king which he put that piece in check. The game ended in Makart being mated, when the stranger quietly said "checkmate." Makart rose very excitedly, threw the pieces off the board and, giving his opponent a fierce look, got off his chair, turned his back to the stranger and exclaimed "Pratlerl"

A Bright Student.

During a recent examination in the theology of the Old Testament the following question was asked a young clergyman: "What language did Balaam's ass speak?" After a moment of thought a smile dawned across his face, and he answered this answer. I looked at the paper for the hard question, "An

WOULD VERY OFTEN FAINT AWAY.

Doctor Said That Sometime He Would Never Come Out of One.

Many people may be unaware of having anything wrong with their heart till some little excitement, overwork, or confinement in an overheated or overcrowded room or public building makes them feel faint or dizzy.

If you neglect the warning the slight feeling of dizziness gives you, and fail to take treatment, there will be a gradual progression to something more serious.

There is no reason you should wait till your case becomes desperate before you avail yourself of a perfect cure by using Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mr. F. S. Chute, Wheatley, Ont. writes:—"It is with gratitude I tell how your Milburn's Heart And Nerve Pills benefited me. I was very weak and run down, and had headache, nearly every day and would very often faint away.

"In fact, my doctor said that sometime I would never come out of one of them. After taking three boxes of your pills I am glad to relate that it has been a number of years since I have had a fainting spell and scarcely have had a headache. Too much cannot be said in praise of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills for in me they have effected a perfect cure."

SIX MEN AND THEIR PASSING.

A Brilliant Group In the Old Days of the Gallery at Ottawa.

When the hand of death fell upon E. King Dodds, at Toronto, the other day, the soul of the last of probably the greatest sextette of newspaper men that Canada has ever known went out to its Maker.

In 1878, and for a few years later, King Dodds, Jim Fahey, Alex. Pirie, Andrew Pattullo, Ned Clarke, and Nicholas Flood Davin were the journalistic stars of Ontario and Canada.

All six had been on the press gallery at Ottawa together or upon the stump in the fierce political battles when the contending forces were lined up behind Sir John Macdonald and Hon. Alexander Mackenzie.

Brilliant, brainy, and clever as these men were, none of them ever got beyond being a packhorse for his party, and probably all suffered the pang of disappointed hope. They made and unmade members of Parliament, and Government, too, perhaps, for in those days cash or graft was not the factor in politics that it is today. By their oratory or brilliant writing in countless political contests these men turned victory into defeat or defeat into victory—and some one else got whatever there was in it. Any one of these six men was of Cabinet calibre, and even better than that, when one considers the average of those who have won seats on the treasury benches at Toronto and Ottawa.

Jim Fahey was probably the greatest paragrapher and one of the wittiest speakers Canada has produced. He was the first to disappear from the scene. It was said that rye got him, and perhaps it did, but Fahey, good soul that he was, harmed no man.

Davin, his spirit broken by disappointment, shot himself in his room in a Winnipeg hotel.

Pattullo, the maker of the greatest country newspaper in Canada, The Woodstock Sentinel-Review, suicided in London, England.

Ned Clarke succumbed to a sudden illness at his home in Toronto.

Alex. Pirie, a prince of good fellows, warm-hearted, an eloquent after-dinner speaker and one of the cleverest of writers, driven to despair by domestic trouble and political ingratitude, put a bullet through his brain in his home at Dundas.

And now, King Dodds, the silver-tongued orator of thirty years ago, and one of the truest of friends of legitimate sport, after five years of blindness, has crossed the bar.

Each man of the six gave the best that was in him for his party and his country.—Brandon Sun.

British Peer for Canada.

Lord Clinton, of his line the twenty-first baron, strong Tory peer in the House of Lords, was in Edmonton recently like many Englishmen now on tour in western Canada. Lord Clinton made a very significant remark when he was at the fur post. He said that he was considering the advisability of disposing of his estates in Devonshire and the north of Scotland and investing the proceeds in Canada. "I have visited Canada before, but never to make a general tour of the Dominion such as I am doing now. The last time I saw the bare, dreary prairies, with little settlement. Now I see the prairies in crop and inhabited, and it is a pleasing sight."

Edmonton people would welcome the noble lord if he should choose to settle among them. In Earl Grey we have seen what a prime booster a peer can be for the Dominion in official position. What of a British peer in Canadian private life? He would be interesting to watch.

Paid the Piper.

To the tune of two dollars and costs per capita, seven participants in a recent Chatham Township charivari were recently singed by Magistrate Houston in the county police court.

Giant firecrackers, tin cans and other musical instruments figured prominently in the program of the affair, which was pulled off on the occasion of a wedding which took place recently just outside the city limits. Much joy filled the hearts of the participants till suddenly they were called upon by Mayor Fleet with neat little billet doux which invited them to explain why they had disturbed the peace.

The outcome was that seven of the participants—two young men and five maidens—attached their signatures to a written statement admitting their guilt. Another young lady denied actual participation and the charge against her was not pressed.—Chatham Daily News.

Things He Sees.

"He's a terrible drunkard, isn't he?"

"Yes, but he's a good citizen."

"How can that be?"

"Every time he has jimjams he goes to the courthouse and pays taxes on a pack of pink and blue dogs."—Cleveland Leader.

Proving by Actual Experiment

This experiment will always interest the children, and will provoke a good deal of thinking. The explanation, of course, is, that the lighted piece of paper which is inserted into the inverted glass drives out most of the air, so that when the mouth of the glass is quickly put down into the water there is very little air, and, consequently, very little pressure above the water within the glass. Hence, the weight or pressure of the air on the water outside the glass drives the water up into the glass to occupy the space from whence the air was driven by the burning paper.

A practical demonstration of this kind is always more convincing than any mere statement. This is particularly true of medical remedies.

The effect of the anti-toxin treatment for diphtheria is noticeable within a few hours, so that everyone must believe in its virtue. In a similar way, the treatment known as ORANGE LILY gives a practical proof of the progress it is making in curing women's disorders, and that, too, within a few days after commencing its use.

All authorities agree that in every case of women's disorders there exists a congested condition of the womanly organs. The circulation in these parts is sluggish or stagnant, and the result is that the broken-down tissue or waste matter which should be carried off if the blood was circulating freely, remains in these parts, causing inflammation, irritation, oppression of the nerves, etc. ORANGE LILY is not taken internally, but is applied direct to the suffering organs. It is absorbed into the circulation, and its antiseptic properties at once act on the waste matter referred to above. The consequence is that this waste matter, which is causing the inflammation, ulcers, nervous troubles, etc., begins to be discharged, and it continues to be discharged until all the foreign matter is removed from the circulation. At the same time the blood vessels and nerves are toned and strengthened. The nervous trouble disappears, the circulation is restored and good health follows.

Toronto, Ont., June 2, 1909.

Dear Mrs. Currah,—I wish to tell you that Orange Lily is doing me a great deal of good. Those ulcers come away one or two every week, and I have less pain and fewer headaches. I feel sure I will be perfectly cured in a little longer time.

MRS. D. S. T.

The explanation of the wonderful cures performed by ORANGE LILY is very simple. It is a scientific remedy, based on the discoveries of Pasteur and Lister. The conditions existing in all female troubles are alike in character, differing in degree and development only, so that a positive remedy, as ORANGE LILY is, gets with all the certainty of a chemical experiment. In order to convince every suffering woman that ORANGE LILY will cure her, I make the following

Free Trial Offer

I will send to every reader of this notice who suffers in any way from any of the troubles peculiar to women, if she will send me her address, enough of the ORANGE LILY treatment to last her 10 days in many cases this trial treatment is all that is necessary to effect a complete cure, and in every instance it will give very noticeable relief. WHEN MOTHER ISN'T HERE.

I sometimes think all things are wrong,
Or scarcely right by half,
When from the home by day or night
We miss the Mother's laugh;
The counsel she alone can give,
So loving, wise and clear,
Is sadly missed by one and all,
When Mother isn't here.

No one can fill her place at home,
We all confess to that,
And he whoever she goes away
Grows worrisome and fat.
Try as we may our ills to bear
We often fail I fear,
For nothing can our spirits raise
As When Mother isn't here.

No hand can do the work like hers,
None seem to know the way,
To sew or darn, or bake, or wash,
When she has gone away;
Although they do the best they can,
They lack her help, I fear,
And it at times behind a bit,
Who Mother isn't here.

The children, how they miss her too,
All long for her return,
And when to bed they have to go,
Or Mother's kiss they mourn;
Oh when is Mother coming home
they ask with sob and tear,
All often cry themselves to sleep,
When Mother isn't there.

They smile, the voice, the counsel wise,
By faithful Mother given,
Should be engraven on the mind,
And show the road to heaven,
For none can give the helping hand,
Or speak the truth so clear,
And this is only realized
When Mother isn't here.

Then help with words and deeds of love
The Mother in the home,
And take her as your guiding star
When through the world you roam,
There comes a time when from our midst
She'll surely disappear,
Tis then, and only then, we'll know,
That Mother isn't here.

Rose Colour in Rooms.

Pink, when utilized in a scheme of decoration, produces an exceedingly dainty effect, and it is one which specially appeals to brides-elect when it is a question of furnishing their new home. Rose colour, too, is a tint often employed by hostesses who have passed their first youth, and imagine that when their surroundings are color ne ross the charm of their personality is greatly enhanced.

For a decorative scheme specially suited to a pretty drawing room, one could have a carpet of soft rose-coloured axminster, and the walls treated to a striped empire paper in a slightly paler shade.

The entire woodwork would, of course, be cream, while the couch and larger chairs should be upholstered in the new string-coloured shade—preferably in damask, a fabric which possesses the best wearing qualities.

Six or eight soft downy cushions, covered in a rose-coloured silk or satin, would make an effective finish to these items of furniture and greatly brighten the appearance.

A pink bedroom may be treated in a variety of ways. It might be entirely a rose-chamber, with a chintz wallpaper bearing a design of pink rose blossoms, similar flowers appearing in the chintz cretonne draperies for the bed and windows, while the carpet should be either green or brown, with a white sheepskin hearthrug, and a brass fender and fire-irons.

Another scheme would be to have a pink carpet and a white wallpaper, with a frieze depicting pink almond blossoms, the window curtains and draperies generally being of pink linen.

A Pretty Card Table.

Silver is out of fashion and ivory has taken its place.

The smart dressing case now is filled with ivory brushes and toilet attributes, smokers' outfits are made of ivory, and on the writing table are ivory boxes, ink pots, pen holders and paper knives.

There is, also, a special demand for the amber tortoise shell.

Women have grown very tired of the silver articles for several reasons. The first is that the market has been flooded with the silver goods.

The thin, cheap silver backs of brushes and mirrors, trays, etc., have brought silver within the range of almost all purses, and those who could not buy silver have rushed to acquire the massive imitation copies.

Another reason that silver is not liked so well is that so much attention is needed to keep it in proper cleaning.

The ordinary ivory-backed hair-brush is not expensive, and ivory wears well.

Many of the ivory articles are carved to represent curious and wonderful animals. Of course, the carved varieties are more expensive. Monkey ornaments, in which the animals are shown clinging and climbing together are popular.

A Pretty aCrd Table.

A decorative card table is made by covering the unsightly green top of the ordinary table with figured cretonne, the figures of which harmonize in tone with the colour scheme of the room. An effective but more expensive covering is made from the green watered silk.

The simplest coverings are of tan, white or coloured linen, which is laundered easily and which is secured to the table top by means of linen tape tied to the four corners and about the table legs.

The Jolly Girl.

The jolly girl is born, not made; no training or endeavour can counterfeit her. There are those, to be sure, who affect jollity, but it is only skin-deep, says a writer in Harper's Bazaar. The jolly girl is jolly under adverse circumstances—in bad weather; when she hasn't a cent to her name; when she has the toothache; when she has lost her situation; when she breaks her needle; when her back hair tumbles down in public; when she is shopping; when her masculine neighbour at the theatre goes out and when he returns; when her bills are due. She never seems to indulge in that feminine luxury "the blues" and it is a mistake to suppose that she is noisy; there is jollity of the lady-like aristocratic sort, as well as of the fish-wife order.

The girl who makes up her mind that jollity is the proper cue, and that she will be lively or she usually overdoes the business she thinks that it chiefly consists in laugh and in chattering nonsense, that it is a manner of speech merely, rather than a quality of the mind which disposes one to make the best of everything, to see the rainbow on the cloud and the silver lining behind it, to make the wrinkle in the rose leaf cause of mirth. Some believe that jollity is an affair of embonpoint; but who has not been disappointed in finding the stout woman melancholy and the thin one vivacious, the bilious person full of good-humour and the person whose digestion never gave her a moment's uneasiness quite the reverse? The jolly girl can not suppress herself, and assume sadness or pensiveness; languishing airs do not sit well upon her, but show at a glance that they are borrowed plumes. One is never dull with her. She has that infinite variety which all the world covets and loves. It may be a desirable thing that those who have not this natural grace should cultivate and encourage it in themselves and others, since it brightens and strengthens life, makes rough places smoother and pleasant places pleasanter. Possibly it is no special virtue in the jolly girl any more than blue eyes in the blonde maiden or red hair in the Titianesque. Jollity flows from her presence just as the nightingale's fluting bubbles from his throat and enchants the world; just as the poet pours forth his song "in profuse strains of unpremeditated art," just as the tree blossoms, the grasses sprout, the stars shine, without effort, without design, with sincerity and constancy and spontaneity. Let her be shipwrecked, or an invalid stranded on a bed of pain yet she does not lose or abate that peculiar trait which makes sunshine for those about her and sweeps the cobwebs out of their sky.

Return of the Prodigal Son in 1910.

No, it isn't that the world has grown hard hearted; it isn't that we aren't just as glad to-day to see the prodigal come back and just as lovingly anxious to welcome him home as ever was anybody in the 15th chapter of Luke. It is the manner in which the prodigal son of 1910 frequently returns that throws a wet blanket over the festivities of the welcome. When he comes down the road with his hat hanging on his ear and his hands in his pockets; when he kicks the faithful old house-dog as he lounges in at the gate; when he calls his father "Gov-nor" and the hired man "Cull," when he wants to know, "what's for dinner?" before he has been in the house fifteen minutes; when he gives his elder brother two fingers to shake and advises him to comb the haysed out of his hair; when he throws himself into the easiest chair in the house perches his feet on the window sill and announces that he'll take a tub before dinner;" when he comes back with a generally forgiving air of good fellowship about him, and tries to make all the rest of the family feel very easy and reassured—then it is my son that your father longs to run and meet you while you are a great way off and fall upon your neck with a plow line and melt you into a state of becoming humility and penitence by the time you are able to take off your hat to the hound boy, and crawl up to the front steps to ask you brother to shake hands with you. Good people are just as glad to-day as ever they were, to see a prodigal come home, but it does rattle them a little to see him come home in a hack and ask them to pay the driver and send for his baggage.

LOOK WELL TO YOUR COLONIES

From Farm and Dairy.

Look well to your colonies to see if they have sufficient stores to carry them through the winter. Strong colonies especially need an abundance of stores. For outdoor wintering we would have not less than 20 lbs., and, better, 25 lbs. of sealed stores to a strong colony in a 10-frame hive. Weaker colonies will, of course, get along with proportionately less. For indoor wintering we usually figure on having about from one-half to two-thirds the amount that we give to outdoor bees.

If you find colonies short of stores, the best thing to do is to give them combs of sealed honey. If these are not to be had, feed sugar syrup made to one part of water by bulk. If the weather is cool, feed the syrup moderately hot.

One yard last winter, where we had almost perfect wintering, we fed so late that we had to wear overcoats and mittens to give the syrup to the bees. We do not advise late feeding; but if it has been deferred, through inadvertence or inability to get at the work sooner, feed anyhow. Don't let bees go into winter quarters short of stores.—Gleanings.

YOU CAN SEE IT WORK

The beauty of Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment as a healer of the skin in eczema, salt rheum, itching skin disease and old sores is that you can see from day to day exactly what it is doing. There is no guess work, no experimenting. It simply heals the skin and makes it soft, smooth and natural. It heals as if by magic. Prove this to your own satisfaction by trying it.

IMPORTANCE OF ROOT CROP

From Farm and Dairy.

While corn silage is a much cheaper feed for cattle than roots, the importance of the root crop as a factor in feeding operations ought not to be overlooked. Feeders who appreciate the value of roots as a supplementary food to corn ensilage now look forward with certainty to having lots of feed of the right kind this coming winter. The corn crop was extra good and silos are full. And now reports received by Farm and Dairy from all parts of Ontario indicate that the root crop also will be first-class and the total crop much greater than was the crop of last year.

Corn ensilage, cut at the proper time and stored in a good silo is the cheapest feed that can be gott n for either dairy or beef cattle. There is greater succulence in roots however than in corn and this gives roots a feeding value much in excess of what a chemical analysis or their high water content would indicate. For dairy or beef cattle, the effect of an addition of a small quantity of roots to the ration will be seen in the increased thrift and vigorous appetites of the animals. For hog feeding mangels are unexcelled.

ALMOST DOUBLE OF LAST YEAR

Farm and Dairy correspondents in both Eastern and Western Ontario report an extra yield of both mangels and turnips. "Both turnips and mangels will be an extra crop; almost double of last year," writes a Wellington County correspondent, Mr. R. J. Smith.

The yield of turnips this year has been unusually large. The yield of mangels is enormous."—John Rabb, Leeds Co.

Mangels and turnips are excellent. The crop has not been troubled with flies or lice."—A. Shearer, Peterboro Co.

"The turnip crop is just as good as last year."—F. D. Stubbs, Muskoka District.

"Mangels and turnips are a good crop and will compare favorably with last year."—Jas. Summerville, Parry Sound District.

"The root crop is better than we have had for several years."—Stanley Dynes, Halton Co.

"The root crop is better than last year."—Neil McKinnon, Grey Co.

"Turnips are first-class; mangels good."—J. W. Shriner, Welland Co.

"Turnips and mangels are up to the average. Mangels are better than last year."—J. B. Lucas Elgin Co.

"Roots are a fair average, very few are grown."—J. W. Kennedy, Kent Co.

INSECT PESTS

Insect pests do not seem to have been very troublesome this year. The only county reporting the prevalence of such insects was Simcoe. Mr. R. S. Hipwell, a correspondent in that county writes as follows:

"The root crop in this locality is very poor and will not average half a crop. On account of dry weather, lots of patches of turnips never came up. Lice were prevalent on early sown turnips. Last year, turnips could be bought for seven to 10 cents a bushel. This year they bring from 15 to 20 cents."

"Mangels will be a very good crop, but turnips did not do well. They were troubled with lice," reports C. S. Burton of Simcoe County.

MISS A. GRADUATE
Box 260, Brampton, Ont.

Could we afford to buy and give away hundreds of thousands of 50-cent bottles of Psychine (pronounced Sikeen) if we did not know from a third of a century's experience that it was the greatest vitality-builder of the age?

You know what it would mean to us were Psychine a preparation without a definite, beneficial action.

After the first bottle which we would buy, no more would be purchased.

And we would go out of business. But we're not going out of business, and our confidence that we're not is based upon our third of a century's experience with Psychine.

Ten years after Confederation we commenced compounding Psychine.

Since that time, we have sold many millions of bottles.

We have cured many hundreds of thousands of virulent and oftentimes fatal cases of diseases.

We have in our files many hundreds of thousands of unsolicited testimonials.

And we have grown from a small beginning to be one of the largest proprietary manufacturers in this country.

Here then is proof that we have in Psychine a preparation with abundant and demonstrated effectiveness, more so than any other preparation we, or anyone else, ever heard of.

Here then is the reason of our unalterable confidence in Psychine, that it is in fact the greatest preparation of its kind in the world.

Here then is why we have inaugurated a policy of actually buying hundreds of thousands of bottles of Psychine to give to those who should use.

To those who are blindly groping in the dark for relief from their misery, who may perhaps be using wrong methods to recover their health and their strength.

LAGRIPPE.

The greatest and most effective agents for the bodily health are the white corpuscles, phagocytes.

These white corpuscles eat any germ of disease that gains an entrance to the body, when they're in large enough numbers and sufficiently strong.

When they're not sufficiently strong, the disease germs devour them and disease holds the body.

For centuries almost, herbs, nature's own remedies, have been the most efficient foe to disease.

We have not known very definitely just how.

But now science tells us that certain of these herbs increase the number of the white corpuscles and their strength.

These certain herbs are incorporated in Psychine.

We go to the ends of the earth for these herbs—to Arabia, to South America, to China and to Japan.

They are compounded in the most costly chemical appliances in this country.

And the result is Psychine—for a third of a century the most effective vitality-builder the world has known.

The one preparation that has cured many thousands of the following diseases:

La Grippe	Bronchial Coughs
Bronchitis	Weak Lungs
Hemorrhages	Weak Voice
Sore Throat	Spring Weakness
Anaemia	Early Decline
Female Weakness	Catarrhal Affections
Indigestion	Catarrh of Stomach
Poor Appetite	Night Sweats
Chills and Fevers	Obstinate Coughs
Sleeplessness and	Laryngitis and
Nervous Troubles	Dyspepsia
After-effects of Pleurisy, Pneumonia and La Grippe

Now we don't ask you to take our word for the tremendously beneficial effect of Psychine. Fill out the coupon below, mail it to us and we'll give your druggist an order (for which we pay him the regular retail price) for a 50-cent bottle of Psychine to be given you free of cost.

We will undoubtedly buy and distribute in this manner hundreds of thousands of these 50-cent bottles of Psychine.

And we do that to show our entire confidence in this wonderful preparation.

A confidence that has been based on our 30 years' experience with this splendid preparation, with a full knowledge of the hundreds of thousands of cures it has made.

THE GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC

Offers For Sale Its Splendidly Located Lots In The Townsite Of Melville

"the Wonderful"

Melville's Astonishing Growth

Three years ago Melville had but one building—to-day it has over 500 buildings and this number is constantly being added to. The assessed value of Melville real estate in 1909 was $321,360. The assessed value of Melville real estate in 1910 was $1,792,000, an increase in the past year of 350 per cent. The same forces which have caused this rapid increase in population and realty values are still operative, but their influence is cumulative, and the proportionate rate of growth in population and advance in values should increase from month to month.

Every day the traffic on the main line of the G. T. P. is increasing, and with every increase comes an addition to the force of railroad employes, making Melville their homes and headquarters. With every additional mile of steel laid on the Hudson Bay, the Regina, Lethbridge, and International Boundary branch lines, Melville's trade territory is increased.

A population of 10,000 for Melville will mean an increase many fold in the value of real estate in all parts of the town, based upon present values. If real estate has advanced in some instances 500 to 1,000 per cent. in two years, during which time the population was increasing from 625 to 2,000, it is reasonable to expect a much larger proportion of increase in values while the town is advancing from 2,000 to 10,000.

Advance In Values At Melville

Melville lots which originally sold at $75 to $100 a lot, are now being sold as high as $500 a lot. The site of the Municipal Rink was purchased originally for $225, and a year ago was sold to the city for $1,250. Two other lots sold originally at $100 and $150 respectively. J. Rowan bought the two lots later for $1,200, and sold one for $1,200 and the other for $1,500. Two other lots which were originally bought for $350, were recently tendered to the city as the site for a town hall at $2,000 each.

A special correspondent of the Winnipeg Free Press writes of Melville real estate values as follows:

"In the central business sections lots average from $800 to $2,500, whilst upon the Main Street properties between Second and Third Avenues the sales have averaged $100 per foot. Prices of lots in the residential quarter average from $75 to $500 a foot. Recently a corner site, comprising six lots on Main Street, was offered to the town council for the new town hall, at the actual market value of $16,000. Last year a large number of business premises and residences were erected, which according to official statistics approximated $300,000. Judging from the rate of building activity which now obtains, these figures will certainly not be lessened this year."

Buy Direct From Grand Trunk Pacific

The rapid increase in population of Western Canada towns has made fortunes for thousands of investors who had the foresight to discern the possibilities for profitable investments and the courage to back their judgment. You cannot make a mistake in buying lots in a divisional point city. The railroad makes the city and, in the case of Melville, no new city along the line of the G. T. P. between Winnipeg and Edmonton is likely to grow more rapidly.

The Grand Trunk Pacific does not plat into townsites land located in swamps or so far away from the city proper as to make the lots of questionable value. The purpose of the Grand Trunk Pacific in selling these lots is to encourage the upbuilding of Melville, from which the Grand Trunk Pacific will receive more benefit than from the amount of money secured from the sale of the lots. It is for this reason that the Grand Trunk Pacific is offering lots in this town site at such a low price and on such easy terms. No interest is charged on deferred payments, and when the final payment is made the purchaser can rest easy in the knowledge that he will receive perfect title to his lots, and that they will be located exactly as represented.

Melville Has No Near Competitors

Melville's future as a commercial centre is as assured as are its transportation advantages. It has no dangerous competitors within striking distance. In a commercial sense, it is strategically located—a point the Grand Trunk doubtless had in mind when selecting it as one of the chief divisional points on their system. It is 279 miles from Winnipeg, nearly 100 from Regina, almost 200 from Saskatoon, and over 150 from Brandon. These are the cities with which it must compete, and the distance from each is such as to permit Melville to expand and grow in friendly rivalry, and with even greater speed. To the north, lies a vast territory, as yet commercially undeveloped, but which will be opened up by the building of the Hudson Bay Railway. Melville is ready to take immediate advantage of this development, and is of all other cities of Western Canada the one best qualified by geographical position to do so. The fact that it is sitting right at the gates of this coming business is one that is already recognized by wholesale and distributing firms. Manufacturers and distributors will here erect branch houses as they have done at Regina and Saskatoon, and this will involve not only large building expenditures and monthly pay rolls, but also increased population and local business of a permanent and highly desirable character.

AN IMPORTANT GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC DIVISIONAL POINT

The Largest New Town on the G. T. R. Between Winnipeg and Edmonton

Melville's Excellent Strategic Position

But few towns in Western Canada can approach Melville in the matter of transportation facilities. It is both a divisional and junction point on the greatest transcontinental railway on the American Continent—The Grand Trunk Pacific. The ardently desired Hudson Bay Railway, the dream of the prairie pioneer, is now in course of construction, and is already completed from Melville to Canora, and trains are running between these points. This road will bring past the doors of Melville the bulk of the grain crop of Western Canada, and make it one of the great traffic centres of the country. Another branch line is now being constructed from Melville to Lethbridge, by way of Regina, from which point another branch line is being constructed to the International Boundary. When completed the line will give Melville transportation facilities to all points in the United States. This road is already completed from Melville to Balcarres, and trains are now operating between these points. The main line of the G. T. P. from Melville will afford five water outlets, namely, Prince Rupert, B.C., on the Pacific Ocean, Halifax, N.S., on the Atlantic Ocean, St. John, N. B., on Newfoundland Bay, Fort Churchill, on Hudson Bay, and Fort William and Port Arthur, on Lake Superior.

Melville has many unquestionable points of superiority over other Canadian towns in the matter of transportation facilities. It resembles Chicago in "sitting at the gates of trade." The junction point of railways so important as the Grand Trunk Pacific and Hudson Bay Railway must, in the natural course of events, become an important City.

Melville As A Manufacturing Centre

It is inevitable that Melville must become a jobbing centre of much importance. Already several big concerns have made it a distributing point for their goods, others are seeking locations there for branch houses. Two big implement concerns, two brewing companies and one oil company now use Melville as a distributing point, and another oil company has established a branch at Melville and is negotiating for a tract of land near the railroad.

The lead taken by these institutions is about to be followed by others of similar importance, and in a short time the railway yards will be hedged in by warehouses and mercantile establishments.

As a distributing point, Melville has strategic advantages which wholesalers will not overlook. It will command a large part of the jobbing trade for a considerable distance up and down the main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific, and the two important branch lines which centre there. Its shipping facilities make it an especially advantageous location for manufactories. The completion of the Grand Trunk Pacific branch line westward to Lethbridge will give Melville direct connection with coal fields of Southern Alberta and provide one of the main requisites for a manufacturing centre—cheap fuel.

Backed by a rich agricultural district, an important railroad centre, a distributing centre and a manufacturing centre, Melville cannot help continuing to grow rapidly, and continued growth means continued increase in real estate values and big profits for those who invest in real estate there at present prices. To-day is the time to buy lots in Melville.

Why Melville Lots Will Increase In Value

A few years ago what are now the important cities of Western Canada were no larger than Melville is to-day, and probably had no advantage that Melville does not have. It is usually safe to judge the future by the past. Fortunes were made by the early investors in lots in Calgary, Edmonton, Regina, Moose Jaw, Saskatoon, Lethbridge and Prince Albert. Almost innumerable instances might be cited where lots located in these cities were offered to and refused by investors at from $100 to $300 a lot. These same lots, in some instances, are now worth upwards of $25,000, but the opportunity to reap the larger profits that were made by the early investors in these cities, at ground floor prices, is gone forever.

History repeats itself. The profits that have been made by far sighted investors in real estate in the growing cities of Western Canada will be repeated in Melville. But these profits will be made by those who have confidence in the future of Western Canada and invest in well located lots at present low prices—not by those who delay from day to day until the opportunity is gone also.

The Grand Trunk Pacific offers in its splendidly located lots in the townsite of Melville, an opportunity to the investor to share in the large profits that will accrue to him as the result of the rapid growth of the town. When Melville lots have doubled, trebled and quadrupled in value it will be poor consolation for you to look back and remember that you had an opportunity to share in these profits but did not take advantage of it.

Now is the time to buy the prices for choice lots are extremely low and the possibilities for profit practically unlimited.

We Will Select Your Lots

The building of the railway from Melville to Hudson Bay will extend over a period of at least three or four years. During this time we believe Melville will be the best known Grand Trunk Pacific division point between Winnipeg and Edmonton. This will necessarily create a great deal of activity in Melville real estate and this will redound to the benefit of the owner of Melville lots.

In order to secure well located lots, it is not necessary that you specify the lot and block number. All the lots in the Grand Trunk Pacific townsite are practically level prairie land. The Grand Trunk does not offer for sale lots located in swamps or so far from the town proper as to make the lots of questionable value.

Mr. J. Rowan is our exclusive agent at Melville for the sale of lots in the G. T. P. Townsite. Mr. Rowan is one of the pioneer residents of Melville, and a member of the Board of Trade. He will take pleasure in giving information relative to these lots to any one interested.

Our representative is well acquainted with the location of these lots and we will select for you the best ones unsold. Don't wait to write but telegraph us, at our expense, the number of lots you desire us to reserve for you and the price you wish to pay. Then forward your remittance direct to the Land Commissioner of the Grand Trunk Pacific.

If selection of lots made by our representative is not satisfactory the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company agree, at any time, within thirty days from date of purchase, to give the purchaser his choice of lots remaining unsold, at the same price, or refund all money paid.

All telegraphic reservations and correspondence should be sent to International Securities Co., Somerset Bldg., Winnipeg, Man., and it is important that Melville be mentioned in such telegrams and letters.

PRAIRIE AND BLUFF.

Increase In Trees Changing Whole Farming Conditions.

How quickly a word may change its meaning owing to local conditions is well illustrated by that good old Saxon word "bluff." If you happen to be talking to a chap of speculative tendencies, either in land valuations or at the good old game of poker the word has exactly the same meaning East and West, but to the farmer in the West, whose speculations are mostly confined to the one question of whether to sell or hold his wheat the word "bluff" has a local meaning quite different from any you will find as yet in any English dictionary, and thereby hangs a tale that tells a large part of the story of Western development.

The dictionary says a bluff is a bold steep hill, the bank of a river or projecting into the sea, but not a word does it say as to whether it is covered with wood or not. In the Western plains the meaning of the word has been extended until it now includes any wooded country, though the land is much more frequently than not quite as level as the prairie itself—without the sign of a hill. Originally the wood grew only on the river banks or about the sloughs (slews). When the farmer wanted wood he had to go to what actually were bluffs for it. In the older settled sections nowadays, nearly every farmer will have 25 or 50 acres of land grown up in trees, a shelter from the nearly constant winds, and pasture for stock, and such bush-lands are called bluffs. To every one in the West a bluff means not a hill, but merely a grove of small trees—natural growths, mostly poplar and oak. The oak is brash, punky stuff, of comparatively little value for timber or firewood.

These bluffs, so-called, are not planted. They seem to grow up naturally where the land is not cultivated. Why, then, did they not grow up all over the plains? Largely because of prairies fires. So fiercely would the winds drive these fires over the plains that no vegetation except that of annual growth could survive till the broken country was reached. With the settlement of the country and he plowing of fire-breaks on the wild land, the fires are entirely done away with, and the trees survive. Many of these trees are now three to five inches in diameter, and supply all the summer wood the farmer needs.

The climate has changed with the changed conditions of the soil. In many localities where in the early days frosted what was the farmer's nightmare, the dead of it has quite passed. Several circumstances have combined to bring about so happy a change. For one thing, the farmer has learned to cut his wheat earlier, very much on what the Ontario farmer would consider the green side. The sap in the straw fill out and ripens the grain, and the anger from frost and the serious danger of loss from shelling of the grain is avoided. The heat of the summer's sun is much stronger here than in Ontario, and the cultivated soil is warmed deeper and stores up the heat longer than did the hard prairie land, and this keeps off the frost. Then the increasing area of wooded land gives increased shelter, and altogether it is not hard to understand why, as the country settles up, the danger of frost decreases. Of course there are yet vast areas out here where wheat is grown that are as bald o trees as a billiard table. While planted trees do not seem to thrive, or at least are of discouragingly slow growth, it is probable that as time goes by and the fires are kept down, these natural "bluffs" will spring up all over the country.

In these older sections when the danger of frost is past, or is passing, the farmer has to fight tooth and claw against another and even worse pest—that of weeds and dirty ferns. Woe betide that farmer who let that wild oat or the saw thistle or the stinkweed get ahead of him in his country. The soil that is a generous host for the grain is equally hospitable to the weeds, and much more tenacious of life are the latter in conditions so favorable.

Honor For Sir James.

On the great ocean greyhounds between New York and England it has been the custom to always remember the widows and orphans of the seamen who perish while following their perilous avocation. Subscriptions are received at a concert given by the passengers. The most distinguished passenger is always selected to preside. This post of honor nearly always falls to the lot of some multi millionaire or man of note of the United States or England.

The Campania steamed into New York recently with 1,814 souls on board. As a sign of the changing times, the honor of speaking for the widows and orphans came to Sir James Whitney, Premier of Ontario. In a vigorous speech he reminded the passengers of their duty to those dependent on the brave men who had lost their lives on the ocean. No less than 158,000 had died during the last 38 years, from British ships, of whom some 98,000 were drowned. The total loss of life from the ships of all nations was something appalling.

The contributions amounted to the largest sum received in a long time.

Insulted the Goldfish.

This time it's the kindergarten that has furnished a school remark which deserves telling.

In the kindergartens of Toronto, globes of goldfish are an interesting feature, and the feeding of the fish is a regular part of the pleasant kindergarten routine. In the present instance the fish had been given breakfast, and the teacher had called the children back to their places. One little fellow who had started his school experience that morning, lingered near the goldfish.

"Come along, Bobby," said the teacher. "We're going to sing."

In a drawling voice, and with a tone that indicated greater interest in the fish than in the singing, Bobby said, "All right. I was just looking at your sardines for a minute."

Knew Better.

"They say Brown is ten years ahead of his time."

"Well, it's not true. He's six months behind. I'm his landlord and know."

Dear Chum:

I am enjoying myself with grandpa and grandma hugely. Yesterday grandpa took me down to the docks to see the ocean liners. Gee! they're whoppers * * * * * bought me my third box of Moir's Chocolates. They are the swellest candies ever. The chocolate outside is wonderfully smooth and rich, and in the inside are cream, jellies and nuts. Those called Moir's Chocolate Chips taste like honey dipped in chocolate. Another kind called Moir's Nougatines are so good that I teased grandma into promising me another box tomorrow * * * * * not a bit homesick.

A FRIEND OF THE JEWS

The New Russian Minister of Education Befriends the Persecuted Hebrews

A fierce wave of anti-Semitism is again sweeping the length and breadth of the Czar's dominions. The reactionaries who, for a short time, appeared to have ceased their pernicious agitation—either content to rest for a time on their successes or preparing for fresh exertions—are again up and doing. In almost every town and village in the country Jew-baiting is taking place, expulsions are continually on the increase, and the scanty measure of religious toleration that has been granted to the people by the Czar's famous "October Manifesto" is being gradually withdrawn.

The members of the Duma, which at first were extremely well disposed towards the Jews, have, by open threats of violence, been compelled to oppose any measure which tends to ameliorate the lot of the unhappy people. Instead of being the representatives of the nation the Duma has become the tool of the Russian Government, and if the present system of government is of any advantage, it is only that the Czar's Ministers are better able to adhere to the spirit of autocratic rule than hitherto, under the veil of so-called self-government.

The Jews, however, are not without hope, for they see in the appointment of M. Kasso to the Ministry of Public Instruction, the dawn of a new era of educational justice and equality. M. Schwartz, who has been compelled to leave office, was known as an extremely narrow-minded biggot, who pursued the Jewish students into the colleges, seminaries, and universities, and did his very best to persecute the Jewish people in every manner possible. In Berditcheff alone he kept out of the schools over two thousand Jewish children who applied for admission this year.

M. Kasso, on the other hand, who comes of Moldavo-Greek stock, and who was formerly resident in Odessa, is believed to be a liberal-minded man with no inclination to lean for support on the Real Russians and others of the reactionary class. He has hitherto not loomed largely in the public eye, but he is one of those men who prefer to work in a quiet and unobtrusive manner. In this connection it will be interesting to see whether M. Kasso will be able to hold the portfolio of Minister of Public Instruction very long.

A STUBBORN SOLDIER

This German "Adventist" Lived Up to His Religion no Matter What Happened

The existence of the curious sect of the "Adventists" in Germany was made known the other day by the case of the soldier, Naumann. The sect looks for the reappearance of Christ on the earth in the immediate future and follows the precepts of the Bible as literally as possible. Saturday is regarded by them as the seventh day, which must be kept holy, and the soldier Naumann has frequently incurred disciplinary punishment for refusing to do a stroke of work between Friday night and Sunday morning.

At first he got a few days in the cells, then a few months' arrest, until at length, as the punishments increased, he has spent over five years in confinement for the sake of his creed. The trial of his most recent refusal has ended by the military Court of Appeal calling for expert evidence as to his sanity. He faithfully performs all his military duties up to Friday night, but once into night of that day has struck he obstinately refuses to lay a hand to anything for the next four-and-twenty hours.

In the course of the trial the judge asked him would he refuse obedience in case of war. Naumann said "No, as the state had to be protected. Naumann's mother belongs to the same sect as her son, and as the authorities would not allow her to see him unless she promised to try to make him give up his disobedience, she has not seen him for the last two years.

Diseases Of the Skin

Often appear with sudden changes of temperature. Eczema and Salt Rheum are cured by

Dr. Chase's Ointment

Cold, damp weather brings out eczema and salt rheum. Many who are subject to these ailments do not suffer except during the changeable weather of fall and spring.

The annoying itching and the disfiguring blotches on the skin make this trouble almost unbearable to those who are not familiar with the soothing, healing influence of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Relief comes almost as soon as this ointment is applied. Gradually the irritation disappears, the sores are healed up and the skin is left soft, smooth and natural.

There is always danger of eczema spreading and becoming chronic. For this reason the use of the ointment should be regular and persistent until the cure is thorough and complete.

Mrs. John J. Delory, Linwood, Antigonish county, N.S., writes: "I want to say that Dr. Chase's Ointment has proven a great blessing to me. I had salt rheum on one hand, and could not get it healed up. The itching was most distressing at times. Two boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment has cured me completely, and I gladly recommend it to every sufferer."

In every home there is a demand for Dr. Chase's Ointment. It is particularly useful where there are children. Chafing and skin irritation are relieved at once. Obstinate wounds are readily healed. Baby eczema and all forms of poisoned or irritated skin are soon cured by this soothing healing ointment. 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

FIELD TELEPHONES

A Travelling Office Which May be Used in Future Wars

For many years the armies have had their field telephone and telegraph lines. The wire to construct these lines, the instruments, and all other necessaries, were carried in wagons; but development to that extent that permits of their being carried by a person or on horseback is of recent years. At first a fine wire was unwound from small reels as the advance was made. If this line was to become a semi-permanent one, the wire, says Major B. W. Atkinson, was elevated upon lances stuck in the ground by signal corps, men following the line as it unrolled, or it might be placed upon the branches of trees or other supports.

In carrying this delicate line of communication to the front it was necessary, whenever the person transporting the line wished to communicate with the rear, for him to stop, and by driving a metallic pin into the ground and attaching the wire the connection was made and communication could be held. There were two great drawbacks to this system. Communication could not be made without stopping and making the ground connection. It occurred to an officer that it might be possible to make the horse the means by which the grounding of the wire could be obtained, and thus do away with the necessity of dismounting and driving the metallic pin.

After several experiments he met with success, and the moving "telephone and telegraph office" is the result. This is accomplished by placing a small piece of copper, properly connected with the instrument, against the body of the horse, and as the horse has always one or more feet on the ground while moving at any gait, except the gallop, which would seldom be resorted to, a connection is made through the animal's body by way of its hoofs.

Experience has shown that few horses object to the slight electric sensation after one or two trials, and they soon travel along without minding it at all. This moving office (it is both telephone and telegraph, for the telegraph buzzer is used) has played an important part in field manœuvres held during recent years. When a mounted operator is sent out to accompany a reconnoitring party, a flanking detachment, or any body of troops whose duty takes them away from the main body, it is possible for the Commander of the main body, by means of this travelling office, to keep informed of what is going on in the direction of the patrol. The officer in command of the detached troops simply rides at the side of the operator and dictates a message to him to be repeated by telephone or sent by the telegraph buzzer, or takes the telephone receiver on this telephone it is both a transmitter and a receiver) and talks direct to headquarters. Of course, when the "office" is halted for some little time, the ground connection is made to relieve the horse.

This little travelling office will likely play an important part in future wars, for it will take the place of many mounted orderlies. The recent Russo-Japanese War presented the spectacle of one general commanding a force that operated over a front of 40 miles in length. The old-fashioned "wig-wag" of the signal corps would be unable to transmit orders so rapidly as necessary on such fields of operations, and therefore the telegraph will take the place of mounted messengers.

DON'T NEED UNDERTAKERS

Neither are Chemists or Doctors Wanted in Cobena, Spain

There is at least one spot in the world where everybody is happy, prosperous and well. The only people who don't get on there are chemists, doctors and undertakers.

In the village of Cobena, near Madrid, disease and death are practically unknown. Two years ago, the local chemist, in despair, gave up the sale of drugs, and took to selling sweetstuffs and confectionery. As there hasn't been a death for eight years, half of the cemetery has been turned into pleasure-garden and the undertaker has fled the place.

The doctor, who had been living for years on his capital, hoping against hope, recently decided to emigrate. The inhabitants generously decided to raise a subscription to help him on his way; but, no—he would not accept charity from those who had so persistently declined to oblige him in the usual way.

A FATAL LOAN

A fatal loan was mentioned at an inquest held at Hackney on a two-year-old child who had been burned to death. The mother said she once had a fireguard but some time ago she lent it to a neighbor who had omitted to return it.

"GUARD, TURN OUT!"

How the British Soldier Deals With Spies

Nowhere is there such an Empire chain as that in which every link is a British "Tommy." Wherefore the latter is an expert on the spy, and, reading of the recent Portsmouth affair, will smile a little indulgently, then seek an obscure nook—not the sentry-box—and settle down to "watch with ever-peering eyes."

It is an Indian hill-station; rifle thieves are on the prowl. Or a Pathan spy. The two hours' term of duty is like eternity; the British "Tommy" has become a tamarisk—a tamarisk with ever-peering eyes.

The bull-frog's incessant croak is interrupted by the tiny tinkle of a stone in a can hung on barbed wire. Immediately something sinuous and shiny shows on the spot where an inexperienced recruit might have stood; a shuffle—it has gone. And in a twinkling the sentry stands, with fixed bayonet, imprisoning the Pathan in the sentry-box.

Not that dramatic turning of the tables, but the simultaneous, blood-curdling shriek, "Gy-ar-rd, t'n out!" sends a quiver into the very marrow of the native's bones, and in less than sixty seconds he is forced by the business ends of bayonets, held in sturdy British hands, through the guard-room door.

Locked in the magazine-yard of a Mediterranean station, a few years ago, the sentry feared his two hours were lengthening into three; his shouts through the gate brought no response. Fighting his overpowering inclination to doze, he was soon startled by a rustle.

With a brisk, staccato challenge, he waited, with his bayonet at the "Charge." The hesitation, and then the defiant, strange-voiced "Frent!"—instead of the usual "Relief!"—put him on his guard. Waiting in the shadow, he saw two masked natives enter, knives glinting in their hands.

In a moment he had struck one to earth with the butt of his rifle, and then swiftly pinned the other with his bayonet. The guards were discovered drugged with chloroformed, administered whilst they slept. Papers found on the spies left no doubt as to the intended fate of the magazine—and of the unsuspecting sentry in it!

Deliberate intention of spying has occasionally been traced to foreigners in our ranks. With some ability as actor and linguist, the unscrupulous alien has little difficulty in entering our ranks; and, some years ago, an armorer-sergeant, of doubtful nationality, was detected at Jersey, Channel Islands, disposing of details of a new British rifle to the French authorities.

It recently came to light that a man had earned a pension in both the German and British armies.

At one of our most important foreign forts our soldiers were once badly trapped.

It was known that a Teutonic spy was in the vicinity, bent on making plans, and so the sentry on a magazine, one moonlight night, kept eager watch, and soon was startled by a loud rustling in the adjacent trees. Going cautiously forward, he suddenly observed the figure of a man perched high on the bough of a tree, half hidden by the leaves.

The sentry's first impulse was to use the business-end of his bayonet; on second thoughts, he determined to constrain his captive to his uncomfortable perch all night. The idea was thoroughly to the taste of the relieving sentries, each of whom, during his two hours' duty, stood right under the tree, gazing exultantly at the figure aloft, and indulging in satirical remarks, anything but complimentary or consoling.

At dawn, a triumphant guard proceeded to dislodge the captive. He responded not to their taunts; he did not budge an inch. A private at once climbed aloft, and in doing so, shook down a lifelike effigy!

By this clever ruse, the spy had effectually diverted attention whilst acquiring the information he required, and departed.—Answers.

A SMART BOY

Why the Office Lad Took his Master's Lunch

The English office-boy is generally voted a cheeky young rascal, as cunning as a fox. A few days ago a city councillor had, on the recommendation of a friend, taken into his employ a youngster just from school, who had credentials for being smart and—rare virtue—well-behaved. The lad had evidently been well-drilled, and his first day or two gave promise of being a valuable acquisition to the office. His employer one afternoon, called the boy and said, "Run over to the restaurant and get a cup of tea and some biscuits; here's sixpence, and be quick." A cheerful "Yes, sir," and the boy disappeared. Half an hour passed by, and no sign of the lad's return. Getting impatient, the employer went into the clerk's office, where he found the boy hard at work. "Did you get that cup of tea and biscuits, laddie?" asked the chief. "Yes, sir; thank you very much," beamed the lad and the nonplussed councillor went back to his sanctum ruminating on the folly of careless speech.

A GONDOLA FIRE ENGINE

It is obvious that, as the public thoroughfares of Venice are canals instead of streets, motor-driven or horse-drawn fire apparatus have no place. Consequently the latest Venetian fire department is composed in the main of gondolas, provided with hand pumps. The gondolas are driven through the water by means of long oars or sweeps, operated by the firemen. When the fire is reached, two of the crew work the pump, which draws the water up from under the boat, and the third member holds the nozzle and directs the stream. The water can be thrown as high as the second storey of a building. Fires in Venice, however, are few and fare between, owing to the stone construction of the buildings.

FEEDING STRAW TO HORSES

From Farm and Dairy.

The feeding of straw to horses causes decided constipation, unless measures are taken to counteract the binding effect possessed by straw by feeding plenty of food of a laxative character at the same time. The inclusion of a small quantity of straw-chaff in the diet of a stabled horse is very useful and desirable, as it aids in the proper digestion of the grains. When straw is fed in small quantities its binding effects are not noticeable. When horses do not receive any straw in their daily ration of food, they do not infrequently eat some of the straw as provided for bedding, thus showing their craving for it.

So far as regards the contents of actual nourishment, oat straw is superior to the straw of either wheat or barley, and the first named is decidedly the best and most suitable kind of straw for feeding purposes. Straw at best, of course, contains but little nourishment, it being useful as a food not so much on account of the amount of nourishment in it as on account of its being a good "fill-belly," while in the case of stabled horses which are fed on grain, it is useful also, as has already been pointed out, in promoting the process of digestion, owing to the stimulating effect that it has upon the peristaltic movements of the intestines.

OUT OF HEALTH

For the Woman That's Fat

A Detroit physician says that the cheapest and safest mixture a fat woman who wants to get thin can use is 1-2 ounce Marmola (get it in the original 12 ounce package), 3-4 ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic and 4 3-4 ounces Peppermint Water. The proper amount to take is a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.

These ingredients may be obtained from any druggist at small cost, and make a combination that is not only excellent as a fat reducer, being added, it is claimed, to take off a pound a day without causing wrinkles, but is also a splendid help to the system as a whole, regulating the stomach and bowels (where the fat person's troubles begin), and clearing the skin of pimples and blotches. No exercise is required to help the remedy in its work and, best of all, no dieting is necessary while taking it—you can eat what you like.

The human system is best nourished by the use of foods containing seven parts carbonaceous material, to one of nitrogen. The whole wheat contains this proportion.

ORANGE MEAT

is made from the whole wheat, thoroughly steam cooked. Malt is added to aid in converting these starches.

Bar Negroes From Union.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 19.—President Gompers, in his speech at the Federation of Labor banquet Thursday night, advocated the elimination of negroes from the labor unions of America. He said the supremacy of the Caucasian race in the unions should be maintained.

"There are 8,000,000 negroes in the United States," said Mr. Gompers, "and to my mind they cannot all be expected to understand the philosophy of human rights. I do not believe they should be permitted to join our unions, lacking as they do for the most part the very necessary knowledge of what our unions really stand for in the economic world."

Brockville, Nov. 19.—Roy Halladay, a young married man, employed as a cheesemaker at Phillipsville, was brought here by Constable Russell of Delta yesterday, and later at the Police Court was committed for trial on a charge of indecent assault. She fought him off, and a cuff link dropped on the floor provided a clue to Halladay.

Crippen's Father Dead.

Los Angeles, Nov. 19.—Myron Crippen, 83, father of Dr. Harvey Hawley Crippen, convicted of murder in London, died here yesterday as the direct result of privation and worry over his son's fate. Since Crippen was arrested, the aged man has been penniless and dependent upon charity.

After his son's arrest, the regular remittance which the doctor used to send his father ceased. The elder Crippen's plight was pitiful in the extreme. For several weeks he had haunted the newspapers containing news of his son. The few pennies he was able to gather together all went for newspapers, leaving nothing for food.

He was delirious all Thursday night and continually cried out for his son, and mumbled over and over: "It will not be long before I go, but my boy is innocent. He was a good boy; he was a good boy."

Wants Phosphates.

Kingston, Nov. 19.—James D. Keeley, aged 70, a pioneer of Railton, is dead.

A report from U. S. Consul Johnson is that there is a chance for a big boom for the phosphate and feldspar mines in this district. As Germany has placed an export duty on potash, and the States has been securing its supply there, it will now turn to Canada. Tests of feldspar are now being made, and if they turn out well, the demand will also be great. At present feldspar is used chiefly in the manufacture of crockery. Chicago men are interested here in taking the samples.

Signatures Show Doubt of Guilt.

London, Nov. 19.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—A letter accompanying the Crippen petition which was sent by Newton & Co. to the Home Secretary, says:

"As a whole, the signatures have been obtained spontaneously and in no way by canvassing or anything of that kind. We venture to think that a very large number of serious thinking people have a strong feeling that whatever the suspicion in this case may be, certainly the guilt has not been proven against our client."

Greek Church Asks Tolstoi to Repent His Heterodoxy.

Ottawa, Nov. 19.—The expected discussion in Parliament upon the Eucharistic Congress, and especially the participation therein of the militia, will apparently take place first in the Senate. Curiously enough the question will be raised by Senator Landry, probably the most ultramontane of any leader in the Conservative party, and he will demand the production of all decisions rendered by the militia council and of all correspondence concerning the guard and escort of honor applied for in August and September last on the occasion of the visit in Quebec and Montreal of his eminence Cardinal Vannutelli.

Dr. Sproule, M.P. for East Grey, who is the most prominent Orangeman in Canada, yesterday gave notice of a number of questions to the clerk of the House. The first relates to the action of the Speaker. Dr. Sproule asks if, since Parliament prorogued, the Speaker attended any function or gathering attired in his official robes or apparel, and if so, where and when. He desires to know if it was not the duty of the Speaker, in appearing at any function dressed in his official robes, to be preceded or accompanied by the sergeant-at-arms, carrying the mace, which is the emblem of the authority of the House. If so, is there any precedent to justify it?

Coming to the telegram of Justice Girouard, the member for East Grey asks:

How or by what commission or otherwise, was Justice Girouard appointed the deputy of the Governor-General, or the administrator of the Government, last summer or fall? If so, what authority did the commission confer upon him? Did the administrator of the Government send a telegram or message to Cardinal Vannutelli on his arrival in the country? If so, what were the contents? If so, by whose advice and authority was it done? Was he acting under the advice of his constitutional advisers?

Sproule, personal effects, $500, no insurance; Thomas Fisher, barber shop, loss $150; Mrs. Hastie, keeper of boarding house, damage to household goods $400; insurance $350; W. M. Body in Trunk.

New York, Nov. 19.—An autopsy yesterday established the male sex of a body found in a trunk in a West 54th street tenement last Thursday night. The left lung showed evidences of a hemorrhage, which probably resulted from asphyxiation.

Dr. Lehane and Prof. McAllister both declare that the body was placed in the trunk while the victim was still alive, but undoubtedly unconscious.

Although the corpse, it is believed, had been in the trunk eight years, the murderer's precaution in placing it in a hermetically sealed case of zinc and plaster of paris resulted in its preservation so as to make the determination of sex comparatively easy.

Hung In Tree All Night.

Harvard, Mass., Nov. 19.—An explosion in the automobile he was driving along a lonely country road Thursday night blew Thomas W. Silliker, a chauffeur, high in the air and landed him in the branches of a tree, where he hung unconscious by his clothing until yesterday, when he was discovered by a farmer.

Holt, have just successfully completed negotiations whereby the Canadian steel merger, under the name of the Superior Rolling Mill Co., will open a foundry at Fort William, Ont.

Antwerp, Nov. 19.—It is reported that the C.P.R. Co. is planning a direct steamship service between Antwerp and points in the United States.

Murdered His Father.

Muncie, Ind., Nov. 19.—Benjamin Smith, 22 years old, a farmer, yesterday led officers to an abandoned well near his home, and there showed them the body of his father, with head crushed in, and bearing other evidences of murder. Smith was arrested Thursday night after he had appeared at a neighbor's with blood-stained hands a few hours after his father had been missed. He accounted for his appearance by saying that he had been beaten by highwaymen.

"VOTES FOR WOMEN"

Suffragettes Arrested in London are Discharged this Morning—Better to Put Up With Riots Than Send Them to Prison.

MARTYRS TO THE CAUSE

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, ENG., NOV. 19 One hundred and twenty Suffragettes were arrested in connection with riots yesterday and were arraigned in the police court this morning, all with apparent resignation as martyrs to their cause. There was a murmur of disappointment however when the presiding Justice announced this immediate release following instructions from the Home Secretary. Apparently the Government has decided it is better to put up with riots than send women to prison.

A FALSE ALARM

The fire brigade got a call last night at 8.05, but it was a false alarm. The call was sent in from Box. 18. It appears that some person saw the "singer" at Matthews' packing house, and thought the building was on fire. The brigade went down Aylmer street and out Dalhousie street to the C.P.R. station, where they investigated the cause of the alarm. One of the firemen lost a waist belt on the way and anyone finding same will kindly leave it at the fire hall or police station.

HOW TO CURE STOMACH TROUBLE

A Great Sufferer From Indigestion Tells How She Was Cured

Stomach trouble is a general name for all forms of indigestion, whether great pain after eating, belching of wind, heavy feeling in the stomach, nausea, or the sharp pains that often make you think you have heart trouble. There are two things noticeable in indigestion. One is that doctors always find indigestion a prominent symptom in a bloodless run-down state. The other, that sufferers usually find relief when a tonic is taken that restores the general health. Without a doubt stomach trouble is simply stomach weakness, and the cure is to make the stomach strong enough to digest food without trouble. Any other treatment is patchwork and cannot cure. As the processes of digestion are controlled by the blood and nerves, the stomach that is too weak to digest food needs a tonic to give it strength. And in all the world there is no better tonic than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They actually make new, rich blood, tone the nerves and so strengthen the stomach and all the bodily functions. We submit the following as proof that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will cure even the most obstinate cases of stomach trouble. Mrs. John Graf, Fort Saskatchewan, Alta., says: "For years I suffered great torture from indigestion. I took many different medicines, but instead of benefitting me I was growing worse all the time, till my stomach got so bad I could neither eat nor drink without pain. Even cold water would cause me suffering. Nor did I get any relief when the stomach was empty, as I still suffered from a horrid burning pain. I went to Edmonton and consulted one of the best doctors there, but he told me that by could do nothing for me, that all I could do was to diet. For some time I took only hot water and a small piece of brown bread for my meals, but even that did not help me and I got so weak and run down that I despaired of ever being well again. I bought a so-called electric belt and wore it for six months, but it was simply money wasted. Then one day a friend asked me why I did not try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I did not know they were intended to cure indigestion, but being assured that they were, decided to try them. I soon found the Pills helping me, but my condition was so bad when I began using them that I continued taking the Pills for about five months before I felt that I was completely cured. Then I could eat any kind of food, and although more than two years have passed since my cure, I have not since had the least sign of the trouble. I can most heartily recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to anyone suffering from this terrible trouble."

Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

R. M. C. WINS FROM THE VARSITY II. IN A GRUELLING AND HARD FOUGHT CONTEST

Soldiers Had All the Better of the Third Quarter---Big Crowd Witnesses Intercollegiate Intermediate Championship---Final Score 6-2.

(By a Staff Correspondent)

RIVERSIDE PARK, NOV. 19.—Sensational wintry weather conditions greeted Royal Military College of Kingston and Varsity Seconds Rugby teams this afternoon, when they lined up to play the deciding game for the championship of the Intermediate Intercollegiate Union. It was bright and sunshiny, but a cold, piercing wind blew across the field from the northwest that found weak spots in the armour of the spectators. In spite of the cold weather a splendid crowd turned out for the game. The R. M. C. fourteen were supported by a big following of Cadets, who arrived from Kingston on a special train and whose uniforms gave the crowd an unusually picturesque appearance. The Varsity team had to depend upon Peterborough people for their vocal encouragement. Local enthusiasts were out in force to see the battle between the rival Collegians, and seemed to be about evenly divided in point of favouring one team or the other. The referee is Billy McMaster of Montreal, who won much newspaper notoriety by his work in the Inter-provincial Union, and the umpire Russell Britton of Gananoque. The Varsity team did not seem to be very much enthused over the officials appointed, but made no protest. When the teams took the field for their preliminary punting and catching practice it was seen that they were about evenly matched in size and weight.

The lineup was as follows:

R. M. C.		Varsity
	Back
Galt		Frith
	Halves
K. Stuart		Wood
Robertson		Ramsay
Smith		McKenzie
	Quarter
Lawson		Campbell
	Scrimmage
J. Stuart		Curtis
Young		Gatchet
Irving		Ferris
	Inside Wings
Arnoldi		Sifton
Sweeney		Taylor
	Middle Wings
Goldie		Dawson
Roberts		Tripp
	Outside Wings
Lewis		McDougall
Gwynne		Reid

Referee—W. McMaster, Montreal.
Umpire—R. Britton, Gananoque.

There was not much betting on the game. What little there was was at even money.

Varsity won the toss and elected to kick with the wind in the first quarter. R. M. C. kicked off at 2.17 o'clock with a short kick to one of their wings, but lost on downs. Third Quarter.

McKenzie kicked off for Varsity to Smith, R.M.C. bucked for a small gain and then tried an end run for a loss. Robertson and Frith exchanged punts for no gain. Varsity is working hard to win out. There is only one minute to play and it is Varsity's ball at R. M. C.'s 45 yard line. As a last chance Campbell made a beautiful long pass to Ramsay. Gwynne tackled the latter and when he passed to Frith got him as well. Varsity got an on-side kick and then Frith kicked to Robertson, who was downed at his fifteen yard line as the game ended.

The soldiers swarmed out on the field and carried their heroes off on their shoulders. Final score, R. M. C. 6, Varsity 2.

Examiner Special.

NEW HAVEN, CONN., NOV. 19.—Nearly forty thousand people are seeing Yale and Harvard universities battle for championship honours today, and twenty thousand more applied for tickets, but couldn't get them. Both colleges have strong teams. Harvard is the favourite, 5 to 2, and 2 to 1.

AGAIN ARRESTED

Jim Wilson Spent Another Night in Gaol

James Wilson, the old police court offender, was caged last night for the old offence, drunk and disorderly on the street. It appears that last night he was especially well canned, walking up and down street and dropped into a restaurant, from which he was forced to take his departure rather unceremoniously. His Worship, Magistrate Dumble gave him a good talking to this morning and allowed him to go, on the promise that he would not drink any more.

TO BE ENLARGED

Mr. Pappas, proprietor of the Princess Theatre, has decided to make some changes in the popular photo-play house that will add to the seating capacity. The stage will be removed, allowing room for fifty more seats, which will be installed next week. The change will make the "house of picture and song hits" more commodious and comfortable than before. The removal of the stage precludes the possibility of any vaudeville being given, but a straight programme of pictures and songs has proved so successful that Manager Pappas has decided to leave the bill as it is, the only change being an even better service of pictures than has been the case in the past. New films every day from the best film makers in the world will be given.

RENTED FOR BARNARDO HOME

It is understood that Mr. A. R. Owen, Superintendent of the Barnardo Homes in Canada, has leased the house on Water street, formerly occupied by the late James Stevenson, and will use it in connection with the Margaret Cox Home for Girls, as a residence it is learned, for some of the ladies engaged in the work of the home in this vicinity. The house is owned by Mr. C. H. Clementi and is just opposite Victoria Park.

MINSTREL SHOW

Mr. Holly Shepard, of Bay City, Mich., will arrive in Peterborough on Monday, for the purpose of putting on a Minstrel show under the auspices of the Belmont Club. Rehearsal will commence Monday night. The dates for the presentation of the show at the Grand Opera House have been fixed at the 15th and 16th of December, and the public is reminded to keep one of these dates open, as one of the best shows of minstrelsy as has ever been put on in this city will be presented.

VARSITY OUTCLASSES T.A.A.C. IN SEMI-FINAL GAME FOR THE CHAMPIONSHIP OF CANADA

Half Time Score Was 18-3 in Favour of the Students, who Had all the Better of the Play

Special wire to The Examiner:

ROSEDALE GROUNDS Toronto, Nov 19 When the Toronto Amateur Athletic Club team lined up against Varsity this afternoon in the semi-finals for the Canadian Rugby Championship, it was practically a case of graduates against present-day students. The weather was ideal and the crowd good for a semi-final game. It was quite evident that Toronto and Hamilton supporters, the latter being out in force, were by no means certain that T. A. A. C. wouldn't be in it in the finals next Saturday with the Tigers although Varsity are strong favourites in the betting. The teams are as follows:

Varsity		T. A. A. C.
	Full Back
Dixon		Capreol
	Right Half
Galt		Fleming
	Centre Half
Thompson		Dennehy
	Left Half
Maynard		Powell
	Quarter
Fonds		Sheriff
	Scrimmage
Leonard		B. Burkhart
Bell		Houre
Carroll		Crooks
	Right Inside
Kingston		Burton
	Left Inside
Clark		Thompson
	Right Middle
Lajoie		Hughson
	Left Middle Right Outside
Kennedy		Barber
	Left Outside
Park		D. Barkhart

Referee W. B. Hendry, Varsity; umpire, A. Hewitt, A. A. A. C.

T.A.A.C. won the toss and elected to kick eastward with sun in their backs. Fonds kicked off. After much punting T.A.A.C. lost ball for interference and Galt and Lajoie bucked it over for next effort. Goal was converted. Score, Varsity 6, T.A.A.C. 0.

T. A. A. C. kicked out a bounder which Fonds fumbled and hurt his knee. Burkhart made a beautiful pass to Dixon, but Galt's punts drove the ball to centre quarter. Griff, Fleming, and Powell made spectacular passes to mid-field, but a fumble gave Varsity the ball and Galt boosted it to Dennehy, who tumbled. Powell recovered it and a rouge resulted. Varsity 7, T.A.A.C. 0.

Fleming on outside but on the first down Kennedy forced Sheriff back for safety touch Varsity 9, T.A.A.C. 0

Second Quarter.

Two or three times Barber broke through and crabbed Galt, but the big Varsity captain punted as he went down and forced play. A blocked punt went over T.A.A.C. line, but Fleming resulted it and only rouge resulted. Varsity 10, T.A.A.C. 0.

T.A.A.C. tried end runs and bucks, but were thrown back for a loss and forced to kick. Maynard punt 40 yards out and crossing field gained 15 yards, passed to Galt who evaded three tackles and went over for a try, which Maynard converted from a very difficult angle. Varsity 16, T.A.A.C. 0.

Right after the kick off Fleming loosed the crowd with a grand run around the end and Dennehy promptly dropped a goal from 30 yards out. Varsity 16, T.A.A.C. 3.

The Crimson woke up right here and for a while there was some lively foot ball at centre field with T.A.A.C. having its own.

An offside got T. A. A. C. out of difficulty and the game loosened up at mid-field. McKenzie recovered a loss at Varsity's 40 yard line, and T. A. A. C. had a chance until an offside gave the ball to Varsity at mid-field. Kennedy made his yards on an end run and Galt punted over to Dennehy, who fumbled behind the line. Fleming grabbed it and, evading a dozen tackles, made a pretty individual run of clear forty yards. The crowd rose en masse and cheered the play. The crimson took heart at this and for the remainder of the half had something on the Collegians. Sheriff made a nice buck, just as half-time was called. The total score, Varsity, 16; T. A. A. C. 3.

Varsity scored earlier in the third quarter, T.A.A.C. getting an unconverted try on an on-side kick by Galt and later on a rouge. Three quarter score, 22 to 3 in favour of Varsity.

Final score, Varsity 22, T.A.A.C. 3.

IN GREAT DEMAND

Numerous Enquiries for Farm Help at Immigration Office—"Could Supply 30 Men With Employment" Mr. Howson Stated.

ARE DOING WELL

Have you got a man you could let me have?" asked a farmer of Mr. G. H Howson, Immigration Officer, at his office this morning, and this was only one of many similar questions that he had to answer to a large number of enquirers. Mr. Howson informed the Examiner reporter that he could fill fifty places if he had the men. A number of good men are coming on the "Royal George," but unfortunately it has been quarantined and will be detained for some days. The farmers are securing help now and men who are inexperienced, by entering with a farmer in the fall, by spring have become fairly well conversant with the work. Several young fellow who came out here in the spring and secured employment with farmers, have done well, and are well pleased with Canada. The demand for girls is also great, and several could find splendid work here. Mr. Howson has communications from domestics in Glasgow, who are highly recommended, but who have not the money to come to Canada. If the money was advanced it would be a very easy matter to get them to Canada.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unparalleled"

SATURDAY, NOV. 19, 1910

THE PETERBOROUGH POLICY.

Is there one citizen who will deny, that in the interests of Peterborough's progress there is need of doing something—of doing a great deal—to advance our interests? Is there any one that will deny that we are not doing much, earnestly and systematically, to obtain the many things we should have, and must have, if we hope to gain, and hold, rank as a progressive community? No one will say that the Peterborough Policy suggested by the Examiner does not contain any item that would not, if brought to reality, be an advantage to the city?

To realize upon such a policy, to secure its adoption, in whole, or in part; now or later, needs a beginning upon the part of somebody. To whom shall we look? Leading and enterprising citizens may be convinced and willing, but they have not the authority to take definite action. They may talk and argue, but talking and arguing are of little account without action. We naturally look to the city council; but, at the outset, our city councils are disqualified in that that they have no permanent personnel, that could be regarded as the proper custodians of an advance or any other policy. It is not the fault of the members of city councils; they cannot count upon themselves as permanent; they are liable to change year after year. Members of councils are bound to incur hostility; they are blamed if they do right, by a few, perhaps enough to swing an election; they are blamed, if they don't do right, by everybody. No alderman is sure of his place two years in succession. Hence if any year's council adopted, in the best of good faith, the best and most comprehensive civic policy their probable successors, elected on hap-hazard principles—chiefly, perhaps, because they could get enough votes, not that they represent anything but themselves; nothing definite in the way of progressive administration looking to the city's development—would not continue such a policy. Therefore, we cannot well look to an uncertain, inconstant and changing element, like the average city council.

We should look to the Board of Trade for some light and leading; for the advocacy of something that would help "trade," that would give our merchants certain desirable advantages like cheap shop rents and conditions that would encourage expansion of operations. But what do we find? Do we not find the Board of Trade too academic in its choice of the objects of its activities? Discussion of Technical Education is all right in the abstract; but, in dealing with this is not our Board of Trade plowing in another man's furrow? The Dominion Government appointed a commission to investigate this matter with full powers and enough money to make the investigation searching and effective. This Commission has just broken the prairie and we cannot expect a crop for some time; and by common consent, there is a suspension of action, till such time as the Commission's report, forms a warrantable and practicable basis for action. Meanwhile, merely academic discussion is a waste of an energy that might well be devoted to practical ends.

If the Board of Trade would take up, say, the subject of municipal government by commission it would put itself in touch with a live wire; a live question, that is engaging the attention of practical civic patriotism. The following despatch shows that the Guelph Board of Trade is joining the City of St. Catharines in grasping the subject with a practical hand:

Guelph, Nov. 18.—The Board of Trade will recommend to the City Council that the entire affairs of the fire department be placed in the hands of either an existing commission or a commission to be formed as soon as permission can be obtained from the Legislature making such a step possible, and that legislation to this effect, if necessary, should be applied for without delay by the City Council. Furthermore, they recommend the Council asking the Legislature for powers to place any department or departments of the city's affairs, excepting legislation, appropriation and taxation, under either existing commissions or new commissions to be formed. The Board will also petition the Legislature through the local member, Mr. J. R. Howitt, to make such amendments to the municipal act as will make it possible for any municipality of not less than 10,000 people to adopt civic government by commission on the lines of the laws at present in force in the State of Iowa.

This action is largely justified by the fact that our present system of municipal government is a failure; not so much from the incapacity of members, but because of the system which makes yearly changes of councils, to an extent to deprive us of any guarantee that the policy adopted if such a miracle should happen—one year would be acted upon the next.

Des Moines is the Iowa example referred to. The principle of government by commission has been applied there with such striking success that it has been adopted, with modifications to suit the local conditions, by nearly eighty other United States towns and cities. Des Moines based her plan on that of Galveston, which, after the partial destruction of that city by a tidal wave, adopted the commission form of administration as the most direct means of dealing promptly and effectively with the big problems the disaster presented. Des Moines followed her example from a desire to end the inefficiency and waste that had attended aldermanic rule and resorted to government by commission, with happy results. The foremost citizens of the place say they would not go back to the old way under any consideration.

The success of the commission system there leads to its being widely copied; and, now enterprising Canadian cities are aiming at management of civic business on business principles. The Mayor of Des Moines says that the system leads to greater efficiency and simplicity—"The city gets 100 cents for every dollar spent; whereas, it used to get only 60 cents on the dollar, owing to incompetence and waste, if not actual dishonesty. The commission principle is entirely administrative, just as you would run a bank or other important business." "We see in Des Moines the fruit of the system," says M. O. Hammond, in the Globe. "In new bridges, clean streets, and the handsome new city hall now being erected."

Consideration of the problem of government by commission is one of the steps that might well be taken up in the direction of improving Peterborough. We must do something; we are practically doing nothing now beyond the routine hum-drum of administration; we are barely keeping the machinery moving; we are doing nothing creative; we are neglecting to provide the proper equipment of progress. What is to be done? Everybody admits that something should be done, that a good deal needs to be done to keep Peterborough up to the mark and prevent her falling behind. "And Moses said unto the people of Israel that they go forward."

An Indictment Of The House Of Lords Opposition To Progressive Measure

(London Correspondence Globe)

I wonder if your readers realize how deep and bitter is the resentment of Liberals against the House of Lords on the veto question, and how good are our grounds for resentment. It is the habit of Tory orators to assert that "the House of Lords has never resisted social reform". If the Tories were not past masters in the art of making misleading representations, such an assertion would astonish the world. The audacity of Mr. Balfour has carried him farther, for he has announced his conviction that not the Lords, but the Commons, have stood in the way of social reform.

Wholesale Hangings.

What are the facts? At a time when the House of Lords largely controlled the Commons through pocket boroughs and corrupt influence, the Lords insisted on death for 223 different offences. Twice they rejected Sir Samuel Romilly's bill for the abolition of the death penalty for stealing to the value of five shillings. This bill was carried by the Commons, but Lord Ellenborough pronounced it as pregnant with danger to the security of property," and Lord Wynford feared that the people of England would no longer sleep in safety in their beds." So hanging went on, and the Bishops joined in the horrible inhumanity. Hundreds of young people were hanged, thousands transported for faults deserving only reproof, such faults as picking up a dead pheasant on the roadside or cutting down a tree. The Lords maintained mantraps and spring guns against the British peasantry, and it was well said by an eminent Liberal clergyman at the time "There is a sort of horror in thinking of a whole land filled with the lurking engines of death." The Lords would have it so.

Against Popular Education.

Again, Peers, temporal and spiritual, maintained the slave trade. When rate-supported elementary schools were proposed in 1807 the Lords rejected the bill, the Archbishop of Canterbury averring that it "would shake the foundations of religion." Many years later their Lordships rejected a State grant of £30,000 for popular education. Time after time they have rejected Liberal plans of education, and have insisted on the unjust contribution of rates for sectarian teaching. In 1833 an abbatoirs bill was spoilt by the Lords, and in 1834 and 1838 they practically rejected, by spoiling, other bills aimed at political corruption. Thus they corrupted the very springs of social reform. Coming to recent times, in 1906 they rejected the plural voting bill sent up to them from the House of Commons by a majority of 304 on a second reading. In this way they lent their support to a gross injustice, and their reason was that the plural voter is almost inevitably a Tory. They also rejected the London election bill, because it would have removed an electoral anomaly that deprive thousands of working men of their votes when they move from one part of London to another within the qualifying period.

Hostility to Municipal Reform.

The testimony of history convicts them of sheltering privileges, preserving abuses and cherishing monopolies. The story of their hostility to Parliamentary and municipal reform is aberrant. They refused open spaces that were badly needed in poor districts, they rejected tramway schemes for London, and declined to open Lincoln's Inn Fields as a playground for the little children who live in the slums of central London. They refused to pass bills against municipal mismanagement of trusts. Their hostility to land reform is an old story now. They have on so many occasions mutilated or thwarted the proposals of the House of Commons as gerrymaciously that such miseries and unemployment as the country suffers from is very largely due to their obstruction and to their maintenance of selfish land laws against the will of the Commons. They tried to retain the paper duty, which kept the price of newspapers high, and rejected its removal till Mr. Gladstone overcame them by including the repeal in his Budget.

Mutilated Many Acts.

Their religious intolerance was shown by their opposition to the admissions of Jews, Nonconformists and Roman Catholics to high public offices. Their whole treatment of Ireland for centuries was cruel and unjust to a degree. They mutilated the agricultural holdings act, the Town Councils act, the Irish land act, the ballot act, the arrears act, the employers' liability, the railway servants', the naval Government (Scotland), and the education acts. They gave their countenance to cruelty to animals by throwing out the spurious sports bill. Their resistance to temperance has been bitter and continuous, and by their opposition they have hindered some of the greatest social reforms proposed by Liberals. They mutilated the labour in mines bill, intended to protect children in mines from sufferings described by a Royal Commission as "absolutely hideous."

Selfishness and Frigidity.

They resisted the protection of women and children in mines for thirty years, and, after the Commons had agreed to it. They refused education to put boys. They mutilated the public houses hours of closing bill (1887) and insisted on disallowing the use of national schoolrooms to parish Councils, thereby driving the Councils in many cases to meet in public houses. "Never did one body present such a contrast to another," wrote that great philanthropist, the seventh Lord Shaftesbury, "as the House of Lords to the House of Commons. . . . Never have I seen such a display of selfishness and frigidity." I have only given here an incomplete indictment of the House of Lords. The sum of misery standing to their account by reason of their delays of justice and social reform will never be fully realized.

Only One Thing to Do.

There is no place of repentance for them and no way of dealing adequately with them except by abolishing for ever their power of mischief. Liberals are confident that Mr. Asquith will not betray them in this matter; that he will not for the sake of some scheme of federalism sacrifice the principle of the parliament bill, which is that Liberal legislation shall have the same chance of passing as Tory legislation. It does not follow, of course, that the advance of the cause of federalism means that the problem of the Lords' veto has been forgotten or observed. The federal movement has a sound democratic heading behind it, but the stumbling-block to a settlement is, as I have previously pointed out, the difficulty, if not impossibility, of reconciling Tory opinion and Irish and Liberal opinion on home rule. The tariff reformers, who have inspired the latest Tory move, are willing to give anything that Ireland asks in the shape of home rule if they can secure Irish support for tariff reform. They forget, however, that the Irish leaders are in entire sympathy with Liberal statesmanship at the present juncture and are quite well aware that if once the Lords' veto is abolished or satisfactorily restricted home rule of whatever kind they want—said Mr. Redmond, despite "interviews" in Tory newspapers, standing by Parnell's position is within their grasp. They overlook also the hostility to Irish home rule of any sort that would satisfy Mr. Redmond of many of the most influential men of their party.

War Within the Party.

The split has already revealed itself. "Feelings" has been silenced. Lord Hugh Cecil has expressed his disapproval, and Mr. Walter Long writes to say that when Tories denounced home rule they were "indulging in no mere rhetoric, in no empty platitude," but were expressing "the deep and utmost convictions of our minds that home rule in any form would be a danger to the Empire, would imperil the growing prosperity of Ireland, and would involve the most cowardly betrayal of a vast number of our fellow-subjects, and we have pledged ourselves to resist any attempt to force such a measure upon the country with all our power." There are many Walter Longs in the Tory party both in the House and throughout the country who will, as he has declared he will, refuse to recede from that position.

Whether those who believe in the success of the conference or those who think it will fail are right will soon be known. There is no discredit attaching to one or other view. Meanwhile most Liberals would prefer to fight and have done with it. The Tories are utterly disorganized, and their disorganization is admitted even by their own press. South Shields is a proof of it, for, although the Tories are shouting about a "reduced Liberal majority," the moral of the election is that the Tories in 1910 polled their last man—as they did throughout the country—and that a great many Liberals, knowing the result was a foregone conclusion, stayed away from the poll.

ELLIOT'S STORE NEWS

Quality is Always the Final Test

A nice box or a free entry do not guarantee fine goods or a free citizen. Though both are highly desirable. Our government, no matter how bad or good it is, is just what we are fitted for: it is an expression of ourselves. The quality of goods and men is always the final test. Do you notice that in some sections we're very primitive yet. In some places we are not yet fitted for a free government. Some great political boss has only to hold up his hand and we run in eager enthusiasm and servile obedience to carry him around on our necks, and the joke of it all is, we think that we select him, we think that we are free. Quality is always the final test, whether for citizenship, service or goods. Here is some quality we are delighted to tell you about.

The quiet unity of a Stylish Skirt always impresses the observer. We represent the most noted dress-skirt body in America, from coast to coast, their skirts are known for their stylish and correct fit, their beauty of finish and high quality. Every Skirt is all wool, stitched with silk thoroughly shrunken. The range is so wide you get a great choice in style and materials. We show all the new Voiles, Parisines, Chevrons, Serges, Panamas, Silks etc. Let us show them to you, it will be a pleasure to us and interesting to you. They have instructions to ship to us every week, in this way we keep right up to date, and their prices are lower than you pay for ordinary sorts. No charge for alterations.

CORSETS

Newest Styles

We pride ourselves in our Corset Trade, for years it has steadily grown in the favor of the ladies and in the quantity sold. We always keep the new styles in stock. You know there is always some dainty style that sets off the particular style of dress that is worn from time to time. We always make it a point of having that corset in all sizes. One of the new corsets has a reinforced strength in the bust and hip; it gives great durability and maintains the figure in the correct poise. There are many other new styles that are needed in the wardrobe of the young lady. See the next column for corset bargains on Saturday. North Side, Main Floor

PRESENATION MADE TO RETIRING SUPERINTENDENT

Mr. W. J. Elop Honoured by the Officers and Members of Murray St. Bapt Sunday School.

IS LAVING THE CITY

Last ening a number of the teachers, ofers and scholars of Murray street aptist Sunday school, gathered at the home of Dr. J. W. Browett and farewell to Mr. W. J. Dunlop, iperintendent, who is leaving the ty for Toronto, where he has ccepted a position on the staff of Toronto University.

F. J. R. Webb acted as chairman in his usual acceptable manner. Mr. J.W. Browett then read the following address:

Peterboorugh, Nov. 18, 1910.

Dear Mr. Dunlop,—As teachers, officers and scholars of Murray street aptist Sunday school, we wish to express to you our very hearty appreciation of your services. Since our appointment on Oct. 1st, 1907, we have enjoyed your unremitted attention to our interests. Under your direction our sessions have been characterized by promptness, system and order. You have gathered about you new and valuable workers as teachers and officers and have won by your strong brotherly manner, the fullest confidence and co-operation of our whole school. Your ability as a professional man has been recognized, as evidenced in your advancement by the Board of Education of our city, and now the Department of Education has appointed you to a responsible position in the principal city of our province. We congratulate you upon your success and are thankful that we have had the benefit of your guidance in the spiritual work of leading the young to devote their lives to Christ.

We have no doubt that your talent will still be exercised in larger spheres for Him who is our Lord and Master. We are thankful for the cooperation of Mrs. Dunlop in the Sunday school and shall never know how much we owe her for the work accomplished.

And now, as a small token of our esteem for you and Mrs. Dunlop, we ask your acceptance of this hall clock, which bears our inscription

REV. J. R. WEBB, Pastor.
DR. J. W. BROWETT, Ass.-Supt.
O. S MATCHETT, Rec.-Sec.

The clock was beautifully inscribed on an inscription plate, "Presented to W. J. Dunlop, November, 1910, by Murray St. Baptist S.S., the work of F. R. Clark & Son, Jewellers."

Mr. Dunlop replied on behalf of himself and Mrs. Dunlop, thanking one and all for their kindness and assuring them of their continued interest in the welfare of Murray St. church and Sunday school.

Letter of regret at their inability to be present were read from Messrs. T. F Matthews, J. P. Cunningham, L. J. Pettit and others.

After the presentation, refreshments were served and a social hour spent.

A vote of thanks, moved by Mr. T. Riddell, seconded by Mr. W. G. Shiner, was passed to Dr. and Mrs. J. Browett for their kind hospitality, and a pleasant evening brought to a close by singing, "Blest be the Tie That Binds."

THE COMING OF SOUSA'S BAND.

Next Tuesday, Nov. 22nd, Sousa and his world-famous Band will visit Peterborough. There are only a few places in Canada that will have the privilege of hearing this celebrated organization as only Kingston, Peterborough, Hamilton, London and Toronto will be visited. The Band will arrive in Peterborough by special train from Kingston at 7.45 p.m., where they appear in the afternoon, and consequently the local performance will not commence until 8.30 p. m.

To John Philip Sousa belongs the credit of composing more catchy instrumental numbers than any other producer, many of which are played by the 57th Band. It is the kind of music that appeals to all classes, gets your feet going and the small boy's "whistler" working overtime.

Mr. Sousa will be assisted by Virginia Root, Soprano Soloist; Nicoline Zedeler, violinists, and Herbert L. Clarke, cornetist. The seat sale opened this morning and, judging by the heavy advance sale, Sousa will be greeted with a bumper house.

PETERBOROUGH TYPEWRITER

While Mr. C. F. Smythe, travelling salesman for the Oliver Typewriter Company, Chicago, was in Lindsay on Wednesday of this week, Mr. Thomas informed him that in the course of a few days his Company would require some typewriters. On Friday a 'phone message from Mr. Thomas to the Peterborough Typewriter Co., resulted in Mr. C. F. Smythe of the Oliver Typewriter Co., Chicago, and Mr. W. F. Nelson, Manager of the Peterborough Typewriter Co., making a flying trip to Lindsay yesterday evening, closing a deal with the Thomas Shoe Company for seven American Oliver Typewriters.

The question of versatility of the OLIVER was not discussed, as the Thomas Shoe Company of Cleveland have been using these machines for twelve years. It was simply a question of immediate delivery. Although on account of the increasing demand, the whole shipment could not be delivered yesterday, the Peterborough Typewriter Company delivered enough machines to the enterprising Mr. D. B. Thomas, to enable him to commence his office staff at work.

This order, along with local orders, makes a total sale for this week of ten new American Olivers.

WARRANT FOR CONDUCTOR

Wanted For Stealing Fares and Selling Tickets

(From the Montreal Gazette)

Judge Lanctot, at the request of the Crown Prosecutor, has issued a bench warrant for the arrest of E. Smith, a former sleeping-car conductor in the employ of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, who at one time ran between Montreal and Vancouver, and latterly between Montreal and Toronto.

Early in October information reached the Crown authorities which led up to Smith's arrest for stealing sleeping-car fares, and for stealing and selling railway tickets to various persons in Montreal and elsewhere. Smith had a preliminary hearing and was committed for trial to the Court of King's Bench, his case being set for the 10th. When called, he failed to appear, with the result that warrant issued for his arrest.

The case caused a good deal of interest in railway circles, and it is probable that other than railway people will become interested, as the names and addresses of quite a number of people with whom he has been doing business are known, and it is likely that before the matter is finally disposed of several of the hunters for bargains in railway transportation will be dealt with.

"It is really too bad," said a high official of the Canadian Pacific on Saturday, "that the travelling public should suggest such dishonesty to conductors. If passengers would refrain from making conductors steal from the company by offering them facilities and inducements to do so, it would be better for them in every way. We have the names of a good many men who have done this, in Montreal and other places, and they include some pretty prominent men. Morally they are as guilty, if not more so, than the conductors whom they train to become thieves, and the practice of trying to get this cheap transportation at the expense of the company and the honesty of the conductors cannot be too sharply repressed.

"In the present instance it has led to the ruin of a young man and the breaking up of his home. While we are sorry for those who suffer by it, the company must stop this business of stealing fares, and prosecution will follow every instance that is discovered."

Canada Cement Company Reduces Prices

The price of Cement has been lowered. This announcement may come as a surprise to many—for, when Mergers merge, the opposite tendency is usually looked for, but this time the unexpected has happened.

About a year ago most of the largest cement interests joined hands and formed one company, known as The Canada Cement Company, Limited. It was immediately predicted, in many quarters, that prices would be advanced, that on account of the big Merger the consumer would have to pay dear for his cement in future. The promoters of the Company, on the other hand, stoutly contested this theory, pointing out that owing to reduction of expenses and increased efficiency, they hoped to be able to give even cheaper cement than ever before.

The first move on the part of the Cement Company was to regulate the price of its products, and it was an agreeable surprise to everyone when it was learned that in making the adjustment prices were not unduly advanced. That was last year.

On the 1st of November, this year, a circular was sent out by the Canada Cement Company, further reducing the price of its product throughout the entire Dominion on an average of about 10c. per barrel.

This reduction means a whole lot, and proves beyond doubt the sincerity of the statements made by the promoters, when the Company was yet in embryo.

AN UP-TO-DATE STORE

Mr. W. H. Kent Has Made Extensive Improvements to His Store

Since taking over the H. S. Macdonald street Mr. W. J. Kent, who came here from Ottawa, has made extensive improvements to the store that lend brightness and attractiveness to the place. The interior has undergone a complete renovation in the line of new decorations. The walls and shelves have been painted and new window casements have been placed in the show windows, enabling the proprietor to dress them to much better advantage. The lettering on the upper parts of the window shows up very brightly at night. It is done in red and with strong electric lights behind them, the lettering is shown in a most distinctive effect.

The supply of hay on the market to-day was very heavy, several loads being put on. The demand was also fairly large. The supply of live and dressed hogs was very heavy and still apparently continue to be so. Beef was also in abundance. The only thing in the meat line showing a scarcity was lamb, only one load appearing. The farmers state that the supply of the above mentioned products will continue to be heavy until Christmas, the trade are beginning to get good and they can get to the city with less difficulty.

PRISON REFORM

Will Be Discussed at Meeting of Good Fellowship Guild

The Guild of Good Fellowship will meet in the Princess theatre on Sunday afternoon, from 3 to 4 o'clock, when the subject for discussion will be "The Punishment of the Criminal and Prison Reform." No doubt, a large number will be present as the question is a live one.

An increasing interest is being displayed in these weekly meetings, and suggestions are continually offered to make them as helpful as possible. There are two ways of spending Sunday afternoon,—one is to waste it by slacking, and the other to improve the whole man by taking part in some good movement such as this. Which for you, friend? Come along to the Princess to-morrow at 3 o'clock.

STOMACH DISTRESS IS ENDED FOREVER

Dyspepsia, Heartburn, Gas or Indigestion Vanish in Five Minutes

Take your sour, out-of-order stomach—or maybe you call it Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Gastritis or Catarrh of Stomach; it doesn't matter — take your stomach trouble right with you to your Pharmacist and ask him to open a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and let you eat one 22-grain Triangule and see if within five minutes there is left any trace of your former misery.

The correct name for your trouble is Food Fermentation—food souring; the Digestive organs become weak, there is lack of gastric juice; your food is only half digested, and you become affected with loss of appetite, pressure and fulness after eating, vomiting, nausea, heartburn, griping in bowels, tenderness in the pit of stomach, bad taste in mouth, constipation, pain in limbs, sleeplessness belching of gas, biliousness, sick headache, nervousness, dizziness or many other similar symptoms.

If your appetite is fickle and nothing tempts you, or you belch gas, or if you feel bloated after eating, or your food lies like a lump of lead or your stomach, you can make up your mind that at the bottom of all this there is but one cause—fermentation of undigested food.

Prove to yourself in five minutes that your stomach is as good as any; that there is nothing really wrong. Stop this fermentation and begin eating what you want without fear of discomfort or misery.

Almost instant relief is waiting for you. It is merely a matter of how soon you take a little Diapepsin.

THE EVENING CHIT-CHAT

By Ruth Cameron

WHY do men, as a rule, have clearer and better skins than women?

I have often heard that question propounded, but up to yesterday never heard any answer except whimsical comments on the cruelty of the fate that arranged matters that way.

Yesterday it was asked in the presence of a doctor man, who startled us by answering:

"Probably because they shave."

"What has that got to do with it?" we retorted.

"Just that a man who shaves keeps his skin in good condition by giving it a thorough massage every day with a very fine soap and brush."

"But why couldn't women do that?"

"I suppose they could if they wanted to."

"And would it really improve their skins?"

"It most certainly would. If any woman, who has rough or pimply or sallow skin, would get a brush and stick of shaving soap or any other soap as pure, and would cleanse and massage her face every morning just as thoroughly as her brother does when he shaves, I'll guarantee she would have an infinitely better skin in a short time."

I am not by any means a health and beauty expert. I don't pretend to be able to teach my readers how to be beautiful though homely, but every once in awhile I get a letter from "Edyth" or "Violet" or "Amaryllis" or "Palecheeks" on this most important of subjects.

And the most common question is a request for a receipt for a skin lotion that will make a homely, sallow, skin clear and attractive.

Of course, I can't give that.

If I could, I should have a fortune ready made to my hand.

No one can give that receipt no matter what alluring advertiser, who know the feminine public's longing to be fooled on this question, may say.

But if any girl really wants an attractive skin enough to work for it, why not try my doctor friend's prescription for a few months?

And while I am about it here are one or two more beauty hints.

The red corpuscles in the blood are increased by sleep more than by anything else. In other words the best way to improve your colour is to get an extra hour or two of sleep every night. Be sure that you have plenty of fresh air in your chamber—for sleep needs oxygen to help it in this process—and every moment that you put in in this way will add to your red corpuscles.

Above all things, remember that the best way to improve the skin is to improve the general health — especially the condition of the bowels and kidneys, which in their functions are closely related to the skin.

Drinking plenty of water and keeping the bowels in good order will do infinitely more to give you a clear skin than the most exquisite and expensive skin lotion that was ever invented to coax the dollars out of femine handbags.

NEW KNOX CHURCH IS A SPLENDID ADDITION TO CITY'S SACRED EDIFICES

Description of the Structure which is now Practically Completed---The Arrangements for the Opening Services---An Interesting Programme Has Been Arranged.

Peterborough has one more splendid church added to its already excellent edifices. The fact that new churches of such a splendid class are being built, is good evidence that the city is growing, from a religious point of view, as well as a commercial standpoint. It is also an evidence of the zeal and ambition of a congregation to see them erecting such a fine structure.

The building which is referred to is the new Knox church on Rubidge street. This splendid building, which will soon be ready for use, will seat 900 people, the gallery providing accommodation for 300 of them. There are four entrances; two main entrances from Rubidge street and two at the west end of the church. The west entrances are made at the corners. The new structure is connected with the old building by two doors, one from the basement and one from the lady's room upstairs. The gallery is constructed of Georgia pine, with an open railing around it of the same material. The railing will be oiled and varnished. Special mention may be made of the windows, which are indeed a credit to the manufactures, the Luxfer Prism Co., Toronto. One large window is in the end facing Rubidge street. There are also four entrances to the gallery, two at each end. The floor of the church is slanting toward the pulpit and the seats will be of circular make, with four aisles. The pulpit is circular and made of quarter cut oak. It was donated by the Young People's Society of the church. Splendid chairs are also being donated by Mrs. George Campbell, in memory of her mother, Mrs. Emma Cox.

The vestibule and entrances are made of pressed brick and Georgia pine. The heating and plumbing apparatus was installed by Mr. A. W. Archibald. Every room is being properly heated. The carpet and curtains will be given by the Ladies Aid Society. The offertory plates are being donated by the Go-Forth Club.

At the west end of the church, is a fine large room with four windows facing Reid street. This is intended for the Men's Brotherhood and Adult Bible class. At the north side of this room is another spacious compartment, which will be used as the ladies room. Directly under the Men's Brotherhood room is another room about the same size. It will be divided by a curtain. One half will be used as the manager's room and the other half will be used for the choir and ladies' parlour. South of the ladies' room is another room, intended for the vestry quarters.

A splendid large room has been made in the basement, at the west end for the Junior Brotherhood quarters. At the north side of this is situated the men's toilet room. The east end of the basement and heating quarters will not be finished at present, as no use can be made of that part for a while. Between the heating section and the basement quarters a kitchen is arranged. This will be used when there is need of serving refreshments, and will be a great improvement on the old arrangements. The heating apparatus and boilers were put in by the Dominion Radiator Co., of Toronto.

Another feature of the splendid equipment of the new church is the ventilation. A wooden shaft goes around in the roof of the basement, and this will be connected with a little compartment in which a heater will be placed. This will make a current of air, which will carry off all the impure air and will keep a current of fresh air circulating all the time.

The building is being superintended by Ald. James Graham, and the structure will be completed in a couple of weeks. The opening services will take place on Sunday, Dec 11th. The preacher for the occasion will be Rev. Dr. Johnson, of the American Presbyterian church, Montreal. He was at one time pastor of St. Andrew's church, Lindsay and later of London, Ont. There will be a brief dedication at 10 a.m. of the same day, conducted by Rev. Dr. Marsh.

Monday evening, the 12th, a fowl supper will be served from 6 to 8 o'clock and later on in the evening an address will be given by Rev. Dr. Johnson, who is well known as an entertaining lecturer.

The second Sabbath there will be a men's meeting at 9.30 in the morning, conducted by Rev. J. D. Morrow, of Dale Presbyterian church, Toronto. He will also conduct service in the Sabbath school in the afternoon. Special music will be supplied for all occasions. Also at that special Sabbath school service will be made the school's special offering to the new church. The services of the day will be held at 11 o'clock in the morning and 7 o'clock in the evening, and will be conducted by Rev. Prof Law, of Knox College, Toronto, recently from Scotland and who a short time ago received a unanimous call to be pastor of old St. Andrew's church, which he declined.

The third Sabbath, which is Christmas Day, special communion service will be held at 11 o'clock, Rev. Dr. Pogue, pastor of St. Paul's church, will officiate at the evening service.

The building in general is one of the finest in the city, and is unsurpassed for conveniences. The lights have not yet been put in, but the building will be lighted by Mr. Alex. Miller. The ceiling of the church contains two large ventilators in addition to that of the wooden shaft.

The choir will sit in front of the pulpit and for the present the old organ will be used, and will also be placed in front of the pulpit. The church is very attractively finished inside, and when completed will present a very beautiful appearance. It would take columns of space section to give each room and section its share of attention, and to place before the public the conveniences afforded by these rooms, so to say that they are all excellently finished, and all well suited for the purpose it is intended for, is the least that can be said. The people of Knox church cannot be given too much praise for the excellent structure they have erected. It is a credit to them and to the city, as well as to those who built it, and it is a good thing for Peterborough that it has within its boundaries, people who are ambitious enough to begin such an enterprise and carry out all their plans so well. It is to be hoped that they will show their enthusiasm by turning out to the services.

Grand Concert At Lakefield Local Talent Took Pa

St. John's Choir Quartette, Mrs. Davidson, Miss Helen Davies and Others Assisted in Programme.

WAS GREAT SUCCESS

Lakefield citizens turned out in large numbers last night to attend one of the best concerts that has ever been given in their town hall, and showed their appreciation by encoring every number on the programme. Ostensibly, the concert was to help out the music fund of the Anglican Church of St. John the Baptist, which object was easily achieved, but a far more important result, namely the presentation of a high-class concert, was carried out. The Rev. F. J. Sawers was fortunate in enlisting in his venture the services of Miss Helen Davies and Mr. R. J. Dovey, to whose finished work the success of the evening was mainly owing. Peterborough also furnished a delightful quartette from St. John's choir, who scored a great success in the tuneful number from the "Gondoliers" "A Regular Royal Queen"; also Mrs. R. Davidson, an established favourite with Lakefield. The surprise of the evening was the appearance of Mr. T. Woodworth, also of Peterborough, an actor-elocutionist of the highest order, very seldom to be found. His numbers given in the truly artistic spirit, had to be supplemented each time he appeared, and either tragic or gay, the audience was captured from start to finish. Most pleasing features of the concert were the most excellent numbers by the Lakefield performers, who, in solos and chorus, rose to the occasion, giving evidence of most careful training. The Revd F. J. Sawers made a thoroughly genial chairman, and the artistic duties of accompanist were skilfully carried out by Mr. R. J. Dovey. At the conclusion of the concert all the performers were kindly entertained at the Rectory.

The Jessie Alexander Concert

That the talented elocutionist, Miss Jessie Alexander, is always a welcome visitor in Peterborough was evidenced by the warm and enthusiastic reception tendered her at the Conservatory Music Hall last evening. The hall was filled to overflowing, every available seat being taken, and Miss Alexander on each appearance before her admirers was greeted with prolonged applause, and was forced to respond to insistent encores. Miss Alexander needs no introduction in this city, as she has appeared before local audiences on several occasions. This talented elocutionist has a charming personality and wins the appreciation of her hearers from her first number until the final one is rendered, and people go away feeling in a better humour and glad that they had gone. Miss Alexander is equally as good in her humourous selections as in her serious ones, and last evening in her imitations of two classes of Englishmen, the "Cockney" and the "Cad" was exceedingly laugh-provoking and brought down the house. One of her serious selections "Covenanting Days," was a splendid effort and won well merited applause.

The Conservatory Orchestra, which it is always a pleasure to hear, under the direction of Mr. Rupert Gladdon, was heard to splendid advantage the "Miserie Scene" from Il Trovatore, being among the most pleasing.

Miss Principle, soprano soloist, added much to the pleasure of the evening's programme by the rendition of two numbers that called forth encores that met with gracious response by the talented vocalist.

"FRE OFFERS"

Most of the "Free Offers" that appear in advertisements do not pan out very well, there is usually some string attached, some conditions to be complied with that amount to a good price for all you get. A notable exception, however is the offer made by Mrs. F. E. Crah, of Windsor, Ont., as stated on page two in her ad. entitled "Prove by Actual Experiment." She sent absolutely free, a box of Orange-Lily, an expensive concentrated remedy put up in pure gelatine capsules, why is sufficient for ten days' treatment, and which is worth 35 cents. Mr. Currah finds it pays to do this, the reason that being a strictly edible preparation, its good effects are noticed from the start, and most all who give it a trial continue to use until completely cured.

WERE ENTERTAINED BY THE A. Y. P. A. OF ST. LUKE'S

Rectors and Members of All Saints and St. John's Were Guests at Enjoyable Social Last Evening.

SPLENDID PROGRAMME

A very interesting meeting of St Luke's A.Y.P.A. was held last night, the rectors of All Saints, and St. John's churches, as well as the members of the A.Y.P.A. of these churches, coming to enjoy the hospitality of the St. Luke's Association. The evening was one of thorough enjoyment. Mr. Harry Moore occupied the chair, and on the platform with him were Rev. Mr. Trumpour, Rev. Chas. Carpenter and Rev. Dr. Langfeldt. Rev. Canon Davidson sent a very kind message of regret at his inability to be present on account of other business.

After devotional exercises conducted by Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, a few matters of business were transacted, among them the proposal made by the rector to make Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Turner honourary members of the Association. Eight other new members were also accepted. The following musical programme was then given:

Instrumental Solo—Miss Alice Nell.
Song—Mr. Chas. Coleman.
Solo—Miss Hinchcliffe.
Recitation—Mr. Jos. Halpany.
Vocal Solo—Miss Quartermaine.
Duet—Mrs. and Miss Hinchcliffe.
Comic Song—Mr. Jos. Halpany.
Address—Mr. W. H. Cluxton.

After this programme the guests sat down to a banquet tendered by St. Luke's A.Y.P.A. and catered for by Messrs. Coleman Bros. Speeches were made by the rectors and others present and a pleasant social hour spent. A guessing contest resulted in prizes being obtained by Miss Morphat and Miss Hesfield.

The evening was brought to a close at 11 p.m. and was voted a great success.

A hearty vote of thanks was passed to Mr. J. J. Turner for his kindness in decorating the hall with flags of all nations for the occasion.

IS A VERY COMMON EXPRESSION

Are you one of the unfortunates,—and what is the cause?

There are hundreds of people right in this vicinity who have poor blood, are run-down, all tired out, with no strength, vitality or ambition.

We want to ask all such people to call at our store and get a bottle of Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic, which is made without oil and very palatable.

We claim it will make pure, rich red blood, and impart new life, energy and strength to every person who does not feel well. If it fails we will return your money—without question. Isn't this a fair and generous offer?

A case is reported from Leipsic, Ind. —Mrs. C. R. Catlin was troubled with indigestion—was weak—all run down. She says Vinol cured her stomach trouble, restored her strength,—and made her feel like a new woman. Anyone in her condition can get the same benefit from Vinol. GENERALLY SPEAKING

The Execution of Candy.

What were the authorities thinking about in Montreal, when they hanged the unfortunate Card in a place where hundreds of men and women could witness the detestable proceedings. It brings to mind what one has read of the crude days of old, of the thousands that flocked to Tyburn to witness the public executions of thieves and highwaymen. In the present case, as in the older cases, many women were amongst the spectators.

But the most appalling thing of all is that children also were amongst the spectators. It is difficult to realize that when we plume ourselves on being so advanced in civilization, that even certain amongst us [illegible] that we have attained to such a pinnacle of perfection that heaven must be near, that creatures can be found so degraded as to ask not only to witness such an exhibition themselves, but allow their little ones to witness it also.

Varsity at Hamilton.

The story that appeared in yesterday's Examiner coupled with the report from Hamilton that the police and militia have been requisitioned by the merchants of that city for duty on the approaching football match between Varsity and the Tigers, makes it appear as if there is an element of rowdyism in that institution of learning. But supposing such is the case, the question arises, could not Hamilton merchants have asked for protection in a way less calculated to arouse attention to the University. By invoking the aid of the militia they make it appear that they regard the students as being as great a menace to the place as traitors or revolutionists. A quiet reinforcement of police and a private hint to the authorities that stern measures will be adopted if order is not maintained, would have proved just as fruitful of results and far more emollient in its effect than such an alarmist method as the merchants are said to have adopted.

Origin of Name of Canada.

It is singular that no one can say with any certainty what is the origin of the word Canada. There is an old explanation, recently revived, which says the Spaniards, in speaking of the then little known country, said "Aca Nada," meaning thereby "nothing here." To this there seem to be two objections. One of them is that an ejaculation would hardly become the name of a country, unless someone wrote it on a map, and there is no reason to suppose that any one did, and the other is that Aca is not the Spanish for "here," but means "futher." Another explanation is that it is a corruption of the Indian word "Kannatha," meaning a collection of houses, and was applied by the Indians to Quebec, not as a name but for purposes of description. Indian names are usually, perhaps always, only descriptions. If Kannatha means a collection of houses, there were probably many kannathas, but it would be quite natural for the first explorers to connect it with the place to which they first heard it applied. Another explanation is now offered namely that in old Spanish Canada (accented on the second syllable) means a gorge or valley, and hence that the expression "Tierra de la Canada," appearing on some Spanish maps, means "land of the valley," quite a natural appellation to be given to the valley of the St. Lawrence, which is par excellence, the great valley of the Atlantic coast.

EVANGELISTIC MEETINGS AT MARK ST. CHURCH

EVANGELIST WHITESIDE,

Whose labour with the pastor of the St. James' Methodist church during the past two weeks, has resulted in the decision of scores of people to live the better life, will to-morrow night commence a similar campaign in the Mark street Methodist church. Being a good singer himself, and an able conductor of congregational singing, possessed with the power of intense love for, and zeal in, his work and having God with him, there will doubtless be at Mark street an interest created, similar to that which has attended the meeting at St. James'. The services will open each night at 7.45.

THE TENNYSON EVENING WAS A GREAT SUCCESS

Song, Recitations and Addresses Featured a Most Enjoyable Evening at St. Alphonsus Lyceum.

A FINE PROGRAMME

Last night's meeting of the Ladies' Literary Society of St. Peter's T.A.S made a record in size and enthusiasm, so to-day Rev. Father Casey is wearing the smile that won't come off. The feature of the meeting was a paper on Tennyson, by Miss M. A. O'Connell, and it is a tribute to her personal popularity and powers as a lecturer that at 8.30 when the Rev. Chairman called the meeting to order there was scarcely a vacant seat in the large theatre of the Lyceum. The lecture was an exceptionally able one, and delivered as only Miss O'Connell can deliver it, was received with marked attention by the audience. She summed for the meeting all the main facts of the life of the English Laureate, sketched his characteristics as boy, man and poet and paid a well-deserved tribute to the excellence of his work. It is too long to quote in full but we think our readers will appreciate some of the more telling passages:—

"Alfred was shy, reserved, moody, with a bent towards imaginative pursuits, exhibiting when a boy the same habits and peculiarities which characterized him as a man.

When the news of Byron's death affected the household and the rectory, and the whole world seemed full of the cry: "Byron is dead," the boy crept away to think its meaning out alone, and to cut "Byron is dead" in the sandstone in the brook, ere he was fifteen. Truly the child is father of the man. This is Tennyson, the author of "In Memoriam", the melancholy precipitated, glad to be precipitated by any concrete object.

He saw the beautiful in everything—for him there were books in the running streams and sermons in stones. His love for nature is well expressed in his address to the little flower in the crannied wall:

"Little flower in the crannied wall
I pluck thee out of the crannies,
Hold thee here, root and all, in my hand, little flower,
Yet, if I could tell what thou art, little flower,
Root and all, and all in all
I would know what God and man are."

While at Trinity College, Cambridge, Tennyson formed friendships which lasted until death ended them one by one. Among the friends of his early manhood he numbered Fitzgerald, Thackeray, Gladstone, Carlyle and many other famous scholars and men of letters. Much as Tennyson owed to the encouragement of these men he owed most to one whose name is for ever associated with his own, Arthur Henry Hallam, a young man of extraordinary promise, who became the dearest of his friends—more to him than a brother.

His first volume was so severely criticised by "The Quarterly", that, morbidly sensitive as he was, he ceased from publishing for almost ten years. These ten years of silence are characteristic of the man—of his self-restraint and power of patient application. The sudden death of his friend Hallam, in September 1833 plunged Tennyson for a time in profound sorrow, but was doubtless effective in maturing and deepening his emotional and intellectual life. His feelings and ideas which centred about this great sorrow of his youthful days, the poet began to embody in short lyrics, which through successive years grew in number and variety, and finally took shape in what may be called his greatest work—"In Memoriam."

On thy cold grey stones, O Sea!
And I would that my tongue could utter
The thoughts that arise in me.

O, well for the fisherman's boy,
That he shouts with his sister at play,
O, well for the sailor lad,
That he sings in his boat on the bay;
And the stately ships go on,
To their haven under the hill
But, oh! for the touch of a vanished hand,
And the sound of a voice that is still.

At the foot of thy crags, O Sea!
But the tender grace of a day that is dead
Will never come back to me."

Miss O'Connell paid a well deserved tribute to Tennyson's excellence as a lyric poet. His incomparable lyrics prove him to be a singer by right divine, one whose fame is immortal. Clearness and simplicity were the characteristics of his work. Tennyson was simple in the true sense of the word. Nothing was ever done for effect. Even the things he did as Poet Laureate, where if ever he might have been untrue to this, are faithful to his ideal. His laureate odes are more lessons to royalty than celebrations of them. His masterpiece "In Memoriam", is worthy of a place among the classics of our English tongue. The history of its writing is well known. If an immortal fame can comfort Arthur Hallam, who was so soon bereft of the brightness of the earth, then he is consoled in his high place for the loss of human life, for surely while the language of England lasts so long will "In Memoriam" be read and Arthur Hallam mentioned. It is a song of victory and life, arising out of defeats and death. It is the moral triumph of the soul over the worst blows of fate, like the great lighthouses stand and shine through the storms of time, to save and lead int on haven of peace, the navies of humanity. . . As the poem moved on the subject expanded and the sorrow spoken of passed from the particular to the universal. The poet's personal conquests of pain became the universal conquests of the human race.

We pass over Miss O'Connell's appreciative analysis of this poem and the "Princess", which she told us is a poem to read on a rainy day in one of the rare places in the work where "there is no clock in the forest" and though we would like to linger here and also on her criticism of the beautiful "Idylls of the King," we must abstain from questioning further. "Tennyson," said Miss O'Connell in conclusion, "is not a world poet—he is national rather than universal. His poetry is distinctly English. Nothing could be more striking than the scene during the last few hours of his life. He read Shakespeare during his final illness. In the tranquil evening of a well-spent life the author of a thousand immortal lines passed peacefully away, leaving the world better and brighter because of his long days of battle. He was buried in the Poets' Corner of Westminster Abbey. "Crossing the Bar", is his own inspired death song:

"Sunset and evening star
And one clear call for me
And may there be no moaning of the bar,
When I put out to sea.

But such a tide as moving, seems asleep,
Too full for sound and foam,
When that which drew from out the boundless deep
Turns again home.

Twilight and evening bell,
And after that the dark!
And may there be no sadness of farewell
When I embark.

For tho' from out our bourne of Time and Place,
The flood may bear me far,
I hope to see my Pilot face to face,
When I have crossed the bar."

The subject of Tennyson's religious beliefs was briefly touched upon by Father Casey, who complimented Miss O'Connell on the excellence of her paper, and the very vivid pictures she had drawn of the man and the poet.

But whilst they could all admire the beauty of many of his writings they had to admit, even though the admission pained them, that they could not regard Tennyson as in any sense a really Christian poet. Some might quarrel with this judgment for there are those who maintain that the absence of specific dogmatic teaching is an evidence of "art", but that a poet should give evidence of the faith that is in him it is not necessary that he write sermons in blank verse. Art of any kind is no cure for the beautiful made concrete. How then, can that be "art", which ignores the service of all beauty—the external Beauty itself? Tennyson was not utterly irreligious. The Canons of "art" did not exclude vague and shadowy thinking about the "eternal verities" about the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man, and this was as far as Tennyson would go. But this is not sufficient to make him a Christian, and if he be but a cultured pagan we have no place for him in the select company we sit with under the lamp. It would be hardly just to go as far as that. Whilst his poetry gives much evidence of the modern spirit—whilst all through it runs the idea that dogma is played out, and that Fatherhood and Brotherhood include all the teaching we require, yet he could not altogether escape the Prophet's influence. The King will come to His own whether we will it or not. In the "Idylls of the King" there are many passages that seem to contradict this opinion, but these and many others are merely local color. "In Memoriam" would seem to argue him a Christian, but even here there is not enough to prove him orthodox. It does little more than acquit him of the charge of Theism. There are those who say that in this Tennyson is as one with Christ who cared little for dogmas provided men acted rightly. They would excuse Tennyson because according to them the Saviour was an indifferent test. But to those of us, said Father Casey, who, notwithstanding, persist in believing that religion is something more than shadowy generalities, he must ever appear as one who, sadly astray on this point, sang sweetly and well of all that he knew.

The following was the evening's programme:

Piano Duet—Selected—pupils of St Mary's Convent.
Quartette "Sweet and Low"—Misses Simons and Milloy, Messrs. Mercier and Hickey.
Reading—"St. Agnes Eve"—Marguerite Merrell.
Song "Come into the Garden, Maud"—Miss A. Simons.
Paper—"Tennyson, the Man and the Poet"—Miss O'Connell.
Song "Crossing the Bar"—Mr. J. Mercier.
Recitation—"Lady Clare"—Carrie White.
Address—"Was Tennyson a Believer"—Father Casey.
Reading "Idylls of the King" (selected) Marguerite Merrell.
Finale—"God Save the King."

Miss Henley, president of the society, accompanied.

The various songs, readings, and recitations were all enthusiastically received, and it must be very gratifying to those who contributed to find that their efforts were so well received. Miss Merrell's reading of "The Holy Grail" was one of the best items on the programme, and she well merited the very graceful compliments paid her by Rev. Father McColl, who also complimented Miss O'Connell, the other artistes, and the society's executive on the eminent success of the evening's entertainment. He was sorry to have to admit that Tennyson was one of the poets with whom he had but a passing acquaintance. As Miss O'Connell had said he was typically English and he (Father McColl) being a Celt, he confessed to a certain weakness for the poets of the Celtic school. But Tennyson was undoubtedly a great poet and he hoped that as a result of that night's meeting many of them would be induced to read more of him, and in doing so they would find that it is true of Tennyson what they had touched upon at a previous meeting, namely, that all the most beautiful work of the world's artists is inspired by the Catholic Church. Tennyson's "Idylls of the King" were entirely Catholic, as was illustrated by the very appropriate selection just given by Miss Merrell. The Church was the mother an dthe guardian of art and the artists of all times paid her conscious or unconscious tribute. The programme for the evening was certainly very select, and he sincerely hoped the succeeding meetings would reach the same very high level.

On account of the Belleville-Peterborough T.A.S. debate, the committee will meet on Monday night at 7.30 sharp. The next general meeting of the society will be held on Friday December 2nd. This will be "Speech Night," and a prize will be awarded for the best ten-minute ex tempore address.

"The Trusts & Gurantee Company, Limited, Toronto, have been appointed administrator of the Estate of the late Ann McCloskey, of the City of Toronto. The estate is valued at about two thousand dollars and consists of a one-half interest in the property known as No. 14 Saulter St., Toronto, and a bank account for the balance."

Wrongly Interpreted.

Canon Davidson suggests that the heading over his letter of yesterday was somewhat misleading as to its main purpose, which was to give information about the position of the Chimes Fund at present and the possibilities of the situation. Certainly the uppermost thought in the minds of the committee is not the desire for more money, but anxiety to satisfy the public, coupled with grateful appreciation of the splendid response, which has been made by citizens generally.

OUR MOUNTAIN HERITAGE.

Canada's Alps Constitute Twenty Switzerlands In One.

In estimating the assets of Alberta, Canada, one important item is nearly always omitted—its mountain region. In Eastern Canada and in the United States the Canadian mountains are supposed to be entirely within the confines of British Columbia. Let us look at the facts. The boundary between these two provinces is defined as the continental watershed. With the swing it takes to the west, it places the largest portion of the great Columbian ice field, said to contain an area of 200 square miles within the Province of Alberta. And so on to the north.

"What does it matter, anyway?" says the "Practical" man who knows it all. "There is no mineral and no money in those mountains." Certainly there is no money at present for anybody except the railway company with brains enough to exploit the mountain centres of beauty. Look at the little republic of Switzerland, which understands the value of mountains to a nation. In 1907, the latest date on which we have authoritive figures, the income to hotel keepers from tourists was over eighty million dollars, and this is steadily increasing. Now, hotel keepers are not the only ones who benefit. The hotels have to be supplied with food and necessaries; horses and carriages are in large demand, and even such a business as the curiosity and "notion" seller becomes important to a degree that is almost incomprehensible to us. The societies of guides, practically trade unions, are important corporations, handling large sums.

Canada possesses 200,000 square miles of high snow-clad ranges, unique in their scenic beauty and Alpine attractions. "Twenty Switzerlands in one," is the oft-quoted remark of the celebrated mountaineer, Edward Whymper. But such comparisons, true as they may be, are really of little value. It is the difference that gives our mountains their charm, not their similarity to those of other mountains of finer outline and of greater height, but there are nowhere such lakes as Louise or O'Hara, or those in the region from whence flows the great Saskatchewan. And so long as there remains inherent in healthy human nature the love of adventure, of exploring the wilderness, Canada's mountains will afford the means of satisfying it. Among the giants of the snow-clad ranges men can get away from their business cares, from themselves, and obtain real recreation.

But is not mountaineering very dangerous? To that one may reply that we take greater risks than those involved in the sport every day in our crowded cities, and think nothing of them, because they are commonplace. A great English schoolmaster, of the end of the nineteenth century, refused to recognize lawn tennis as a school game because there was no danger connected with, and, therefore, no discipline of character. This gives food for thought.

The exploitation of all high ranges the world over: the Alps, the Himalayas, the Caucasus, the Andes, the high Alps of New Zealand, has, in the first instance, been carried out by members of Alpine clubs. The earliest, the parent and most famous of them all, is the Alpine Club of England, organized in 1857, and among the youngest is the Alpine Club of Canada. Before this was started in 1906, there were practically no Canadian mountaineers. A few American citizens, a few English people passing through on their way from India or Australia, along with a few scientists, made up the meagre roll of climbers. Now the club is well on the way to a membership of six hundred, and though started as a national organization, it has become international, with connections reaching to Great Britain, the United States, Australia, South Africa, Switzerland, Holland and Italy. With ramifications spreading throughout the vast area of Canada, the club keeps in constant touch with its members by means of local committees in Vancouver, Calgary, Winnipeg and Toronto. A local committee has also been formed in New York, of which committee the president and vice-president of England's Alpine Club are members.

The "Know-all" sees no sense in a club for climbing mountains. It is surprising, however, how a little knowledge of real—not assumed—facts clears the air.

Canadian Soil In Scotland.

Few visitors to the parade ground of the historic castle of Edinburgh are aware that they stand on what is legally Canadian soil. In [illegible] eight years after James VI. went to London and the two crowns were united, the King, desirous to give an outlet to his countrymen, gave Sir William Alexander of Menstrie, afterwards Earl of Stirling, a charter of all the country between the River St. Croix, the St. Lawrence, Newfoundland, and New England. This territory was named New Scotland, St. Croix River became the Tweed, and Cape Breton became New Galloway. This new colony for administrative purposes was by a legal friction connected with Edinburgh. In order to raise men to help to found the colony the King instituted the Order of Baronets of Nova Scotia. This hereditary title was to be given to a gentleman of good birth, who arranged to send a certain number of men and to pay a certain sum of money for the expenses of this plantation of New Scotland; and there were many families among the old nobility who had still among them titles of Baronet of Nova Scotia. In 1625, immediately after the death of King James, the Order [illegible] took place in the courtyard of Edinburgh Castle. For the purpose of the institution by royal decree the place was declared to be an integral part of the new colony. As the decree has never been annulled it still remains intact and the parade ground is legally an integral part of Nova Scotia.

Lucky to Get That.

Pretty soon lovely woman will be seen with a towel around her head, and mum, poor man, will be eating hard-boiled eggs off a biscuit box in the back woodshed.—Brantford Courier.

Made the Most of It

A well known French actor became involved in a discussion with an American, grew heated, drew his card from his pocket, threw it on the table with a tragic air and stalked out. The American regarded the card for some moments, then took out his fountain pen and wrote "Admit bearer" above the engraved line and went off to the theater.—Argonaut.

A Reproof.

"Oh, children, you are so noisy today. Can't you be a little quieter?"

"Now, grandma, you must be more considerate and not scold us. You see, if it wasn't for us you wouldn't be a grandma at all."

Preferred to Swim.

Last Sunday afternoon four young gentlemen of the village were seen out canoeing on the pond, enjoying some of the beautiful scenery around our vale, when a great splash was heard and the canoe was upturned. The unfortunate young men with their Sunday suits and fine hats on were forced to swim or drown. The last that has been seen of the young men they were standing on the bank enjoying the sweet, warm summer breezes while the sun dried their finery as it hung on a neighboring fence. The whole commotion was caused by a young lady tossing a pebble at them, and in dodging the missile the canoe was overturned. They all have her sympathy.—White Vale correspondent Pickering News.

Ought to Be Switched.

On Thursday last one of our local barber shops was the scene of a pathetic incident. A little girl about 11 or 12 years of age, with beautiful long hair hanging down her back, entered the place and began to cry. The tonsorial artist enquired as to what was the trouble, and the little girl informed him that her mother had sent her to have her hair cut off as she wanted the hair made into a switch for herself. The barber showed his good judgment by refusing to do the job and sent the girl home to the Beach We could hardly believe that such selfishness could exist in a mother Apparently it is vanity first with this woman—not motherhood.—Burlington Gazette.

Peterborough's Horse Show Will Be A Reality

For some years past, it has become evident that Peterborough has been lacking in the matter of offering to its people and to the people of the county generally public attractions that would be worthy of the importance of the city. As has been frequently pointed out, Cobourg and Galt have their summer horse shows, St. Catharines its Canadian Henley, and other towns and cities have attractions of various kinds. Up till the present Peterborough has had nothing to offer.

It will be welcome news to many, therefore, that the matter of holding a horse show in Peterborough's magnificent new Armouries is now under way, and during the coming winter, or early spring, the people of Peterborough will have an opportunity of seeing one of the most up-to-date shows in the Province. The Armouries should prove to be an ideal place for an indoor horse show, and the matter of sufficient seating accommodation can be easily arranged. The Toronto indoor horse show is one of the best attractions in the Province, and while the Peterborough Armouries may not afford as good accommodation, at the same time they are large enough for the purpose. By beginning in a small way it is thought that this attraction can, in a few years' time, be worked up to be one of the best indoor horse shows in Canada. It is understood that a meeting will be called at an early date to launch the project, and arrange the date of the first annual show.

Would Use A Lead Pipe On University Students

The Examiner has received the following communication:

I noticed in last Saturday's Toronto Star an account of the trip of the Varsity football team to Kingston. The young man who wrote up this trip goes on to tell what a big time the boys had. Amongst other things he says—

"At Port Hope a group led by 'Reddie' Dixon—beg pardon, Ewart Gladstone Dixon — formed a ring around two Port Hope girls and danced the Maypole dance. Their gray-haired dad essayed to rescue them, but he was yanked into the ring, while the bunch sang "What's the matter with father?" A moment later the boys were chasing a full oil barrel and two trucks up and down the platform, and chased everybody to cover. The immediate proximity of a load of coal and an electric light suggested target practice. Good-bye light.

"The light is worth half a dollar, but guess we will get a bill for ten," sighed E. M. Watt, the secretary.

"Now for Cobourg and the lunch counter," cried Dixon, and he and Hugh Gall dug up a couple of fruit baskets and prepared. They hit that lunch counter like a Kansas cyclone. The waiters saw them coming, and grabbed everything within reach and thrust it beneath the counter. They were not half fast enough. Dixon came out with a basket of sandwiches and a dozen boiled eggs. Scrimmage Carroll strolled down the platform munching a chicken.

It's a cinch he didn't settle for it. Gall got two plum pies and the jug of milk.

Almost everyone else got something, and those that didn't commandeered a soused individual and carried him kicking and struggling upon the train. When the train pulled out it dragged behind a bread crate someone had wired on behind. They would have had a baggage truck coupled on only the station crew guarded them with dangerous-looking clubs.

At Trenton a crate of chickens joined the procession that led to the Varsity cars, but the boys got peevish when the roosters refused to fight Quarter-back Foulds under amateur rules. One rooster took a fancy to Jack Maynard, but he refused to let it lay eggs in his lap, and gave it a somersault through a window. the rest they let loose in the general coaches.

At Belleville the lunch counter, warned by wire from Cobourg, was prepared, so the crowd stole a barrel of apples and spent the rest of the journey to Kingston bombarding each other with the fruit."

If I had been at Cobourg station when these smart "guys" from Toronto University commenced their rowdyism, I think there would have been trouble. I don't think there should be any law against shooting a few of this class of young cattle, who do not appear to know how to act once they get away from under their mothers' eyes. They evidently think that conduct of this kind is very smart, but if one or two of them got rapped over the head with a piece of lead pipe or a pump handle, it might prove a lesson to the rest of the so-called students.

What right have these young "guys," who are being educated to a great extent at the expense of our country, to blow into a town like a Kansas cyclone, destroying property, and raising h—l generally? It's a good job this rugby football bunch from Toronto University did not pass by this way, or they'd have been left in poor shape to play their game at Kingston

"DOWNER'S CORNERS."

NORTH VERULAM MAN MAY GET A BIG FORTUNE

An interesting story comes from Bobcaygeon concerning a fortune that has fallen to Mr Thomas Devitt, sr., a resident of North Verulam Township. The first announcement was as follows:

News came into the village Saturday last that Mr. Thos. Devitt, sr., of North Verulam, who is hale and hearty at 86, had been left a large fortune of some $700,000, by relatives who lately died in Australia. It is reported that a gentleman representing Scotland Yard, London, called on Mr. Devitt last week, and imparted the above information, also that the same gentleman made a stay of three or four days at a neighbor of Mr. Devitt's on other business.

The Independent then adds a further item in this connection as follows:

The Devitt settlement is very much stirred over a reported windfall that may possibly be coming to Mr. Thos. Devitt. A party of surveyors from Ottawa is putting up a tower from which they make observations at night and flashlight signals to other towers situated on high lands. There is one on the Harvey Galway boundary and another in Mariposa. The party is in the employ of the Dominion Government, making a geodetic survey of the province for the purpose of getting a perfectly accurate astronomical map showing the Magnetic Declination.

Mr. Douglas is the head of the party, and the story is that before leaving Ottawa he heard of inquiries having been sent out from Scotland Yard, London, for a Devitt family. Col. Sam Hughes heard of the story, so it is said, and told Douglas that there were Devitts in his neighborhood, and if he was going into Verulam he might make inquiries. The story is that Mr. Devitt, of Australia, went out to South Africa with the Australian contingent during the South African War. He was wounded and died a few months after. He was an only son and possessed of considerable property. He left a will devising the landed properties to his mother, while other property, amounting to $750,000, he left to his nearest heir on his father's side of the family.

Mr. Thomas Devitt, of Verulam, is da brother who went to Australia, and he has not heard of him in many years past. It is therefore probable that Mr. Devitt is an uncle of the young man who died, leaving the large fortune.

SOME INFORMATION ABOUT OUR NATIONAL ANTHEM

The origin of "God Save the King," the national song of Britain —in fact, it might be said, the national air of 12 nations—has been a matter of endless discussion. It remains a question as hotly debated as ever, in spite of the fact that volumes have been written on the subject, and it is a controversy that will, probably, never be settled.

Knight, in his "Half Hours with the Best Authors," says: "The most popular song in the world is our 'God Save Our Queen.' The history of its composition is very uncertain. Perhaps the best sustained theory is that it was originally a Jacobite song written during the rebellion of 1715 by Henry Carey, and partly composed by him. It crushed into popularity in the English theatres in 1745, and Carey himself sang it publicly in 1740, having changed James to George. The air is simple and yet stately. It is capable of calling forth the talents of the finest vocal performers, and yet is admirably adapted for a chorus, in which the humblest pretender in music may join. The words are not elegant, but they are very impressive, and the homeliness of some of the lines may have contributed to its universality."

CONFLICTING STATEMENTS

Killikely, in his "Curious Questions," states: "The author of the English National Anthem, 'God Save the King' (or Queen), was Dr. Henry Carey, born in London about 1696, and died in 1743. The poem was written in honour of a birthday of George II., but it has undergone some changes as regards the words. The music was composed by Dr. Bull."

The most generally accepted theory nevertheless, is that Henry Carey wrote it for James II., the exiled King, and that it was revived and sung during the rebellions of 1715 and 1745, and then silenced by the failure of the Jacobites, until it reappeared with the reading, "God Save Great George, Our King," substituted for the original one.

Richard Clarke, the popular English composer, made a research covering a number of years, and finally published a book in which he asserts that the anthem was written in the reign of James I. by Ben Jonson, who was poet laureate. He says it was written at the particular request of the Merchant Tailors' Company, and was sung in their hall at the first public appearance of King James after the discovery of the gunpowder plot. If this be true, it probably explains the meaning of the last two lines of the second verse:

Frustrate their knavish tricks.
Confound their politics.

CAREY'S CLAIM

There is no evidence that can be produced to show that Carey claimed for himself the composing of the song. It is possible that he could have secured from some person the Jonson words and then wrote a new line to give an especial Jacobite twist to the sentiments, and set it afloat to the praise of the exiled house of Stuart! There is no doubt that he sang it in public with "Great George, the King," and that it became popular through his introducing it. Carey's life of 80 years extended through the reigns of Charles II., James II., William and Mary, Queen Anne, and two of the Georges.

Carey's son, already mentioned, who was born the year his father died, stoutly contended for his father's authorship of music as well as words, but nearly all authorities agree that Dr Bull wrote the music. Bull was a famous composer of the reign of King James.

BELONGS TO THE WORLD

Regarding the internationality of the English National Hymn, when Samuel F. Smith wrote his patriotic song, "My Country, 'tis of Thee," in 1832, it was sung to the same tune as "God Save the King," under the name "America." According to a French journal, "The Charivari," Handel copied the tune from St. Cyr melody, the authorship of which is claimed by Lmille. Besides England, the United States and Germany, it figured among the patriotic or national airs of nine other nations. In Bavaria it is "Heil! Unserm Konig, Heil!" In Switzerland it is "Rufst du, Mein Vaterland." It is used to various sets of words in Brunswick, Hanover, Wurtemberg, Prussia, Saxony, Weimar and Norway.

The statement that the air of the English National Hymn was due to French inspiration is confirmed in the "Memoirs of Madame deGregny," in which we find the canticle that used to be sung by the young ladies of St. Cyr whenever Louis XIV. entered their chapel to hear morning mass. The first stanza was as follows:

Grand Dieu Sauve le Roi!
Grand Dieu venge le Roi!
Vive le Roi,
Que toujours glorieux,
Louis victorieux.
Voye ses enemies
Toujours sourds.

These words were written by de Brenon, and the music, as stated, by Lmille, who was a distinguished composer.

THE POSTMASTER JOINS THE ARMY

Who are Shouting the Praises of Dodd's Kidney Pills in the West

A neighbour advised him to take them for his Rheumatism and Gravel. They cure dhim.

West Gravelbourg, Sask., Nov. 18.—(Special.)—Alexander McCarter, the postmaster here, has joined the great western army that has for its watchword, "When ailing, use Dodd's Kidney Pills." And like all others he has good and sufficient reasons.

"I was laid up with Rheumatism and Gravel," Mr. McCarter states, "and was also troubled with my bladder. I was so bad I could not do much work. A neighbour came along who had been troubled the same way, and advised me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I did it. I bought two boxes, and, using them according to directions, was soon able to go to work."

Notice one thing. It was a neighbour who had been troubled the same way who advised the postmaster to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. He also had been cured by them. That's why he recommended them.

If you're troubled with Kidney Disease in any form—Backache, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Gravel, Dropsy, Diabetes, or Bright's Disease—ask your neighbours. You'll soon find one who has been cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

The Water Powers On The Trent River

Now that the matter of electrical power is so much under discussion, it may be interesting to learn that the estimated available horse power on the Trent River is 74,482. Of course, a great deal of this power is being developed at the present time, while several available sites, such as Healey's Falls, are still unharnessed.

Commencing at Dam No. 1 at Trenton there is a head of 17.5 feet, making available for development 3,977 horse power. At extreme low water level of Lake Ontario, a head of 20 feet will be available, with, of course, a corresponding increase in the amount of power developed.

At Dam No. 2, about two miles north of Trenton, there is a head of 20 feet, making 4,545 h.p. available.

At Glen Miller, about four miles above Trenton, where Dam No. 3 is located, there is a head of 27 feet, making 6,137 h.p. This head of 27 feet can only be developed with the consent of and in conjunction with Messrs Miller Bros., Limited, who are now using a head of 9 feet at this point. In the event of their not consenting, a head of only 15 feet can be obtained at Dam. No. 3.

Dam No. 4, located five miles above Trenton, has a fall of 18 feet, leaving available for development 4,090 h.p., while Dam No. 5, a little over a mile further up stream, has also a fall of 18 feet, and leaves the same amount of power available for development.

At Frankford, where Dam No. 6 is located, there is a head of 16 feet, affordin g3,636 h.p. The water power at Frankford is owned by the Trent River Paper Company, who have developed part of it. During the high water season the head of 16 feet will be somewhat reduced.

At Glen Ross (Dam No. 7) there is a normal head of 5 feet, which might, by the expenditure of considerable money, be increased to 9 feet. With a 5 foot head 1,136 h.p. could be developed.

Dam No. 8 is located at the foot of Meyers Island, 26 miles north of Trenton, and about 4 miles below Campbellford. There is an available head of 30 feet, at which 6,817 h.p. can be developed. It might be pointed out that this 30 foot head requires about 25,000 cubic yards of rock excavation for tail race. There is a 25 foot head available with no tail race excavation, while a 36 foot head can be obtained at great cost for tail race excavation in rock.

At the head of Meyers Island, just two miles above, is located Dam No. 9, with a 21 foot head, at which there is available 5,451 h.p.

Ranney Falls, which will be known as Dam No. 10, and is at Campbellford, has a head of 18 feet and is capable of developing 10,908 h.p. This point is owned and controlled by various parties, whose united consent would have to be obtained in order to develop the 48 foot head in the vicinity of lock 12, otherwise only 15.5 feet can be obtained at this dam.

Dam No. 11, at Stephens' Mill site, about two miles above the town of Campbellford, has a fall of 23 feet and develops 5,227 h.p. or more. The plant at this point is owned by the Seymour Power Company.

Dam No. 12, at Middle Falls, has a fall of 25 feet and develops 5,681 h.p. This is owned by the town of Campbellford.

At Healey's Falls we come to the finest power on the Trent waterway, there being a fall of 66 feet which by considerable excavation, has been increased to 76 feet. With a 66 foot head 11,250 h.p. can be developed.

The head at the Hastings Dam is only 9 feet, and 1,534 h.p. can be developed at this point.

The total horse power that is therefore available on the Trent River from Rice Lake to Lake Ontario is 74,484. This estimate has been arrived at on estimating the flow of the River Trent at 120,000 cubic ft. per minute from below Healey's Falls to Trenton. The basis of reckoning at Healey's Falls and Hastings is on the flow of the river being 90,000 cubic feet per minute. This is considered very conservative. The increased flow below Healey's Falls is due to the fact that the Crow Bay watershed empties into the Trent River at this point.

How A Lumberman Fell Asleep In A Hog

We were sitting in the portion of the luggage car that serves as a smoking compartment, on the line that runs from Lindsay to Haliburton, and my new found acquaintance began telling stories of the early lumbering days in Haliburton County. He was a total abstainer and had spent his early days in the lumber camps, and on the drives amid all kinds of conditions, and amongst all classes of lumber jacks. He had even gone with square timber from the mouth of the Gull River, which empties into Balsam Lake, to Quebec, and was, therefore, fully conversant with lumbering conditions as they existed forty and fifty years ago.

One feature that he dwelt upon very forcibly was the absence of liquor in the camps and on the drives of to-day as compared with years ago. Incidentally he related a story of a rather amusing incident that occurred to a member of a party of which he was one some thirty years ago. The principal actor in the affair was a brother of my new found friend, who was telling the story.

"We were leaving Lindsay to go into Bord's Camp away north of Bobcaygeon," he continued, "and there was about ten of us in the party. Amongst the number was my brother Jack, who was an awful man to drink. He'd get drunk whenever he'd get the chance, and that was pretty often in those days. Just before we started north, Jack got good and drunk. He was shoutin' and hollerin' at an awful rate and raising trouble generally. Although it was in the winter time, the day was quite mild. When we started out from Lindsay we had on the sleigh about seven or eight dressed hogs, besides the ten men. For the first mile or two Jack raised an awful row, but after a while he became sleepy and lay down on the hogs, and was soon dead to the world. We didn't bother much more about him. We were glad to have him quiet, and he appeared to have a comfortable place to sleep. There he lay, with his face to the heavens and his body sunk deep into a fine big dressed hog that almost closed him in. The sleigh, with its heavy load of shanty men and dressed hogs, crawled slowly along, and in time we drew up in front of Orde's stopping-place at Bobcaygeon, where we were to spend the night before continuing our journey to the lumber camp further north. During the several hours' drive the atmosphere had changed, and had become very cold, and when we arrived at Orde's stopping-place, we were glad of the opportunity to get a good warming around the old box stove. We soon alighted, and one of the boys went to the rear end of the sleigh to waken Jack. Jack awaked fairly easily, but to his surprise, and to our surprise, we couldn't get him out of the hog. That hog had frozen so stiff and had closed in so tight around him that we could not pull him out. No, sir; we had to lift hog and all out of the sleigh and carry them into the house and cut the hog almost to pieces before we could free him from his imprisonment.

"The boys had a good laugh on Jack, but it didn't serve as a temperance lecture. Jack still got drunk whenever the opportunity offered. Nor was he the only one. Things are different now, however, and drunkenness in a lumber camp and on a drive is something that is very seldom heard of."

"BUSHWACKER."

THOSE UNPATRIOTIC WORDS OF MR. BLONDIN, M.P.

There are some newspapers that would not tell the truth about the political opponents even if they knew how, while there are others that unintentionally hear false witness against their neighbors; that is, they may be absolutely ignorant of the facts of the case they may be discussing, and make statements that are not according to the truth.

As to which of these two classes the Port Hope Times belongs we will have to leave to the Editor thereof to clear up. In the meantime, I would, indeed, be very sorry to think that it should be classed amongst the few—yes, very few—of Canadian publications that viciously who are not disposed to think politically as they do, yet, here is a piece of a very extraordinary misrepresentation on the part of the Port Hope Times.

In a recent issue, in discussing the Drummond and Arthabasca election, the Times has the following:

"Yesterday, in a speech Mr. Blondin, M.P. for Champlain, gave vent to very strong sentiment. 'We owe nothing to Great Britain,' he said. 'England did not take Canada for love, or to plant the Cross of religion as the French did, but in order to plant their trading-posts and make money. The many liberties we have are those we won by force, and to-day England tries to dominate its colonies as Imperial Rome once did.'

"There was scant applause for these remarks, and in reply Dr Beland, M.P. for Beauce, turned to Mr. Blondin and said it was the first time in his career he had ever seen a member of a Parliament under the British flag denounce the Mother Country.

"The above anti-British tommy-rot, which is remarkable for its absurdity, was clipped from the Toronto Globe of November 3, 1910, and is from a speech delivered by a Liberal Member of Parliament at Victoriaville, Quebec, on the occasion of the Drummond and Arthabasca election campaign. It is enough to make the blood boil of every self-respecting Ontario man, whether he be Liberal or Conservative.

"We would like to see Mr. Blondin address such sentiments to a Port Hope audience. He would take his life in his own hand if he ventured to inflict such disloyal poppy-cock on an assemblage of Cavan Blazers."

Now, the Editor of the Times, whose patriotism we have every reason to believe is sincere, should not be guilty of such misrepresentation as is contained in the above article. No doubt when he read these unpatriotic words of Mr. Blondin, he grew into a great rage. I imagine I see him knocking over ink stands, paste pots, prize pumpkins and everything else that may have been on his desk in his wild search for his scissors in order that he might scalp these words, expressed by Mr. Blondin, and show to the ultra-loyal people of East Durham, and particularly the township of Cavan, the traitors the Liberals are to this country. He did not pause for a moment to ask himself the question, "Is this blooming, blustering Blondin a Grit or a Tory?" He did not search for a Canadian Almanac or a Parliamentary guide to find out whether or not he was a supporter of Borden or Laurier. No. He just jumped at the conclusion that he must be a Grit, that a Tory could never be guilty of such an anti-British statement.

As a matter of fact, Mr. Blondin is a Conservative member of Parliament. He is in just as good standing in his party as the Editor of the Times, for his statements have not yet been repudiated by Leader Borden, nor has he in any way been rid out of the party. On the other hand Dr. Beland, the member for Beauce, who turned on Mr. Blondin, the Conservative, and denounced him for using such unpatriotic words is a Liberal.

The question is, was this misrepresentation deliberate on the part of the Port Hope Times? I can scarcely believe so. I think that the Editor was not fully aware of the facts. However, we will await for an issue or two of that paper before we will finally form our opinion. The Times must certainly set itself right before its readers.

THE SAME OLD CROWD AS LIVED YEARS AGO

(By the Khan, in Toronto Star)

"History is philosophy teachin' by examples," explained Old Twilight. "If Canadjins would study the history of their own country, they wouldn't git rattled so often. They's some folks in a bad way about this Bourassaw just now. No use'n havin' chills an' fever on account av that gent. We're not in the pea-soup jist yet by a long chalk. What these fellers what's in a cold sweat jist now oughta do is to hark back and look up a parallel case.

"I remember, for instance, when I was a young feller, me John A., who's dead an' gone, was in an awful bad fix. Some folks thought they saw his finish. He was in power, understand, by virtue av Quebec. He held a solid Quebec behind him. They's two hard spots on this continent—one's a solid Quebec, an' the other's the solid South.

"Well, everything was goin' along as slick as you please, an' ole John A. was havin' the time av his life, when a feller named Riel up'n started a rebellion out West, an'—say! the fur flew.

"They licked Mister Riel, an' tried him for high treason, or somethin', and he was sentenced to be hanged.

"Then the war began in earnest. Riel was some French, he was a patriot, and a solid Quebec intimated to John A. that it would be a wise thing to let him off on suspended sentence. The judge could get off the old gag, 'Now, look here, you, if you ever come before me agin you'll see what you'll see, an' don't ye forgit it, neither!'

* * *

"More'n that, the Opposition press began to taunt ole John A. They told him that he dassn't hang Riel, an' then they went so far as to dare him to do it. He was in a tight box, sure 'nuff; but he never wilted. The French-Canadian members threatened to desert him in a body, and there was another influence even more potent brought to bear; but ole John A. never turned a hair. He stud to his guns, an' one day he packed his turkey, and put a good strong plow line in with the other things, an' went out West an' he hanged Mr. Riel one morning before he et his breakfast. An' then he kem back East an' ast them, 'What you goin' to do about it, anyway?'

"They didn't do nothin' to him, that I remember of—everything was lovely an' the goose hung high.

"I remember a time when a feller named Mercier cut quite a swath in Quebec, but he jist fizzled out. We've gotta hev patience. Young Pitt spent British gold lavishly to equip European armies to hold Napoleon, and he saw them all swept away at Austerlitz. Then young Pitt died av a broken heart—the foolish young feller! Why, if he had lived a few short years more he could hev led Napoleon captive through London at his chariot wheel.

"There is no more usefuller study ner history. An' I notice that history repeats itself. There'll be 'nuther Batoche one av these days, an' see if Mister Bourassaw don't go up Fish Crick when you're not lookin'.

"When ole John A. hanged Louis Riel he did a brave thing, but it didn't take half the courage as was necessary for Sir Wilfrid to espouse the navy bill.

"None but a degenerate people punish their leaders for doin' the right thing."

DECLINE IN CANADIAN SHIPMENTS

The above figures show that Canadian shipments of bacon to this country have fallen off materially. But English merchants look hopefully to the time when Canada can produce more hogs, and there is a generally expressed wish that her vast resources should be turned in this direction by the increase of hog producing centres. The quality of Canadian bacon is uniformly good. The feeding of the hogs, the selection of the bacon, the mildness of the cure, the transit to this country, and the facilities of placing it on the English market here could not be improved.

Canada is not alone in the diminution of shipments of bacon to the English market, as the shrinkage in shipments from the United States conclusively proves. Canadian bacon is undoubtedly the keenest competitor of the Danish article notwithstanding the proximity of Denmark which enables her to place her product on the English market in the best condition, being only in the hale some three or four days before it is in the hands of the merchant. One or two Canadian houses have adopted the bale instead of the box with considerable success. This bacon has to be cured somewhat differently to box bacon, and presumably upon the Danish principle. The one disadvantage of this system is, it must be sent absolutely fresh and must be cleared upon arrival, otherwise it will not keep as well as the bacon in boxes.

DEMAND SLOW

The demand for Canadian bacon has been extremely slow, the attention of buyers of this side being diverted to English, Irish, Danish, Dutch and Russian. The home or domestic bacon has been actually cheaper than Canadian, consequently it commands the business. The arrivals of Canadian have been in small compass, however, and that has helped to sustain the market. At the time of writing the prospects are not good for Canadian curers, as it is anticipated there will be little change in the hog situation till well into the winter pack.
